Ambush

Guerrillas Hit School Bus, Arab Bazooka Fire Kills 11

TEL AVIV (AP) — Arab guerrillas, striking from ambush in Lebanon, fired three bazooka shells into an Israeli school bus Friday, killing 11 persons, many of them children, and wounding 22.

Israel responded swiftly. Military sources in Lebanon said Israeli artillery blasted four Lebanese villages in the vicinity of the ambush and Israeli planes swept into action across the border. A military spokesman in Tel Aviv declined to comment on the reports.

The guerrillas hit the bus at close range as it rounded a sharp curve on a road running along the Lebanese border. Ignoring Israeli army vehicles and other cars, the gunmen zeroed in on their target from clumps of bushes in Lebanese territory about 65 feet from the road.

A small ultraleftist guerrilla group based in Amman, Jordan, promptly claimed that it had made the attack. The Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command said its men destroyed the bus with "scientifically aimed rockets."

In a message to Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser, the General Command said it ambushed the school bus to avenge the Israeli bombing of an Egyptian school April 8. Cairo reported more than 30 children killed in that raid. Israel insisted that it had hit a military installation.

In a letter to the U.N. Security Council, Israel denounced the ambush of the bus and labeled it an "outrage."

Israel previously has warned that it would retalliate in full for guerrilla attacks launched from Lebanese soil.

At the scene of the ambush, an Israeli army officer stepped on a personnel mine, apparently planted by the guerrillas, and his foot was blown off.

The explosion was witnessed by newsmen and Maj. Gen. Mordechai Motta Gur, head of the northern command. Moments earlier, Gur had walked over the same ground.

Five parents of injured children also were hurt when a pickup truck speeding them to a hospital careened off the road and overturned.

The yellow and green bus was hit head on, apparently by the first shell, as the vehicle swung into a curve. The driver was killed instantly.

The inside of the bus was shredded by shrapnel. Blood was splattered throughout. Children's sandals and school briefcases were strewn about.

The second and third shells ripped into the side of the bus, one at seat level near the rear door and the other into the roof.

Nagel Reinstated

By JOHN RICHARDS

In a surprising, but popular move Friday, the Board in Control of Athletics has decided to reinstate Ray Nagel as the University's head football coach.

It had been announced Thursday that Nagel was going to be given a chance to plead his case before the Board at its regular meeting next Tuesday. But the Board evidently decided that the wants of the Iowa football team were of the immediate nature.

Ray Manning, co-captain of the 1970 squad, had read a statement to the press Thursday stating that he and the other members of next fall's team wanted to play under Nagel.

The statement was also presented to the Board by Manning, when he and some other team members met with Board chairman Sam Fahr on Friday.

Fahr then met with the other members of the Board in a closed meeting Friday afternoon. At 8:15 p.m. Friday, Fahr issued this statement:

"I have met today with representatives of the University of Iowa football team. They have expressed their clear desire to finish the 1970 football program under Coach Ray Nagel. On the basis of this conversation with the players, I have convened the Board in Control of Athletics and it has reconsidered its actions of Monday, May 18.

"On the basis of the facts now known, the Attorney General of the State of Iowa does not recommend a criminal prosecution in the case of certain falsified travel vouchers which have been under investigation by the Board and the University. Nevertheless, all institutional funds expended for recruiting must be accounted for in accordance with the Board policies. While there is no apparent conference rules violation, in order to be certain on this point the board has, as a condition of their continued employment, required the coaches concerned to account for all funds involved.

"Mr. Nagel's actions and attitude have been reviewed by the Board. The Board has made known to Mr. Nagel once again the record of that review. While the Board has reconsidered its decision and has chosen to retain Mr. Nagel through the 1970 football season as Head Football Coach, he has been reprimanded for his past conduct and failure to cooperate with the President and the Board. He has now agreed to conduct the program in full compliance with Board and University policies and regulations, and to be cooperative with the Board and the President and the Acting Director of Athletics.

"The President of the University has been informed of this action and concurs in it."

The announcement was met with approval by many groups who had asked earlier that the Board reconsider Nagel's dismissal. The first to make a statement was the Iowa Alumni Association.

The statement, from Alumni Association President James E. Berney, reads:

"The Alumni Association concurs in the decision of the Board in Control of Athletics to take the necessary steps to resolve the controversy in the Department of Intercollegiate Athletics.

"The Association whole-heartedly endorses the action of the Board in its reconsideration and retention of Head Football Coach Ray Nagel.

"He has from the beginning shown a genuine interest in the alumni program. His help and cooperation have been appreciated.

"We applaud the appointment of Francis Graham as acting Director of Intercollegiate Athletics. The affairs of Iowa's Athletic Department are in competent hands.

"To Mr. Graham, the Board in Control and the coaching staffs, we pledge our unqualified continuing support of all athletic programs.

"We urge all alumni and Hawkeye fans everywhere to help bind the wounds inflicted in the past few months."

'No Violation Of State Laws'

DES MOINES (AP) — Iowa Atty. Gen. Richard Turner said Friday night University of Iowa assistant football coaches apparently had violated no state laws in falsifying expense account vouchers.

Turner also said his investigation indicated the juggling of vouchers may have been suggested by Athletic Director Forest Evashevski, whose resignation was announced Tuesday.

Turner said six assistant coaches falsified expense vouchers over a two-year period totaling $1,231.64.

