

Gregory Jokes, Gets Serious About 'Tasks of Youths'

By SHARON ROHNER

"You kids today," the 38-year-old black man at the podium said, "have got all of the problems society made, and none of the tricks to solve them. Us old fools used up all the tricks."

The man was Dick Gregory. He spoke Monday night to a standing-room-only crowd of more than 2,000 persons in the Union Main Lounge.

In the course of his speech, Gregory said he sympathized with what he called the task the nation's youth have before them, joked about what he called the ineptness of the current administration — and reminded his audience that he thought blacks hold whites responsible for society's ills.

Gregory, keynote speaker for "Black Experience Week," said he felt sorry for today's youth. He likened their parents' investments in them to a check that would bounce in 30 or 40 years.

He pointed to the problems of southern school integration and whites' protest against it, saying, "Who are the Southerners hurrying by keeping their kids out of school?"

He said he feels sorry for the kids, not the parents.

From the statement, he moved smoothly into an attack on President Richard Nixon.

"Dick Nixon shows up the state of this nation better than anything," he said.

He said he would rather have Nixon in the White House than Hubert Humphrey, Lyndon Johnson, or any of the Kennedys.

Black folks, he said, "have no trouble with a dumb white man — and Nixon's without a doubt the dumbest."

David Eisenhower, Nixon's son-in-law, likewise served as a butt for Gregory's humor.

"You see that picture of David Eisenhower in the paper? He ain't as simple as I thought — up there joinin' the Naval Reserves," Gregory said.

Vice President Spiro Agnew got his share of jabs.

"Agnew must be puttin' us all on — it's not possible for no one to be so dumb. If he was that dumb, he wouldn't be able to walk around and chew gum," he jibed.

But with all the biting humor, there were serious comments too. Gregory, who two years ago campaigned against the war in Vietnam by fasting, growing a beard, and wearing work clothes, discussed the strength American youth would have if they tried to end the war by an economic boycott.

"If nothin' else works, next Thanksgiving threaten to boycott Christmas — you'd be surprised what happens," he said. "If they say, 'What do you tell the kids about Santa?' say he's over in Vietnam droppin' napalm on babies."

Patriots, Gregory continued, used to be on the side of the oppressed; now they're on the side of the oppressor. He called American flag stickers sported on car windows "a mark of bigotry, racism and stupidity" — and was greeted with cries of "Right on!" from the audience.

"Right on!" is a cry used by Black Panther members.

He warned about what he said would be the situation at the end of Nixon's administration.

"That silent majority is gonna be the most vocal group you ever heard" — and they'll out Nixon, he said.

"You voted that trick in office," he said of the President, "now you live with it."

Gregory emphasized the importance of the "Chicago Seven" trial as an example of what he said was the state of America. He said Black Panther Bobby Seale was indicted on conspiracy charges with seven other persons, five of whom he didn't even know. The real issue of the trial, he continued, was the right of a defendant to defend himself.

"In Los Angeles they're lettin' that Manson boy" (Charles Manson, accused of murdering actress Sharon Tate and several others) "defend himself — but Seale is black and they made him take one of their attorneys," he said.

Gregory said that was one more point against the system. But he expressed the hope that "you youngsters," as he frequently referred to his audience, would be strong enough to make the sacrifices necessary to rebuild society.

Of his own generation he said, "When we were in college we were too busy learning to make a living to learn how to live. The schools were too busy indoctrinating us to educate us."

Gregory is in his late 30s.

"We don't hate white folks, we hate the white system. And we hold all whites responsible for it," he said.

And, he continued, it all came down to what he said at the start of his speech — what the black wants is what Aretha Franklin asks for in her song. Just a little respect — and dignity.

Comedian and civil rights activist Dick Gregory gives the black power sign as he talks Monday night to a crowd of more than 2,000 persons in the Union. Gregory discussed current social ills and said he felt sorry for today's youth. — Photo by John Avery

Wiretap Foes Lose Ground

DES MOINES (AP) — Forces attempting to soften a proposed Iowa wiretap lost ground in the Iowa Senate Monday.

The upper chamber defeated several amendments that would have further limited the right to spy on suspected criminals with mechanical - electronic devices.

They instead adopted an amendment that increased the number of crimes for which wiretapping could be authorized.

Senate Majority Leader Robert Rigler (R-New Hampton) sponsored the amendment to add "arson or unlawful detonation of explosives with intent to harm persons or property" to the list of crimes included in the bill.

He said he offered the amendment partially at the request of the attorney general's office and later added, "I think it is clear why we need this amendment."

Sen. Alden Erskine (R-Sioux City) said

northwest Iowa "has gone through six months of bombing" in conjunction with the bitter Iowa Beef Packers labor dispute.

He said that one person has been killed so far and that it is a "miracle that more haven't. I wonder if we, the people, are entitled to some protection or if the criminal is entitled to all the protection," Erskine said.

Gov. Robert Ray said his "first reaction" to the Rigler amendment is that it "doesn't smack of organized crime — the original intent of this type of legislation."

Asked whether he thought the amendment would present a special danger of peace officers snooping in an effort to get evidence on political dissidents, Ray replied, "I think it's a danger any place."

Another reason to adopt all possible safeguards to an electronic surveillance bill, Ray said, is that not only one person under suspicion is spied upon, "but the person on the other end of the line is, too."

Ray expressed disappointment that an amendment by Sen. Gene Glenn (D-Ottumwa) was defeated. That provision would have stricken from the bill, language allowing for use in court of evidence of crimes other than the one for which the wiretap permit was granted.

Another defeated Glenn amendment would have prohibited law enforcement officers from getting permits to investi-

Students Try To Rescue Birds In Huge Oil Slick

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Hundreds of student volunteers struggled to save oil-soaked birds Monday as patches of a huge oil slick glistened along several miles of tourist beaches.

About 900 students from Florida Presbyterian College and faculty members voted to skip classes and spend the day at Lake Maggiore, where an assembly-line was set up to clean half-dead grebes, ducks and pelicans with salad oil and corn meal.

Earl Faircloth, Florida attorney general, filed a $2 million suit in federal court against Shipping Developments Corp., of Panama. The film owns the tanker that leaked 10,000 gallons of oil into Tampa Bay Friday when it ran aground in a shipping channel.

U.S. marshals seized the tanker Delian Apollan at its berth on Weedon Island in Tampa Bay, and Faircloth said the ship would be auctioned off if necessary to get the money needed to restore beaches and waterfront property damaged by the slick.

Cmdr. Anthony Fugaro of the U.S. Coast Guard said Monday patches of the 100-square-mile slick escaped from Tampa Bay under the Sunshine Skyway Bridge and were drifting north in the Gulf of Mexico pushed along by tide and winds.

gate crimes they believe will be committed.

"Are you senators willing to allow fishing expeditions . . . on the assertion crimes may be committed?" Glenn asked.

He charged that efforts to investigate crimes before they are committed is an indication that "Agnewism is sweeping this state."

He defined Agnewism as the view that "we must pinpoint and isolate the deviant and all others who are likely to commit a crime."

