Welfare Recipient Knocks Local Program

By JOHN CAMP

Edyie Pilkington is divorced, a mother of two children, and receives $201 a month in welfare payments.

"There is absolutely no way to live on that much money, unless you have something coming in from the outside. And if you do, they start cutting the payments. I'm lucky because I get free rent here with my grandmother, but a lot of women aren't that lucky," she said.

Mrs. Pilkington heads the Johnson County Welfare Rights Organization, an affiliate of the National Welfare Rights Organization (NWRO). She, and a few other people — mostly welfare recipients — say they are trying to help the women who are not as lucky as she is — and anyone else who needs public assistance.

The NWRO has proposed a nationally guaranteed minimum annual income of $5,500 for families of four and is pushing for elimination of "public discrimination" against welfare recipients and their families. These goals are a long way off; now, Mrs. Pilkington and other increasingly militant welfare recipients are doing what they can for the people at the bottom of the heap.

"There was one case here in Johnson County of a woman with three children and a disabled husband. One of the boys was six, and he wasn't in school, though he had been going to Head Start for a couple years. He was bored, and he was already behind the other kids, but he had a bad hearing problem so he couldn't do the classwork, you know, the stuff they do in kindergarten," said Mrs. Pilkington.

"Well, he was being treated at the speech and hearing clinic, and the people there told her (the mother) that a hearing aid and everything would cost around $380. She went down to welfare and they told her they'd pay $100 of it. Now where in the hell was she going to get the extra $280? We found a special provision for her under the Title 19 program, and argued with them at the welfare office and the boy got his hearing aid. That's why you need an organization. So you get to know about these things. Just one person can't fight them," she said.

In pushing the fight for what they call fairer treatment of welfare recipients, the NWRO is moving along several lines: fighting alleged discrimination against recipients and their children in schools; fighting administrative procedures that allegedly rob the recipient of his dignity; pushing for higher welfare payments that will support a "realistic" minimum standard of living; helping individual recipients in hardship cases; attempting to sensitize the middle class to the plight of the recipient; educating the recipients in their rights; and fighting discrimination in credit buying.

The most controversial of all welfare programs supported by the NWRO is Aid to Dependent Children (ADC). Mrs. Pilkington said that a section of the public and some public leaders view ADC-support as a way to keep people from living well on public support.

"That's ridiculous," she said. "Look, a mother with two children gets $201 a month in Iowa. Out of that she has to pay the rent; all utilities, including heat, water and electricity, if she can afford them at all; she has to pay for food for both herself and the kids, and there are all the odd bills that come in. At that rate, she can't afford to live in Iowa City — or any city for that matter — and if she lives in the country she almost has to have a car. That means insurance payments and license plates and gas and everything that goes with that."

As an example of what the low ADC payments can mean to a mother with a large family, Mrs. Pilkington told about a Johnson County woman who she said was forced by high prices to live in the country.

"They lived in a shack," she said. "And I mean they called it a shack themselves. She had six children — she

I mean if you tell them about it. A lot had seven but the baby died of pneumonia. There was no way for her to get away from there because of the kids, so there were only two paths going out of the door — one to the outhouse and the other to the pump. Now, the people in this wonderful society expect her to live like that and take care of the kids, and they still wonder why the kids can't compete with the other kids in school and why they drop out to work as soon as they can. Maybe the mother could be blamed — I don't blame her, but some people do — but even if you could, how can you treat kids like that?"

Mrs. Pilkington went on to say that there were various ways of getting off welfare once on the rolls.

"You can go to work, but what kind of work can you get without an education? Then you have to pay for a babysitter, and as soon as you start making money, they cut back your payments. Of women around here do housework, part-time, because the welfare people can't find out about it. But really, you can't make much more working than you can on welfare, and so there's no incentive to work. And if you live in the country, who in the hell is going out there to sit in a shack and babysit all day, for what you can afford to pay them?" she asked.

A woman on welfare, she said, receives no deductions in her welfare on the first $30 of any money she makes. The same is true for 30 per cent of everything above the first $30 she makes, but the additional money is deducted from the welfare check for the other 70% over $30. If, in other words, a woman made $90 a month, she could keep the first $30 free of deductions; of the remaining $60, $20 would be exempted from deductions, but the last $40 would be deducted from her welfare check.

House to Debate Cambodian Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Ogdin Reid (D-N.Y.) announced Wednesday he will introduce an amendment prohibiting the use of U.S. ground troops in Cambodia and invited the Nixon administration to back him up.

"Administration support would reassure the country with a clear statement," Reid said, "that it does not plan to use U.S. combat troops in Cambodia."

Reid said he will offer his proposal Thursday as a rider to the $20.24 billion defense bill now before the House. This could set the stage for a possible congressional vote on the Cambodian involvement issue.

A ban on deployment of U.S. combat troops in Laos or Thailand was an amendment to a similar bill last year and was supported by the White House as an endorsement of the Nixon Doctrine of shifting the combat role to Asian allies.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird told Congress this year that no U.S. combat commitment would be made without congressional approval and that no such commitment was planned.

House reaction to the announcement of U.S. tactical air and other support for a South Vietnamese border operation in Cambodia was divided.

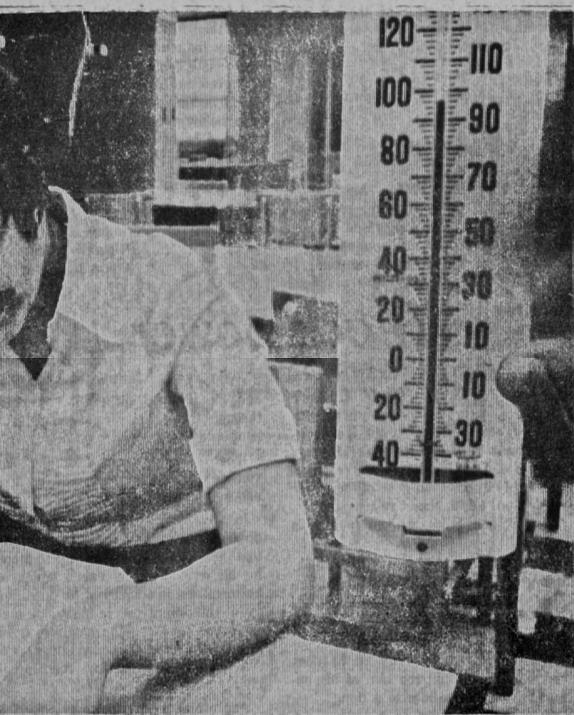

"Cambodia is close to a Communist takeover," said Rep. Robert L.F. Sikes (D-Fla.) "If they don't get help — and fast — they are going down the drain."

Nixon Address Tonight On U.S. War Position

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States announced Wednesday it is providing military advisers, bombing strikes and other support for a major South Vietnamese attack on Communist forces operating in Cambodia.

The move appeared to add a whole new dimension to American involvement in Southeast Asia and the news quickly produced these results:

• President Nixon announced he will explain the step to the nation this evening in a speech to be broadcast on television and radio (at 8 p.m. CDT).

• Cries of alarm arose in the Senate from those who have been pressing for U.S. disengagement from Southeast Asia.

• The stock market, which had moved up from Tuesday's six-year low point, reversed course and prices dropped, but later rallied somewhat.

"Cambodia is a whole new ball game," Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mon.) declared. "If we become involved directly or indirectly, it becomes a general Indochina war."

Sen. J. W. Fulbright (D-Ark.) called U.S. support of the South Vietnamese operation a great mistake and said this goes far beyond Cambodia's request for aid.

Some military officers said they thought that the operation, while directed mainly against enemy troops using Cambodia as a refuge from the Vietnam battlefield, probably would ease Communist pressure on the new Cambodian government, which recently deposed Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

The South Vietnamese Defense Ministry in Saigon first announced the big push into Cambodia, saying its assault against North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces taking sanctuary in Cambodia had American approval.

The Pentagon confirmed this later and termed the action "a necessary and effective measure to save American and other free world lives and to strengthen the Vietnamization program."

The assistant secretary of defense for public affairs, Daniel Z. Henkin, read a statement to reporters, with virtually no elaboration, which said the U.S. military command in Saigon "is prepared to provide support" to the South Vietnamese.

"This support will take the form of advisers, tactical air support, air coordinators, medical evacuation and some logistics assistance," Henkin said.