Turner said, "Most of these coaches, including Nagel, say Evashevski called them together in his office about two years ago and informed them that they should cover expenses of this kind . . . by 'picking up another receipt'."

The similarity of the bogus vouchers, most were Xerox copies, and the consistency of them, Turner said, indicated to him that they were the result of departmental policy.

Although Evashevski denied initiating such a policy, Turner said, the said, the evidence strongly pointed toward the athletic director rather than Nagel.

"On the basis of present available evidence, I do not believe Mr. Evashevski and am convinced a jury would not," Turner said.

City Hall in Shambles, ISU Students 'Shocked'—

Bomb Explosion at Ames Injures 7

AMES, Iowa (AP) — An explosion ripped through the Ames City Hall Friday morning injuring at least seven persons and leaving the two-story brick building a shambles.

Asst. Police Chief Tom Lyttle said, "The bombing occured between 9 and 9:05 this morning. The bomb was placed on the south side of city hall."

Three persons remained hospitalized at Mary Greeley Hospital in Ames with injuries sustained in the bombing. They are Ramon Wicks, 54, a city jail prisoner. He was in serious condition Friday night with facial lacerations and neck injuries. Mrs Esther Schoff, 57, a meter maid, was listed in satisfactory condition with lacerations. Iowa Highway Patrolman Charles Elliott, 51, was in serious condition following eye surgery Friday afternoon.

Treated, mostly for cuts, and released were:

Asst. Police Chief Tom Lyttle, City fireman Lynn G. Christian, police capt. Eldin Hand, Patrolman Joseph Smith, Patricia A. Francis, a police department employee, and Betty Nieman, police department employee.

The blast, which rattled buildings as far as 17 blocks away, punched out windows in city hall and in surrounding buildings. Employees in city hall were showered with glass.

"There was a lot of screaming and crying," said Ellen Landon, 48, a city employee who was working in City Hall when the explosion let go.

"A lot of people were bleeding from flying glass, she said. "I couldn't believe it. I still can't."

Police said the bomb was placed in a window well outside the jail.

Col. James Machols of the highway patrol said he believed the blast was caused by dynamite.

Lyttle said he had no idea who might have set the explosion, but "with the way these people are protesting, I suppose you could make a guess. These threats of bombings have been coming in consistently."

Lyttle said that extra surveilance of the police station was set in motion after the bombing of the Des Moines police headquarters.

Gov. Robert Ray, who arrived in Ames shortly after the bombing, said the explosion "had all the earmarks" of the May 13 blast which shattered police headquarters in Des Moines, some 30 miles to the south.

In that explosion, police communications were knocked out and some $200,000 damage was caused to the three-story building and surrounding property. Two persons were injured.

The governor said he was concerned by the fact that most of 285 dynamite sticks stolen in Des Moines May 5 still are missing.

Des Moines Police Chief Wendell Nichols linked the Des Moines bombing to the dynamite theft, estimating that only 26 sticks were used in that explosion.

Dynamite also was believed to have been used in the Ames blast.

Shock and fear were the two prevalent emotions on the Iowa State campus following the Friday morning explosion. Terry Gogerty, editor of the Iowa State Daily said the general student feeling is one of shock by the incident, plus fear of being blamed for the blast.

Many townspeople, Gogerty said, are blaming the students for the blast.

Ames Mayor Stuart Smith reacted to the blast by calling for coolness and calm, saying, "We cannot strike out blindly at anyone we don't like because of this."

Smith said officers had some clues and intended "to aim definitely at the persons who did this.

"I do not believe any of our own local people could have done such a tragic and senseless thing. I have talked to some of our college students and black people. They are sick in the heart that this thing happened."

A dollar estimate of the damage was not available yet, Smith said, adding that it might take several days to determine the structural damage to the building's foundation.

Municipal Judge John McKinney, who found a bomb in his garage April 27, said, "I was in my robe getting ready to go to traffic court and then 'boom'."

McKinney has been the presiding judge at the trials of two ISU black students, Roosevelt Roby, 22, of Waterloo, and Charles Knox, 25, Des Moines Black Panther leader.

They won acquittal Thursday on charges arising from the barroom fight here April 9.

The judge said a bomb threat was telephoned to City Hall Wednesday during the trial of Roby and Knox.

"I didn't vacate the court because I thought it was a hoax," McKinney said.

As police officials continued to grope for clues in the latest bombing, an anonymous caller phoned the Statehouse in Des Moines at 12:45 p.m. Friday and said, "I just planted a bomb in the Capitol."

25 Iowa Colleges Set Referendums on '609'

Twenty-five Iowa colleges and universities are slated to participate in upcoming campus referendums to determine the extent of student support for U.S. Senate amendment 609, sponsored by Senators George McGovern (D-S.D.) and Mark Hatfield (D-Ore.), which would literally "starve the war" in Indochina by cutting off all appropriations for military operations except for troop withdrawals.

State coordinator Monica K. Martin, A1, Mt. Prospect, Ill., said Friday evening that she had been in contact with 48 Iowa schools to set up the balloting.

She explained that 12 of the schools already had closed for the semester. One of them, Grinnell College at Grinnell, was shut down as a result of student protest activities.

She said that she had contacted 10 other colleges, but that preparations for their referendums were still in the offing due to organizational problems.

