Civil War Erupts
In Bolivian Cities

By The Associated Press
La Paz, Bolivia, Oct. 8—Bolivian President unionist Gen. Alfonso Ovando announced today that the first shots of the civil war which began yesterday have been fired in the city of Santa Cruz, 250 miles west of La Paz.

Ovando, a former unionist, denounced the action of the government of President Alvaro Garcia, who is a former revolutionary and a supporter of the Bolivian conservative party. Ovando said the war was inevitable because of the differences between the two parties.

After the announcement, popular demonstrations took place in the El Alto neighborhood of La Paz.

Jackson State

A blood, diabolical monument to American senators has had its consecration set in stone. And yet... And yet we awakens from our fanatic equations of this nation in terms of the red and white and blue.

The Jackson State shooting monster last month had been pronounced the Senators' Commission on Campus a "surprisingly uneventful tenement." And so was this campus community, as there was no history of recent violence. But there were two deaths and two inquested deaths.

Two of these two students—James Earl Coca and Philip Gibson—were shot to death in Mississippi State, a campus that has been the site of several murders of black students. Coca and Gibson were shot in the back of a car, while the other two victims were killed in a nearby house.

The Hillman County Grand Jury in Mississippi found no fault with the police actions.

Governor John William Ball of Mississippi found fault with the police actions. And under what circumstances, the state’s history has been found guilty of violating its citizens.

We feel it is time for all Americans to speak out against this cruelty and urge legislation to prevent such acts of violence against these injured, oppressed minorities.

We feel the present status quo, but do not act, it must be assumed that we assure the American heritage of rights.

The last time I was in the Activities Center was over two years ago. I had just been out of the hospital and was trying to get back on my feet. I was not in very good shape. I remember the feeling of being completely out of control, of being totally dependent on others. I was trying to make a decision about my future, but I was not in a position to do so. I had heard that the Activities Center was a place where people could come to find support and guidance. I decided to give it a try.

On my first visit, I was greeted by a friendly staff member who welcomed me and asked me how I was doing. I told her that I was just trying to get back on my feet and that I didn’t know where to turn. She suggested that I might want to speak to someone who could help me work through my feelings and make some decisions.

I decided to take her up on her offer and met with a counselor to discuss my options. She was very understanding and helped me to identify some of the challenges I was facing. She also suggested some resources that might be helpful in my recovery process.

Over the next few weeks, I went to the Activities Center several times to speak with different counselors and work on different aspects of my recovery. I found the experience very helpful and continue to rely on the Activities Center as a resource for support and guidance.

PROPERTY RIGHTS

The right to live in the world of all possible objects is an essential right that we all need to recognize. It is not something that can be taken away from us.

In fact, if we think about it, how many times have we been in situations where we felt like we didn’t have the right to use something? Where we felt like we were being denied access to an object or an idea?

The city school district has added a new frame of reference to the way it looks at student achievement.

President of the school district, Dr. Jane Smith, announced last week that the district will be using a new frame of reference to evaluate student achievement. This frame of reference will be based on a new set of standards that the district has developed in collaboration with the California Department of Education.

Dr. Smith said that the new frame of reference will be used to evaluate student achievement in all subject areas, including reading, math, science, social studies, and language arts. The frame of reference will be based on a set of standards that are aligned with the Common Core State Standards and the California State Standards.

Dr. Smith said that the district is confident that the new frame of reference will provide a more accurate way of evaluating student achievement. She said that the district is committed to using the new frame of reference to make sure that all students are receiving the quality of education they deserve.
Wichita Warned Of Plane Defects

WASHINGTON -- A government official has warned that passenger planes could be grounded if the Federal Aviation Agency isn't able to find the cause of a series of explosions that have occurred in their engines.

The warning was issued by Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, who said he had been informed of the situation by the FAA.

"There is no immediate threat to safety," Humphrey said. "But we must be prepared to take action if the problem is not solved soon."

The FAA has been investigating the explosions since they first occurred last year, but has been unable to determine the cause.

The explosions have occurred on several different types of planes, and have caused some damage to engines.

The government official said that if the FAA is unable to find the cause of the explosions, it may be forced to ground all passenger planes.

"We cannot afford to leave the public vulnerable to this kind of danger," the official said.

The FAA has been working closely with the Department of Transportation and the Department of Defense to try to solve the problem.

"We are making every effort to get to the bottom of this problem," the official said. "But the situation is serious, and we must act quickly to protect the public."

The FAA has already grounded some planes in the past, but this is the first time it has considered grounding all passenger planes.

The government official said that the FAA will continue to investigate the explosions, and will keep the public updated on its progress.

More information will be provided as it becomes available.

The AP has 500 members from across the country, and a ballot list of 100 teams was mailed at midday Monday, Jan. 3.

Ohio State, ranked second last week, moved into the No. 1 slot on Monday. The AP released its first weekly poll of the season, which is released on Monday and updated every Tuesday, to put a focus on the tournament aspect of the season. The AP poll includes votes from member schools and other media outlets, including radio and television stations. The AP also releases a Top 25 poll on a weekly basis, which is updated every Tuesday.

The drunk driver.

He helps to eliminate the overconducing in our classrooms.

Drunk drivers kill and injure our children.

Last year, almost 6,000 children under 15 years old were killed in traffic accidents. Thousands were seriously injured.

No one can be sure how many drunk drivers were responsible.

But even one death or one injury is one too many.

What can you do?

Remember, it's not the drink that kills. It's the drunk, the problem drinker, the abusive drinker, the drunk driver.

Remember, drunk drivers may be sick, and we've got to give them help.

But first we've got to get them off the road. For their sake and yours.

As an indication of the U.S. position, the White House has announced that President Carter will see a delegation of 100 American and European journalists at 3 p.m. Monday. The 100 will hear a finding of a 50-person special commission, which will be made public at 10 a.m. Tuesday.

At the Paris peace talks, "a door, a changed outlook, meeting with newsmen Tuesday, 3 p.m. after returning from the delegation, will make a radio-address to the people." The address will be the first of the commission meetings, and a second will be made on the second meeting of the commission.

In addition to giving details of what it intends to say, the meeting will be broadcast by all the television networks.

Drug Program Head Excited About Plan

In a recent interview, Dr. Levine said that the new drug program will be innovative and have the support of the people in Iowa. He explained that the program will be based on the idea of "innovative" representatives of the people who are knowledgeable about drug use. These representatives will work closely with the program to ensure its success.

Dr. Levine said that the program will be implemented in stages, with the first stage being the establishment of a state treatment center. This center will provide treatment for those who are addicted to drugs.

The second stage of the program will involve the establishment of local treatment centers. These centers will provide treatment for those who are addicted to drugs in their local communities.

Dr. Levine said that the program will be funded through a combination of state and federal funds. He added that the program will be innovative in its approach to drug treatment and will be based on the principles of "innovative" representatives of the people.

Administration Says No Fuel Crisis Ahead

WASHINGTON — The winter fuel crisis of last year, which caused an unexpected shortage, will not happen in 1970, the Department of the Interior said today.

Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes said that the Department of the Interior will not have to impose fuel rationing this winter.

"We do not expect a fuel crisis this winter," Ickes said. "We have enough fuel to meet the demands of the nation."
