Airport Pollution Feared

By LINDA TAYLOR

Plans for a proposed regional airport for the Iowa City — Cedar Rapids area have met with opposition from a local ecology group.

Citizens for Environmental Action plans to explain to the public "what a regional airport means in other than economic and industrial growth" terms, according to George Brown, Solon, assistant professor of civil engineering.

Brown said they want to emphasize "how bad they (regional airports) are for people."

The 115-member ecology group, an outgrowth of the April 15 environmental teach-in, consists of University students and faculty and Iowa City residents concerned with preserving the environment.

Brown said the group opposes the regional airport concept because it would encourage "flying more and bigger jets." Until the effects of larger jets on pollution of the atmosphere are known, he said a "conservative" attitude toward such regional planning should be exercised.

The feasibility of such regional facilities is currently being investigated by the State Office of Planning and Programming and a committee of the Johnson and Linn County Regional Planning Commissions.

Dennis Kraft, 1017 Wyde Green Rd., planning director of the Johnson County commission, said Wednesday that the local committee is presently awaiting the recommendations from the state study before continuing their research. "We aim to see what the state plan is and have the smaller airports planned in accord with it."

He said they are also awaiting the study results from the Cedar Rapids Municipal Airport Authority, concerning size and growth prospects of that facility.

According to Kraft, the original idea of a regional airport to supplement O'Hare Field in Chicago was fairly unpopular, as was a later speculation that such an airport would serve the eastern one-third of Iowa. He said, however, that neither of these ideas "reflect the feelings of the committee."

Those concerned with increased environmental problems resulting from a regional airport should understand that in the terms of the planning committees, "regional airport" refers to a "multi-county facility or maybe just an expansion of the Cedar Rapids Airport," Kraft emphasized.

The organization of the ecology group — patterned after the American Civil Liberties Union — provides an executive board that can act without a general meeting on issues which arise, Brown said.

Brown said the actual campaign against a regional airport would begin in "about a month." He said that because of their location in a University community, they would be able to consult various faculty members before taking a solid stand on the issue.

Earlier this month, the group actively participated in Campaign G.M., a drive aimed at encouraging General Motors to increase its investigation efforts on methods of pollution control. Brown said the group obtained signatures from a majority of University faculty members on petitions to persuade G.M. to move in this direction.

Priest to Marry; Cannot Support Church Doctrine

BURLINGTON, Iowa — A Roman Catholic priest announced Wednesday he has resigned from the priesthood and in July will marry a Burlington divorcee with five children.

He is Arthur Perry, 39, whose resignation as principal at Notre Dame High School here became effective last week. Perry cites positions of the church on celibacy, divorce, birth control, mixed marriages and intercommunion as influencing his decision.

"I cannot continue as a priest and uphold publicly something I cannot support in conscience," Perry said.

His resignation as principal of the high school was announced last January, effective at the end of the school year.

enforcement of antidiscrimination laws. In early May Anthony J. Moffett Jr., resigned as director of the division of students and youth in the Office of Education, accusing the administration of decision of youthful antiwar administrators and alienation of youth in general.

On June 3, Dr. Stanley F. Yolles, a career government physician, was fired as director of the National Institute of Mental Health. He had charged political intervention in scientific affairs, scanty budgets, and faltering leadership from the White House.

Last Saturday President Nixon announced that Finch was leaving his post at HEW to become one of three principal presidential counselors. He will be replaced by Elliot L. Richardson, an Eisenhower-era assistant HEW secretary and currently No. 2 man at the State Department.

Nixon also announced that Caspar Weinberger, now chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, will become deputy director of the Office of Management and Budget, which will begin operations on July 1.

James Hodgson, Shultz's undersecretary from the beginning of the administration, replaces his former boss. The only casualty will be Budget Bureau Director Robert Mayo, whose job will be abolished at the end of the month, although he will stay on at least for a while as a presidential counselor.

Allen long had been at odds with the administration over policies ranging from school desegregation to Cambodia, but the administration insisted his firing was related to operations of his office and management of its programs.

Schultz Named Budget Head In Capitol Hill Job Upheaval

WASHINGTON — The Nixon administration upheaval continued Wednesday with the announcement that Labor Secretary George P. Shultz will head a new Office of Management and Budget, followed quickly by word that Dr. James E. Allen has been fired as education commissioner.

The actions followed by four days the transfer of Robert H. Finch from his job as secretary of health, education and welfare to the White House where he becomes a counselor to President Nixon.

Other resignations often punctuated by blasts at the administration preceded Finch's transfer.

President Nixon had enjoyed a remarkable harmony within his official family through the early months of his administration with Cabinet positions and most other top jobs stable and in friendly hands. Then, last fall, the first rumblings came when 65 of the 74 staff lawyers in the Justice Department's civil rights division revolted in protest of administration civil rights policies.

But the Justice Department incident was chalked up largely to holdover young firebrands from the previous administration. Gary J. Greenbert, 27, senior trial attorney in the division's appeals and research section and a leader of the revolt, was fired, and things calmed down after that.

The first real crack in administration ranks came Feb. 17 when Leon E. Panetta, a liberal Republican, resigned as chief of HEW's civil rights division. Charging he was forced out, he said White House aides had undermined

U.S. Army Attache Slain— Civil War Widens in Jordan

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Arab guerrillas and Jordanian troops battled through the streets of Amman Wednesday night in a rapidly escalating civil war punctuated by savage clashes, artillery duels and the slaying of a U.S. Army attache.

About a dozen Americans and a score of other foreigners were being held hostage by the Palestinian insurgents in an effort to force a halt to what they called Jordanian army attacks on refugee camps.

King Hussein warned in an impassioned radio address that his pro-Western country was in danger of "destruction and annihilation" unless the fighting ceased.

But the guerrillas appeared to kings and heads of state of all other Arab countries to join the battle against the "Jordanian traitors," and at least one country, Syria, aligned itself with the Palestinian cause, warning Jordan to stop the fighting.

The Cairo-based radio of Al Fatah, largest of the guerrilla groups, also called on Syrian and Iraqi forces already in Jordan to "protect the revolution and head off American intervention."

It claimed that Crown Prince Hassan was trying to overthrow his brother as king and had sought help from the U.S. 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean.

Al Fatah also said some Jordanian units had turned against their commanders and joined the guerrillas.

Travelers from Amman reported widespread shooting and heavy shelling throughout the capital. One told of seeing burned trucks in the streets, bodies and roadblocks made of rubble.

Al Fatah said 400 guerrillas and civilians had been killed or wounded in two days of savage fighting in the Amman area.

The Defense Department in Washington identified the slain Army attache as Maj. Robert P. Perry, 34, of Chicago. Pentagon officials said he was slain in his home by guerrillas as his wife and two of their three children looked on.

Robert Pelletreau, also a U.S. Embassy staff member, was among the Americans and other foreigners held in an Amman hotel by an extremist guerrilla group.

Two newsmen, Jesse Lewis of the Washington Post and William Tuohy of the Los Angeles Times, escaped Wednesday night and flew into Beirut.

Among those still being held were Dennis Neeld, correspondent of The Associated Press; Gerry Loughran, United Press International; Wilson Hall, NBC; David Long, 28, an insurance representative from Arcadia, Calif.; a Dr. Schrum of the American Embassy in Athens; the Rev. and Mrs. Douglas Sinden, San Francisco; Mr. and Mrs. James Taylor and Patricia Radford, Washington, D.C., and a man identified as Peter Struken.

