Question of Raising Taxes

Stirs Legislature's Partisans

EDITOR'S NOTE — Lawmakers face major prob- lems in the 1970 legislative session, especially in the field of education. The big educational problems are the struggle to pass the state budget and the search for additional funds to meet the demands of the state's schools and colleges.

The legislature will meet in a special session on March 31. It will consider the state budget for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1971, and many lawmakers say it will be the most important session of the year.

This year's assembly will be one of the most important sessions of the legislature. The state's economy is in a state of flux, and the lawmakers must decide whether to increase taxes or to find other ways to finance the state's operations.

Many lawmakers feel that the state's economy is in a state of flux, and the lawmakers must decide whether to increase taxes or to find other ways to finance the state's operations.

The question of raising taxes is a hot one, and the lawmakers are divided on the issue. Some believe that the state needs more money to finance its operations, while others believe that the state should find other ways to finance its operations.

Lawmakers must decide whether to increase taxes or to find other ways to finance the state's operations.

They must also decide whether to increase taxes on gasoline or to increase taxes on cigarettes or alcoholic beverages.

Seaver Top Male Athlete

New York, November 28 - Tom Seaver, the 25-year-old New York Mets ace pitcher, who not only wowed the world with his pitching skills but also had an impressive performance with the bat, was named Male Athlete of the Year by the Associated Press.

Seaver, who has had a meteoric rise to the top of baseball, started the season in June after performing eight of the last nine seasons in college and graduating from Cornell University.

Seaver's performance in college included winning the 1970 National League Pitching Crown, a feat that hadn't been accomplished in over 25 years.

Seaver's impressive stats included a 22-5 record with a 1.98 earned run average (ERA), which was the lowest in the National League. He also led the league in strikeouts with 258, an indicative of his pitching prowess.

The Associated Press also noted Seaver's impact off the field, highlighting his philanthropic work and his role as a mentor to young players.

Seaver's achievements were recognized by the Associated Press, which named him the Male Athlete of the Year, a title that he shared with two other prominent athletes, basketball players Jerry West and John Havlicek.

Seaver's success in both baseball and academics has made him a role model for many young athletes.

New Recreation Building May Be Open Next Month

By Gary Moore

The University of Iowa has announced that a new recreation building may be open next month.

The building will have a gymnasium, a swimming pool, and a variety of other facilities that will provide students with a place to exercise and relax.

The university has been working on the project for several years and has invested a significant amount of money in its construction.

The building is expected to be completed in December and is scheduled to open to students in January.

Agnew Ignores Aussie Protests

In Sydney, Australia, President Ford and Vice President Agnew ignored the fact that Gizmo the elephant had been found dead in Australia, and instead attended a meeting of the Australian Chamber of Commerce.

The White House announced that President Ford and Vice President Agnew would meet with Gizmo's owner, Australian businessman John Smith, to discuss Gizmo's funeral arrangements.

Agnew also announced that he would sign a new trade agreement with Australia, which would allow American businesses to sell their products more freely in Australia.

Agnew's trip to Australia was seen as a diplomatic move to strengthen ties between the two countries.

In other news, a major earthquake struck Japan, causing widespread damage and loss of life. The United States sent emergency relief aid to Japan, including medical supplies and food.

Agnew was also involved in a heated debate over the use of nuclear weapons, as he defended his administration's policy of nuclear deterrence.

In Vietnam, a major battle was underway, with both sides claiming significant gains.

The United States increased its military aid to South Vietnam, while the North Vietnamese continued to receive support from their allies in the Soviet Union and China.

Agnew was under pressure to take a stronger stance against the North Vietnamese, but he remained committed to a diplomatic solution.

Agnew's trip to Australia was seen as an opportunity to strengthen the United States' relationship with Australia, and to set the stage for further negotiations on the Vietnam War.

Agnew was also expected to meet with Australian Prime Minister Gough Whitlam, who had become increasingly critical of the United States' role in Vietnam.

Agnew was under pressure to take a stronger stance against the North Vietnamese, but he remained committed to a diplomatic solution.

In the meantime, the American public was demanding answers about the war, and the government was facing increased criticism from the media and Congress.

In the end, Agnew's trip to Australia was seen as a failed diplomatic effort, as the United States failed to make any significant progress in the Vietnam War.

Agnew was later impeached and convicted for his role in the Watergate scandal, and was eventually pardoned by President Ford.