Questions he declined to answer included whether American advisers would go into Cambodia on the ground and whether the tactical air support meant that the big American B-52 bombers would be wheeled out for a Cambodian bombing role.

Henkin said the United States was fully consulted before the South Vietnamese launched their operation. He described the targets as an extensive complex of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong bases and depots in Cambodian territory 35 miles from Saigon in the so-called Parrot's Beak area, where the Cambodian boundary juts east toward South Vietnam's capital city.

"These bases and depots have posed an increasing threat to the security of free world forces in South Vietnam as a result of increased enemy activities in Cambodia and along the Cambodian-South Vietnamese border," Henkin said.

The South Vietnamese Defense Ministry said also the operation was undertaken "with a view to neutralize the North Vietnamese Communists' scheme of using the Cambodian territory as operation bases to infiltrate, shell and attack the territory of the Republic of Vietnam."

It was the first official acknowledgment of armed attacks in Cambodia by the South Vietnamese although other operations had been reported unofficially since the March 18 overthrow of Prince Norodom Sihanouk, the Cambodian premier.

Personal Ideas Won't Influence Rulings: Blackmun

WASHINGTON (AP) — Judge Harry A. Blackmun told senators Wednesday that as a Supreme Court justice he would try to keep his personal ideas and philosophies out of his decisions.

The 61-year-old Minnesotan also said he is seriously considering selling all his financial securities if confirmed.

At the same time, Blackmun said his 11-year judicial record reflects a sensitivity to labor, civil rights and the problems of "the little people."

And, with evident feeling, he told the Senate Judiciary Committee that the hundreds of letters he has received since President Nixon nominated him for the vacancy two weeks ago have demonstrated, above all, a faith in the ordinary American in the court as "a bastion of freedom."

The committee plans to meet today to act on the nomination.

Liberal and conservative senators alike accorded him a friendly reception, and several pledged they would vote for him.

Blackmun is Nixon's third nominee for the seat given up last May by Abe Fortas. Like his two rejected predecessors, Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. and G. Harrold Carswell, Blackmun has been described by the White House as a "strict constructionist."

Nixon would be the best man to ask to define what he means by "strict constructionist," Blackmun said.

"I would do my best not to have my decisions affected by personal ideas and philosophies," he testified.

"I would construe the Constitution to the best of my ability in terms of its definite and determined meaning, which many times is obscure," he said.

Troops Ordered To OSU Protest

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — About 1,200 National Guardsmen moved onto the Ohio State University campus Wednesday night, and helicopters hovered overhead with searchlights as authorities tried to quell rioting students.

The troops were sent into the sprawling university complex by Gov. James A. Rhodes after the rioting, triggered by the arrest of the leader of an anti-war demonstration, spread across the campus.

At least 32 persons including 23 policemen were injured, and widespread property damage was reported. About 75 persons were arrested. The city imposed a strict curfew for all persons in a two-square-mile area surrounding the campus.

Boyle Claims Deliberate 'Wrong Turn'— Judge Challenges Kennedy's Story

BOSTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's account of the accident that killed Mary Jo Kopechne was challenged Wednesday when an inquest judge reported he did not believe the senator and the secretary were headed for the Chappaquiddick Island ferry when Kennedy's car plunged from a narrow bridge.

Judge James A. Boyle said in his report on the secret, January inquest that, in his judgment, Kennedy turned intentionally onto the unpaved road that led toward Dike Bridge— and away from the ferry the senator said he planned to take.

Boyle said there was cause to believe Kennedy drove negligently, in a manner that "appears to have contributed to the death of Mary Jo Kopechne."

The report and the 763-page inquest transcript were made public Wednesday after nearly four months of secrecy and courtroom wrangling.

Kennedy's reply was instant: he rejected the judge's findings.

"At the inquest I truthfully answered all questions asked of me," Kennedy said in Washington. "In my personal view, the inference and the ultimate finding of the judge's report are not justified and I reject them."

In testimony, Kennedy said he had stayed up all night after his auto accident with Mary Jo Kopechne, "hopeful," he said in his inquest testimony, that when morning came, "they were going to say that Mary Jo was still alive . . ."

That was part of his explanation of how 10 hours passed between the time he said he drove his car off Chappaquiddick Island bridge, and when he appeared at the Edgartown police station to report the accident.

Both Boyle, who conducted the inquest into Miss Kopechne's death last January, and Dist. Atty. Edmund Dinis, who ordered the inquiry held, questioned Kennedy at length about the events of that night, the transcripts of the testimony disclosed Wednesday.

Kennedy said it was shortly after 11:15 p.m. when his car went off the bridge into the water.

Kennedy's own estimate was that he spent 15 or 20 minutes after he escaped from the car diving to try to reach it and Miss Kopechne. He said the fast flow of the tide prevented him from diving so.

He had gulped a lungful of water, he testified, and was exhausted. He rested for 15 to 20 minutes before leaving the bridge.

He estimated his trip back to the cottage in the darkness took another 15 or 20 minutes, and finally that his cousin, Joseph F. Gargan, and another party guest, Paul Markham, spent some time with him back at the bridge where they, too, tried without success to dive to the car.

He estimated that took about 45 minutes.

It was sometime before 2 a.m. when he reached his hotel room after swimming the channel from Chappaquiddick to Edgartown, Kennedy said.

Boyle did not explain Wednesday why he did not file a charge of negligent driving against Kennedy. He could not be reached for comment on his report. Conviction on such a charge carries a maximum penalty of two years in jail and a $200 fine.

On July 25, one week after Miss Kopechne died, Kennedy pleaded guilty to a charge of leaving the scene of an accident. Boyle sentenced him to two months in jail, suspended it and put him on probation for one year.

Release of the transcript was forbidden by the State Supreme Court until any possibility of further prosecution had passed.

New Leads in Bombing, Fire, But No Connection Proven

No evidence has been uncovered so far by Iowa City police to link the bombing on Dubuque Street Sunday night with the Selective Service Office fire of Monday night.

Iowa City Asst. Police Chief Emmett Evans said Wednesday night, "We just say we haven't found any evidence one way or another."

Evans said there had been "several" new leads in each incident and that the police are checking into them. He said none of the leads had amounted to anything as of Wednesday night.

Evans, who is acting Police Chief while Chief Patrick McCarney is attending an FBI police training school in Washington, D.C., said his department would continue to check out anything that had a connection with either case. Police officials have expressed a de-

A CASE AGAINST EDELWEISS
By ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON—The dismissal of Rory Edelweiss from the Internal Revenue Service has been upheld by Bureau 1040 as well as 1040A of the IRS and has been confirmed by Clark Mollenhoff, the White House assistant in charge of income tax returns.

Edelweiss has become a cause celebre in taxpayer circles because he tried to simplify the federal tax form, much to the horror of everyone in the Department of the Treasury.

His supervisor, Glenndening Hindsight, said that the IRS was perfectly right to fire Edelweiss.

"He was a trouble maker," Hindsight said, "and could have destroyed the entire tax-collection system in this country."

"What did Edelweiss try to do?"

"He tried to write a tax form that the average taxpayer could understand."

"What on earth for?" I asked.

"Who knows what goes on in a mind like that? Some think he was working under too much pressure. Others say if he had been given a test when he was 6 years old, we would never have hired him.

"In any case, Edelweiss came to us eight months ago with a simple tax form which anyone could have filled out. He had eliminated references to forms 2440, 3903, 2106 and 2950SE, and such phrases as "see tax rate schedule III on T-1 and table B on T-2."

"What did you do?"

"We thought he was joking at first. But Edelweiss said he was dead serious. He had worked on the return for over a year and felt that the implementation of it could cut down the taxpayer's work to three hours."

"I hope you told Edelweiss where to get off," I said.

"As his immediate superior, I tried to talk sense into him. I told him that if we simplified the present federal tax form so people could understand it, they might decide not to pay their taxes. The real purpose of a complicated tax return form was to wear the taxpayer down, so by the time he finished making out the return, he was so exhausted he would be willing to pay whatever he had just to get the return out of his house."

"He must have seen the logic in that," I said.

"Edelweiss was adamant. He said under his system the tax forms were so simple that he could save the country the 1,700,210,000 man-hours of work which are now devoted to filling out the 1040 return.