Glenn said that would be fine if it could be done without violating basic constitutional freedoms, but he said that to do so is impossible.

The Senate was expected to continue debate on the bill today, and if, as expected, it passes, it will be sent back to the House for concurrence on Senate amendments.

Still under consideration at adjournment Monday was an amendment by Sen. William Denman (D-Des Moines) that would make the State Bureau of Criminal Investigation responsible for all wiretapping and electronic surveillance activities.

As now written, the bill provides that most local and county peace officers could eavesdrop electronically if they had the proper permit from a district court judge.

City Officials Clarify, Deny—Senators Charge Prejudice In Use of City Facilities

By BILL ISRAEL

The Student Senate has threatened the city of Iowa City with court action unless the city immediately rectifies what the Senate calls "systematic discrimination against the University of Iowa Student Association."

In a letter to Iowa City Mayor Loren L. Hickerson, Senate Vice Pres. Roy Cacciatore, A3, Freeport, N.Y., charged, "Students are not allowed admission to the Recreation Center, use of the (City) Library, or access to other Iowa City services (garbage collection for the fraternities and sororities)."

The letter said that University students for many years have contributed to the city's tax base. The letter stated that students "are counted in the census and add to the state road use tax and liquor tax allocations that all cities in this state depend on."

The letter continued that many local businesses are dependent on student purchases for their profits.

Contacted Monday, Cacciatore added that City Library authorities had told him that University dormitory residents have been denied entrance to the City Library on the theory that such students are transients, and that they live in places that do not contribute to city property taxes.

He added that University students could not enjoy the facilities of the city's Recreation Center unless they were graduate students.

Cacciatore said that last year University fraternities were informed that the Iowa City Post Office would no longer

Senate Judiciary Committee Approves Carswell Bid, 13-4

WASHINGTON (AP) — Judge G. Harold Carswell's nomination to the Supreme Court won the approval of the Senate Judiciary Committee by a 13-4 vote Monday.

The four votes against recommending Senate confirmation of the 50-year-old Tallahassee, Fla., jurist, nominated by President Nixon on Jan. 19, were cast by Democrats.

Chairman James O. Eastland (D-Miss.) said a majority report will be filed immediately but 10 days have been granted for preparation of a minority report. This will delay taking up the nomination in the Senate until the end of February or early next month.

Eastland predicted a 2-1 confirmation vote for Carswell, the second Southerner nominated by Nixon to fill a Supreme Court vacancy that has existed since Abe Fortas's resignation last May.

Nixon's first choice, Judge Clement F. Haynesworth Jr., of Greenville, S. C., was rejected by the Senate in November by a 55-45 vote after a bitter battle over judicial philosophy and ethics. The Judiciary Committee had backed Haynesworth's nomination by a 10-7 vote.

Among the Republicans backing Carswell were the Senate minority leader Hugh Scott, of Pennsylvania, and his deputy, Robert P. Griffin, of Michigan. Both voted against Haynesworth in November.

The Democrats who voted against recommending Carswell's confirmation were Philip A. Hart of Michigan, Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, Birch Bayh of Indiana, and Joseph D. Tydings of Maryland.

cluding the dormitories and University married student housing, is tax-exempt.

She said that the Library is financed solely through property taxes and that this was the reason for the present policy. However, she added that the present policy is very flexible and that it might be changed, if there were sufficient demand for such a revision.

Iowa City Postmaster William J. Coen said that the policy Cacciatore mentioned regarding mail delivery came into effect before last year and that the policy is the same regarding dormitories.

He said, "We just deliver to a forwarding point — such as the dorm or house — and they take care of it. The same thing applies to dormitories, hotels, and motels," he said. "As far as I know, there never has been a problem before."

When asked how the idea of threatening the city with a court suit evolved, Cacciatore said he had initiated the project on his own, with the backing of Student Sens. David Yepsen, A2, Jefferson, and Bert Marian, G, North Liberty and Student Body Pres. Phil Dantes.

Cacciatore added that the Senate would meet Wednesday and said that he's "sure the Senate will be behind me."

Contacted Monday evening, Iowa City Mayor Loren L. Hickerson said he would rather defer comment on the situation until today when the City Council will take up the matter during its regularly scheduled meeting.

Dantes was unavailable for comment Monday evening.

City Acquisition Likely For Renewal Properties

Property owners in the R-18 area will not be able to retain present buildings and probably will not be able to reacquire their present sites under the proposed R-18 urban renewal project.

These implications of the R-18 plan were told to the City Council at an informal meeting Monday by Donald Best, director of the city's Department of Community Development.

The R-18 area is bounded by Court and Gilbert streets, the Rock Island Railroad and an alley between Linn and Dubuque Streets. A public hearing on the R18 plan is scheduled for March 10.

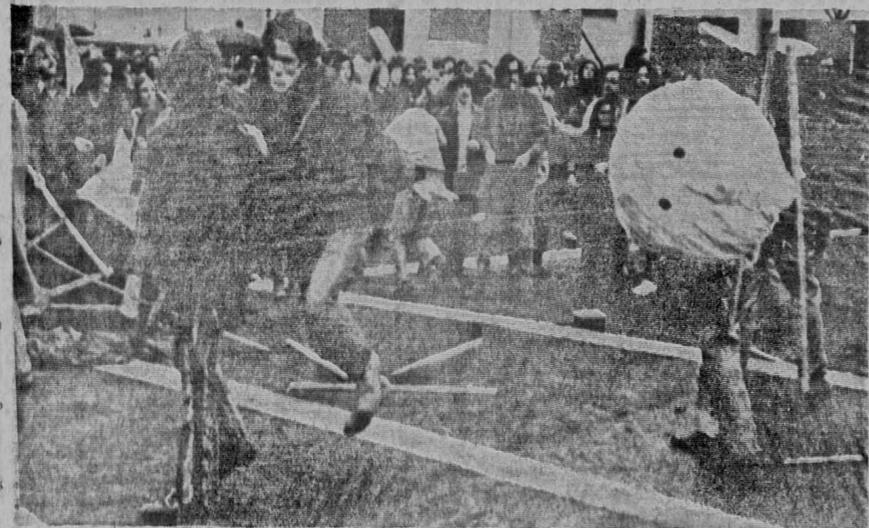

City Manager Frank Smiley said that because the city planned to acquire all land in the area and to assemble acquired lots into four large parcels, it would be unlikely that existing owners would be interested in retaining a whole parcel of which their property is a part.

Smiley said, "It is not intended that any existing properties will be left unacquired by the city. However, if an existing property owner were interested in reacquiring his present location, there is a possibility that the consolidated areas could be subdivided. These cases would have to be considered on an individual basis."

In addition, Best announced that the R-18 area would be zoned C2. He said that there was no existing zone to fulfill the city's needs for R-18 development but that C2 was the nearest thing available. C2 zoning allows all residential and commercial land uses.

Smiley pointed out that amendments to zoning at the local level, rather than at the federal level, could be used to implement the renewal plan.