The University will not participate in the referendum, Miss Martin said, since large numbers of students have already left the campus.

Instead Student Body Pres. Robert S. "Bo" Beller, A2, Glencoe, Ill., will write a letter supporting the legislation in cooperation with student leaders of other University student activities.

Miss Martin extended a special thanks to the Interfraternity Council (IFC), James W. Adams, IFC advisor and IFC president Donald G. Furman, A3, South Amana, for their assistance in arranging for the free use of the IFC WATTS telephone line to set up the referendums.

Among the schools participating are Coe College, Cedar Rapids; Drake University, Des Moines; Central College, Pella; the University of Northern Iowa, Cedar Falls; Iowa State University, Ames; Morningside College, Sioux City; Marycrest College, Davenport; Parsons College, Fairfield; St. Ambrose College, Davenport; Upper Iowa University, Fayette, and Wartburg College, Waverly.

Art Faculty Asks '609' Passage, Troop Withdrawal

Twenty-seven faculty members of the University School of Art issued a call for immediate U.S. withdrawal from Indochina and for support of Amendment 609 to the Military Procurement Authorization Bill now awaiting action before the Senate.

The demand, set down in "A Resolution for Action Concerning the U.S. and Indochina," states:

- "That immediate U.S. withdrawal from Indochina has become an objective of overriding national importance."
- "That in the absence of support for this from the President of the United States, the initiative must come from the people, acting through Congress."
- "That the proposed Amendment 609 to the Military Procurement Authorization offers the most effective means yet proposed for Congress to stop a war which it has not been given its constitutional prerogative of declaring."
- "That we urge all Senators and Congressmen to support Amendment 609 and to work for its adoption."
- "That we urge others to join us in writing Congress in the recognition of Amendment 609 as a concrete rallying issue which holds a positive potential for ending U.S. involvement in the Indochina war."

Frank Seiberling, director of the School of Art, said Friday that a number of faculty members had indicated at a meeting that they felt such a resolution was merited. They worked together to draft the resolution as it stands, Seiberling said, adding that it "truly represents faculty sentiment."

ROTC Program To Be Reviewed

The University faculty will be polled on their feelings about ROTC Monday or Tuesday of next week.

John Gerber, professor of English, said Friday that the poll forms will be distributed through the registrar's office.

The Faculty Senate voted earlier this month to abolish ROTC, but Gerber has said that some faculty members have felt that the vote did not display their complete view on the ROTC issue.

Gerber said he believes that the faculty will be able to express their opinions more effectively through the poll.

The faculty will be asked to rate their views on the ROTC program from outright abolishment to strengthening of the program. Gerber says that there will be several modifying views in between the two extremes.

Burlington Editor to Represent Board In Investigation of DI Editor Dismissal

The editor-publisher of the Burlington, Ia., Hawk-Eye will represent the Board of Student Publication, Inc. (SPI), at a hearing on the firing of The Daily Iowan editor-select Leona Durham.

John McCormally, who received a Pulitzer prize citation, will represent the SPI board on a three-member commission scheduled to hold the hearing next Tuesday night.

SPI Board Wednesday night approved a resolution calling for the creation of the commission to hear evidence on two questions: whether SPI acted in good faith as a reasonable board, and whether Miss Durham has shown that the Board acted unreasonably and with prejudice in its dismissal.

Under the resolution, SPI Board is to have one representative on the commission and Miss Durham is to have one representative. These two will in turn choose a third member who will act as chairman.

After passage of the resolution the SPI Board meeting adjourned because neither Miss Durham nor her attorney, Dan Johnston of Des Moines, made an appearance.

In the meantime, Miss Durham has told the Iowa City Press Citizen that she was "very pleased" with the Board's passage of the resolution. "I hope all the facts come out, and, if they do, I'm confident that the board will make a ruling in my favor," she said.

She told the paper that she had not yet chosen her representative for the commission.

Contacted by The Daily Iowan Wednesday night, Miss Durham said, "I have no comment for The Daily Iowan."

The SPI Board's most recent action was in reaction to the Hawkeye Area Chapter of the Iowa Civil Liberties Union's (ICLU) request for reconsideration of Miss Durham's firing.

However, the ICLU has not participated in SPI Board's deliberation. Contacted in Des Moines Friday night, ICLU chairman Herb Kelly said that Miss Durham's attorney was "not representing the Civil Liberties Union" and that he was "not authorized by the Union to enter the case at this time."

Johnston could not be reached for comment.

In the meantime, six persons ars sponsoring a fund drive to pay for Miss Durham's "legal fees, court costs and for support of those staff members who are now without employment."

Nixon to Request Budget Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration plans to ask Congress Monday for an increase of around $16 billion in the public debt ceiling, which would raise it to a record $393 billion.

Sources in both Congress and the Treasury Department said Friday the request probably will be between $13 billion and $16 billion.

The current "temporary" ceiling of $377 billion expires June 30 and the limit will revert to the "permanent" figure of $365 billion unless Congress acts earlier.

Secretary of the Treasury David M. Kennedy and Budget Bureau Director Robert P. Mayo will go before the House Ways and Means Committee Monday morning to plead the administration's case.

National Boycotts End As Companies Prepare 'Anti-War Statements

The national boycott of the Coca-Cola bottling company and the Phillip Morris tobacco company products — sponsored by the National Committee for Economic Action (NCEA) — has ended, according to local committee spokesmen.