"But I told Edelweiss that if God wanted the American people to have a simple tax return he would have created one for them. He wouldn't budge, so I had no choice but to turn him in to the authorities."

"They must have been upset when they heard Edelweiss was trying to make a tax return that anyone could understand."

"Absolutely furious. The IRS has a staff of 1,400 people who do nothing but complicate the income tax forms. Whenever they discover that an item is comprehensible, they immediately take it out and replace it with something so vague and confusing that no one will get it. When they heard one of their own was trying to simplify the life of the taxpayer, they considered it treachery of the first order."

"So he was fired?"

"We made an example of him. After what we did to Edelweiss, it's going to be a long time before anybody comes up with any bright ideas on how to save the taxpayer his sanity and time."

Student Agencies

During the course of the past several years, students across the United States have been waging a struggle for increased participation in decision-making and control over their own lives.

There have been many manifestations of this movement but one, in particular, is the wholly owned and operated student corporation, providing services at the lowest possible price and using their income to generate yet more services.

These corporations, in many cases, cooperatives, allow students to fight economic exploitation by local merchants and, at the same time, generate funding for programs and activities independent from Administration control.

The set-up of these corporations differs from campus to campus — at Iowa, the organization is Iowa Student Agencies, Inc., established so that every person in the student body is a member.

The Board of Directors is controlled by direct election by the student body through its choice of Student Body President, Vice President and Senate. Thus the student has a direct democratic control in the decision making of his corporation.

Initial enterprises started are those which will provide the largest number of jobs and yield the largest income. If successful, they will allow for the financing of more extensive projects that require yet more investment, and promise to provide more jobs and larger income.

Each project, however, will be kept small enough to allow for maximum participation on the part of the campus community.

The reasons for Iowa Student Agencies, Inc., are many and varied. They include: challenging economic exploitation, helping students finance their education by increasing the number of jobs available and offering higher salaries than presently exist.

Other reasons include: developing a wider range of services and offering these services at the lowest possible price, providing valuable opportunities for training and experience in business practices other than those presently practiced in society and helping build awareness among students that transcends their usual involvement in administrative policy making.

In other words, Student Agencies is a cooperative formed to function as a communal effort to aid students working toward a common educational, economic and political goal — that of preserving and expanding their self-interest.

Recognizing that student governments are not independent voices of student interests but administrative units of college governmental hierarchy — formed by and for the Administration to serve as a buffer between Administration and student — Iowa Student Agencies, Inc. attempts to provide an alternative in the struggle for equal rights.

The first step is an independent student corporation — the non-profit Iowa Student Agencies. The need for incorporation is clearly seen in that, by definition there will be competition with local merchants. In the past, the University has, in the name of good relations, avoided such competition.

But though it has itself seen where the action is and entered into conflicting services, (at the Union), the Administration moves to stop any other University organization from so engaging local merchants. Student Agencies is an independent group — freed by law to benefit its members — you, the student.

Being non-profit, no part of the income can be utilized by any member or any individual for his own benefit — other than the funds paid out for salaries and expenses. Whatever monies are made shall be utilized to promote other services.

Thus, Student Agencies operates cooperatively to better maintain and expand student self interest, not selfish interest.

With this brief sketch in mind, the University Student Senate, after three years of struggle on behalf of the Student Body, proudly announces the formation of the Iowa Student Agencies, Inc., a non-profit cooperative, offering or planning the following services:

- Lecture notes series, Student directory
- Cooperative record store, Cooperative book store, Course evaluation project, Typing pool,

- Cooperative service station and mechanic service, Cooperative bus service, Tenant's Union & Student housing service, Student credit union, Health food store, Cooperative day care center, Cooperative primary school,

- Student discount card, Graphics center, Radio Station, Cooperative food store, Cooperative student union, Printing discount copy service, Health and life insurance, Control of the student activities fee, Student government free of administrative control, and more . . .

If you are interested in any of the above or an idea of your own, please contact:

Bert Marian, Manager, 353-5467, or Route 1, North Liberty, 351-2725

Remember, Iowa Student Agencies is your cooperative, your store, your corporation — owned and operated by you through your direct participation in the election of your student government.

Senate 'scheme'

To the Editor:

For a group comprised of students, the Student Senate has little consideration for the wishes of students. Their scheme to soak the students for $1.60 more a piece is an attempt for more power at a time when students wish they would stop.

I for one can do a lot more with that $1.60 than furnish bail for demonstrators or pay for other hare-brained ideas that the Senate comes up with.

Furthermore, their justification is insane. The University should be proud that it is below a v e r a g e in the amount charged for activities in comparison with other universities.

If the Senate wants to initiate activities, let them be self-supporting so that those who do not participate do not have to pay for the entertainment of others.

Black power

To the Editor:

Uniting in soul and pride will give Black Americans the power we need to make, control and carry out the decisions crucial to our survival. The way things stand, we have "all the responsibilities of citizens" but none of the power needed to fulfill those responsibilities, and, "responsibility without power is slavery."

Black power means the way you think. It does not mean we're anti-white; unless whitey makes us anti-white.

Black power means black dignity. How can a Black man survive the concentrations of power which, if he does not resist them, will rob him of his humanity and reduce him to a thing?

How can he survive as a person — a person who out of the learnings of his personal travail has something valid to say about the limitations of brotherhood and the feelings of human justice?

We are tired of being consigned to the maintenance crew of a society that is stubbornly deaf to the sounds of Black construction, hearing only the sounds of the . . . demolition.

In such areas as education, politics and religion we are very tired of having to make something work that was faulty in the beginning.

This is like trying to restore a Humpty Dumpty that has finally been pushed off the wall. You can make an omelet of an egg, but all the hindsight, love and understanding in the world cannot make an egg of an omelet.

White power is now under stress, for it is faced with the abrasiveness of sudden Black anger and determination. Enraged by this unaccustomed challenge,

To the Editor:

Richard Taffe's lead article in yesterday's Daily Iowan, "PROF REVEALS 'FIRING' ATTEMPT", is somewhat misleading in that I did not call a press conference nor issue any press release nor invite the D I to discuss this matter, as might be implied. Mr. Taffe confronted me with his intention to publish an essentially completed story based on his diligent year-long efforts and on complete tapes he made of Tuesday's Faculty Senate meeting, which updated the extensive file he had been building without my knowledge. In the interest of protecting myself and others involved, I was obliged to simply confirm or deny the details of his story. On river safety

To the Editor:

For the past several years I have been consistently troubled by the University physical education department's negligence in permitting students to canoe on the Iowa River without the proper life jacket protection.

The dangers of a fall into the river, with its swift, surging currents, surely seem to warrant the simply precautionary measure of wearing a life jacket.

Further increasing the chances of a tragedy is the fact that the persons in the canoes are inexperienced in handling the boat and probably unaccustomed to swimming in river currents.

With the department's Chase Manhattan budget, I am confident that they can afford the purchase and initiate the use of the life jackets which may well prevent a tragedy. Do we have to wait for a drowning until this dangerous situation is recognized and rectified?

Abortion must be decided

Indecision is certainly a bad way to rest a judgment about abortion.

For a woman faced with unwanted pregnancy, a decision whether to have an abortion would be terrifying, but indecision could be tragic. An abortion attempted after the early weeks of pregnancy (after the first 10-12 weeks) becomes a more delicate, therefore a more risky and more expensive operation.

In fact, some doctors who are willing to risk their professions to perform illegal abortions, refuse abortions after 10 weeks because of the increased risk to the patient.

A decision whether to liberalize abortion laws, which would affect thousands of women, has been put off by the Iowa legislature. This year, neither the Iowa House nor Senate allowed time for floor debate on abortion law proposals made by study committees.

Thus Iowa has imposed its tragic indecision on many whose personal decision about abortion is pre-empted by the State's 19th century statute, which requires a woman be near death if she is to be legally aborted.

A college poll, printed exclusively in The Daily Iowan last Friday, revealed that college students are not indecisive about legal changes for abortion. A margin of eight to one back legalized abortion and consider the issue serious, the poll indicated.

Students most frequently reasoned that strict abortion laws didn't stop abortions, but merely forced them out of safe hospital operating rooms and into unhygienic conditions of the backroom surgeon.

A medically safe "underground" abortion is available from some doctors only at a high cost; therefore, an effect of the strict law, students said, was to penalize the poor.