The hostages were taken shortly after Amman Radio announced Hussein and Yasir Arafat, leader of Al Fatah and the combined guerrilla organization, reached agreement to end the fighting.

"The hostages are being held to dramatize the plight and suffering of the Palestinian people," a spokesman for the Marxist Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, said in Beirut, Lebanon.

"The commandos are treating the hostages well but their ultimate safety depends on the attitude of the reactionary regime in Jordan," he added.

On Sunday night, the same guerrilla group kidnapped Morris Draper, the U.S. Embassy's political officer and held him overnight until 40 guerrilla prisoners were freed by the government.

In other Middle East developments, Israeli planes raided Egyptian positions intermittently for three hours in the Suez Canal region but failed to accomplish their mission when engaged by anti-aircraft fire, an Egyptian military spokesman said.

According to the Middle East News Agency from Cairo, the announcement added, "Egyptian artillery Wednesday scored direct hits on columns of Israeli tanks, armored cars and bunkers."

Twenty-five Israeli planes — 8 Phantoms and 17 Skyhawks — were on bombing and reconnaissance missions at the Qantara, Eltina and Elcap sectors of the canal but caused no damage, the announcement said.

Nixon Welfare Plan Extends Family Aid

WASHINGTON — President Nixon outlined Wednesday an unspecified reform strategy for welfare-related programs, including required new government health insurance for some poor families.

The President promised Senate critics of his far-reaching family assistance welfare plan the changes they demanded for food stamps, Medicaid and public housing. But he said most of the necessary legislation will not be ready until early next year.

It appeared questionable whether Nixon's strategy would satisfy members of the Senate Finance Committee who urged specific legislative alternations of the family assistance plan. The committee ordered the legislation back to administration drawing boards for revision May 1.

The President announced "significant extensions" of family assistance, including new, unified federal administration of the food stamp program; abolition of Medicaid health assistance for some of the needy; and previously disclosed sliding rent scales in public housing.

The changes are designed to meet criticism that benefit provisions of the three programs are uncoordinated with family assistance and would take cash away from some family beneficiaries who find work.

The President rejected one Cabinet proposal to abolish food stamps and raise cash assistance benefits.

The core of family assistance remains intact: a federally paid income of $1,600 a year to a family of four with aid continuing until that family's total earnings pass $3,920.

The President wants medical, housing and food stamp benefits applied on a similar sliding scale, eliminating arbitrary cutoff points.

He proposed to displace Medicaid with a new federal health insurance plan for poor families with children.

Family health insurance, as outlined, would be entirely a federal program with national standards, requiring some matching contribution for most families but benefiting male-headed and working families for the first time.

The President said it is designed to eliminate the present Medicaid "work disincentive" that bars families from the program after they leave welfare roles.

Administration officials mentioned "a federal floor of medical services," that would be required in the new insurance. But they could not define these services or classify whether private carriers would administer the program.

They said tentative thinking would require the insurance for family assistance beneficiaries with total incomes less than $3,625 a year. It would be optional for families earning more than $3,625 but less than $5,620.

Families earning less than $1,600 would contribute nothing towards the $550 insurance premium. Those earning $3,000 would pay $70 a year; $4,500 would pay $220; and $5,619, the full $500.

Administration officials said the plan would benefit between 5 million and 6 million poor families and, counting contributions from beneficiaries, would cost the federal government no more than the present $3 billion for Medicaid — an unpopular program in Congress because of its mounting cost.

Hawkeye Court Requests End To Salvage Burning

By CAROL BIRD

Students at Hawkeye Court apartments are up in arms again over the Coralville Salvage Co.'s burning junked autos and are presenting a petition today to the Iowa State Air Pollution Control Commission in an attempt to have the burning stopped.

Almost 200 Hawkeye Court residents — all students — have signed a petition asking that "our air be free of this pollution," according to Norman Kennel, G. Iowa City, formulator of the petition.

The Pollution Commission is meeting today in the Union. Kennel said about four Hawkeye Court residents would go with him to present the petition.

The petition will also be given to the Johnson County Board of Supervisors in hopes they will determine the burning a "public nuisance" and terminate it by law, said Kennel.

This is the second time in less than a year that Hawkeye Court residents have petitioned governmental agencies in attempting to have the burning stopped.

Last July, 138 residents brought their grievances to the Coralville and Iowa City Councils and Johnson County Board of Health and were put off by what Hawkeye Court residents then termed "political buck-passing."

No action was taken against the salvage company and no local agency seemed to feel responsible for the alleged "health hazard", according to residents.

A Hawkeye Court resident informed that smoke coming from the salvage area was "thick, black and smells like rubber."

The petition states that: "A number of residents with respiratory problems can not be outside on days when any burning is done. If they cannot avoid being outside, they become ill and must spend time in bed recuperating. Besides presenting this health hazard to us, this burning is a public nuisance making our laundry, windows and cars dirty. We do not wish to be subjected to this pollution any longer..."

The petition asks that immediate action be taken to stop all burning.

Kennel said Wednesday night about 75% of the remaining residents of Hawkeye Court, that had not left for the summer, had been contacted and only two had refused to sign the petition.

Officials of the University Environmental Office, the Johnson County Health Offices and the Coralville police have all been contacted by Hawkeye Court residents recently concerning the burning.

Kennel said officials have taken the stand that the salvage company has the right for sufficient time to come up with some alternative plan to open burning for getting rid of the autos before action should be taken against them.

The problem is they keep getting special extensions (by governmental agencies) to come up with these alternatives and nothing is being done about the pollution," explained Kennel.

The Pollution Commission has been giving the salvage company extensions to revamp their burning procedures to meet a recently passed state law against open-burning.

State law provides that enclosed incinerators or crushing machines must be substituted for open burning.

Coralville Salvage Company owner, Allen J. Wolfe, could not be reached for comment Wednesday night.

CARE Asks Aid For Peru Victims

An emergency fund to aid an estimated 200,000 persons left hungry and homeless by a recent earthquake in Peru has been established by CARE.

With $600,000 as a goal, CARE officials hope to send blankets, shoes, children's clothes, vitamins, drugs, and soup to the earthquake victims.

Local contributions to the fund may be sent to "Peru Emergency," in care of the Midwest Regional office of CARE, 125 E. Wells St., Milwaukee, Wis., 53202.

Kremlin Blasts Asian War

MOSCOW — Premier Alexei N. Kosygin accused President Nixon on Wednesday of trying to dictate to Indochina and said the President is following a "policy of the medieval past."

In a major speech for Sunday's Supreme Soviet election, Kosygin made the hardest attack by a Kremlin leader against the United States since Nixon took office.

It contrasted with Soviet overtures last summer for increased U.S.-Soviet cooperation and reflected a new hostility over the spread of war in Indochina and heightening of the Middle East crisis.

But at the same time the premier admitted no improvement in Soviet relations with Red China, despite drawn-out talks in Peking.

Kosygin, speaking to Moscow voters at the Bolshoi Theater, pledged Kremlin willingness to try to improve relations with Washington and Peking. But he implied concessions would have to come from the other side.

The premier said, "Running through the speeches made by the United States President is the claim that the situation in the countries of the Indochina peninsula should be shaped according to U.S. dictates.

"They in Washington would like to appropriate the right to decide irrespective of the will of the peoples involved as to what country American troops may invade, whose sovereignty they may violate and what peaceful cities and villages they may subject to barbarous bombings.