Phillip Morris has agreed to make a firm statement against American involvement in the war in Indochina. Coca-Cola, now in negotiations with members of the NCEA, is expected to make a positive announcement soon, according to Al Steed, A3, Iowa City coordinator of the organization.

The boycott, started only a few weeks ago, was designed as a method by which students and other citizens could urge large companies to speak out against American the war in Indochina, Steed said.

Steed, who attended a national meeting of the NCEA at Washington University in St. Louis this week, also reported that the national committee will continue its efforts to encourage industry "to use its power for moral and peaceful purposes".

Who's kidding whom?

Atty. Gen. Richard Turner – Iowa's own Spiro T. Agnew – wrote a letter of protest to the Board of Regents recently condemning them and university officials for not taking more stern action against students participating in this month's campus demonstrations.

Evidently, Turner's concern was based on several letters he received from irate Iowans concerned about the University's campus disruptions, particulary the violent parts.

In referring to the sit-ins, bombs and violent parts.

In referring to the sit-ins, bombs and acts of arson on the state's three campuses, Turner said, "In my opinion many of these acts are serious felonies and some may even amount to treason."

Certainly, Turner is accurate in defining some acts of violence as felonies; arson and breaking and entering are examples. But how he can find acts of treason in the protests is beyond us.

The Constitution states that treason "against the United States shall consist only in levying war against them, or in adhering to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort."

This is hardly what most students who took to the Iowa City streets had in mind. In fact, they considered of President Nixon's decision to move troops into Cambodia as an act of treason, a sell-out of American youth.

Turner's age, like most people who either served in or had their childhood during World War II, prevents him from understanding the total frustration most students have come to know over the Vietnam war.

Today's college seniors have seen an earnest Vietnam war since they were high school seniors. In February 1965, the Viet Cong attacked the U. S. outpost at Pleiku which brought the evacuation of U. S. dependents from South Vietnam. By the end of that month, we began bombing North Vietnam.

And even before that, these students watched the embryonic growth of the war since they were high school freshmen. For eight years they have seen the war grow; for eight years they have seen opposition to the war increase; for eight years they have seen basically unresponsive administrations turn deaf ears to voiced concern over U.S. involvement; for eight years they have felt increasing frustration.

Turner, and many people like him who have lived through the fear-filled years following WWII and into the early 50s, when the communists were everywhere, do not have the intellectual empathy needed to understand this frustration.

Nixon's secretly unilateral Cambodia decision was the last straw for many who had either sat on the fence or had been non-activist before. The demonstrations in Iowa City, like most everywhere else in the nation, did not involve just the stereotyped long-hair, hippy types. The crowds in the streets represented a cross section of disgusted American citizens – not a mob of traitors, but a crowd of those who felt betrayed.

The University administration did not cooperate with the police, said Turner. Wrong. For the most part, both the administration and police practiced restraint. Perhaps not restraint from individual self discipline, but restraint from their command – Lt. Col. James Machholz and Capt. Lyle Dickenson for the Iowa Highway Patrol, Maj. Gen. Joseph May for the National Guard and City Manager Frank Smiley for the local police.

Except for a very small minority intent on violence, the students, too, were extremely restrained – perhaps not in rhetoric, but definitely in action. Considering the duration of the demonstrations they made the November-December anti-Marine protests at the Union in 1967 look like huge overreactions.

That is precisely what Mr. Turner is doing – overreacting to a controversial situation. However, he has said his office "will bring civil suits against such students (who demonstrate violently) to have them held personally liable in both actual and punitive damages for their destruction of property and injury to individuals."

This would include, said Turner, holding individual students liable for damage done by a crowd in which they were only a member.

Under the Code of Iowa Turner is empowered as attorney general to "prosecute and defend in any other court or tribunal, all actions and proceedings, civil or criminal, in which the state may be a party or interested, when, in his judgment, the interest of the state requires such action, or when requested to do so by the governor, executive council, or general assembly."

Thus, Turner may well have the power to live up to his threats. But we urge him to use the restraint a man in his position must have to be a worthy office-holder. Restraint is the better part of good judgment.

Peace, Mr. Turner.

Misconceptions in the Durham case

The controversy surrounding the dismissal of Daily Iowan editor-select Leona Durham has resulted in a number of misconceptions. We hope the publication of certain facts might, to some extent, allay part of the misunderstanding.

Perhaps the most prevalent of the misconceptions is that the conflict is basically between a group with a specific political orientation, represented by Miss Durham, and the administration (or "the Establishment") is represented by the Board of Trustees of Student Publications, Inc. (SPI).

We think the controversy centers not around this, but rather around professional journalism and all the students at the University who are involved in journalism.

That is why we are working now to produce a newspaper. We think it is much more important that the student body have a source of information and a vehicle for expressing opinion than that any one individual or group have control of that paper.

Six of us now helping to produce each day's paper – Mark Rohner, Carol Bird, Linda Taylor, Gary Britson, Jay Ewoldt and Rick Greenawalt – were also chosen to be members of Miss Durham's staff. Most of the rest of us are working on a purely voluntary basis, simply because we do feel it is important that a newspaper dedicated to serving a student readership continue to be produced.