The most common tragedy of the present abortion law is the emotional damage to mother, child and sometimes to the father of an unwanted child.

A doctor, Natalie Shainess, wrote for Psychology Today (May, 1970), "An unwanted child destroys a woman's mastery of her life and creates great stress and anxiety, damaging to her and to all around her."

"But the real victim is the child. For we hide from the unpleasant fact that an unwanted child is a hated child and will be treated cruelly . . ."

Dr. Shainess said further that "serious (psychological) reactions to abortion are much fewer than serious reactions to unwanted pregnancies brought to term."

Iowa is a case in point of inconsistencies Dr. Shainess said should be recognized.

Iowa fights sex education in public schools, but hasn't dealt with the frequent consequences of a lack of information about sex, the unwanted pregnancy.

Iowans are beginning to seek help in family planning, but, by indecision, have refused to legalize abortion.

Iowa, like every other State in the Union, allows big business to exploit sex for sales promotion, but when a girl becomes a victim of exploitation with our culture is thereby saturated, Iowa refuses her an abortion.

Students who have been asking for legalized abortion have been a voice fighting for a cause not wholly their own.

Abortions are being sought by girls as young as 12 and 13, as well as by women age 40. While the majority of women who have abortions (65 percent) are between the ages of 19 and 30, 14 percent are under 18 and 21 percent are over 30.

Abortions are sought not just by unwed girls, as is a common misimpression. The married and the single seeking abortions number about evenly.

So while often accused by opponents of a more liberal abortion law of asking for a law which condones promiscuity, students are seeking more humane legislation that will allow a decision about abortion to be made by a woman and her doctor.

Students are asking that Iowa's tragic indecision about abortion be replaced by positive change in the strict abortion law at the beginning of the next legislative session.

A girl who discovers she must decide whether to have an unwanted child is probably in the situation described to The Daily Iowan by a girl who successfully obtained an illegal abortion: "Before this happened to me I didn't think much about abortion."

It is tragic that because the legislature hasn't thought much about it either, a girl has legally no choice but to have an unwanted child.

Government Optimistic: Prices Drop

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government issued Wednesday an optimistic communique about President Nixon's battle against inflation — a preliminary report indicating the first drop in wholesale prices in 20 months.

However, all the decline was for food, while most of a broad range of industrial raw materials continued rising.

"If later confirmed by more complete figures, the decrease would be the first since August, 1968," said the Labor Department of the indicated drop of one-tenth of one per cent in its Wholesale Price Index.

The decline brought the index down to 116.5, meaning it cost $116.50 in April on the average for every $100 worth of goods at wholesale in the 1957-59 period on which the index is based.

Many economists view the wholesale index as a barometer of retail price behavior later. The government's Consumer Price Index, measuring living costs at the retail level, has been rising at an annual rate of 6 per cent for more than a year, sharpest climb in 20 years.

Wholesale prices were 4.1 per cent above a year ago, down from a 4.8 annual rate in January.

The decline in April wholesale prices was due to a sharp drop of 1.2 per cent for farm products, processed foods and feeds, which are subject to frequent fluctuations because of market factors.

Wholesale prices continued to rise — three-tenths of one per cent this month — for industrial raw materials, such as metals, coal, electric power chemicals, paper, lumber and other commodities which go into manufactured products.

Still, industrials were down to a 3.6 per cent annual rise from 4 per cent at the start of the year.

"Price declines for hogs, cattle and eggs caused most of the drop in the farm products index; fresh and dried vegetables and live poultry moved down significantly. A substantial decrease for meats, poultry and fish was chiefly responsible for the lower index for processed foods and feeds, with higher prices for dairy products and manufactured animal feeds as the principal offsets," said the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

UI Meat Plant Plans Closing; 5 Lose Jobs

Five butchers who will lose their jobs when the University meat processing plant closes June 1 are being found other jobs, according to H.W. Piro, staff recruiter for the University personnel department.

The lay-offs are the result of a study completed March 17 comparing the cost of buying meat from the University butcher shop and buying directly from commercial meat suppliers.

Commercial shops would save the University over $40,000 per fiscal year, according to Michael J. Finnegan, assistant business manager.

Finnegan received the meat requirements for Hillcrest for a two week period, beginning Feb. 1. Portion-cut meats were bought from several meat processors who bid on each item, to compare prices with those of University General Stores, which operates the butcher shop. At the end of six weeks, it was determined that a 10 per cent savings occurred when the meat was bought directly from the meat processors.

According to Finnegan, there was no significant difference in the availability of products, delivery service, portion cutting of meat as specified, or quality loss when compared to the University butcher shop.

All dormitories, University Hospital, the Union and Oakdale will receive their meat through direct buying beginning June 1. A mechanized system of purchasing and distribution will be implemented to assure that the University gets a good price for its purchases, Finnegan said.

Student Files Suit Seeking Residency for Lower Tuition

Donald Hutton, A4, North Liberty, filed suit in District Court Wednesday, asking that the court declare him a resident of Iowa for tuition purposes.

In the petition filed, Hutton declared that he and his wife had moved to Iowa in 1968 to settle and raise their family in a rural environment. Their son was born in Iowa in January, 1969.

Other points of the petition state that Hutton votes, works and has a fishing license in Iowa. His car is registered and licensed in this state, the petition states.

The petition further states that his application for residency status was denied by the Residence Review Committee in September, 1969, and if he is not a resident of Iowa, then he is a resident of no state.

Hutton is asking that he be charged only resident tuition at the University and that the difference between resident and non-resident tuition which he has paid be refunded — which he says is $1,134.

The petition also asks that a regulation be made which lists the requirements for a student to become an Iowa resident without having to interrupt his education.

A representative of Hawkeye Area Legal Services Society said Monday that the case was filed to produce new residency regulations.

The representative of the Society said an important aspect of the case was that Hutton either is a resident of Iowa or else he is not a resident of any state, in which case, Hutton would have to pay out-of-state tuition anywhere.

Financiers, Nixon Advisers Review Falling Stock Prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — Six Wall Street financial leaders met with President Nixon's key economists and domestic advisers Wednesday to discuss the plummeting stock market, financial problems and how to deal with them.

The White House said the six men "expressed concern" about the troubled stock market, but did not ask for any government action.

The New York Stock Exchange — one of the institutions represented — said the administration officials told of their efforts to prod the economy to more steady expansion along a less inflationary path. The economy appears to be responding, the officials said.

The New Yorkers, who requested the appointment Tuesday, met with Chairman Paul W. McCracken of the Council of Economic Advisers; Herbert Stein, a council member; and Nixon aides John D. Erlichman and Peter M. Flanigan.

Those present from New York were: Bernard Lasker, chairman of the board of governors, New York Stock Exchange; Frank C. Graham, chairman of the American Stock Exchange; Gordon L. Geach, chairman of the National Association of Securities Dealers; Andrew J. Melton Jr., chairman of the Investment Bankers Association; Robert M. Gardner, chairman of the Government Relations Committee of the Association of Stock Exchange Firms; and Donald Regan, president of Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc.

Those to be honored are: Frederick Bargeburr, professor of religion; Paul Boeder, professor of ophthalmology; Allen T. Craig, professor of statistics; Nina Frohwein, medical reference librarian; Carl L. Gillies, professor of radiology; Joseph W. Howe, chairman of the Department of Mechanics and Hydraulics; H. Black Clergyman Knocks Militants

LOS ANGELES — The Rev. Edward V. Hill says most black people in the United States would rather be partners in a white land — "a people among peoples" — than segregated power seekers.

Hill, who travels the United States urging restraint and moderation among blacks, says he speaks for the "silenced majority of blacks."

"We have been silenced in this country," he told an interviewer, "overshadowed by the cries of separatist black militants."

He adds, "There has been an overattention to and a superimposing of black leaders on the black community, which doesn't even know them. We have been shocked to look in the newspapers and see who our leaders were."

The true leaders, he says, often are churchmen. And he says it is unfortunate that whites often do not recognize this.

Hill, a portly 35, presides over the 1,200-member Mount Zion Baptist church. He rushes from pulpit to City Hall to play peacemaker as chairman of various commissions. He was one of the founders of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference and a friend of the late Dr. Martin Luther King.

