Earth Day 1970...

"Ideas, heresies, run like wildfire and death over the crackling static of the air. They no longer pick their way slowly through the experience of generations. Tax burdens multiply and reach upward year by year as man pays for his engines of death and underwrites ever more wearily the cost of the 'progress' to which this road has led him. There is no retreat. The great green forest that once surrounded us Americans and behind which we could seek refuge has been consumed.

"And thus, though more symbolically, has it been everywhere for man. We have re-entered nature, not like a Greek shepherd on a hillside hearing joyfully the returning pipes of Pan, but rather as an evil and precocious animal who slinks home in the night with a few stolen powers. The serenity of the gods is not disturbed. They know well on whose head the final lightning will fall."

Environmental inquiry
This week this nation and this university will focus on problems of environmental pollution and decay. It is essential that we address ourselves to this issue.

The University of Iowa has the capacity to become a more effective force in the prevention of environmental deterioration. We are on the threshold of an important development.

Currently more than one hundred courses are being taught relating to various aspects of environmental and ecological studies. More than 70 faculty members have responded to an inventory of activities in this broad area. The new clearinghouse in the office of the Vice President for Research has formed an Environmental Curriculum Steering Committee of faculty and students and a similar research committee. The three state universities in Iowa and the universities in the upper peninsula are enrolling joint efforts.

Environmental protection are not the sole responsibility of the specialists. Each of us has an obligation to be concerned with the quality of life. Between April 20-24, LIF (Living Lowers Fighting Efficiency) will provide an environmental forum for generalists as well as specialists. Every subject matter affects the environment and the LIF forum gives us the opportunity to draw the individual parts of the environment into an understandable whole.

This will prove to be a significant time of environmental inquiry.

Pollution Control—pollutant controlled?

The following is an excerpt from "The Making of a Pollution Control Complex," an article by Shugart, which appears in the special day way Economy Issue of Economic Magazine.

THE MAKING OF A POLLUTION CONTROL COMPLEX

By the time Shugart set off to write the Alternative Fund, he was ready to take on the task of creating a complex whose purpose was to help the nation tackle the problem of pollution.

Shugart was an expert on pollution control, both in theory and practice. He had spent years studying the problem, and he had a clear understanding of the practical steps that would be needed to solve it.

The Alternative Fund was a key component of Shugart's pollution controlcomplex. The fund was designed to provide financial support for projects that would help to reduce pollution.

One of the primary goals of the Alternative Fund was to promote the development of new technologies that could be used to reduce pollution. The fund would provide grants to researchers and businesses that were working on pollution control projects.

The Alternative Fund was also designed to support the creation of pollution control organizations. Shugart believed that these organizations would be essential to the success of pollution control efforts.

In addition to its role in funding pollution control projects, the Alternative Fund also provided technical assistance to organizations that were working to reduce pollution.

The Alternative Fund was a powerful tool for pollution control. It provided the financial support that was needed to develop new technologies and create new organizations. It was a vital part of Shugart's vision for a cleaner, healthier environment.

Pollution Is World Problem, Not Unique to United States

By JOY THOMAS

The University of Northern Illinois, which boasts a student population that is half female, has been accused of environmentalism. George Alexander, president of the university, has responded to the allegations.

"The university is not alone in its efforts to combat pollution. Many other universities across the country are also working towards this goal. However, the university is unique because it is able to provide a comprehensive education in environmental science, which is something that many universities are not able to do."

"We are committed to teaching our students about the importance of the environment and the role they can play in protecting it. We have established a number of environmental science courses and have also established a research center that focuses on environmental issues."

"Our goal is to prepare our students to be leaders in the field of environmental science, and to provide them with the tools they need to make a difference in the world."

"The university also has a strong commitment to sustainability. We have implemented a number of practices that reduce our carbon footprint, such as using renewable energy and reducing waste."

"We encourage our students to get involved in environmental causes and to make a difference in their communities. We believe that everyone has a responsibility to protect the environment and to ensure that future generations will have a healthy planet to live on."

Celler Promises Douglas

Impartial Investigation

WASHINGTON - Celler promises impartial investigation of the change in the Senate after Douglas is convicted of corruption.

"Celler is a principled man who will conduct an impartial investigation. He will not allow the outcome of the trial to influence his decision. I have full confidence in his ability to conduct a fair and thorough investigation."

"We must ensure that justice is served and that the Senate is protected from any influence that may threaten its integrity. Celler will conduct a full and fair investigation to ensure that the Senate operates in an impartial manner."

Group Proposes Dorm Judges

Become Single, Coed Board

By Keith Gilbert

The idea of having a single board of residence halls judges at the University's residence halls has been proposed by a special Associated Students' Government subcommittee.

At a student senate meeting on Friday, the committee responsible for overseeing the residence halls' judicial system has proposed Presently all judicial cases are handled by separate men's and women's boards. The proposed system would be similar to the one currently used in residence halls.

The judicial system of residence halls is currently two for each hall, one for men and one for women. Currently, there are two separate boards for each hall, one for men and one for women.

The proposed reforms would merge the two boards into a single board for each hall, with one judge shared between men's and women's cases. This would mean that each hall would have a single judge to handle all judicial cases, rather than two separate judges.

The proposal was presented at a Tuesday meeting and was approved by the Senate, student government, and vice president of student affairs. The proposal was also presented to the university's board of trustees.

The reforms were suggested as a way to improve the efficiency and effectiveness of the judicial system, as well as to reduce costs. The proposal was well-received by students and faculty members.