We think this represents a dedication to professional journalism. We have welcomed the assistance of anyone who shares this dedication. This paper continues to be the student-edited newspaper it is supposed to be. Our editorial page and our news pages have continued to be open to all segments of the student body. Neither the SPI Board nor the University administration has imposed upon us any restrictions – other than the usual ones of good taste, balance, objectivity and professionalism to which every good newspaper subjects itself.

Miss Durham and her supporters have been free, from the beginning of the present controversy, to join us in bringing out a newspaper for the student body. Instead they have criticized us for doing so.

While they have maintained that freedom of the press has been attacked, we have labored to insure that the student body have access to a free press.

We are trying to serve our University readership. Whom are Miss Durham and her supporters attempting to serve?

Many of us – although not all – feel strongly that Miss Durham's public and private posture has shown that she would not produce the kind of newspaper we believe the student body wants and deserves.

But this is not the central issue being discussed here. Rather, the issue at hand is whether the student body now has a newspaper responsive to it and representative of it. And this is the goal toward which all of us are directing our labors, no matter how we regard Miss Durham's capabilities.

Neither is it relevant that for some of us the stand we take is admittedly self-serving. While the livelihood and the careers of some of us are inextricably bound up in how the present controversy is resolved, all of us feel a larger issue is involved – that of whether The Daily Iowan shall continue to adhere to and work toward the standards and ideals of professional journalism.

For several – Miss Bird, Miss Taylor, Rohner and Greenawalt – this conviction led them to indicate to SPI Board prior to Miss Durham's final dismissal that they could not work for Miss Durham without compromising their professional ethics.

When Miss Bird, Miss Taylor, Rohner and Greenawalt made this indication to the board, they were aware they had chosen a course that precluded any possibility of future employment under Miss Durham when (or if) the board decided to let her take over operations. This is the kind of uncomfortable position they, and all of us, still hold.

We have produced newspapers amid threats ranging from the dumping of the ashes of burnt papers on the floor of our newsroom all the way to destruction of our presses and personal reprisals against us.

We are tired of being harassed in the name of freedom of the press. But we shall never tire of laboring toward the ideals of a free press – at the University and everywhere.

From the people

Thank you

To the Editor:

The Graduate Program in Urban and Regional Planning and the Buckminster Fuller Society wish to thank those organizations which helped to underwrite the lecture recently given by R. Buckminster Fuller. The group effort demonstrates how well offices of widely different backgrounds can work together when the subject matter is of vital and lasting interest to all. We hope very much that more such unified, comprehensive and stimulating educational projects will be undertaken by the University-Iowa City community.

The offices underwriting the lecture were: Hansen, Lind, Meyer Architects, The Paper Place, Hawkeye Book Store, Office of the President, The Graduate College, Action Studies Program, Center for Modern Letters and the Cultural Affairs Committee.

Again, our sincere thanks.

Demonstrators March On To Atlanta Despite 'Plot'

FORSYTH, Ga. (AP) — About 300 civil rights demonstrators, many young Blacks from a local high school, marched out of this middle Georgia city shortly after noon despite reports of an alleged plot to kill one of them.

At the head of the procession was an old mule-drawn wagon carrying three caskets symbolizing the death of 12 persons in recent violence on and off college campuses. Immediately behind, five young Blacks carried another casket.

About 100 or more pupils from an all-black high school left class today to attend a rally at a church, and many joined the group for the march out of Forsyth. Most were expected to return after reaching the city limits.

After an overnight stop, the group is expected to board buses Saturday morning for the final 40-mile leg of the journey to Atlanta.

They will be joined in Atlanta by thousands of others for a rally at the tomb of the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., a march past the state capital and a mass rally at Morehouse College.

Four state patrol cars, with two patrolmen in each, joined the march just outside Forsyth to direct traffic and handle disorder if any should occur. So far, the march has been peaceful.

Monroe County School Supt. J. E. Mitchell, who is white, said it was a "regrettable situation. . .they did not walk out. They were led out."

Leaders stepped up the pace of the march Friday and said they would walk more than in the past two days.

Between the start of the march at Perry and Forsyth, 62 miles away, the marchers had walked only 26 miles, using motorized transportation the rest of the way.

Gov. Lester Maddox has said that state troopers and National Guardsmen will be available in Atlanta Saturday to protect the demonstrators and the public.

Maddox said Thursday he had intelligence reports that someone now in the march, or who will join later, plans to kill a Black demonstrator or instigate violence of some sort. March leaders discounted the report.

The march is to protest "racial repression," and the deaths of 12 persons in Augusta, Ga., Jackson, Miss. and Kent State University in Ohio in recent weeks. Several caskets have been carried on a mule-drawn wagon during the march.

A number of civil rights and antiwar groups are to join the Saturday rally and speakers include Sen. George McGovern (D-S.D.) Georgia Rep. Julian Bond, Mrs. Martin Luther King Jr., Black playwright LeRoi Jones and officials of the sponsoring Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

Agnew Says 'Hell-raisers' Want Overturn

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew attributed campus unrest Friday night to a "small, hardcore of hell-raisers who want to overturn the system for the sake of chaos alone."

"They burn, pillage and destroy because they rebel against their lack of creativity," Agnew said.

But, he added, although they are few in number, "they have had a shattering impact."

The vice president said campus dissenters are encouraged by "an equally small number of faculty members who apparently cannot compete legitimately within the system or do not choose to do so."