Hill says the accomplishments of the black majority have been large in recent years — and largely overlooked.

"We have aspirations that are not new," he says, "and we are on course in them."

"Young blacks are in college. Black businesses have survived. Churches are getting into the housing program. All over Los Angeles we have our credit unions and banks. Negroes are buying better houses, land and investment property. The mass black is talking about buying stock where 20 years ago it was just food. Blacks are infiltrating everything, and they are doing jobs well."

Notably, he adds, "we are understanding the political world and we have passed from the point of just wanting to elect a black official to asking that black official to bring the bacon home. That's maturity."

But he says he is bitter against white government officials for what he calls their failure to recognize black church leaders as leaders of their community. He accuses poverty program officials of "coming to the Negro community looking for political and social leaders. They never looked toward the church. So, the word went out that we had to make our own leaders."

This, he says, was the genesis of black militancy.

Crisis Center Is Beneficiary Of IFC Drive

Interfraternity Council (IFC), aided by the Sun Oil Company, is conducting a service project to raise money for an Iowa City crisis center.

The purpose of the center, now in the planning stages, is to provide immediate counseling, referral, and information to persons with critical problems, including bad side effects from drugs, loneliness, legal matters, the draft, financial matters, and homosexuality.

The center is attempting to provide free service to all residents of Iowa City during hours when other existing agencies are closed.

As part of the campaign, IFC will conduct a drive through May 6 to distribute applications to students who wish to receive a DX credit card. The card is honored at DX and Sunco filling stations and at Ramada and Downtowner Inns.

For each application that the Sun Oil Company receives, IFC will get 50 cents. All proceeds will go to the Crisis Center. DX applications will be available at IFC stations in the Union, in all dorms, in the Pentacrest and in Iowa Book and Supply.

Discrimination in School, Stores Cited— Bias Charged By Recipient

undercuts any initiative that the woman may have.

Welfare workers also try to keep a woman off the rolls by finding her a job, she said, even though she might not be suited to the proposed work.

In her own case, Mrs. Pilkington said, she first applied for welfare when she was 17.

"I'd just had my first baby, and a week later my husband was sent to the prison at Anamosa, for larceny. That's a shock for a 17-year-old girl. I went down to the welfare office, and the people there said, 'Well, you're able-bodied, you can work.' So this welfare lady said she could get me a job. It was at Ruth's Rose Room. That's a bar in Anamosa. I asked her if I wasn't too young, and she said, 'Don't worry, we can work around that.' I was going to be a waitress there, and they'd get me the job, even if it was against the law. I told her I wanted to stay home with my baby, so I said forget it. I don't want your welfare. So she forgot it, and I didn't get any welfare, even though I needed the help," Mrs. Pilkington said.

Mrs. Pilkington said that another prime difficulty of welfare recipients is discrimination, which often robs them of any possible dignity.

She cited as examples the practice of some schools requiring welfare children to work in the cafeteria for the hot lunch, or of issuing colored lunch tickets to the children of welfare recipients, who are supposed to get a free lunch, different from those of children paying for the lunch themselves.

"The kids are supposed to get a free hot lunch. When they're discriminated against this way, even a thing like different colored tickets, it emphasizes the difference and makes them feel like they're unequal to the rest of the kids. They're already having enough trouble keeping up academically, because they usually have poor home-study conditions, and the discrimination hurts them socially," she said.

The only way to solve the problem is more money, Mrs. Pilkington said. More money would allow the children to keep up a minimum required appearance for social acceptability with their peers in school, would allow them to eat better and would improve their living conditions.

The NWRO is also working to obtain credit from department stores for welfare recipients, on the grounds that even if the recipient doesn't have much money, he or she could still be an acceptable credit risk. The right to have credit at stores would help keep welfare families decently dressed, said Mrs. Pilkington, especially at times when there are big bills — the beginning of the school year, Christmas and other special occasions.

A special target in the NWRO's campaign for easier credit is Sears, Roebuck and Co., which Mrs. Pilkington said automatically disqualifies welfare recipients for credit. She said that some stores, however, are now checking the credit background of recipients and are granting some credit.

Mrs. Pilkington's statement concerning Sears' credit policy was contradicted Wednesday by James W. Flockencier, assistant manager of the Iowa City Sears Roebuck store.

Flockencier said that each individual applicant for credit was judged individually, and read the following statement from the Sears' credit manual: "Sears welcomes all credit applications, including those of welfare recipients. . . no application is automatically approved or disapproved. If any individual qualifies for credit, Sears is happy to open an account."

The NWRO is also sponsoring a campaign to "sensitize" the middle class to the plight of the welfare recipient. Part of the campaign involves encouraging middle-class citizens, especially community leaders, to live on a welfare budget for a week.

Among those volunteering to try the welfare-for-a-week diet was the family of J. Patrick White, an Iowa City lawyer and a member of the City Council. He lived on the diet during a week in February.

White said that it was possible, in his opinion, to live on a welfare diet, but added, "It would be a very difficult thing to live with indefinitely when you couldn't see where it was going to end. In my situation, I knew it was going to end in a week. I feel that most people can adapt to the resources that they must live with, but it surely wouldn't be very pleasant."

He went on to say that others he knew who had tried the experiment felt a marked psychological depression while living on the welfare diet, and said that in his case he felt a reduction in working efficiency in the evening hours.

Mrs. Pilkington said she thought such reduced efficiency was much more severe in families that lived on a full-time welfare diet than was true in the case of White and other families who tried the welfare-living experiment.

"Mr. White is a lawyer and probably doesn't have the same physical requirements as people on welfare. The kind of jobs welfare people get require a lot of physical labor, and they're usually not in very good shape to begin with," she said.

The lack of training facilities for low-income, unskilled workers keeps welfare recipients in this "heavy-labor trap," Mrs. Pilkington said.

"We have Kirkwood Community College we can go to to get a high school education, but what good does that do? I mean, they make such a big deal out of it, like the whole world will open up when you get your diploma. I talked to a guy the other day that went through there the same time I did to get a diploma," she said.

"This guy said, 'Look at me, I'm driving a cab. I could've done that before I went up there,'" she said.

Mrs. Pilkington said that her group will be pushing for an extension of training services for the Johnson County area. But overriding that issue, she said, and all other issues, is the problem of the children.

"Gov. (Robert) Ray had a hunger conference in Des Moines a couple of weeks ago, and it was pretty tragic," she said. "All these people came out and found out there was hunger in the state; I was shocked that they didn't already know it and come ready to do something. Like this story about the kid eating garbage when he was at school because he didn't have anything else to eat. Why in the hell didn't the teachers that saw it — I mean, they said they saw him doing it day after day and were really upset — why in the hell couldn't they get together and dig up 35 cents a day or whatever it is that the kid needed to eat lunch?"

Mrs. Pilkington said that the children of welfare recipients live in a circle that is very difficult to break.

"The kids are badly dressed, so they get discriminated against by other kids. School is a drag. They don't have a good diet, so they can't keep up in activities. They don't have the background and experiences of the other kids. And study conditions at home are usually rotten, so they have trouble with the school work. They're sick a lot. So they wind up as drop-outs, get any job they can, get married early, and half the time they wind up on welfare themselves and the same thing happens to their kids as happened to them," she said.

17 Horses Likely In Kentucky Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Mother Nature and Doc Lavin will help make the final decision, but for the moment 17 horses seem likely starters in Saturday's 96th Kentucky Derby.

All 17 trainers are keeping wary eyes on the sky over Churchill Downs, some hoping for rain, but most fearing it. They also are concerned with the results when Lavin, the racing secretary, draws for post positions this morning.

With a possibility of the largest field since Tom Lee won in 1959, post position will be a serious factor.

Most trainers favor a starting gate near the middle of the pack or toward the rail from center.

Two candidates — Supreme Quality and Fathom — were withdrawn Wednesday from Derby consideration, Supreme Quality because of a foot problem and Nathom because of a poor showing in Tuesday's Derby Trial.

The loss of Fathom means the "for men only" sign still hangs over the Derby jockey room. Diana Crump would have been the colt's rider.

My Dad George is the probable early betting favorite for the $125,000-added classic, which starts at 4:40 p.m., Iowa time Saturday and will be carried on national television and radio by CBS.

Trainer Bud McManus tagged My Dad George as "a spoiled brat with a lot of money. He decides what he wants to do in training."