Protesters in Berkeley hurl a nine-foot tall effigy of Judge Julius Hoffman, the presiding judge in the trial of the "Conspiracy 7" in Chicago, at police Monday. The event, which came after a demonstration against the several-months-long contempt of court charges that the defendants began serving Monday, shattered the peace of the demonstration and touched off an incident in which police used tear gas. The incident happened when police tried to remove the effigy from the demonstration. — AP Wirephoto

They Had A Dream

ARCHIE A. ALEXANDER
by Reasons and Patrick

Archie A. Alexander enrolled in engineering at the University of Iowa in 1908, paying little heed to friends who said he would never succeed because he was black.

Alexander knew he could make it—and he did. During a 42-year career as a design engineer and builder, Alexander gained a national reputation and left his stamp on the landscape of America.

He built bridges and freeways, million-dollar apartments and airfields, power plants and railroad trestles.

Those projects today stand as a monument to his skill and determination.

In his twilight years, Alexander was accorded another honor and a new career. President Dwight D. Eisenhower appointed him territorial governor of the Virgin Islands—a post he held until illness forced him to resign.

Alexander was born in Ottumwa, Iowa, in 1888 and attended public schools there and in Des Moines where his family later moved.

In 1912, after earning his bachelor of science degree in engineering at the state university, he joined a local firm and soon became design engineer in charge of bridge construction.

In 1914, he established his own general contracting firm and later joined with Maurice A. Repass, a former classmate, to form a partnership which endured until his death.

Alexander and the firm of Alexander & Repass tackled major projects all over America.

They built the heating plant and powerhouse at the University of Iowa; a sewage treatment plant at Grand Rapids, Mich.; a powerhouse in Columbus, Neb., and an airfield in Tuskegee, Ala.

In the District of Columbia, the firm built the tidal basin bridge and sea wall and the K Street and Whitehurst freeways.

Alexander hired anyone who could do the job. Color made no difference. He illustrated his views dramatically on one job where separate toilets were provided workers.

Taking down signs reading "white" and "colored," he replaced them with new ones saying "skilled" and "unskilled."

Alexander was a Republican, active in party affairs. He worked for Eisenhower's election in 1952, and two years later Eisenhower appointed him governor of the Virgin Islands. During his term, Alexander helped implement a new law granting a greater degree of self-government to the islanders.

Alexander was awarded many honors during the course of his career. One of the most significant came in 1947 at the centennial celebration of the University of Iowa.

From the university's 30,000 alumni, 100 were chosen as the most outstanding. Alexander was on that distinguished roster.

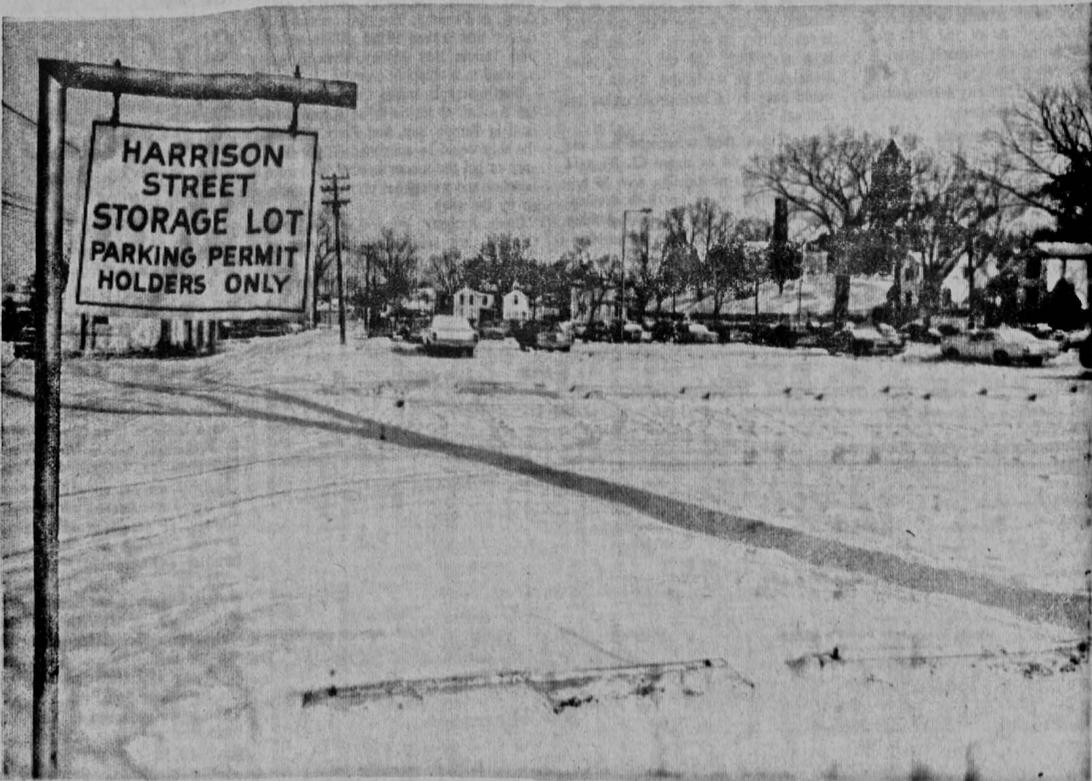

He died in Des Moines, Iowa, in 1958.

Have we come so far, or has man over the eons merely become more sophisticated in his crudeness?

"There is no room..."

Man grows and in the wake of his growth there is dissatisfaction. A university, an extension of man, must also grow and as institutions of higher learning reach megauniversity proportions there is ever the feeling that those who should count the most — the students — don't count at all. Everything and everyone must submit to the onslaught of progress. The University of Iowa is no exception. As the University has grown so has the status of students diminished. This fact is accurately illustrated in so simple a thing as student parking facilities. Students have to move over for faculty and staff to park, yet as these pictures show, at the height of the morning traffic rush, lots recently converted to faculty and staff use are nearly vacant as are those which require storage parking permits, which of course cost money. Is there no hope for the student? Must the price of progress always be the print of a foot on someone's back?

Gannon Joins Race For Governor's Job

State Rep. William Gannon (D-Mingo) became the third Democratic candidate for governor Monday.

WILLIAM GANNON

Gannon, a 33-year-old farmer, was elected minority leader of the House in 1966 and re-elected in 1968. He is the youngest man ever to hold a floor leader's position in the Iowa Legislature.

Discussing his candidacy at a news conference Monday, Gannon said he had found a "genuine concern over vasculature and indecision in positions of responsibility."

If elected, Gannon said his number one priority will be meeting the problem of pollution with "adequate appropriations and forceful regulation."

Former Lt. Gov. Robert Fulton, of Waterloo, and Robert L. Nereim, a Des Moines insurance man, have also announced their candidacy for the position, currently held by Republican Robert Ray.

No Republicans have announced candidacy for the position. Ray has not said whether he will run for re-election. Ray's two-year term will expire in January, 1971.

Commission Starts Work On Freeway

Construction on a portion of a $15-million freeway that will connect Iowa City and Cedar Rapids will begin in late March or early April, according to the Iowa State Highway Commission.

A $4 million contract for the first stretch of the road — 5.4 miles between Interstate 80 and North Liberty — will be let in March.