"It is my honest opinion, he said, that this hardcore of faculty and students should be identified and dismissed from the otherwise healthy body of the college community lest they, like a cancer, destroy it."

Agnew, repeating his statement of a week ago to keep speaking out "until those self-righteous lower their voice a few decibels," also criticized opponents in the press and in Congress.

He said the Washington Post and the New York Times — Agnew targets in the past — had been "hysterical" in their recent criticism of his speeches. He said their "rhetoric" has contributed more to unrest on campuses and throughout the nation than he does.

New UAW Head Speaks Out at GM

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. (GM) faced a group of young activists seeking to make the giant automaker "more responsive to social and public needs" in a showdown proxy contest Friday at the firm's annual meeting.

James M. Roche, GM's board chairman, replied to the challenge by telling stockholders he was convinced: "We have made substantial progress in fulfilling all our responsibilities."

"There is always more, much more than must be done, by GM and others. We believe that, in fairness, our progress should be measured against what has been accomplished, as well as against what remains to be done."

Leonard Woodcock, who only hours before was elected to take the place of the late Walter P. Reuther as head of the United Auto Workers (UAW), went to the meeting and spoke in behalf of one of two proposals submitted by the minority stockholders.

It was the first time a president of the UAW ever attended an auto manufacturer's annual meeting.

Leaders of a group called "Campaign GM" conceded they had little chance of success — in terms of shares voted — on two proposals they put before the meeting.

One called for adding "three representatives of the public" to the firm's 23-man board of directors; the other, for creation of a watchdog committee to evaluate GM's performance in a wide field of activities ranging from auto safety to the hiring and promotion of blacks.

Philip W. Moore, an attorney and spokesman for a Washington-based group called "the Project on Corporate Responsibility" (PCR) said before the start of the stockholders meeting that the two proposals probably would fall short of an impressive vote total.

Supporters of Campaign GM, which is an offshoot of PCR, said they were hopeful they would get at least two per cent of GM's 285 million shares in favor of their proposals.

Stockholder attendance was expected to be larger than last year's 724.

Mail Rate Increase Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A tentative agreement on a proposed senate bill which would give President Nixon most of what he seeks on postal reorganization and increased stamp charges was announced Friday.

Sen. Gale W. McGee (D-Wyo.), chairman of the Post Office and Civil Service Committee, said the plan would include authority for the administrative to raise the letter stamp from six to eight cents upon enactment.

However, the proposal must still be acted on by the full committee and the Senate in floor debate and then be worked over in a Senate-House conference. McGee agreed many changes could be made.

The agreement was worked out at a meeting of McGee, Sen. Hiram L. Fong (R-Hawaii), senior Republican on the panel, and Postmaster General Winton M. Blount. It includes these features:

- The authority for the eight-cent letter stamp. The administration, in order to boost first-class letter rates, would have to make the same 33 per cent hike also in second class newspapers and magazines and third class chiefly advertising material.

- The additional eight per cent pay hike for the 725,000 postal employes which Blount negotiated last month with the postal unions.

- Transfer of administration of the Post Office Department to an independent agency run by a nine-member board of governors named by the President. The board would select a postmaster general who would no longer be in the cabinet.

- Creation of a five-member commission named by the President to fix postal rates.

- Authority for the new agency to work out wages in collective bargaining with the postal unions.

Nixon is particularly eager for authority to put into prompt effect the eight-cent letter rate.

This would supply by far the biggest part of the $1.5 billion of new revenue he seeks from postal rate increases to meet a deficit in the department expected to be $1.5 billion or more in fiscal 1971 which begins July 1.

In the Senate proposal, the pay increase would take effect when the bill is signed into law.

McGee's committee decided to meet Monday to start voting on the proposed legislation.

4 UI Alumni To Be Given Distinguished Service Award

Four University alumni who have provided "distinguished service in behalf of the quality and advancement of the University" will be presented Distinguished Service Awards by the University at separate alumni functions this summer.

Recipients of the 1970 awards are University President Emeritus Howard R. Bowen; James W. Maucker, president of the University of Northern Iowa (UNI); Walter A. Anneberg, Carroll physician; and John H. Morse, a corporate attorney in New York City.

The honors were to have been presented during the University's annual Alumni Weekend May 15-16. The alumni events of that weekend were cancelled.

Bowen, who received a Ph.D. Degree in economics at the University in 1935, served as University President from 1964 through last August. He resigned the presidency to accept the chairmanship of the Claremont (Calif.) Graduate School's economics department. On July 1, he will begin serving a short-term appointment as President of the Claremont University Center.

Pres. Maucker, who has headed UNI for 19 years, earned two degrees at Iowa — a master's in 1936 and a Ph.D. in 1940, both in education. He will leave the presidency June 30.

A medical practitioner in Carroll for 46 years, Dr. Anneberg enrolled at the University in 1917. When he left in 1924 he carried with him three degrees, a bachelor of science, a master of science and a medical degree. A lifetime member of the University's Alumni Association, he has been active in various University projects. His most recent civic project in Carroll has been service as general chairman of a fund-raising drive for a new $6 million regional hospital.

Morse is a native of Estherville and a 1930 graduate of Iowa. He was admitted to the New York bar in 1936, after earning degrees from Harvard and Yale. Morse is a charter member of the University Foundation Board of Directors and the University's President's Club. He also helped establish a project called the "Manhattan Fund," a repository for funds contributed to the University by businessmen in the New York City area.

