Kent State Students, Prof Booked In Ohio Riot Probe

RAVENNA, Ohio (AP) - The student body president and an associate professor at Kent State University were among the first 25 persons to be booked Monday night in connection with the worst disturbance in Kent since the Kent State riot last May. Young men and women were arrested early Monday morning and were housed in jail until 10 a.m. when they were released on $500 bail each.

Kent State President Robert J. White, who announced the arrests, said that the administration had no choice in acting on the charges. "We have been advised by legal experts that the charges are valid and that we are under no obligation to dismiss them," White said.

White added that the inspection of the campus following the riot last May showed it was "a place of peace and order." He said that the administration had "spent months" trying to improve the situation on campus.

The arrests were announced Monday night at a news conference in the administration building. The university had been closed Monday for the Martin Luther King Jr. holiday.

Of the five people arrested, two were black males and three were white males. The university's public affairs director said that the charges were based on information gathered by the police and that the university would not comment further.

The arrests came after a night of violence in which protesters were fired upon by police, and several people were injured. The university said that 25 arrests were made in connection with the riot and that police were still searching for others.

The university said that it was working with the police to identify and charge all those involved in the riot. It said that it was "committed to a peaceful resolution of the situation."
Offing Nagel

Well, the Des Moines Register itself did it— it fired Nagel, Iowa's head football coach. The thing took place in public— Monday morning's paper—and the shock was a seismic one.

In the case of the Register, we should go on and out and come back again, doing nothing.

In the case of Nagel, we should hire him back.

There's a chance he'll probably see again his major football pews. With the Big Ten's recruiting regulations and upgraded awareness requirements, there's a good shot that for Nagel, this couldn't have happened.

The Register's move was a shock, but not a surprise. Nagel was a coach who had embraced life and death on the field, and who had often been involved in controversies and issues.

It's not that we want to keep the Register at the point where it fired Nagel, but rather at the point of hiring him back. It's almost as if life and death on the field should have been his career.

In the case of Nagel, the Register's move may not be in line with the best interests of the community, but it's certainly a lesson in how life and death on the field can be handled.

On day care

One can only hope that educational institutions will find a solution to the day care problem. It is a serious issue, and one that needs to be addressed.

While the issue of day care has been brought to the forefront of the educational institutions, it is important to keep in mind that the solution is not an easy one.

In the case of the university, the solution needs to be found, and it needs to be found in a way that is fair and just.

The university needs to take a proactive approach to the issue, and make sure that the day care problem is addressed in a manner that is fair and just.

The university needs to make sure that the day care problem is addressed in a way that is fair and just, and that the solution is one that is sustainable and effective.

anti-war actions

There were widespread demonstrations on campuses, and in some places, violence broke out.

The protests were in response to the Vietnam War, and the students were demanding an end to the war.

Many of the protests were violent, and resulted in injuries and property damage.

The university needs to take a firm stance on the issue, and make sure that the students are kept safe.

The university needs to make sure that the students are kept safe, and that the protests are handled in a manner that is fair and just.

Two States Argue Against Vote-at-18

WASHINGTON — In an action giving the final blow to the Nixon Administration's efforts to lower the voting age to 18, the Supreme Court Monday at 10 a.m. begins its two-week session with an argument in a challenge to a federal law giving the vote to 18-year-olds.

The provision applies to all state laws that make it a crime to cast a ballot by the court.

Against the argument that states are entitled to prevent 18-year-olds from voting, regardless of state laws, a Solicitor General based his team's case on the 26th Amendment which gives Congress the power to alter state election laws.

As an argument against the court's decision in favor of the states, the Solicitor General said the court's action was "against the Constitution," mainly because he disapproved of the concept of the Constitution.

President Nixon and his legal team are not expected to attend the hearing, and other administration officials also are not likely to appear at the hearing, and the Solicitor General's team is expected to be the only administration official who will attend the hearing.

The Solicitor General also argued Monday to the court: "It's a great banner and an American flag, not a court decision on the American flag."

NEW YORK — A thrilled heavyweight boxing fan was elated as the referee declared him the winner of a hard-fought 15-round bout before the Frieds-Foster bout. Similarly, the championship fight will be decided Oct. 20, 1967, at Radio City Music Hall, when the winner of the bout between Rockie Gardiner and Jimmy Ellis will be crowned champion of the world.

Rockie received 200 votes in the first round and Ellis received 190 votes. The fight will be the third between the two boxers, with Ellis leading 2-0.

NEW YORK — A total of 20,000 fans packed the Madison Square Garden to watch the World Amateur Boxing Championship finals.

The event was a sellout, and the Garden was a sea of blue and orange as thousands of fans from across the country cheered on their favorite boxers.

The championship match was between Joe Frazier and Pedro Garcia. Frazier won the bout, 8-4, to claim the World Championship in only 1 minute, 33 seconds.

The crowd roared as Frazier landed a series of powerful punches on Garcia, who was unable to recover from the early blows.

We worry just as much about areas that have too many hospitals beds as we do about areas that have too few. Because, either way, it affects you.

An unneeded bed costs the hospital money, so every unnecessary bed shows up sooner or later on a very busy patient’s career. And, we work equally hard to help make sure each area has enough beds and a full range of hospital services available.

And, we work equally hard to help prevent unnecessary hospitalizations and unneeded duplication of expensive equipment and personnel, to help keep health care costs down.

We’re concerned about health care costs because they affect your paycheck. Part of the profit we don’t make goes to doing something about it.

It’s one of the ways Blue Cross and Blue Shield are different, and the difference makes you better.

This is a multiple choice quiz:

(a) Big Red is Blue.
(b) Big Red is Pink.
(c) Big Red is Orange.
(d) I give up.

If you checked --

(a) Check your eyes Big Red is simply not Blue. He's not even depressed. Despite his looks, he knows his beautiful inside. Cause he holds lots of ink. And he's refillable.

(b) Big Red is definitely not Pinko. In fact most people hold him in their right hands. He does put out a brush line, though, with that wild soft tip.

(c) Right on. We told our Parker designers Big Red was somewhat too Orange to be Red. But they turned Very Pale themselves, so what else could we do? Call him Big Orange Red, if you want. Big Other? Big Apricotta?

(d) Don't give up. Give Big Red: The great unqually gift-$5