According to Highway Commission officials, the freeway will be completed by late 1971, with the exception of intersection lighting and other minor work.

During 1970, the Commission program for the highway calls for $5.8 million to be spent in attaining rights of way, in grading and in drainage of land for the highway on the 12½ miles from Interstate 80 to the southern Linn County boundary.

Dooley to Seek Democratic Bid For County Post

J. W. Dooley, assistant Johnson County attorney and a former assistant professor of journalism at the University, announced Monday that he would seek the Democratic nomination for Johnson County attorney.

The current county attorney, Robert W. Jansen, is also a Democrat, but he announced Monday that he would not seek a third term in that position.

Dooley, 43, was appointed assistant county attorney in 1968 and also served as campaign manager for First District Congressional Candidate John R. Schmidhauser, of Iowa City, in Schmidhauser's unsuccessful campaign two years ago.

Student Is Injured In Fall from Car

A University student sustained a broken hip when he fell from a moving car and hit a sign post Sunday.

James Russell, 21, Coralville, was in good condition at University Hospitals Monday night with a broken hip and lacerations.

Russell was injured at about 2:30 Sunday morning when he fell from a car being driven by Douglas Teeple, 21, Coralville. The car, a 1962 Chevrolet van, was rounding a curve in the 2100 block of Muscatine Avenue when the door on the passenger side suddenly opened.

FHA Project Bids Planned

Bids are expected to be let sometime after March 1 for the construction of a new 248-unit low-income housing project near the University's Hawkeye Court Apartments, Lewis Demarco, state deputy director of the Federal Housing Administration (FHA), said Friday.

Before construction can begin, a final proposal must be submitted to the FHA and to the Planning and Zoning Commission. The Commission will make a final check for compliance to city building and zoning ordinances.

Don Best, director of the Department of Community Development, said earlier last week that Robert J. Bartlet, who represents the group of investors planning the project, had about two weeks to submit the final proposal to the FHA.

The FHA will subsidize the tenants of the low income housing project by paying the project investors, according to Nate Ruben, state FHA director.

The investors, identified by Demarco, are Guy Willis, of South Carolina; Edward Palmer, of Chicago; and Harry Chadwick, whose address was not given.

They must adhere to basic rental fees established by the FHA to receive financial assistance. The FHA furnishes this assistance by authority of

'Weirdo' Prowler Raises a Ruckus

One of the most unusual prowlers in the annals of police work was reported to Iowa City police this weekend.

The house mother at the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority, 823 E. Burlington St., reported the man to police about 2:45 a.m. Sunday. She said that he was pounding on the door and creating a disturbance.

She described the man as about six feet tall and wearing a pink robe, a fisherman's hat and a blonde wig.

Police were unable to locate the man.

1968 Congressional housing legislation.

Ruben said the basic rental fees have been established, by a series of computations, as $102, $122, $144 and $165, for one-, two-, three-, and four-bedroom apartments respectively.

Ruben also said that the same apartments without FHA's financial assistance would rent for $169, $203, $238 and $274 respectively.

When the FHA receives an application from a prospective tenant, the applicants' yearly income is reviewed. The FHA then determines the amount of subsidy to provide.

"For example, if the market rental fee for a one-bedroom apartment were $150 and the FHA computed the basic rental fee at $100, the FHA could subsidize any amount between the two figures, depending on the family's income per year," Demarco said.

Ruben said Thursday that 20 per cent of the units could be further subsidized by the FHA by as much as 70 per cent of the basic rental fee. He said the $100 basic rental fee could be reduced to $30 if the family's income warranted.

TV Audience to See Hawks Shoot for Victory No. 9 in Big 10— Things Get Tougher—Iowa at Illinois Tonight

By MIKE SLUTSKY
Sports Editor

Iowa's first place Hawkeyes begin THE road trip of the season tonight when they square off with stumbling Illinois at the Assembly Hall in Champagne. The contest, which is be-

Tonight's is the first of three crucial road encounters for the Hawkeyes in the next 11 days. Iowa plays at Ohio State Saturday, comes home to entertain Northwestern next Tuesday and then must journey to second place Purdue a week from Saturday.

It all shapes up as a do-or-die 11 days for the Hawks, but foremost on the minds of the Hawks is tonight's skirmish with the Illini. Some of the glitter has been rubbed off of tonight's game because of Illinois' sudden and unexpected three consecutive defeats in the conference and four straight in all.

Illinois' last victory was exactly a month ago — Jan. 17 — over Michigan. Since that time, they, a 103 - 77 romp past Michigan State here Saturday night.

For Iowa's high-scoring offensive unit, it was just one more in a long line of fine offensive displays Saturday, although it did take the lowans a little longer than expected to take command of the game.

The Hawks led only 61 - 55 with 10:14 left in the contest, but 10 - straight points from John Johnson, Fred Brown and Chad Calabria brought the Hawks' advantage up to 16. The contest the Spartans' got after that was 71 - 59, and when the Hawks outscored MSU 19 - 8 in the final 3:20, their perfect Big 10 log was safely tucked away.

The Hawkeyes reached the 100 - point mark when Brown tossed in two free throws with quickness in its guards. Because of this, substitute guards Bob Shapland and Bob Windmiller will probably see a lot of action tonight.

Illinois' leading scorer has been the 250 - pound Jackson, who was the Illini's only player listed among the leaders in the latest Big 10 scoring statistics. As a team, Illinois is scoring about 76 points a game. Their defense, which has been giving up around 73 points a game, ranks No. 1 in the league.

The Hawks have been sizzling, as their No. 3 ranking in both shooting percentage and scoring average in the latest NCAA stats attest. The Hawks are averaging 101 points per contest in the Big 10 and have shot over 53 per cent from the field in each of their last 10 games — all victories.

After the MSU game, Miller said, "We have hit the first big plateau that we've been aiming for — that is to go into Champaign 8-0. I do not feel that this race is anywhere near over. We have no right to feel facing us, and we haven't proved ourselves anywhere except at the Field House."

CAGE CHATTER — The Hawks have connected on 52 of their last 57 free throw attempts for a .912 percentage. When Vidnovic missed his first charity attempt of the game Saturday, it snapped a personal string of 20 straight for him.

Miller's record against the Illini since coming here six years ago is 44 - . his team have won all four of the games played here, but have lost all four played there. . the Iowa cage coach now has 308 victories in his coaching career.

Johnson's 36 points Saturday pushed him into the runner-up spot in Big 10 scoring. . . Johnson's average is now 30.8. Rudy Tomjanovich, who had been second, scored 23 against Wisconsin and his average dropped to 30.1.

the Illini, now 5-3 in the conference and 12 - 6 overall, have been knocked off by Notre Dame, Wisconsin, Minnesota and, most recently, Purdue last Saturday. The Boiler-makers firmly declared themselves Iowa's chief competition for the Big 10 title by bombarding the Illini at Lafayette, 83 - 49.

Meanwhile, a victory for the Hawks tonight would make them one giant step closer in their bid for the conference championship. The Hawks haven't won at Illinois since 1962 and last year were embarrassed at Champaign by the score of 98 - 69. And before Wisconsin stopped Illinois in the Assembly Hall 66 - 65 Feb. 3, the Illini hadn't lost there in over a year.