"This is a policy of the medieval past, a policy without a future."

Kosygin showed no Soviet readiness to compromise over Indochina.

"There is only one way possible to solve the problem of Indochina — by withdrawing immediately and fully the troops of the United States and its satellites from Vietnam and other countries of the area," he said in his nationally televised speech.

The premier maintained that "relations between the Soviet Union and the United States have received no development in recent years."

In the Middle East, he blamed what he called Israel's lack of a "desire for a fair and peaceful settlement" on support by Washington. He pledged that Moscow would go on helping the Arabs in their attempts to get back territory lost in the six-day war.

Kosygin made no reference to Soviet pilots flying in Egypt but spoke only in general terms of "all-round support."

From Dean Stuit . . .

In the Thursday, May 28, 1970, issue of The Daily Iowan, Professor John E. Grant raises questions concerning the May 20 faculty meeting of the College of Liberal Arts and implies that deliberate efforts were made to prevent debate on the ROTC program. Others must judge whether debate has been suppressed in meetings of the faculty of the College of Liberal Arts (including May 20), but I would like to comment on some procedural matters on which Professor Grant does not appear to be well informed.

First, I wish to point out that discussion of the ROTC program was not on the agenda for the May 20 meeting. President Boyd's request that the role of ROTC be considered by the College faculties came after the agenda for the meeting had already been agreed upon in the May 7, 1970, meeting of the Executive Committee. Naturally, any topic can be discussed under new business (which was on the agenda) but a vote on ROTC, even if appropriate, could legitimately have been questioned since it did not appear on the agenda distributed to the faculty prior to the faculty meeting.

Second, the Executive Committee in its meeting of Friday, May 15, voted (seven for; two abstentions) that the recommendations of the Educational Policy Committee as set forth in the minutes of June 23 and July 7, 1969, should constitute the academic position of the College of Liberal Arts on ROTC. I wish to point out again, as I have many times previously, that whether we have ROTC on the campus is a decision for the President and the Board of Regents to make. Assuming that we have ROTC on the campus, the Educational Policy Committee's recommendations are, and will continue to be, the College's position of credit, faculty ranks and course substitutions and related issues. As a matter of fact these recommendations are already in the process of being implemented.

Third, I should like to point out to the University Community that in the College of Liberal Arts the faculty has not voted on the establishment or disestablishment of departments or programs. Decisions of this kind have been done by the administration after consultation with the appropriate elected Committees (Educational Policy and Executive). Should the faculty believe that this procedure should be changed, then the appropriate step would be to ask that this issue be discussed at a future faculty meeting and appropriate changes made in the Manual of Procedure which would then apply to all departments and programs. Of course, any topic of interest to the faculty can be discussed in a faculty meeting, even though a vote on the issue is not taken.

Professor Grant is correct in reporting that I am deeply concerned about our public relations. I believe that anyone who has talked with alumni and citizens of the State in recent weeks shares my concerns about the impact of this situation on the future of the University. Unless we succeed in changing some of these present attitudes for the better, there will be serious consequences. As I stated to the faculty, we have much to do before the new academic year opens in September. We must have the full and complete cooperation of all segments of the campus community if this University is to continue as a leader in higher education. These are facts which are not pleasant to report, or for the faculty to hear, but they are the facts as I see them at the present time. The most important thing to do now is to take constructive action.

Dewey B. Stuit, Dean

P. S. I am enclosing a copy of the full text of my remarks to the faculty and of a position paper on ROTC. I should be pleased to have The Daily Iowan publish these papers. I wish to assure everyone that what I have said on ROTC and on the public relations of the University is public information.

Mr. Nixon's computer

By ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — It is not generally known but there is a top secret computer, located within the continental limits of the United States, which has stored in its memory bank all of the reasons that a President can use to justify military actions without the consent of Congress. This computer makes it possible for the Commander-in-Chief in a matter of moments to produce the phrases that can be included when explaining why he has chosen to take a certain course of action.

As soon as President Nixon made his decision to invade Cambodia, the computer went into action. A White House speech writer who was plugged into the computer tapped out the following message:

"WHAT WOULD BE OUR REASON FOR GOING TO CAMBODIA?"

The computer replied, "TO SHORTEN THE WAR IN VIETNAM."

The speech writer tapped back, "WHY ARE WE GOING IN AT THIS TIME?"

"BECAUSE THE ENEMY HAS BEEN USING CAMBODIA AS A VAST STAGING AREA AND REFUGE WHICH HAS BECOME INTOLERABLE."

The speech writer continued, "WHAT WILL THIS DECISION DO TO THE AMERICAN PEOPLE?"

The computer replied, "IT WILL BE A BASIC TEST OF THEIR WILL AND CHARACTER, AND IT WILL SHOW THAT THE AMERICAN PEOPLE HONOR THEIR COMMITMENTS."

"HOW WILL THIS DECISION AFFECT THE COMMUNIST COUNTRIES?"

"IT WILL MAKE THEM REALIZE THAT THE UNITED STATES WILL NOT ACT LIKE A PITILESS HELPLESS GIANT WHEN FACED WITH A MILITARY THREAT."

"IS THAT ALL?"

"YOU CAN ADD THAT WHEN A REAL CRISIS COMES, AMERICA WON'T BE FOUND WANTING."

"WHAT IS THE EASY THING THAT THE PRESIDENT COULD DO?"

The computer was silent for a moment, then it replied, "THE EASY THING FOR THE PRESIDENT TO DO IS TO BRING ALL OUR TROOPS HOME IMMEDIATELY, TO ACCEPT DEFEAT, TO DESERT THE SOUTH VIETNAMESE PEOPLE AND TO GET A PEACE AT ANY PRICE, A PEACE OF HUMILIATION."

"WHAT IS THE HARD THING FOR THE PRESIDENT TO DO?"

"TO DO WHAT'S RIGHT, TO BRING THE WAR TO A SUCCESSFUL CONCLUSION."

"IS THIS AN INVASION OF CAMBODIA?" the aide asked.

The computer seemed to flounder. "REPEAT THE QUESTION."

The White House aide repeated the question.

"NO, THIS IS NOT AN INVASION OF CAMBODIA. WE ARE JUST DESTROYING AREAS THAT HAVE ALWAYS BEEN IN THE HANDS OF THE VIET CONG. THE PRESIDENT IS REALLY TRYING TO AVOID A WIDER WAR."

"THANK YOU, PLEASE GIVE US SOME PHRASES ABOUT THE CAMBODIAN PEOPLE."

"THEY ARE FREEDOM-LOVING DEMOCRATIC PEOPLES TRYING TO SEEK THEIR OWN DESTINIES."

"WHAT ABOUT ALL THE VIETNAMESE PEOPLE THEY KILLED IN THEIR COUNTRY?"

"OMIT."

"WHAT HAVE THE NORTH VIETNAMESE VIOLATED?"

"CAMBODIA'S NEUTRALITY."

"WHAT ARE WE DOING IN CAMBODIA?" the aide asked.

"HELPING TO PROTECT THEIR NEUTRALITY."

"HOW WILL THIS AFFECT THE PRESIDENT POLITICALLY?"

The computer paused.

"ARE YOU THERE?" the aide tapped out.

"I'M THINKING," the computer tapped back, "HOW ABOUT THIS? WHETHER HE IS A ONE-TERM PRESIDENT OR A TWO-TERM PRESIDENT IS INSIGNIFICANT COMPARED TO WHETHER AMERICA BECOMES A SECOND-RATE POWER AND ACCEPTS THE FIRST DEFEAT IN ITS PROUD 190-YEAR HISTORY. THAT SHOULD DO IT."