Tax Specialist Joins Congressional Group

Meade Emory, professor of law and a tax specialist, will join the staff of the Joint Congressional Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation June 1.

The committee is a body of the U.S. Senate and House of Representatives which works on tax legislation. Its chairman and vice chairman are Rep. Wilbur Mills (D-Ark.) and Sen. Russell Long (D-La.).

Emory said, "It appears that the Tax Reform Act of 1969 is only the beginning of new federal legislation in the tax area. In 1970 and 1971 it is likely Congress will consider a complete revision of the federal estate and gift tax areas, which have not been changed substantially since 1942.

"Also to be considered will be legislation dealing with the taxation of employe benefits. One of the main thrusts of this legislation will be an effort to equalize the tax treatment accorded employed and self-employed persons insofar as pension benefits are concerned. The taxation of U.S. corporations doing business abroad is also likely to be an area of legislative activity."

Emory will be on a year's leave of absence from the University.

The Joint Committee, with a staff of seven lawyers and six economists, prepares the committee reports of the House Ways and Means Committee and the Senate Finance Committee. It also assembles technical data, confers with the Treasury Department in preparing administrative proposals, and explains bills to the Ways and Means and Finance Committees in executive sessions which decide on the form legislation is to take.

Plan Drug Study

DES MOINES (AP) — Ten state legislators were named Friday to an interim study committee aimed at combatting drug problems in Iowa.

The five senators and five representatives, who will work cooperatively with Gov. Robert Ray's conference on drug abuse, were named by Lt. Gov. Roger Jepsen, president of the Senate, and House speaker William H. Harbor.

DEMOS SET MEETING

The Johnson County chapter of the Iowa Democratic Conference will meet at 8 a.m. Monday in Room A of the Recreation Center to elect officers and consider endorsing candidates for the June 2 Democratic primary.

Baseballers Finish Sunday

Iowa's baseballers, the winningest team in Hawkeye history, ends its 1970 campaign in a Big 10 doubleheader at Minnesota Sunday.

Duane Banks' team, which is hoping for a first-division finish is 6-9 in league play, 6½ games behind co-leaders Ohio State (10-0) and Minnesota (13-3). Overall, Iowa is 24-20.

The twinbill will be the final appearance for eight Iowa seniors. They are pitchers Earl Foster, Mike Klein, Bruce Reid and Alan Schuette, and infielders Gary Breshears, Jerry Bruchas and Bob Perkins and outfielder Dave Krull.

Sophomore righthanders Mark Tschopp (5-3, 3.35 earned-run average), and Chet Teklinski (4-4, 2.32 ERA) or southpaw Schuette (4-5, 5.69 ERA) will start against the Gophers, who are 32-14.

In the series between the two schools dating back to 1922, Minnesota holds a 62-44 edge. Last spring, the Gophers split with Iowa, winning 8-0 and losing 6-5.

Minnesota, which must beat the Hawkeyes twice and hope Ohio State losses three-of-four games this weekend, has won nine of its last 10 games.

Outfielder John Peterson is the top batter at .455 followed by Jim Chapman (.382), Bob Warhol (.374), Scott Frantzen (.327), Jim Wallace (.322) and Rick Schoener (.305).

Phil Flodin (.276) and Al Kaminski (.254) have each

DAVE KRULL
Last Game for 3-year Vet

clouted five home runs with Kaminski, the Gopher shortstop, the top run-producer with 29.

As a team, Minnesota is hitting .293 and has blasted out 110 extra-base hits in 46 games this spring. The Gopher pitching has limited the opposition to a .218 batting average 57 extra-base hits.

Gopher coach Dick Siebert, who has guided Minnesota to seven Big 10 titles since 1948, will pitch a pair of senior righthanders, 6-4 Dave Cosgrove (6-2, 1.85 ERA) and Gary Petrich (8-0.2.21 ERA), against Iowa.

Cosgrove, who pitched eight-innings of seven-hit ball in Minnesota's 8-0 win over Iowa here last year, was all-Big 10 in 1969, an all-American candidate this spring and a definite pro prospect.

Banks has been disappointed in the performance of his Hawkeyes, who have lost seven of their last 11 games despite outscoring the opposition 64-49.

"We just can't put our whole game together," Banks said. "When the pitching is good, the hitting and defense falters, and vice versa. Lately, our play has been below par."

The battle for the team's batting title has developed into a three-way fight between freshman Jim Sundberg (.360), sophomore Jim Cox (.349) and Breshears (.348). Cox moved into contention by going six-for-13 last weekend.

Breshears leads Iowa in five departments — runs scored (42), hits (47), triples (6), runs-batted-in (30) and toal bases (76).

Cox is tops in home runs (5) and doubles (9), and is second in hits (45), runs-batted-in (29), stolen bases (10 of 13) and total bases (71).

Dave Krull, the only Hawkeye to play in every inning this year, paces the team in stolen bases with 22 in 28 attempts.

Reichardt Backs Ray

Senator Bill Reichardt, (D-Des Moines) was very pleased with the action made by the Board. In a phone conversation Friday night, Reichardt told the Daily Iowan, "I'm so pleased and proud of the president of the University of Iowa and the Board in Control of Athletics. These are fair men and this was certainly a fair decision."