The proposal is now being submitted to the university's board of trustees for approval. If approved, the reforms would go into effect immediately.

How It Went

Officers' Questions Troop Command

By FEIS S. HOFFMAN of MILITARY WRITER

WASHINGTON - Some military officers, expressing concern that President Nixon's troop orders have not been implemented as promised, are seeking to bring the issue to a vote in Congress. They say the president should be held accountable for his actions.

The question of whether or not the United States is currently involved in a war in Vietnam is a hotly debated topic. Many people believe that the United States is fighting a war in Vietnam that is being lost.

President Nixon has repeatedly stated that the United States is not fighting a war in Vietnam, but rather a small-scale military operation.

However, many military officers believe that the United States is fighting a large-scale military operation in Vietnam.

The issue of whether or not the United States is fighting a war in Vietnam is one that continues to divide the country. It is a topic that has been debated for many years and is likely to continue to be debated for many years to come.

U.S. Students Plan All-Day Cleanup of Reservoir Area

By JAMES McNEILL

A group of students has announced plans to hold a day-long cleanup of a reservoir area near the campus. The students have been working on the project for several weeks and plan to bring in additional volunteers to help.

The reservoir area is located near the campus and is a popular spot for students to relax and unwind. The students have been working to improve the area and make it more accessible to the public.

The cleanup is scheduled to take place on a Saturday morning and will involve a variety of tasks, including cleaning up trash, weeding, and planting new trees.

The students have been working on the project for several weeks and plan to bring in additional volunteers to help.

South Viet Troops Attack in Cambodia

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAIGON (AP) - South Vietnamese troops, backed by U.S. aircraft, attacked a Viet Cong camp near Saigon today, killing at least 300 Viet Cong fighters.

The attack was one of several launched by South Vietnamese forces in recent days. The United States has been providing support to the South Vietnamese forces, but the South Vietnamese have been having trouble containing the Viet Cong.

The attack today was a significant blow to the Viet Cong, who have been fighting for control of the South Vietnamese government.

Iowa's baseball team split their final series of the season, losing only one roller to Nebraska.

Iowa's pitching and fielding were their two biggest problems in the series, with the Hawkeyes committing 12 errors in the three games. Iowa's season record fell to 26-22-1.

Coach Duane Banks collapsed in the fifth inning of the third game, and the team was later informed that his appendix had burst. Ferraras was unable to resuscitate him on the field.

In Iowa's two previous games, the Hawkeyes got plenty of hitting, but their defense was poor. On Friday, sophomore Joe Weis, a utility player from Davenport, Iowa, was at second base.

The Hawks lost the opener to Nebraska, 5-2, on Thursday. In the third game, the Hawks scored two runs in the first inning and held them off until their ninth run in the sixth inning.

The Hawks' 2-0 win on Saturday was the first time they had won a game in the series, and it gave them the series win.

Earth Day Organizer to Initiate Plans Of Direct Action after Demonstrations

WASHINGTON — The organizers of "Earth Day," a group of about 200 scientists and environmentalists who will stage a series of protests on April 22, have announced plans to escalate their efforts to confront what they see as the growing threat to the environment and the global community. The organizers said they will stage a national campaign of direct action to demand action on a range of environmental issues, including climate change, biodiversity, and pollution.

They said they will begin their campaign with a series of rallies and demonstrations in major cities across the country, followed by a series of civil disobedience actions, including blockades, sit-ins, and demonstrations at government buildings and corporate headquarters. They also said they will use social media and other digital tools to spread their message and mobilize support.

The organizers said they will target companies and industries that are responsible for environmental degradation, including fossil fuel companies, deforestation, and pollution. They also said they will protest against government agencies and policies that they believe are failing to address the climate crisis.

"We are not a party or faction, but an organized, intentional movement," said Peter Burger, a member of the Earth Day organizing committee. "We are not asking for permission to protest, but rather demanding our right to be heard.

The organizers said they will work with other groups and organizations to coordinate their efforts and build a broad-based movement. They called on all individuals and organizations to join them in the fight for a more just and sustainable future.

"We are not asking for permission to protest, but rather demanding our right to be heard," Burger said. "We are not asking for permission to protest, but rather demanding our right to be heard."
Wood Drops Registration But Remains Vice President

Edward R. Clapp, a junior Accounting major, announced yesterday that he will drop his registration as a candidate for Vice President of the Student Body and will continue as Vice President through the fall term.

"I think the party is better served by allowing me to continue as Vice President," said Clapp. "I have other interests that I would like to pursue."
It's same old story: reviewer pans play

The Sunday at the University theater editing "Ghost House" by Strindberg, a certain question is naturally raised: have these scenes been used and great things have been accomplished by the actors? Unfortunately, if so, the play was a complete disaster.

The plot begins with the story of a man, a woman, and a child. The man is a father, the woman is his wife, and the child is their son. The story is told through flashbacks and dreams, and the audience is left to piece together the events that led to the current situation.

The acting was mediocre, with the exception of the lead actors. The woman delivered her lines with a lack of emotion, while the man seemed to be going through the motions. The child was played by a young actor who was clearly uncomfortable on stage.

The set design was also a disappointment. The stage was bare, with only a few props placed strategically around. This made it difficult to follow the story and left the audience feeling disconnected.

In conclusion, the play was a Failure. The actors, director, and playwright failed to bring the story to life. It was a浪费 of time and money, and I would not recommend it to anyone.