"THANK YOU," the aide tapped, "WE'LL BE BACK TO YOU IN CASE THE SPEECH IS TOO SHORT."

Public relations at the University

By DEWEY B. STUIT

The University is now engaged in a program to meet with influential alumni throughout the state to inform them of the problems faced by the University and to lay the groundwork for our visits with legislative candidates next fall. A representative of the Alumni Association and an administrator meet with six to 12 alumni for lunch or dinner. The Alumni Office representative and the administrator make brief presentations after which the meeting is open for questions and reports from the alumni.

There is no doubt that the University is faced with the most difficult public relations job since the early 1930's. After a period of growth in size, support and public esteem we have now reached a plateau in size, a decided leveling off in growth of financial support, and a serious decline in public esteem. Unless some decisive steps are taken to improve our public image, the consequences in the next session of the legislature could well be catastrophic in their impact on the future of the University. It is true that Iowa is in many ways no worse off than some of its sister institutions. If we are all in trouble we will all suffer together, but we will still suffer. What are the reasons for this situation?

REASONS FOR TROUBLE

One important reason is that the needs of the Regent's institutions have greatly increased and at the same time there is more competition for the tax dollar than ever before in the state's history. Until five or six years ago there was little competition from community colleges, public schools and private institutions. Now all, particularly the public schools and community colleges, are receiving a substantial degree of support from legislative appropriations. As a result the Regent's institutions are no longer in a favored position but must make their case in competition with educational institutions whose needs are probably better understood and better appreciated by the Legislature than are those of the three universities. Our communications problem is therefore more difficult and more complicated than ever before.

A second reason, and probably the most important, is disenchantment with radical students and faculty members. In particular, our friends report to us that the citizens of the State cannot understand why we have not taken steps to discipline students who appear to have interfered with academic processes. The events of November and December, 1967, have not been forgotten, and some recent events have further aggravated the situation. To the public it appears that a serious breakdown in our disciplinary procedures has occurred and many wonder why we don't do something promptly to correct the situation.

With regard to faculty, the concern is that the concept of academic freedom has been extended well beyond reasonable limits. Even our alumni ask whether we haven't gone too far in protecting faculty members who seem to be unfaithful to the ideals of the University and who appear to be using the University for their own political ends. In my judgment it is urgent that we reexamine our concept of academic freedom, publish our findings widely and then make it clear that we expect all to be guided by the policies adopted. In addition, I feel that there is a need for a code of ethics which should serve as a guide to faculty conduct. Should we fail to take these measures, I believe that there will be increasing doubts concerning our commitment to the basic principles of academic freedom and increasing concern about faculty members using the University for political ends.

We also continue to hear concerns about lack of commitment to the teaching function of the University on the part of some senior staff members. The public generally seems to be under the impression that some senior faculty members do very little teaching and spend their time in writing, research and various off-campus activities. There is the further concern that undergraduate teaching is largely delegated to teaching assistants, many of whom are inexperienced and, so our critics say, not very interested in teaching. This is not a new complaint about teaching, but it is one which we cannot ignore.

The most recent "blow" to our public relations in the state is the Faculty Senate vote on ROTC. Once more the public feels that a faculty group has acted politically, rather than educationally. Many find it very difficult to understand why the ROTC program has suddenly become so academically unsound when it has been on campus for over 50 years (military instruction for over 100 years) and has produced many alumni who earned commissions as well as academic degrees at the University. Many citizens feel that the University would be falling down in an obligation to assist in educating future officers for the military services if ROTC were to be discontinued. In general, citizens of the state see no virtue in dropping ROTC — only another instance of submission to political pressure.

A final point of criticism which we hear is that the voices of the faculty and administration have not been heard, speaking in the role of leaders for the campus community. Much is heard from those who protest, but little from those who are expected to defend the position of the University as an institution which is prepared to hear all points of view and which is unwavering in its dedication to the search for truth and its dissemination. Again, we know that such voices have spoken but they have been lost in the heat of protest and debate. Our friends tell us they have not heard these voices and they are waiting for us to speak out in tones which are loud and clear.

In summary, it would appear that our public relations are at an all time low, due primarily to events which have occurred on our campuses. At the same time we as institutions appear to have an almost insatiable appetite for more financial support. When people are dissatisfied and unable to deal with the problem directly, they simply tell their representatives not to vote money for the support of institutions of which they disapprove — at least at the moment. Therein lies our most challenging problem.

SOLUTIONS

The question now is, "What do we do about it?"

One answer is that we must do a better job of interpreting our needs and our problems to the public. A great deal will be done during this coming summer and fall to convey more information to our alumni, to the members of the Legislature and to the public. Hopefully, this informational program will bear some fruit.

A second answer is that we must do a better job of conducting our affairs on the campus. Faculty, students and administration must recognize that we are not an island — that we cannot do just as we please and ignore the public. Regardless of how we may feel about an issue, there is still a place for diplomacy. We, as academic people, have said many times that ends do not necessarily justify the means employed. This year we have had too many people who have rationalized their actions by saying that the ends they were seeking to achieve justified what they were doing. The public simply will not accept that argument.

We must have a clearer understanding of what is acceptable behavior, principally on the part of students, but also on the part of faculty members. In the case of students I feel that we must have our behavior guidelines clearly spelled out and disciplinary procedures developed which are efficient and prompt, as well as being fair. For all too long we have listened to various legal arguments about "due process" and in so doing have made ourselves powerless to act when action was urgently needed. The public will simply not accept these "legal" excuses any longer. When discipline is called for, it must be administered.

In the case of faculty members I feel that we must develop a code of ethics which will define more clearly the University's expectations of faculty members with respect to relationships with students, with outside agencies, with fellow faculty members and with the administration. To the public it appears that some faculty members are not living up to their responsibilities and are taking refuge behind liberal tenure practices. As a result we face the distinct possibility of outside intervention which may result in a drastic revision of long-standing tenure policies. Once more, therefore, the many could possibly suffer because of the sins of a few.

Fortunately, (and this we emphasize) the overwhelming majority of our faculty members are loyal, devoted people who upheld the fine traditions of this University not only by continuing to teach, but by exerting special efforts "to go the extra mile" in calming students and upholding the position of the University administration in these very difficult times. We shall make every effort to publicize the facts concerning the loyalty of our faculty but it will take a great deal of work to offset the damage done by the few who seemingly have little allegiance to the University.

DEEP CONCERN

My remarks must reflect my deep concern about the problems faced by this University, and by higher education generally. In all of my 32 years at the University I have never been more distressed about the plight of the University. We are living in a time of crisis and confusion, and sometimes we may wonder if there is an answer to the educational problems of our time. I think there is an answer. Basically that answer is a fuller commitment on the part of all of us to the ideals of the University, to the life of reason and to the practice of genuine academic freedom. To state it another way, I believe the faculty and administration must exert a greater degree of constructive leadership than we have in the past, through example, by engaging in more dialogue with students and by reeducation to the most fundamental activity of the University, namely, the education of the young. We have much to do before the new academic year opens in September. We must have the full and complete cooperation of all segments of the campus community if this University is to continue as a leader in higher education. I ask for your cooperation in the most urgent terms.

ROTC and the University

By DEWEY B. STUIT

The question of ROTC on the campus should be considered in the context of the goals and purposes of a university.

