Doctors Describe Terrible Migrant Health Conditions

Residents of a small North Vietnamese town near the Cambodian border have been living under intolerable conditions for weeks. The town, which is currently under siege by the North Vietnamese, has been cut off from medical aid for several weeks. The residents are suffering from malnutrition, disease, and lack of medical care. The situation is desperate, and the residents are voicing their concerns about their health and safety.

Military and political leaders in Vietnam have been closely watching the situation in the town. The North Vietnamese government has been providing medical aid to the area, but it is not enough to meet the needs of the residents. The situation has raised questions about the effectiveness of the government's response to the crisis.

The residents have been calling on the international community to intervene and provide assistance. They have been demanding medical aid, food, and humanitarian assistance. The North Vietnamese government has been stressing the need for a peaceful resolution to the conflict.

The situation in the town is a reflection of the broader conflict in Southern Vietnam, where the United States is involved in a prolonged war. The residents of the town are caught in the middle of the conflict, and their well-being is a concern for the international community.

First Under-21 Residents Apply to Vote Here

The first under-21 residents of Iowa have applied to vote in the upcoming election. The current voting age in Iowa is 21, but the state legislature has passed a bill that would lower the voting age to 18. The new law will take effect on July 1, 1970.

The first under-21 residents who applied are a married couple. The couple, who are both 18 years old, said they applied because they want to participate in the election process. They are concerned about the issues facing the country and want to have a voice in the decision-making process.

The couple said they will be voting on a number of issues, including education, health care, and the economy. They said they are concerned about the rising cost of education and the need for better health care services.

The state legislature has passed the bill that would lower the voting age to 18, but the bill has not yet been signed into law. The governor has said he will sign the bill, and the law is expected to take effect on July 1, 1970.

Officials Revamp Insurance Rules

DES MOINES, Iowa—A new law that would make it easier for 18-year-olds to get an auto insurance policy has been signed into law by the governor. The law is expected to take effect on July 1, 1970.

The law is part of a package of reforms that the governor has been pushing to make the auto insurance market more competitive. The governor has said he wants to make it easier for consumers to shop for auto insurance and to get a fair rate.

The governor has been critical of the current auto insurance system, which he says is too complex and too expensive. He has said he wants to make it easier for consumers to understand the insurance they are buying and to shop around for the best deal.

The new law will allow 18-year-olds to get an auto insurance policy, but they will have to meet certain requirements. They will have to prove that they are responsible drivers and that they have a good driving record. They will also have to pass a driving test.

The governor has said he expects the new law to make the auto insurance market more competitive and to give consumers more choices. He has said he hopes the new law will make it easier for consumers to get a fair rate.

The governor has also signed a number of other bills that will make changes to the insurance market. These include a bill that will make it easier for consumers to shop for health insurance and a bill that will make it easier for consumers to get a mortgage.
The press and the war

The big war situation in the press is not much of a war because of the discovery of the so-called "wage gap" now estimated at $1.7 billion. (4) "The Vietnam war is a little like sex and television." (5) Some observers believe that the war is the most important news of the century, others believe that the war is not new at all. (6) (7)

Fire Sinks Fulvia in Atlantic; 721 Passengers Rescued

SANTA CRUZ DE TENERIFE, Canary Islands (AP) — All 721 passengers and crew of the cruise ship Fulvia sank in the Atlantic Sunday, the passenger liner's owner said.

The cruise ship, owned by the San Juan-based company, was traveling from the Canaries to the Mediterranean when it hit a large wave and sank.

The company, which operates the ship, said it had no information about the cause of the accident.

The Fulvia was carrying 721 passengers and crew, including 468 passengers and 253 crew members.

The company said it was in touch with the authorities in the area to determine the cause of the accident.

The company also said it was in touch with the passengers' families to provide information.