Iowa is currently riding along on a 10 - game victory streak and haven't been beaten since Dec. 26. The Hawks are 8 - 0 in the conference and 13 - 4 overall after their latest vic-

Guess What—Rift in Athletic Dept!

By DUANE SWINTON
Asst. Sports Editor

The dispute in the Iowa Athletic Department resembled more and more the plot from some mystery novel Monday as charges were made and denied concerning the actions of Athletic Director Forest Evashevski in the conflict.

Evashevski, in a prepared statement, emphatically denied charges that he had conspired to remove Ray Nagel as head football coach or that he had encouraged two football players — Tom Smith and Larry Lawrence — to transfer from the University.

New statements were also released by Board in Control of Athletics Chairman Sam Fahr and former freshman football coach Ted Lawrence, Larry's father.

The charges against Evashevski had been made by Randy Winegard, A4, Burlington, Larry Lawrence's former roommate, in a statement presented to the Board last Thursday, according to a copyrighted story in Monday's Des Moines Register.

Winegard acknowledged that he had made the statement, but told The Daily Iowan, "I don't know who released it. I made the statement on the condition that it would not be released to the press, and was assured by Mr. Fahr, Mr. (Bud) Tynes (assistant football coach) and everyone involved that it would not be released."

According to the Register story, Winegard met with Tynes on Feb. 3 and Feb. 4 concerning the statement and then presented it to Fahr. The statement was discussed at the Board meeting Thursday.

Winegard's statement said that Evashevski had told Larry Lawrence that "it was impossible to have a good football program as long as Ray Nagel was head football coach; and if Nagel was removed, he (Evashevski) would be head coach."

The statement said that "because of such conversation," Larry tried to start a movement to remove Nagel but that it received little support from other players.

The statement also charged Evashevski with arranging for Lawrence and Smith to transfer to the University of Arizona and implicated former assistant coach Gary Grouwink, now at Northwestern, in trying to undermine Nagel's football program.

The attempt by the two players to transfer to Arizona fell through, and they are now at the University of Miami (Fla.).

Evashevski's statement of denial read: "The story carried by this morning's newspaper is false, one-sided and ridiculous. How a supposedly reputable newspaper can print a damaging story based on unconfirmed conjecture by a mistaken young man is beyond my comprehension. This information was before the Board in Control before its last meeting and was considered 'unreliable.' "I never had any part in Larry Lawrence's decision to leave Iowa or to influence his thinking against Coach Nagel."

"My door is always open to all athletes and will continue to be in the future. I defy any athlete to prove I have been disloyal to any staff member. "I had hoped that after the last Board decision, we would all work together to help overcome the damage which had been done. However, it now appears someone is still bent on the total destruction of the Iowa Athletic Department."

Winegard declined comment on Evashevski's statement and on the validity of the information in his own statement Monday night.

Accompanying Evashevski's statement was another statement by Ted Lawrence, now working for Westinghouse Corporation, concerning his son's transfer. This statement was also presented to the Board at Thursday's meeting.

In it Ted Lawrence said, "Randy became incensed because of Larry's decision. He called Larry a quitter and made other unkind remarks in regard to the decision, but Larry had strong convictions, and felt he must transfer."

The statement concludes, "Evy had never hinted to Larry or to me a desire to return to coaching so, in my opinion, the accusation is just another smoke screen to conceal the failure of the present coaching staff."

"I am grieved by the fact that my son exercised his freedom of choice and this freedom of choice has repeatedly been challenged by Ray Nagel either directly or indirectly as is now evidenced."

The statement denied that Evashevski had any part in Larry's plans to transfer until Ted Lawrence asked Evashevski to call Arizona's athletic director to tell him Iowa knew Larry was intending to transfer.

The statement said Larry first looked into transferring to Colorado, but that Colorado Head Coach Eddie Crowder called Nagel informing him that Larry had phoned him.

The statement said, "The discussions I had with Larry were to the effect that he had been threatened because of the Crowder call, the meeting with the president and his part in supporting Coach Grouwink. Larry and I decided it was best for him and the University of Iowa for him to transfer."

"Ray's final statement before we left his home (after a Feb. 1 meeting there) was, 'Larry, there would have to be a big change in your attitude if you were to play next fall.'"

The meeting with the president referred to was one of a group of players had with Fahr in University Pres. Willard Boyd's office, at which they expressed support for Grouwink.

Frazier Stops Ellis

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Frazier dropped Jimmy Ellis twice and stopped him in the fifth round Monday night in the undisputed world heavyweight boxing championship — unless Cassius Clay comes back.

The end came with Ellis, the World Boxing Association champion, sitting in his corner after taking a savage beating from Frazier in the showdown battle for the world title.

As the bell rang for the fifth round, it went into the books as a fifth-round knockout.

Ellis, an underdog at odds from 6-1 to 4-1, landed his right hand punches early but Frazier kept marching through a n d banging away with both hands to the head and body.

The bout almost ended in the fourth with Ellis flat on his back and the count up to five when the bell sounded. Referee Tony Perez continued his count under New York rules.

Iowa Grapplers Tip Michigan

The Iowa wrestling squad escaped an upset bid by Michigan, 18-16, in the Iowa Field House Saturday, boosting its Big 10 record to 5-1 and 8-1 overall.

190-pound sophomore Paul Zander cinched at least a tie for the Hawks when he threw his opponent in 7:34, giving the Iowa team an 18-13 lead after the next-to-last match.

The Wolverines needed a pin in the heavyweight match to tie the Hawks, but Iowa footballer Mike Edwards lost a narrow, 3-2 decision, and the Hawkeyes came out on top.

Iowa did suffer one casualty in the meet when their only unbeaten wrestler, 177-pound Phil Henning, dropped a 6-3 decision.

Iowa's Don Briggs once again provided the hometown fans with a real thriller, edging his man in the 134-pound match-up, 2-1. Trailing 1-0 with a minute to go, Briggs used a penalty point and an escape in the closing seconds to win.

Other once-beaten Hawkeyes who aided in evening Michigan's Big 10 mark at 3-1 were Joe Carstensen with a 9-1 victory at 142 pounds and co-captain Tom Bentz, who managed a 2-2 draw at 124 pounds.

The only other winner for the Iowa team was Jerry Lee, 4-2, at 158-pounds.

The Hawkeyes go on the road this weekend, taking on Wisconsin St. in a non-conference battle Friday and Minnesota Saturday.

And soaking your contacts in Linsine between wearing periods assures you of proper lens hygiene. You get a free soaking-storage case with individual lens compartments on the bottom of every bottle of Linsine.

It has been demonstrated that improper storage between wearings permits the growth of bacteria on the lenses. This is a sure cause of eye irritation and, in some cases, can endanger your vision. Bacteria cannot grow in Linsine because it's sterile, self-sanitizing, and antiseptic.

Let caring for your contacts be as convenient as wearing them. Get some Linsine . . . Mother's little helper.