It is generally agreed that the fundamental functions of a university are the discovery, conservation and dissemination of knowledge, with the latter being interpreted as including the preparation of young people for a wide variety of occupational pursuits. With the establishment of the first land grant universities in the 1860s, the dissemination of knowledge function was further extended to include making available to the public the results of study which would assist in the solution of certain problems faced by society; e.g. in agriculture, industry and government. It is of interest that in establishing land grant colleges, it was stipulated that military science should be offered as one program of instruction. Clearly, those who were responsible for the land grant legislation felt that to prepare young men for military service was a vocational training function and public service which should be assumed by the land grant university.

The question which has now been raised is: Does ROTC qualify as a legitimate university teaching activity? The answer is that in the natural course of events we offer many courses of instruction which are essential to the education of the military officer and when combined with a limited number of professional courses, qualify the individual for a commission in the armed forces. For some students it is a definite advantage to be able to earn a college degree while at the same time working for a commission.

Briefly, we can say that service as a military officer is one vocation, among many others, for which the university offers basic training. If there were no need for armed forces, naturally the need for military training programs would disappear. But recognizing the predatory nature of man and the state of the world today, it seems very unlikely that the major countries of the world will soon be in a position to divest themselves completely of their military forces.

Could the training of military officers be carried out elsewhere? Of course it could. However, would it be best for the country to have all officers trained in military academies or officer candidate schools? Most educators think not, and would argue for diversity in the educational background of our military officers. It has been said over and over again that one great strength of our American system of higher education is that we provide diversity of educational opportunities for our young people. Shouldn't that diversity of opportunity be open to those planning to enter the armed services? Obviously many educators agree that it should.

Of course, the ROTC program is not essential to a university in the sense that the basic academic disciplines are vital to its life. But one could also say that no one professional training program is essential to a university. Our sister institution in Ames has no medical college, no dental college and no law colleges. We have no colleges of agriculture and veterinary medicine. I believe, however, that we could say that in both Ames and Iowa City we have excellent universities despite the fact that we are significantly different in the professional programs we offer. A decision was made by each institution and their governing board to offer certain programs and to omit others. Likewise some colleges and universities offer ROTC and others do not. It is a question of what kinds of services one believes he should render and what kinds of educational opportunities are to be made available to students.

All of us would agree that ROTC programs should offer courses of instruction which compare favorably in quality with courses taught elsewhere in the University. We can also agree that they should be taught by competent instructors with essentially the same freedom to teach their subject that prevails elsewhere in the University. If there are deficiencies in these areas, they should be corrected. Each and every educational program on the campus can be improved. The same holds true for ROTC. The recommendations recently made by the Educational Policy Committee of the College of Liberal Arts are designed to achieve these objectives.

Finally, I should like to point out that military science has been taught for over 100 years on the campuses of our land grant universities. Some of these universities are among the greatest in the world. I know of no evidence which would support the position that ROTC has hindered or interfered in any way with the development of these institutions. Until the Vietnam war came along, I can recall no serious criticism of the policy of having ROTC on the college campus. I am sure all of us recognize that ROTC programs are not responsible for our participation in that war.

It would be well, therefore, not to allow our justified concerns about that war, and the foreign policies of the United States, to influence our assessment of the role of ROTC on the campus or of its importance to the future defense of the nation. Of one thing we can be very sure, Congress will see to it that adequate facilities are provided for the training of officers for our military services. As educators we are faced with the question as to whether we want other agencies to do the entire job of training these young men. In my judgment, to do so would be a very serious mistake.

Attack Port In Cambodia

SAIGON (AP) — The enemy posed a new threat Wednesday to Cambodia's key port of Kompong Som, formerly Sihanoukville, through which the Communist command once funneled supplies to its forces in South Vietnam, a Cambodian spokesman said.

He added that government troops apparently were holding on, despite enemy pressure against a military outpost skirting a highway near the port, 120 miles southwest of Phnom Penh.

Shortly after Sihanouk's overthrow, the enemy attempted to cut the road running southeast from Kompong Som which served as Phnom Penh's major surface link with the sea.

Saboteurs also dynamited sections of the railroad linking Phnom Penh and Kompong Som in an attempt to cut off the flow of oil needed to keep the nation alive.

In general, however, ground fighting eased off in Cambodia where the U.S. Command said 269 Americans have been killed and 1,137 wounded since the operation began May 1.

The allied command claimed that more than 11,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops have been killed in fighting in the order area, with South Vietnamese losses put at more than 600 killed and 2,800 wounded.

Fact-Finding Group Reports Viet Progress

WASHINGTON (AP) — With one Democratic senator dissenting, a high-level presidential fact-finding commission just back from South Vietnam and Cambodia drew an encouraging picture today of developments in that area.

The panel of governors, senators and House members all signed a report to Nixon except for Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre of New Hampshire who planned a report of his own.

The group, which spent four days in the two countries, said that all leaders they met with "agreed that, due in at least in some measure to the Cambodian operation, the scheduled U.S. troop withdrawals can safely and surely proceed."

McIntyre told reporters that while the U.S. attack into Cambodia may have been a short-range tactical military success "I also feel that the action has widened the war . . . and will not speed up withdrawal of troops."

"Not one American official with whom I talked from Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and General Creighton W. Abrams on down would recommend an acceleration of troop withdrawals as a result of our operations in Cambodia," the New Hampshire Democrat said.

Course to Treat Role of Media

A new course, "The Mass Media and the Great Issues", concerned with the way mass media treats issues of the day and the circumstances which influence this media treatment will be offered in the University School of Journalism this summer.

The course, taught by Leslie Moeller, former director of the School of Journalism, will focus on society's influence on media treatment, the part of media in social change and planning and the changes needed in both the media audience and the media, among other issues.

The course is open to both undergraduates and graduates including freshmen, and is not limited to journalism majors.

Grant Provides Medical Care For the Poor

WASHINGTON (AP) — In an effort to provide more medical personnel to work with the poor, the antipoverty agency Wednesday awarded an $1.95-million grant to the National Urban Coalition.

Much of the money will go to medical and other professional schools to encourage fellows, residents and interns to work in existing community-health programs in low-income areas.

The Urban Coalition will also assist members of low-income groups to enter health careers, both professional and nonprofessional.

"The shortage of medical manpower is a principal cause of the nation's health crisis," said Donald Rumsfeld, director of the Office of Economic Opportunity which made the grant.

John W. Gardner, former secretary of welfare who now directs the coalition, said there is a particular need to recruit more minority groups into the health professions. He said only two per cent of the physicians in the United States are black.

Gardner said the project will attempt to link the professional schools with deprived communities, and will begin immediately in four regional areas with Atlanta probably the first one to cover the Southeast. Another probably will be the Southwest.

Some 50 schools, still unidentified, will be given community-health fellowships immediately.

Action Study Opens 4 Areas

Four courses, two giving academic credit, will be offered in the summer Action Studies program.

Norman Dubie of the University Writer's Workshop will teach a course entitled "A Poetry of Resistance" for two hours of English credit. The course "will be an exercise in the rigorous dissent of the poem" according to an Action Studies syllabus describing the four courses.

A general survey of Black playwrights taught by Black Action Theatre director Earle Eldridge will head-up "Black Action Theatre", the other offering academic credit. Scheduled for two hours of credit, the course will include readings of Langston Hughes, "Trials of Brother Hero" (Nigerian work) and James Baldwin's "Blues for Mr. Charlie."