Reichardt is a former star fullback at Iowa and played during the Forest Evashevski coaching era. Reichardt seemed overjoyed for Nagel, the University of Iowa and the football coaching staff.

"This sort of renews my faith in the people of Iowa, who rallied around an innocent man," said Reichardt. "Ray Nagel put up one hell of a fight and I think they will see this same spirit in his football team this fall."

The reprimand referred to in the Fahr statement was in connection with an investigation of irregularities in expense accounts submitted by members of the football staff, the latest development in the four-month feud between Nagel and Evashevski, who resigned Monday as Nagel was fired.

"I'm very pleased with the action of the Board," Nagel said from his home Friday. "We're looking forward to the coming season with enthusiasm."

Nagel said he attended the board meeting Friday afternoon, but declined to comment on what went on at the session, saying he thought Fahr's statement should stand.

The statement issued by Fahr said Nagel would be retained for the duration of his present five-year contract, which expires Dec. 31, on the condition that funds alloted for recruiting prospective athletes be strictly accounted for in the future.

RAY NAGEL
Reinstated by Board in Control of Athletics

Nagel told a press conference Wednesday he was told he had been fired because of "disharmony" within the athletic department. He said he was "shocked and incensed" at the action, and publicly demanded an explanation.

The Board's statement Friday seemed to indicate that the expense-account investigation had played a larger part in its original action than had previously been indicated.

Nagel's firing and Evashevski's resignation culminated a feud which reportedly stemmed from Evashevski's dissatisfaction over Nagel's conduct of the Iowa football program.

Evashevski built Iowa into a football power as head coach in the 1950's and produced two Rose Bowl champions before taking over as athletic director in 1960.

In a press conference Thursday, Evashevski had refuted claims made by Nagel against him. Nagel's claims had inferred that Evashevski had wanted the coaching job back and was interferring with his own attempt to build a football winner.

Evashevski said Thursday, "I'm tired of hearing about the 'Evy Era' and the Rose Bowl champions. I think it is time to close the book an this chapter. I am bowing out and if Mr. Nagel has a gripe, he can take it up with the Board."

Nagel, who charged Wednesday he had been "harassed" for several years by Evashevski, said his coaches submitted expense account forms in accordance with instructions given by Evashevski. Evashevski denied involvement in any irregularities.

Evashevski, who had defended the athletic board's action as being well-considered, pleaded at a news conference Thursday for all parties to stop bickering and "put this affair to bed and write a new chapter in Iowa athletics."

Shortly after the end of Evashevski's press conference, Con Colbert of Iowa City, former administrative assistant to Evashevski as an accountant for the business office, made statements on radio and television backing up Nagel's earlier statement that Evashevski knew of the alledged "false" expense accounts.

Colbert, who worked in the Field House for more than five years prior to his resignation in April, told newsmen, "Evashevski was aware of the practice and said such things were being done throughout the conference and nation as a whole."

"He said it was the only way we could meet our competition and the big thing was that our own people would have to suffer a financial loss and this should not have to be."

Colbert said he had reviewed the entire situation with Sam Fahr, but that "nothing had come of it."

Nagel, who said at the end of 1970 spring football practice he had the best squad he had ever coached, indicated Friday that he intended to write a new chapter in Iowa athletics.

"Iowa has the greatest fans and friends in the country," the coach said," and the future looks very bright."

Mario Andretti Sets Indy Pace

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Mario Andretti, 1969 winner of the Indianapolis 500-mile race, practiced Friday at more than 167 miles per hour while unqualified drivers were struggling to reach 165 for final time trials Saturday and Sunday.

"We think it will take 166 to stay in contention on Memorial Day," said Andy Granatelli, owner of Andretti's German-built McNamara-Ford.

If the STP Corp. president has the field evaluated right, the race a week from Saturday will be far and away the fastest since the American auto classic began in 1911.

Another Football Dropout Seeks to Change the Sport

OAKLAND (AP) — "When the revolution comes, football will be obsolete," says Dave Meggyesy, explaining why he has retired after seven seasons as a linebacker with the St. Louis Cardinals.

"It's not like I'm doing my flaming thing and dropping out. I want to work to change the institution that is football. It's where I can work best," said the bearded Meggyesy, 28.

He announced his retirement in an interview with the San Francisco Examiner's Phil Finch Friday.

"It's a crime what is done to the individual, from the little leagues to the pros. They're molded, warped, processed — whatever words you want to use."

Meggyesy, who played college football at Syracuse, moved into a modest Oakland home recently. He said he is writing a book entitled "Our of their League: Why I Quit Pro Football."

Meggyesy said he talked to Cardinal Coach Charley Winner by telephone Wednesday night for more than an hour but did not reveal his decision to leave football.

"It was strange, talking to him without that authority thing of coach and player," Meggyesy said.

"I think he was surprised to hear a player talk to him like that.

"We hadn't spoken more than a minute together before that. It was always like, you know, grunt, how're you feeling, how's the shoulder, how's the weight, the whole coaches' mentality."

Meggyesy's statements were similar to those of another pro football linebacker who quit recently, Chip Oliver of the Oakland Raiders.

Oliver, who has joined a communal living group in nearby Larkspur, said he was tired of being regarded as one of the "slabs of beef" who hit each other in pro football.

Meggyesy said he would try to persuade other players to leave pro football.