Contact lenses are made of modern plastics which have entirely different characteristics than the tissues and fluids of the eye. Consequently your eye cannot handle this foreign object without help. So, in order to correct for Mother Nature's lack of foresight, you have to use lens solutions to make your contacts and your eyes compatible.

There was a time when you needed two or more separate solutions to properly modify and care for your contacts, making them ready for your eyes. But now there's Linsine from the makers of Murine. Linsine, for contact comfort and convenience. Linsine is the one solution for complete contact lens care. Just a drop or two of Linsine coats and lubricates your lens. This allows the lens to float more freely in the natural fluids of your eye. Why? Because Linsine is an "isotonic" solution, very much like your own tears. Linsine is compatible with the eye.

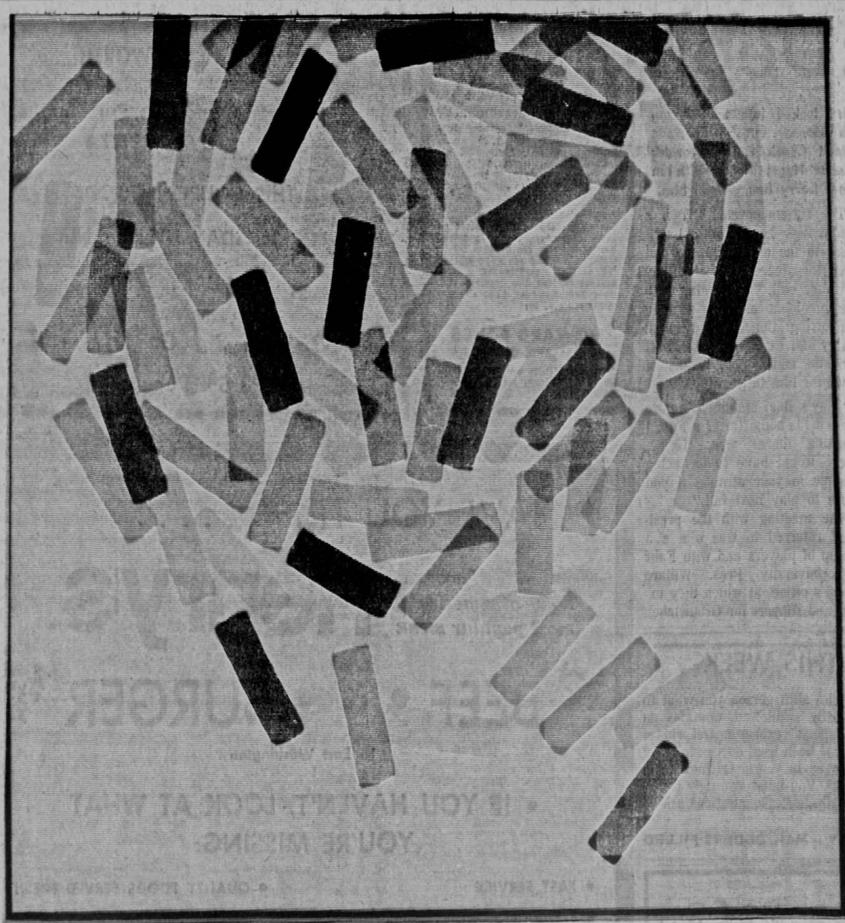

Cleaning your contacts with Linsine retards the build-up of foreign deposits on the lenses.

Walker Exhibit

George W. Walker, assistant professor of art, currently has 16 new works on exhibit at the Suzanne Kohn Gallery in Minneapolis, Minn. The show will continue through March 14. A non-objective painter, Walker's large paintings are variations on the placement of specific shapes within the painting; his smaller works are variations on the shape itself. Walker graduated from Indiana University and received his M.F.A. degree at Michigan State University. He has recently been awarded the Old Gold Research Fellowship, a University award given annually to a selected number of people in various disciplines to enable them to pursue independent study.

'Out of It'—Proof That Inexpensive Films Are Not Always Good or Successful

"Out of It" is an inexpensive film by 24-year-old writer-director Paul Williams. It stars Barry Gordon (the kid in "A Thousand Clowns" now in high school), Jon Voight (minus the Texas accent) and Lada Edmunds Jr. (remember "Hullabaloo?")

The setting is Long Island, summer of 1964. Here "Margie's Got a Mustang" is the big song on the transistor waves and the kids can't wait for their senior year in high school so they can look down on the juniors. The artificiality of the pubescent life-style makes our protagonist, Paul (Barry Gordon) feel out of it.

Paul envisions himself as a future film-maker, betraying the autobiographical nature of the story. One gets the impression director Williams had been taking careful notes on teenage gesture and dialogue throughout his own fitful years in suburbia, hoping to incorporate these details into this very movie.

Paul feels superior to the high school cool culture because he questions life, but his constant analysis leads to complications. Parking on a date, he tells the girl that he loves her, but he hesitates, and in that moment is engulfed by the absurd. "You're not deep," the girl exclaims. "You're just horny." She pushes his unsteady paws from her.

If sincerity and close observation were all that were needed to guarantee a great movie, then "Out of It" could have been great.

One hopes to praise the effort of the auteur... the artist who conceives and creates against all odds his private vision. Paul Williams' film, for all its warm and worthy assets, is not great, nor even very good. The framework for the collection of details is something we've seen before, many times. The scenes on the beach in which Paul ogles Miss Edmunds, the senior sexpot, and is in turn bullied by Voight (who even kicks sand on Paul's existential literature) is straight out of Charles Atlas ads. Paul's aspirations are vague and poorly portrayed in crude fantasy sequences. The scenes are too long and self-indulgent. Characters are credible in sporadic details, but they dissolve in a more comprehensive view. Jon Voight is very bad as Paul's blank footballing nemesis, possibly because the role is an impossible one.

So we are still waiting for the definitive statement on the suburban teenager. In the meantime, as Paul said to his date when they had reached a crisis in their relationship, "Let's go over to Howard Johnson's and talk it over."

Composers Wuorinen and Gaburo to Teach Here

Two American composers, Charles Wuorinen and Kenneth Gaburo, have accepted invitations to come to the University School of Music for a month under the school's visiting composer program. Gaburo will be on campus during March, and Wuorinen in April.

The two will temporarily take over the duties of Prof. Richard Hervig, head of the Composition Department, who is on a semester's leave of absence.

The visiting composer program was begun in 1956 to bring distinguished composers to the campus to give lectures, confer with students on original compositions and hear the composers' works performed by University music groups.

Visiting composers in the past have included Aaron Copeland, Luciano Berio, Darius Milhaud, Samuel Barber and Milton Babbitt.

Wuorinen, an assistant professor at Columbia University, New York City, played his own piano concerto with the University Symphony Orchestra in 1966. The piece was written for Prof. James Dixon, the orchestra's conductor. Dixon and Wuorinen later recorded the work with the London Royal Philharmonic Symphony. The recording was subsequently chosen by the Saturday Review magazine as one of the best recordings of 1969. The University Symphony also premiered Wuorinen's "Contrafactum" in November, 1969.