Others sure to be high on the bettors' lists are Mrs. Ethel Jacobs' Personality and Samuel J. Agnew's Terlago, the Santa Anita Derby winner.

Silent Screen, a champion as a 2-year-old but a disappointment so far at three, Corn Off The Cob and California Derby victor George Lewis also will get attention.

Of the 17, only Native Royalty was a doubtful starter with less than 24 hours left until entry time.

Trainer John Davis said the son of Raise A Native "hit himself a couple of times" while beating only one horse in the Derby Trial and opened some cuts on his hind ankles. "The way it looks now, I doubt if we'll run," Davis added.

Hawkeye Junior Varsity Sweeps Clinton—1-0, 2-1

Iowa's junior varsity baseball team swept a doubleheader from Clinton Junior College 1-0 and 2-1 at Iowa Stadium Wednesday afternoon.

The second game was called after six innings because of darkness and rain.

Tom Polet was the hitting hero for the Hawkeyes in both games. His single in the bottom of the seventh with runners on second and third scored the only run of the first game.

Jim Weis pitched the shutout for Iowa.

In a pinch-hitting role in the second game, Polet singled in two runs with a single in the bottom of the fifth inning to overcome a 1-0 Clinton lead.

The two wins gave the Iowa JV's a 4-2 mark for the season.

Hawkeye Freshman Started Game at Age 6—Young Heinz Old at Golfing

By JAY EWOLDT

If a golfer could be said to be born with a club in his hands, Joe Heinz would fit the description, for the Hawkeye freshman has been beating grown men for years and could help Iowa to its best Big 10 finish ever.

Golf is a family tradition for Heinz, who has two club professionals in his family, and Heinz said one of his goals is "to play on the pro tour after finishing college."

Heinz' grandfather was a club pro for many years and his brother Jerry is a professional at South Bend, Ind.

With a background like this, it is not surprising that Heinz took an early interest in golf and developed into a top prep golfer.

Heinz finished twelfth in the high school state championships as a sophomore, progressed to second as a junior and won the state title as a senior to lead Waterloo Columbus to the team title.

Heinz, by far the best player on his high school team, said the big difference between high school and college golf is that college golfers are about equal in ability. "At Iowa there are at least six to eight men as good or better than I am," said Heinz.

Heinz is "one of the best freshmen in the Big 10" according to Iowa golf coach Chuck Zweiner.

"He's a fine player right now," said Zweiner. "I knew he would play good golf for us this spring. He's one of my top four men and is improving weekly."

Iowa was fortunate to land Heinz and can thank Jack Rule and Bob Davis, two former Hawkeye golfers, for talking him out of accepting scholarships at any one of several large southern universities.

"I chose Iowa because it is a good school, it is in the Big 10, and I was impressed with Coach Zweiner and his program," said Heinz, a business major.

Heinz is one of three native Iowa freshmen who have helped the Hawks finish third in the Illinois Invitational and fourth in the Indiana Invitational. The fourth freshman squad member is Jay Boros of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., the son of professional golfer Julius Boros.

Heinz fired a 153 for 36 holes in the Illinois meet with five in medalist competition and recently shot a 157 in the Indiana meet.

Heinz began playing golf at the age of six, chiefly at the urging of his grandfather and he has been beating older golfers ever since.

Heinz won the 1968 Waterloo Amateur Open and placed third in the Men's State Amateur in 1969. In junior competition, Heinz finished eighth in the International Jay Cee Tournament in 1968 and was runner-up in the U. S. Junior Tourney in 1969.

Heinz feels the medium to long iron shots are the best part of the game, and like most golfers, he has one area that needs more effort — chipping.

Heinz is optimistic about the Hawks' chances to contend for the Big 10 title this year.

"Our chances are really good, and we have as good a chance as any to win," said Heinz. "If we all keep improving and have a few breaks we could win it all."

With Heinz and the other freshmen, Iowa has reason to be even more optimistic about next year and years to come.

4 Ejected As Red Sox, A's Clash

BOSTON (AP) — Sonny Siebert flashed his sharpest form of the year before being ejected in a sixth inning beanball incident, striking out nine batters and picking up his first victory as the Boston Red Sox downed the Oakland Athletics 5-3 Wednesday night.

The veteran right hander, bombed in his first three starts, shut out the A's on four hits over the first five innings but left prematurely when a melee developed after he hit Reggie Jackson with a pitch.

Siebert was hit by a pitch in the fifth inning — the first of two incidents which emptied both dugouts and led to the sixth inning fracas. Mike Andrews followed with a bunt single, Luis Alvarado doubled home one run and Tony Conigliaro singled home another to make it 4-0.

The trouble which started in the fifth erupted into a wild melee in the Oakland sixth when Siebert's first pitch of the inning hit Jackson. Several Oakland players charged the mound and knocked Siebert down. Jackson also scuffled with the Boston pitcher, and both dugouts and bullpens emptied before order was finally restored.

Jackson, Siebert, Oakland pitcher John Odom and Boston Coach George Thomas all were thrown out of the game.

Heinz won the 1968 Waterloo Amateur Open and placed third in the Men's State Amateur in 1969. In junior competition, Heinz finished eighth in the International Jay Cee Tournament in 1968 and was runner-up in the U. S. Junior Tourney in 1969.

Hawk Tennis Squad At Western Michigan

A crucial period for the Iowa tennis team begins today with a non-conference match on the road against Western Michigan.

The dual meet with Western Michigan precedes two conference road matches, which Iowa tennis coach John Winnie said "will show how well we stand in the conference."

Iowa, 2-3 in conference play and 8-4 overall, tackles unbeaten Michigan Friday and tests Michigan State Saturday.

Michigan is the Big 10 favorite, and the Michigan State Spartans are picked to finish about third in the conference.

Iowa begins the three-day road trip without the services of No. 1 singles player Jim Esser, who may miss the rest of the season recuperating from mononucleosis.

To compensate for the loss of Esser, Winnie plans to move each of the top six singles players up a notch and add either Jan Phillips or Lee Wright to the squad.

sistent freshman coach here the last three years, have been personally taking care of the recruits.

Four more are scheduled for this weekend, including Marcus V...ington of La Grange High School in Illinois. Washington led his team to the state championship during the past season. He is a 6-2 guard.

Two of the others scheduled to visit are also guards. They are 6-3 John Bridges of Carroll City High School in Miami, Fla., and Reginald Vaughn, 6-3, from Philadelphia, Pa.

Also expected for this weekend is Harold Sullinger, a 6-7 forward-center from Camden, N.J.

Along with recruiting players, Schultz must recruit two men to fill the two coaching positions under him.

"I have men in line for both jobs and one of them has already accepted, pending the approval of the board in control of athletics," said Schultz. "I hope to be able to announce his name Friday. And I hope to have the other position filled by the end of next week."

As for next year, Schultz has nothing but enthusiasm. Both he and the members of next year's team are working hard to carry on the tradition that was started by the 1970 Hawkeyes.

"Many of the guys are working out on weights and playing pick-up games," said Schultz. "What is pleasing is that they are doing it on their own, because I am not allowed to have anything to do with them until October 15."

It shouldn't be hard for the current team members of the Iowa team to adjust to Schultz's style of play. According to him, he is planning on changing very little from what Ralph Miller had taught them.

"My style of coaching and strategy were nearly the same as Ralph's before we ever got together," said Schultz. "I may make a few minor changes, but there won't be many."

"Many of the guys are working out on weights and playing pick-up games," said Schultz. "What is pleasing is that they are doing it on their own, because I am not allowed to have anything to do with them until October 15."

It shouldn't be hard for the current team members of the Iowa team to adjust to Schultz's style of play. According to him, he is planning on changing very little from what Ralph Miller had taught them.

"My style of coaching and strategy were nearly the same as Ralph's before we ever got together," said Schultz. "I may make a few minor changes, but there won't be many."

As for next year, Schultz has nothing but enthusiasm. Both he and the members of next year's team are working hard to carry on the tradition that was started by the 1970 Hawkeyes.

Merritt Gets
5th Victory
For Reds

CINCINNATI (AP) — Jim Merritt, Cincinnati's winningest pitcher last year, needed relief help, but he became the major leagues' first five-game winner of the season as the Reds whipped the Houston Astros 5-3 Wednesday.