The other two courses, "Sexism for Men" and "The Rural Real, The Rural Surreal" are non-credit courses.

A course where men examine their attitudes toward women, homosexuals and themselves, "Sexism for Men" will help students to "attain a greater ability to understand, communicate with and work with other people", according to the syllabus. Sexism will be taught by Don Anderson, a cinematography instructor.

Another Writer's Workshop member Roger Weingarten will teach the rural real and surreal course — a nature study — according to the syllabus, which attempts "to go beyond the voyeur, the tourist and develop the beginnings of a relationship with the countryside and woodland."

Registration for all four courses will be held next Monday with regular University summer school registration in the Fieldhouse.

Computer to Help Plan Iowa Reapportionment

"Perfect plans" for revising Iowa's legislative and congressional districts will be drawn up by the University computer center.

The plan, approved Wednesday in Des Moines by Iowa's Legislative Council, authorizes the computer center to do preliminary planning for next year's legislative task of reapportioning the legislature and realigning congressional districts.

Plans now include reducing the legislature from 185 to 100 members. In addition, many persons have speculated that Iowa will lose one of its seven congressional seats because of a shrinking population in relation to the rest of the country.

City Schools Get Equalization Aid

Nearly $300,000 in State Equalization aid was received this week by the Iowa City Community School District.

The sum of $297,428 is designed to equalize the wealth of the Iowa City community schools with that of other schools in the state.

Registration for all four courses will be held next Monday with regular University summer school registration in the Fieldhouse.

U.S. Court Orders Hoffmans Held

CHICAGO (AP) — Edward Hoffmans, 32, of Iowa City, granted a mistrial on charges of destroying Selective Service records, was denied release on bond Wednesday by a U.S. Court of Appeals judge.

Hoffmans, a former University of Northern Iowa English teacher, was ordered held for examination in a Springfield, Mo., hospital.

He was one of 11 antiwar activists tried before Judge Edwin A. Robson of the U.S. District Court on charges of destroying records at the Southwest Side Selective Service office here May 25, 1969.

Judge Robson sentenced seven of the defendants Tuesday to five years in prison and imposed 10-year sentences on three others he called ringleaders in the action.

Hoffmans was granted a mistrial on grounds that he was mentally incompetent to stand trial.

In denying Hoffmans' request for release on bond, Judge Roger J. Kiley of the U.S. 7th Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed Wednesday Judge Robson's ruling that Hoffmans is dangerous to himself and to society.

Hoffmans' attorney, Anthony Loerichio, said he would ask a three-judge panel of the Appeals Court to review Hoffmans' motion for release on bond.

Truck, Bike Collide Here, Boy, 9, Dies

A nine-year-old Iowa City youth was dead on arrival at University Hospital Wednesday following a truck-bicycle accident.

According to Iowa City Police, Terry Buck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman C. Buck, 1420 Broadway St., was fatally injured about 12:40 Wednesday afternoon when the bicycle he was riding was struck by a five-ton truck belonging to Goodwill Industries.

The driver of the truck has been identified as Merle M. Brees, 710 7th Ave. Coralville. Iowa City Police are still investigating the accident. Charges against Brees are pending the outcome of those investigations police say.

The accident apparently happened as the truck was attempting to make a left turn onto lower Muscatine Road from First Avenue.

Veeck's Quips and Quotes Sparkle Flood Antitrust Suit

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Veeck, controversial former major league club owner, brought laughter and several alternatives to the reserve clause to the courtroom Wednesday as testimony was concluded in the Curt Flood case.

Unconventional as ever in a wide-lapeled open-neck shirt, Veeck took the stand as the last rebuttal witness for Flood and had viewers, opposing counsel and even Judge Irving Ben Cooper smiling as he parried questions and offered opinions for 1½ hours.

Handing Down Alternatives —

Bill Veeck, colorful former owner of several major league teams gestures to add emphasis to a point he is making. Veeck, a mastermind of ticket-selling gimmicks, testified on behalf of Curt Flood against the reserve clause Wednesday and brought laughter to the courtroom with his antics which accompanied his alternatives.

Despite the laughter created by some of his responses, Veeck's testimony did support Flood's main contention in the $3 million antitrust suit—that baseball's reserve system could be modified without serious harm befalling the sport.

"It's modification might work out to benefit management," Veeck claimed.

He suggested three alternative contract provisions to the reserve clause—which binds a player to the club that signs him until he is traded, sold or released—and said no problems would result if changes "were done in an orderly fashion."

His alternatives:

— A form of the contract used in the motion picture industry, enabling a studio to hold rights to a performer for a specified period, usually seven years, with the contract calling for scheduled raises at intervals during the contract period.

— A form of pro football's option clause—in which a player can become a free agent by playing out the option year of his contract — with the exception that compensation be in the form of cash rather than in player of equivalent quality.

— Some form of combination contract, covering first a specified period during which management could maintain its hold on a player's services in the minors, and another contract for an undetermined length of time to hold his services after he reached the major league level.

Veeck said he believed the reserve clause, which Flood's suit contends operates illegally in the restraint of trade, should be modified because "everyone, at least once in his business career, should be able to determine his own future—not be held in perpetuity."

He said he did not agree with the expressed fear of current club owners that allowing for a modification so players could become free agents at some point in their careers would enable the rich clubs to snap up the top talent.

"The great fear operators have," said Veeck, "is that all talent will gravitate to a few clubs. I don't believe that could be true."

Other top contenders on the 6,923, par 71 layout include Arnold Palmer, Tom Weiskopf, Miller Barber, Dick Lotz and Larry Hinson.

Lotz won last week's Kemper and joined Lee Trevino and Billy Casper as the only double winners on the tour this year. He vaulted into the No. 2 spot on the money list at almost $106,000 and faced his biggest challenge from the lanky Hinson.

Palmer has played well in recent weeks, but has been bothered by putting troubles. Weiskopf has made a threat for the last three tournament titles and the recently-married Barber has been very consistent.

Gary Player of South Africa also began his practice Wednesday and was on the 15th fairway when the thunderstorm struck.

Clark and Jeannette will remain associated with the team, Clark in a promotional position and Jeannette as director of player personnel.

"We're going to start afresh," said the 40-year-old McMahon. "The mistakes of the past are forgotten."

"It doesn't take long to build a basketball team if you do your homework," said McMahon.

He admitted in San Diego he did not scout some of his draft choices closely enough, but said "I won't make the same mistake here."

IOWA CITY (AP) — Former Iowa quarterback Larry Lawrence denied rumors Tuesday night that he had signed a contract to play professional football with Calgary in the Canadian Football League.

Lawrence said he had talked to the Calgary club, but had not made a definite commitment. He said if a contract was signed, the announcement would have to come from the Canadian club.

Officials of the football club said they had no knowledge of Lawrence having signed a contract to play in the Canadian league.

Lawrence left the University of Iowa last fall during a dispute between former Athletic Director Forest Evashkevski and head football coach Ray Nagel. He enrolled in the University of Miami.

Lee Trevino Seeks Win In U.S. Open

CHASKA, Minn. (AP) — Lee Trevino arrived a week early for the U.S. Open Golf Championship and started practice Wednesday at Hazeltine National "with the idea of winning at least one of the major tournaments."

Trevino shot the back nine of the 7,100-yard course before a severe thunderstorm interrupted his practice. But the 1968 Open champion from El Paso, Tex., didn't get wet.

"Sometimes I'm not very smart but I know when to get out of the rain," Trevino said.