The co-director of the Group for Contemporary Music, which he founded at Columbia, Wuorinen has composed more than 75 works.

Twelve years ago, at the age of 20, he broke into the composition world with a brashness in method that caused one critic to say, "He should be spanked for whacking the percussion with the petulance of an angry child with a toy drum."

Today Wuorinen continues on his path of innovation and, according to a Christian Science Monitor critic, "provides constantly fascinating sound experiences."

Gaburo, professor of music at the University of California, San Diego, has composed major works particularly in the areas of opera and electronic music, one of his more famous works being "Lemon Drops."

A $10,000 Thorne Award, a Guggenheim prize in 1968, the UNESCO Creative Arts Award, the George Gershwin Memorial Award and yearly prizes since 1960 from the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers are among the honors Gaburo has received for his compositions.

He has studied at the Eastman School of Music, Rochester, N.Y., where he received an M.M. Degree in composition and piano; at the Conservatorio di Santa Cecilia in Rome; Tanglewood, Mass.; Princeton Seminar for Advanced Musical Studies, Princeton, N.J.; and the University of Illinois, Urbana, where he received his D.M.A. in composition.

June Wayne Discusses Her Art

By BARBARA MULVANEY

Lithography, once an almost-dead art form in this country, is now alive and well and thriving under the direction of June Wayne, founder of the Tamarind Lithography Workshop in Hollywood, Calif.

Until Feb. 28 Iowans will have a chance to view an exhibit at the University Museum of Art featuring 75 lithographs representing the best work done at Tamarind, including 31 pieces by Miss Wayne.

Since its birth in July, 1960, the Workshop, under the supervision of June Wayne, has attempted to bring lithography back to life. The Workshop's purpose is to train master lithographers and to acquaint contemporary artists with the rewards of this dynamic medium explored by such masters as Goya, Latrec and Picasso.

The self-taught artist explained that Tamarind arose out of her interest and the Ford Foundation's interest to revive this almost lost art form and re-establish ing and vital form of today's artistic expression.

Miss Wayne is very pleased with the University exhibition. She herself selected the works and said that she thinks it "a better show" than that assembled by the Museum of Modern Art in New York City. "Care and scholarship installed in the placement of the works of art is top draw," said Miss Wayne, "even better than famous museums. Iowa City should be proud of its cultural center."

She attributed this care and scholarship to the fact that Ulfert Wilke, director of the University museum, is "an artist" and that Gustave Von Groschwitz, associate director of the museum, "a distinguished scholar." "The Museum is not being run by amateurs as many are today," she said.

Lithography, while almost completely lost as an art form for many years, has been given new life by a vital and exciting person. June Wayne has breathed some of her own vitality and excitement into this art and has given it strength to take root and live again.

'Treason,' an Original Play

By PAULA OVERLAND

The University Theatre is alive with activity this week as the cast and crew of "Take the Name of Treason" prepare for the production's opening on Thursday night.

This play has an interesting historical background that can be found only in the darker pages of America's history books. "Take the Name of Treason" reveals the hysterical atmosphere that enshrouded the midwest during World War I.

This was a period in history when patriotism was not to be questioned and those who did were subject to flag-kissings, tar-and-featherings, rail-ridings, hair clippings and lynchings. The play focuses directly on the attempts of Nebraska's State Council of Defense (represented by Terry Gill and Frank Winslow) to quiet three University of Nebraska faculty (portrayed by Chris Fazel, Karen Volkin and Tim Yeager) who were outspoken in their opposition to the war.

"Treason" is based on a real event in which 12 University of Nebraska teachers were subjected to a series of public hearings to determine the extent of their disloyalty. Two lost their jobs as a result of the hearings. The play is a highly fictionalized account of this event. It shows how the frenzied atmosphere which dominated this era invaded and destroyed the University's Prof. Philip Menninger and the State Council's Kenneth Burgess, along with others.

The playwright is Larry Dobbins, G. Iowa City, a student in theater, who did a great deal of research in writing this play. Research was very necessary because not too many people are completely aware of the situation described in "Treason" and those who are would probably like to forget it. There are certain parallels that can be drawn between the situation in 1918 and the current situation in 1970, but Dobbins does not think of the play as being particularly anti-war or anti-legislation. "If the play in any sense constitutes a protest," Dobbins said, "it is only against the madness which in times of crisis compels men of intelligence and good will to destroy each other in the name of principle."

The director of this production is Cosmo Catalano, associate professor of drama, who directed "Hamlet: A College" earlier this year. He chose a student's play because University Theatre has a policy of producing at least one original work a year. This gives the student playwright a chance to see his work performed and it gives the cast an opportunity to work with the person who knows the play intimately.

Catalano especially liked the subject matter of "Treason." That is why he chose the play. He also thought it showed theatrical potential in spite of limitations within the script, the acting and his directing. It is interesting to see how Catalano staged the play, using a naturalistic setting. Instead of painted backdrops, large partitions resembling venetian blinds are hung behind raised platforms to produce various affects. There are three platforms on the stage that are used to represent different rooms and settings. The top layer of each platform is designed so that it can be easily rolled off the base of the platform, a process which allows quick scenery and prop changes off stage while another area of the stage is being performed in.

The entire crew has worked together with a talented cast to produce a dramatic and timely play worthy of an audience's interest and attendance. It will be performed at the University Theatre February 19 to 21 and 25 to 28. Tickets are free with ID's at the Union Box Office.

Reviewer Labels Cornell Play 'Incredible Theater Experience'

I had an incredible theater experience this weekend.

In a black room I found the chairs arranged in circles around a single prop chair. Each chair was far enough from the others so an actor could walk between. We, the audience, were to be the stage and even more, to be the properties of the play. Returning home, I looked up the play in Shank's "A Digest of 500 Plays" which said, "SETS: Castle exterior; officers home; stage door; lawyer's office; church interior; sea grotto; lawyer's home; quarantine station; resort; schoolroom; Mediterranean coast. Unit set essential. Not suitable for arena." I wondered if we were talking about the same play.

Yet we were. The difference lies in the honesty and total artistic faith in theater shown by the Cornell College drama people in the production of Strindberg's "A Dream Play."

When a play is as well done as this one, there is no question of relevancy to the individual nor of any need for sets or props. The magic of the acting and the directing which includes the audience makes everything else irrelevant. The key is to seem almost normal at the opening, so as to absorb your audience, then to establish the conventions the audience is to accept.

Once the conventions are established, almost anything can be done whether it is nudity, which is not used in this play, or using the audience as a handmirror, a dear child or as guides for a blind man, all of which do occur in this production, all of which involve touching people and all of which work. This is living, honest theater, which will draw me to future productions, for love of the theater.

The relevancy of the production was even more marked for me because the night before I saw the opening of Drake University's "Trojan Women," which the director claimed was relevant to our modern disgust with war. The overly smooth professionalism of the lead made the play irrelevant to the audience even more than the underlying respect for war did. The play is more against foolish wars than war itself.

Sunday night the Muscatine Masquers community theater opened its production of "The Crucible." It had many strikes against it. The play is not that remarkable; it strives for historical accuracy and lets characterization fall by the wayside. The auditorium this group used is a real pain, with over a thousand person capacity. From the audience to the actors was about a 40 feet minimum.