The sixth double registered off Merritt in the eighth inning was the blow that brought Clay Carroll in to relieve.

The Reds profited heavily from wildness by Tom Griffin, the Astro starter. They broke a 2-2 tie in the sixth without a hit as Griffin walked Bernie Carbo with the bases loaded.

Cincinnati locked it up in the seventh on a double by Bobby Tolán, an intentional walk to Tony Perez and a two-run double by Johnny Bench.

Walks by Griffin in the third and fourth also led to the first two Cincinnati runs.

Anyone for Pushups?—

Houston catcher John Edwards, left, and Cincinnati's Tony Perez appear to be conducting a pushup exercise at home plate during Wednesday's game in Cincinnati, but actually the two have just collided as Perez tried to score. Edwards dropped the ball during the collision and Perez was safe. The Reds went on to a 5-3 win over the Astros. — AP Wirephoto

Big 8 May Break
9 Track Records

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Half the records in the Big 8 outdoor track and field championships will be in jeopardy when the 1970 meet is held at Lawrence, Kan., May 15-16.

Conference athletes already this spring have surpassed the existing meet marks in nine of the 17 events on the Big 8 program.

After completion of the three major midlands relays — Texas, Kansas and Drake — a wholesale assault at rewriting the books is in store for the 42nd conference meet to be run on the University of Kansas' new synthetic track.

Best bet to fall is the oldest record on the Big 8's outdoor books, the shot put. Bill Nieder of Kansas set the conference mark in 1956 when he threw the shot 60 feet 3 3/4 inches.

Most were stunned last year when KU's Karl Salb failed to obliterate that mark, throwing only 60-2 1/2 at Ames, where Kansas ran away with the team title by scoring 180 1/2 points to runner-up Missouri's 78.

Salb battered that effort 17 times during the 1969 outdoor season and has done 66-11 1/2 outdoors so far this spring. His KU teammate, Steve Wilhelm, also has consistently been over the record.

Other events in which the Big 8 record has been matched or bettered this spring include:

Discus — Doug Knop of Kansas, who set the record at 192-8 last year, has turned in an all-time Big 8 best of 203-10.

High jump — Ray McGill of Kansas State has done 7-1, with the record 7-0 by Oklahoma's Ron Tull in 1967.

120-yard high hurdles — Colorado's Marcus Walker has a wind-aided 13.5, with George Byers of Kansas setting the record at 13.8 in 1968.

100-yard dash — Mel Gray of Missouri has run :09.2 this spring, and could challenge the :09.3 record Charlie Green of Nebraska set in 1966.

440 intermediate hurdles — Oklahoma's Dennis Cotner's time of :51.0 matches the record set in 1968 by Dave Kudron of Nebraska.

Three-mile run — Jay Mason of Kansas has turned in 13:42.6, topping the mark of 13:52.0 set by Chris McCubbins of Oklahoma State in 1967.

440 relay — Oklahoma State's :39.9 bests the record of :40.0 set by Oklahoma in 1968.

Mile relay — Nebraska's 3:08.0 shades the record of 3:08.8 set by Oklahoma in 1966.

Other Big 8 event leaders this week are Peter Kaal, Oklahoma State, mile, 4:03.1; Randy Julian, Kansas, 440, 47.5; Jim Nelhouse, Kansas, 880, 1:49.0; Earl Harris, OSU, 220, :20.9; Hopeton Gordon, Nebraska, triple jump, 40-10 1/2; Stan Gruver, Kansas State, long jump, 24-8 1/2; Mike Wedman, Colorado, pole vault, 16-6, and Mike Ross, Kansas State, javelin, 244-10 1/2.

NBA Expansion Draft Scheduled for May 11

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Basketball Association announced Wednesday its expansion draft will be held Monday, May 11, with the three new clubs — Buffalo, Cleveland, and Portland — selecting 11 veteran players each.

Buffalo will select first, followed by Portland and Cleveland on the first round of the draft to be held in the NBA's New York offices with Buffalo and Cleveland switching places on subsequent rounds until the draft is completed. Portland will select second on every round.

Under the newly announced stocking formula, the three new clubs will select two players from each of the 14 clubs for a total of 28, then take five more players until each has 11.

The existing teams will be permitted to protect seven players. After a team has lost one player, it will be allowed to freeze one additional player before the expansion teams select again. Under that formula, five of the existing clubs will lose three players, nine of the existing clubs will lose two each.

McMullen's
Single Gives Angels Win

NEW YORK (AP) — Ken McMullen's RBI-single in the eighth inning proved to be the deciding run as the California Angels edged the New York Yankees 3-2 Wednesday.

McMullen's hit off Lindy McDaniel followed a walk and a pinch single by Bill Voss, giving the Angels a 3-1 lead.

The Yankees added a run in the ninth when Thurman Munson drew a one-out walk, pinch hitter Frank Tepedino doubled and pinch-hitter Pete Ward's ground out drove home Munson.

Winning pitcher Andy Messersmith, who went six innings, and relievers Paul Doyle and Ken Tatum combined to check the Yankees on seven hits as the Angels won in New York for the first time since Aug. 27, 1968.

Rookie John Cumberland, making his first major league start, took the loss.

The Angels grabbed a 1-0 lead in the second inning and made it 2-0 in the sixth. Alex Johnson's forceout delivered Jarvis Tatum, who had singled and advanced to third on Jim Fregosi's hit and run single.

Twins Blank
Cleveland, 1-0

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The Minnesota Twins nipped Cleveland rookie Rich Hand for an unearned run, and Jim Kaat and Stan Williams made it stand up for a 1-0 victory over the Indians Wednesday.

Williams came on with men on first and second in the ninth and two out and picked Tony Horton off second base to end the game.

Tony Oliva scored Minnesota's third inning run from second base after Indian third baseman Graig Nettles let Rich Reese's bouncer go into left field.

COMPARISONS

RANDALL'S DISCOUNT FOOD PRICES
ALWAYS ADD UP TO A LOWER TAPE TOTAL

Comparison shopping has become increasingly important because it is the only accurate method to show where the average weekly food order will cost the least. This does not mean comparing a few selected items, it means an at random check of a complete food order composed of items normally purchased each week

The reason that these tests always produce the same results is Randall's discount pricing policy. Because of this policy you can buy anything in our store and be sure that it is discounted to the lowest possible every day price. We're not saying that every item will always cost less at Randall's because this is not true. We're saying that your total food bill will always cost less at Randall's. If you're still not sure, make a little comparison test of your own. We guarantee that the result will be the same.

—Reacting to Soviet Action— Mid-East Power Evaluated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department described as "serious . . . and potentially dangerous" Wednesday what it said is independent evidence that Soviet pilots are flying combat planes in Egypt.

President Nixon "has ordered an immediate and full evaluation of intelligence reports and the implication of them on the strategic balance in the Middle East," said White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler.

Other authoritative sources said the administration will reconsider its decision to postpone action on Israel's request for additional airplanes. These sources said the Soviet Union has upset the "qualitative balance of power" in the area.

Undersecretary of State Elliot L. Richardson said in a New York speech that if one of the two superpowers in this case the Soviet Union, involves itself militarily in the Middle East, "it is inevitable that the other will take notice and react."

Whether this reaction will be U.S. compliance with Israel's request for 25 Phantom and 100 Skyhawk planes, nobody would say, Ziegler said the President is keeping a close watch on developments in the Middle East.

State Department spokesman Robert J. McCloskey indicated the United States will promptly seek contact with the Soviets on the new situation.

The United States, McCloskey said, has independent evidence of the Soviets flying combat aircraft, meaning that the concern in Washington over the new situation was not based on data from Israel, which sent word to Washington about a week ago that its airplanes have encountered MIG-21 airplanes with Soviet pilots in Egypt's airspace.

The Nixon administration's decision not to grant additional airplanes to Israel was based on a careful assessment of the military balance in the Middle East. This assessment was while the Arabs had a numerical advantage, but Israel enjoyed an unquestionable qualitative superiority.

The introduction of Soviet ground-to-air missiles with Russian crews and the word that Soviet pilots are flying combat missions over Egypt, injected a new element which must be considered, informants said.

Pope Loosens Ban Of Mixed Marriage

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI decreed Wednesday a liberalization of Roman Catholic norms governing mixed marriages, but the reform fell short of satisfying Protestant demands.