"In fact, I saw it coming and didn't leave the clubhouse," Trevino said his eight days of practice should give him an advantage over golfers who are playing in the Western Open at Chicago this week.

"I certainly think it will give me an advantage," said the fast-talking Trevino. "Whether I take advantage of this is a different story. I may play eight days here and end up missing the cut."

"I've never come this early for a tournament before. I should play eight more rounds and hit 4,000 or 5,000 balls. I'm going to try to win a major championship, and I need the rest. The next tournament I will play in is the British Open in two weeks."

Trevino said he actually was listed as entering the Western Open but said he had inadvertently signed up for that tournament, thinking it was another.

"I had no intention of playing the Western," he said. "I had already made arrangements to bring my family up here and start practice."

Trevino, who has won two pro tournaments this year, said the extra week of practice will give him more knowledge of the rolling greens on the par-72 course about 28 miles southwest of Minneapolis.

Gary Player of South Africa also began his practice Wednesday and was on the 15th fairway when the thunderstorm struck.

Clark and Jeannette will remain associated with the team, Clark in a promotional position and Jeannette as director of player personnel.

"We're going to start afresh," said the 40-year-old McMahon. "The mistakes of the past are forgotten."

"It doesn't take long to build a basketball team if you do your homework," said McMahon.

He admitted in San Diego he did not scout some of his draft choices closely enough, but said "I won't make the same mistake here."

IOWA CITY (AP) — Former Iowa quarterback Larry Lawrence denied rumors Tuesday night that he had signed a contract to play professional football with Calgary in the Canadian Football League.

Lawrence said he had talked to the Calgary club, but had not made a definite commitment. He said if a contract was signed, the announcement would have to come from the Canadian club.

Officials of the football club said they had no knowledge of Lawrence having signed a contract to play in the Canadian league.

Lawrence left the University of Iowa last fall during a dispute between former Athletic Director Forest Evashkevski and head football coach Ray Nagel. He enrolled in the University of Miami.

Yanks Not for Sale Despite London Bid

NEW YORK (AP) — The head of a London investment company said Wednesday he hoped to buy the New York Yankees, but officials of the baseball club said the team was not for sale.

Jerome D. Hoffman, 37, a St. Louis businessman who is president of International Investors Group Service, Ltd. planned to fly to New York to confer with Robert Wagner, former New York mayor, who is chairman of the board of the London company. Wagner reportedly would take a very active part in operating the club if the deal were completed.

"We are not negotiating with anybody and the club is not for sale," said a spokesman for Michael Burke, president of the Yankees who are owned by the Columbia Broadcasting System.

A spokesman for the CBS corporate structure said the organization had "not been approached and the club is not for sale."

However, Hoffman said he was leaving for the London airport he intended to meet with Burke within 48 hours.

"We are talking big money," said Hoffman. "Mr. Burke said $25 million. We might have to pay that amount. But we have $25 million."

"I think we will have the Yankees very shortly. I don't know what all the fuss is about over the Yankees exchanging hands. We invest something like a quarter of a billion dollars a year. This should be looked upon as just another investment."

Hoffman, who said he worked his way through Washington University in St. Louis as a batting practice catcher for the Cardinals and Browns, declared the Yankees "have a fantastic tradition and play great baseball. We are not just money men interested in changing the Yankee setup. Their management is a good one."

Asked how much his company was offering, Hoffman said, "no comment."

The New York Daily News, in breaking the story in its Wednesday morning edition, quoted Burke as saying so far as he knew "the club is not for sale. But if someone were to come along and offer $25 million you'd have to consider it."

CBS bought the Yanks in August, 1964, for $14 million. The club won the pennant that year but then dropped into the second division. The Yanks have made their first real comeback since 1964 in the current season, trailing the first-place Baltimore Orioles by 4½ games as of Tuesday night.

Nicklaus Changes Mind; Enters $130,000 Western

CHICAGO (AP) — The $130,000 Western Open Golf Tournament, the final tune-up for the National Championship, begins Thursday over a course that could favor big hitters.

"I like Beverly and always seem to play well here," pre-tourney favorite Jack Nicklaus said. "It's a little like the Open course and should serve as a good warm-up."

The hard-hitting Nicklaus won the first of his two consecutive Western titles the last time the prestige-laden event was played at the long, rolling Beverly Country Club course, in 1967, and was installed as the favorite for the $26,000 first prize when he made a late decision to enter the 67th Western.

"I usually don't like to play the week before a major championship," the big blond said, looking forward to next week's U.S. Open at the Hazeltine Golf Club course in Chaska, Minn., "but I decided I needed the work."

Nicklaus originally had planned to skip the Western, but filed an entry when he failed to make the cut for the final two rounds in last week's Kemper Open.

Other top contenders on the 6,923, par 71 layout include Arnold Palmer, Tom Weiskopf, Miller Barber, Dick Lotz and Larry Hinson.

Lotz won last week's Kemper and joined Lee Trevino and Billy Casper as the only double winners on the tour this year. He vaulted into the No. 2 spot on the money list at almost $106,000 and faced his biggest challenge from the lanky Hinson.

Palmer has played well in recent weeks, but has been bothered by putting troubles. Weiskopf has made a threat for the last three tournament titles and the recently-married Barber has been very consistent.

Gary Player of South Africa also began his practice Wednesday and was on the 15th fairway when the thunderstorm struck.

Clark and Jeannette will remain associated with the team, Clark in a promotional position and Jeannette as director of player personnel.

"We're going to start afresh," said the 40-year-old McMahon. "The mistakes of the past are forgotten."

"It doesn't take long to build a basketball team if you do your homework," said McMahon.

He admitted in San Diego he did not scout some of his draft choices closely enough, but said "I won't make the same mistake here."

McMahon Named 7th Coach In Pipers' 3-Year History

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Jack McMahon, fired by the San Diego Rockets last season, was named coach of the Pittsburgh Pipers of the American Basketball Association Wednesday.

McMahon becomes the seventh coach in the Pipers' three-year history.

The stocky, one-time All-American basketball player, a former guard on the St. Louis Hawks and a coach in the pros for the past nine years, signed a two-year contract.

At a news conference where the appointment was formally announced were two former Pipers coaches, Buddy Jeannette, who McMahon replaced, and John Clark.

Clark and Jeannette will remain associated with the team, Clark in a promotional position and Jeannette as director of player personnel.

"We're going to start afresh," said the 40-year-old McMahon. "The mistakes of the past are forgotten."

5 Chicago-area Gymnasts Announce to Attend Iowa

Iowa gymnastics Coach Dick Holzaepfel announced Wednesday that five outstanding high school gymnasts from the Chicago area will attend the University this fall.

The gymnasts are: Kerry Ruhl of Wheaton Central, Carl Walin of Hinsdale Central, Woody Wilkes of Rich East in Park Forest, and Bob Salstone and Bruce Waldman of Niles North.

Walin, an all-around ace, scored 42 points in leading his Hinsdale Central team to the Illinois state championship. The 5-1, 107-pounder finished the season strong after being sidelined with pneumonia. An honor student, Walin's specialty is the high bar, which won him a fourth in the state meet.

Ruhl also excels in all-around competition. He won the high bar and parallel bar in the district meet, was No. 1 in the high bar in sectional competition and fourth in the state. Also an honor student, he ranked 10th in all-around competition at the state level.

Salstone finished third in free exercise in the state tournament. He won the trampoline and free exercise events three consecutive years in the district meet.