This production suffered mostly from a lack of characterization in the voices. It was really needed to overcome the house.

I am very impressed by the quality of Cornell College productions. "A Dream Play" will be run again Feb. 21 in a 50-seat house.

You might call 1-895-8811 and ask the theater department for information.

'Roac'

An Irish word which means "the beauty of writing" provided the title for this lithograph by Ulfert Wilke, director of the Museum of Art. Wilke made "Roac" on a commission by the Cleveland Print Club to design a print exclusively for the 250 members of the club. The print was presented during a three-day celebration of the 50th birthday of the club in Cleveland last month and now is being shown in an exhibition at the Cleveland Museum of Art featuring all of the prints commissioned annually since 1924 by the club. The work is also in a one-man exhibition of Wilke's work at Design Corner, a Cleveland art gallery.

Candidates Comment

EDITOR'S NOTE — The race for the First District Congressional seat is under way, and The Daily Iowan will run daily Candidates Comment, in which the editors will excerpt candidates' opinions and statements from their press releases and speeches.

ALBRECHT

William Albrecht said in Davenport Sunday night that Congress must take immediate action to improve substandard dwellings in the United States.

Albrecht said that the construction of 30 million housing units in the next 10 years would be necessary to correct housing deficiencies.

"At the current rate of construction," he said, "we will be lucky to get 15 million new units."

Albrecht said that federal subsidies would be required for eight million of the units "in order to put adequate housing within the reach of those who need it."

Campaigning over the weekend, Albrecht said the Defense Department owes an explanation for allegedly usurping a projected total of $10 billion cut in defense spending, and he called for vigorous enforcement of antitrust laws.

Albrecht cited a speech by Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wis.), who said the Pentagon has stolen a $10 billion "peace dividend" and plans to spend the money on weapons systems.

Albrecht said Congress must continue to press for a complete explanation of all defense spending so it can inform the public when funds are irregularly handled.

Turning to antitrust laws, Albrecht said, "It is especially important that these laws be used to prevent mergers which threaten to destroy free enterprise by concentrating economic power in the hands of a few people."

He added, "Economic power created by these mergers is easily translated into political power."

MEZVINSKY

Slate Rep. Edward Mezvinsky (D-Iowa City) Sunday criticized what he called the "wasteful spending of the Pentagon and the firing of Air Force cost expert A. E. Fitzgerald" merely because he made the enormous waste in the C-5A cargo plane public.

Speaking at a Democratic party supper in Davenport, Mezvinsky said, "Cost overruns have plagued nearly every major project the military has undertaken in recent years."

Speaking at a Davenport coffee Saturday, Mezvinsky commented on what he called a housing shortage in the First District.

"We have reached the great est housing shortage since the end of World War II," he said. "Each month fewer and fewer new dwellings are being built. This shortage hits the low and middle income groups the hardest."

Mezvinsky added, "We can begin to meet the housing needs of the cities of the First District now or wait until our cities become the disastrous jungle of ruins and slums that we have witnessed in other cities."

SCHWENDEL

Rep. Fred Schwengel (R-Iowa) said in Davenport Sunday that "traffic pollution" should be considered part of the total environmental quality issue.

In remarks made at a meeting of Eagle Signal Executives and Sales Representatives, Schwengel cited the number accidents caused on U. S. highways.

Schwengel criticized the work of the National Highway Safety Bureau, saying, "To this point the research done by the Safety Bureau has not dealt with common sense problems of highway safety. Thousands of dollars have been wasted on research which is not relevant."

STANLEY

"The entry of five candidates into the race for Congress is more evidence that First District voters want to elect a new Congressman this year," said David Stanley, Republican candidate for Congress, Monday night.

Speaking before the North Des Moines Republican Women at Mediapolis, Stanley said, "A few promoters of one candidate are trying to tell the people that it's a sin to oppose an incumbent. But the people know better. In America no office-holder has a divine right to hold onto his job forever."

Laws on Alcoholism Will Change: Hughes

By LINDA TAYLOR

Sen. Harold Hughes (D-Iowa) predicted Sunday a great breakthrough in legislation about alcoholism.

Hughes, chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on Alcoholism and Narcotics, said his subcommittee is preparing to introduce legislation in early May concerning prevention, education, treatment and rehabilitation of alcoholics.

Hughes, a cured alcoholic, spoke in the Union Main Lounge at the fourth anniversary banquet of the University Alcoholism Treatment Unit.

Prior to Hughes' speech, Dr. John C. MacQueen, associate dean of medicine and acting director of the University's Oakdale Treatment Unit, presented the senator with the second Annual Sedlacek Award for leadership in alcoholism treatment.

During his years as Iowa governor, Hughes was instrumental in the establishment of the University's Alcoholism Treatment Unit, as well as the Iowa Council on Alcoholism Project (ICAP) and the Iowa Alcoholism Commission.

Hughes praised the achievements of the University's Treatment Unit and called the Iowa projects "an advanced step in comparison with many states in the Union."

The senator has recently been conducting hearings on alcoholism and drug abuse throughout the country. Hughes said in his hearings, he has found only two U.S. medical schools which offer training in alcoholism treatment.

Hughes said the success of the Oakdale Treatment Unit, "a pilot project in America," could not be determined by questions, Hughes said.

During his national investigation, he added, he has found that alcoholism is a major contributor to drug abuse and other problems. He said the problems of addiction to alcohol and of addiction to narcotics are very similar.

The senator said a division of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) will probably be needed to handle these problems.

According to Hughes, the heroin addict today is in the same position that the alcoholic was in 40 years ago.

The addict is "resented, damned, jailed in prison, forgotten and hated," Hughes said. And the addicts need help and can be cured, he added.

The University's College of Medicine, he said, "might well be a pioneer in this new area."

He warned that Iowans can not deny that a drug abuse problem exists in the state. According to Hughes, there are about 1,500 heroin addicts in the state; and, he said, this is evidence that the intricate organized crime, which provides the drug, exists in Iowa.

He added that the related problems of alcoholism and drug addiction have great national importance.

The problems must be faced with "tolerance, hope and understanding — not condemnation," Hughes concluded.

Spy Charges Are Dropped; Russian Will Leave U.S.

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Spy charges against a Russian translator for the United Nations were dropped Monday.

The State Department requested the charges be dropped on the condition that the accused man, Aleksandr V. Tikhomirov, leave the country by Tuesday.

U.S. Atty. Stan Pitkin said the charges were dropped "in the best interest of the foreign policy of the U.S. government," and refused to elaborate.

The order dismissing the charges was signed by U.S. Commissioner Walter A. Rehg Jr.

Only Pitkin, Rehg and Murray B. Guterson, Tikhomirov's Seattle attorney, attended the court hearing. Guterson said Tikhomirov, who is free on bail, was in New York.

"I have no idea why the government dropped the charges," Guterson said. "My own belief is the government thought it sensible not to go to trial where it would be necessary to indicate what information Tikhomirov was charged with wanting."