The Vatican issued a 2,500-word papal letter which decentralizes the authority to grant dispensations for marriages between Catholics and non-Catholics and relaxes rules governing the behavior of both spouses in matters of religion.

However, the Pope firmly reiterates the Church's basic and legal objection to such marriages and the controversial rule that children of these marriages be reared as Catholics.

Vatican officials said the document was a "definite step" toward Protestant positions to promote Christian unity. A liberal priest closely involved in Christian unity efforts said: "This is a major step forward."

Official Protestant reaction in Geneva, the leader of the Lutheran World Federation, General Secretary Andre Appel, expressed pleasure over "the noticeable effort to alleviate the distress and problems in mixed marriages" and over "a certain moderation" in the document.

But Appel added, "It is our impression that there are fundamental issues still not solved."

The Lutheran leader said he was referring in particular "to the continuing obligation to educate the children of a mixed marriage in the Catholic faith and to the fundamental necessity to meet canonical requirements for a valid marriage."

The canonical requirement is that a Catholic marrying a non-Catholic must be wed before a priest. In one of its major reforms, the new document allows a local bishop to permit, in the face of "serious difficulties," a Catholic to marry a non-Catholic with no priest present.

Previously such dispensation had to be received from Rome.

Vatican sources said it should be obtainable more easily now in areas where many mixed marriages occur.

Appel urged that the Vatican talk with other churches "more intensively than heretofore" and consider the results before any new regulations on mixed marriages are decided upon.

In other Protestant reaction, John Marsh, moderator of the Free Church Council, hailed the Pope's document. "It shows real concern," he said in London.

The Church of England decided to make no statement until it had studied the text of the papal letter.

The pontiff acknowledged Wednesday that the Church's position did not meet that of the other Christian churches on mixed marriages. He said: ". . . It is clear that difficult questions of this kind can only be fully resolved when Christian unity is restored."

Less Corporate Tax Brings U.S. Budget Nearer Deficit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lower-than-expected corporate tax collections this month have left this year's federal budget "in the neighborhood of balance," a key Treasury Department official said Wednesday.

"I certainly think a surplus is still a possibility," Paul A. Volcker, Treasury under-secretary for monetary affairs, told newsmen.

President Nixon has predicted a $1.5 billion budget surplus for the fiscal year ending June 30.

There certainly is no abandoning of the budgetary targets," Volcker added. But he declined to say whether his use of the word "neighborhood of balance" could mean a small deficit.

Volcker said corporate tax collections have been $1 billion to $1.5 billion lower than expected.

However, he said the shortage was offset by higher government income in other areas such as personal income taxes.

Court Finds Chief Of Union Guilty

DES MOINES (AP) — Iro Workers Union chief William M. Reed was found guilty in Polk County District Court here Wednesday of conspiracy — the last of six counts, five of which were dismissed, concerning a series of bombings.

Reed's attorney, J. Riley McManus, said he would request a new trial after Judge A. B. Crouch set no date for sentencing and gave McManus 30 days to file motions.

LIFE Charts Future Plans

LIFE, a local antipollution group responsible for last week's teach-in, elected officers and began planning for future activities at a Tuesday night meeting in the Union Ohio State Room.

The 42 people attending the meeting selected Ron Zobel, A2, O'Brien, as chairman of the group and formed a constitutional committee of six members, representing students, faculty and local residents.

Student members of the committee are Roy Harsch, L1, Burlington; Mike Proctor, A2, Park Forest, Ill.; and Brent Bair, P4, Atlantic. The faculty representative is George Nickelsburg, assistant professor of religion, and local residents sitting on the committee are Julian Hartzell and John Suchomel. Penny Lonnecker, A3, Bettendorf was chosen as the group's secretary.

The committee plans to complete a first draft of the constitution by Tuesday, which is the day of the next meeting. According to Zobel, the document will outline the philosophy and aims of the group in preparation for further action.

Harsch, who chaired the meeting until Zobel's appointment as chairman, noted the suggestions given here April 22 by Lee Rogers, a lawyer for the Environmental Defense Fund.

Rogers said two types of antipollution organizations are needed at local and national levels. One type needed is a tax-exempt group to which can accept donations. Such a group can lobby or support political candidates, but it can do research, perform educational activities and hire lawyers to fight antipollution lawsuits.

The second type of organization is an activist group — one which can lobby and pressure candidates, but one whose donations are not tax deductible.

Harsch called this type of organization necessary if LIFE is to be effective.

"Two groups does not imply that they will not be related," he said. "The membership roles could be identical. This two-group structure is necessary in order to get around Internal Revenue Service regulations regarding tax-exempt dollars."

Also considered, but not approved was a possible affiliation with one of the nationally recognized environmental groups. Environmental Defense Fund, Friends of the Earth and Enact were cited as possible choices.

"It is helpful to be associated with a national group," said Mike Miller, M1, Waterloo. "A nationally recognized name and effective newsletters can do a great deal for a local group."

Because of this feeling of the group that they should associate with a well-known national organization, they may change the organization's name. Harsch said that a new, more appropriate name may be substituted; or if they choose to join a national group, they may adopt its name.

Zobel postponed making a decision on this matter until after the constitution has been presented.

Projects planned by LIFE were action supporting a local mass transit system, an investigation into Project GM and University holdings of GM stock and representation of the group at a teach-in follow-up meeting to be held at Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., this Friday and Saturday.

LIFE members planning to attend the Northwestern meeting are Connie Hencke, L3, Delmar, Miss Lonnecker, Harsch and Zobel.

William Gibson, 2517 Wayne St., won Comer's Pipe and Giff Shop's smoking contest. Gibson smoked 94 minutes with 3.3 grams of tobacco and two matches to be used in the first minute of the contest. Thirty-two people entered the contest.

Brooks Is Elected Head Of Student Law Group

After three attempts, the members of the Iowa Student Bar Association (ISBA) finally have a president for the coming year.

In a run-off election Tuesday, Pat Brooks, L2, Cedar Falls, won the election over Steven Smith, L2, Spirit Lake, by a 7 vote majority. Brooks received 116 votes, Smith received 109.

A run-off election between Brooks and Smith last Thursday had resulted in a tie — the first in the organization's history. In that election both received 96 votes.

The Thursday run-off came about when none of the four presidential candidates had received a majority of votes in the ISBA general election April 21.

Brooks Tuesday night said he thought all of the candidates had good ideas and hoped that he would be able to incorporate their talents and ideas into the organization in the coming year.

The current ISBA president, Al Parrish, L3, Camden, Ala., Tuesday said he "is glad the election is over and I think it is going to be a good year next year. Brooks is a great guy and I know he will do a great job."

New Trial Judge

AMES — An alternate judge has been named to replace Judge John L. McKinney, who disqualified himself Tuesday from the trial of an Iowa State University student after finding a bomb in his garage Monday night.

Alternate Judge Donald Payer will replace McKinney in the trial of Roosevelt Roby, 22, of Waterloo, charged in connection with a racial incident at an Ames bar April 8.

Nixon Using Draft Reforms Johnson Group Proposed

WASHINGTON — Draft reform proposals that were admired and then ignored by President Lyndon B. Johnson three years ago have become the Nixon administration's handbook.

Curtis B. Tarr, new draft director, said in an interview he plans to give local draft boards guidelines for more uniform operation, to make local boards more representative of the populations they serve, and perhaps to reduce the number of boards.

Tarr's plans and the changes already ordered or proposed by President Nixon follow the main principles outlined in March 1967 by a 20-member commission appointed by Johnson and headed by Burke Marshall, a former U.S. solicitor general.

"A new general counsel is coming to Selective Service in a month or less," said Tarr. "He's a fellow named Keith McWilliams, a lawyer from Des Moines, Iowa."

"He understands that one of his first jobs is going to be to go through all of the information that is in the hands of people at the local board and is used as a guide for their activity-regulations, memoranda and all kinds of directives."

the information . . . it will lead to more uniform decisions throughout the nation."

The Burke Marshall commission had recommended issuance of "clear and binding policies . . . to be applied uniformly."

Tarr also said the administration wants draft boards to be younger and more "racially representative."

He said he has already visited half a dozen states — all in the South — and will be visiting many others, bringing that message to state draft directors who recommend new members for local boards.