Wilkes won a third in the side horse in the state meet.

Waldman, another honor student, excelled in all-around competition.

"These are five very fine young gymnasts," said Holzaepfel, "and we are delighted they have decided to become Hawkeyes."

Iowa finished second in the Big 10 this year after winning the NCAA championship in 1969.

Valu-Trim Gives You More Lean Meat Per Pound!

Tail Portion Is Removed Before Weighing

The Exterior Fat Is Trimmed

Inner Excess Suet Is Trimmed To 1/2 Inch

Eagle trims every cut the way you would trim it yourself . . . removing only the parts you cannot eat, and offering you the BEST of the cut, even the leanest part, at a low discount price! For example, tails are removed from T-Bone and porterhouse steaks before weighing.

Eagle's exclusive "valu-trim" process saves you time and money, and assures you of ideally trimmed cuts of quality Bonded Meat whenever you shop. Before the meat is weighed excess bone and fat are skillfully valu-trimmed away to leave an ideal cut with as little waste as possible.

U.S. Gives Up Libya Base

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — The United States is turning over to Libya its last major military base in Africa — the Air Force base here at Wheelus — 19 days ahead of schedule.

With the lowering of the Stars and Stripes Thursday, Wheelus Air Force Base comes under the full control of Libya's Revolutionary Command Council which took over the government from the pro-West monarch, King Idris, on Sept. 1.

Shortly after the green, black and red flag of Libya goes up the flagpole, the 47

Americans left at the base are flying to Europe for new assignments.

Under the original 15-year-old agreement that permitted the United States to set up Wheelus, the Americans were to stay until the end of next year. But when the Revolutionary Council came to power it made it a first order of business to remove foreign troops.

It is not yet known what use the Libyans want to make of the field. The Libyan air force numbers nine jet fighters plus a few training planes. And though the government has stepped up recruiting, there are only about 500 Libyans living on the base, which at one time housed 6,000 Americans.

The Libyans have been moving onto the base over the past six months as the Americans have handed over buildings a few at a time.

All of the fixed property will remain. Much of the nonstrategic portable property was offered for sale to Libya. Strategic goods and those not wanted by Libya have been shipped to other bases.

The political effects of the withdrawal of American forces are difficult to assess. The psychological effects are more easily identified.

There is some fear in the foreign community here, especially among those with private companies, that harassment of foreigners will increase. A few men working here have sent their families to live elsewhere. As far as can be determined, no diplomatic families have left for this reason.

The U.S. community in Libya numbers about 5,000, of whom more than 100 are with the diplomatic mission. Almost all the rest are connected with oil companies.

Poor Trading, 'Modest' Loss On Exchange

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market took a modest loss Wednesday in very sluggish trading.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks closed off 5.81 points at 694.35.

Big Board volume was 7.25 million shares, compared with 7.07 million Tuesday. Turnover has been light so far all week. Analysts said many investors, including the institutions, apparently had pulled off to the sidelines to await possible news developments.

"There was nothing in the news background to prompt any aggressive buying," said Newton Zinder of E.F. Hutton & Co. Inc.

Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy's prediction that interest rates would fall over the next few months apparently had little market impact.

Analysts said the market appeared to be consolidating its recent gains. Some said it was building a base for a further rally, but others said it could easily swing downward again in a test of previous lows.

Declines outnumbered advances by 878 to 382, while 267 stocks remained unchanged. There were 60 new lows and 2 new highs.

School District Asks $11.6 Million for '71

A proposed $11.6 million dollar school budget has been submitted to the Iowa City School Board.

The proposed budget represents a 6.7 per cent increase over the 1969-70 school budget of $10.9 million. The proposal, however, contains an increase well below the 23.5 per cent increase present in last year's budget.

According to John C. Gillespie, school district business manager, a cutback on various instructional aids and a decrease in the schoolhouse fund helped limit the budget increase.

The cutback on instructional aids such as film projectors, laboratory supplies and industrial arts equipment resulted from a decision to reduce the budget's general fund by limiting amounts spent in categories other than personnel.

The 10.4 per cent decrease in the school house fund was possible partly because less interest will be due next year on the $4.4 million in school building bonds sold.

A special board meeting to discuss the budget has been set for 7:30 p.m. June 16 and a public hearing on the budget has been scheduled for June 23.

In other action Monday night, the school board approved a small pay raise for substitute teachers which, according to James M. Reusswig, superintendent of schools keeps the district's rates on a level comparable to other districts.

The increase was from $20 to $22 for a single day of substitute teaching and from $26 to $27 for a period of three or more days.

The board also approved a central phone system for requesting and assigning substitute teachers. Reusswig explained the new "Code-A-Phone" system as a telephone recording device that silently receives and records messages from teachers throughout the day and night as they call in to notify the school of absences and to request substitutes.

A secretary then goes to the school at 6 a.m. and after listening to the recordings, contacts substitute teachers from a master list.

The school board also approved a proposal to explore the possibilities of a more centralized school system rather than the present "neighborhood school concept."

The community concept, proposed by board member Arnold Small Jr., would provide city-planned centralization but would retain the atmosphere of "smaller units."

Reusswig said such a system would make more efficient use of educational resources, mix more students from different backgrounds and avoid problems of racial and economic segregation.

Volpe Urges Money For Forest Road

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration proposed Wednesday that federal highway trust funds be used to finance highway-related programs as well as road building.

Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe urged legislation to authorize the use of fund money for forest highways, safety research, highway beautification and public lands, state and community highway safety grant programs.

Since 1956 when the fund was established, the nearly 5.5 billion a year coming mostly from a 4-cent-a-gallon tax on gasoline has gone into the fund for building interstate highways.

Volpe's proposal is expected to draw strong opposition from highway advocates, since it would cut into the funds going into road networks.

Volpe told the House Roads subcommittee that each of the programs he listed is for the direct benefit of the highway user and, therefore, properly fundable from the trust fund.

Earlier witnesses have argued that any diversion of highway funds would open the door to programs of environmental interest, such as the development of fast, pollution-free methods of transportation.

Women Win 'Equality'; Knock Equal Work

DETROIT (AP) — The back-breaking job of climbing in and out of boxcars as railroad checkers is what six women won in their fight to achieve job equality.

"The company is trying to squeeze us out of our jobs," grumbled one woman.

"They asked for equal rights, so what are they complaining about?" countered a railroad executive.

Six Penn Central system office girls were assigned to jobs as checkers of freight cars at Detroit—area railroad yards after they complained to the Michigan Civil Rights Commission that they were not getting a fair share of job opportunities because of their sex.

They had been employed as clerks and typists in the accounting department at Detroit's Penn Central Station.

A freight car checker examines each box car to see that it is properly tagged, if it is on the right siding and if its cargo matches lading records.

Linda Riffel, 23, said Tuesday she would faint if she spotted a hobo or a field mouse in one of the boxcars.

The transfer from the office pool to the freight docks is within the scope of the railroad's contract with the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks Union, said W. S. LaCombe, a Penn Central executive.

House OKs Bill On Joint Papers

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill that would exempt joint newspaper operating arrangements in 22 cities from the antitrust laws was approved Tuesday by the House Judiciary Committee.

The vote was 13 to 8, with Chairman Emanuel Celler, (D-N.Y.) abstaining.

The bill would permit profit pooling, fixing of advertising and circulation rates, and market allocation under joint operating arrangements involving a potentially failing newspaper. Editorial staff and policies would be kept separate.
