Angela Davis has been captured and charged with aiding in the Marin County escape attempt and subsequent death of guard Harold B. W. McCloy. When she was taken into custody, the Marin County Sheriff's Office, under the direction of Sheriff Hal E. Brown, announced that suitable arrangements had been made for the extradition of Miss Davis to California. She was taken to the U.S. Marshall's Office in San Francisco, where her name was placed on a list of wanted criminals.

In the course of the investigation, it was discovered that Miss Davis had been in contact with members of the Black Panther Party, and was known to be a member of the organization. She was also linked to various other radical groups, including the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee and the National Black Panthers. The Marin County Sheriff's Office believed that Miss Davis was involved in the planning and execution of the escape attempt, and that she had provided assistance to the escapees.

Miss Davis was charged with the crimes of murder, conspiracy, and aiding and abetting. She was held without bail, and was taken to the Marin County Jail, where she was housed in a special cell.

The Marin County Sheriff's Office requested that Miss Davis be extradited to California, where she would face trial for her alleged involvement in the escape. The extradition request was approved, and Miss Davis was flown to California, where she was arraigned and charged with the crimes she was suspected of committing.

Miss Davis pleaded not guilty to the charges, and her trial was set for a later date. She was held in the Marin County Jail, pending the outcome of her trial.

BY RITA CRUZ, Special to The Chronicle

The search for the killers of a 14-year-old girl who disappeared in a remote area of California has widened to include more than 100 other cases, including some from as far away as Brazil.

The girl, identified as Jane Doe, was last seen in the Sinaloa area of Mexico. The police are now investigating a number of other cases in which the girl's body has never been found.

Fabricated Award Gets Investigation

SAXTON, N.J.— The U.S. Army launched an investigation Wednesday to find out how an American soldier received the country's top military award for heroism in Vietnam while a fabricator made it up.

The 22-year-old soldier was presented with the Silver Star and Distinguished Flying Cross for heroism by the following morning.

The only information we have about the citation is that it was a blank sheet of paper with a silver star attached to it.

A spokesperson said "this witness to serious crimes in Vietnam in the coming days."

Defense-oriented Spartans
Don't Underestimate Hawks

By JOHN VOGES
Michigan State Daily Sports Writer

NOTRE DAME — Michigan State fans might well be disappointed with the results of this week's game. The Spartans are not the team they expected to see. Instead, they will face a tough challenge from the Fighting Irish.

The Spartans have been playing well lately, but they still have some work to do. They need to improve their defense and their special teams if they want to have a chance against Notre Dame. The Fighting Irish are a well-coached team, and they have a lot of talent.

The Spartans are coming off a tough loss to Ohio State, but they have been playing well in recent games. They have won three of their last four games, and they have been playing well on both offense and defense.

The Spartans' defense is their biggest strength. They have been playing well in recent games, and they have a lot of depth. They also have a lot of experience, and they have a lot of talent.

The Spartans' offense is a work in progress. They have been playing well in recent games, but they still have some work to do. They need to improve their passing game and their running game if they want to have a chance against Notre Dame.

Iowa Scientist Wins Nobel Prize

IAW, Nov. 17 — The Nobel Peace Prize was awarded to Dr. Norman E. Borlaug, a quiet scientist who has made enormous contributions to the fight against hunger. Borlaug is an agricultural engineer who worked in the field of plant pathology and plant breeding.

Borlaug, 67, was born in Oklahoma and received his education at the University of Nebraska and the University of Wisconsin. He has been a visiting professor at several universities and has received numerous awards for his work in agriculture.

Borlaug was a pioneer in the development of high-yielding wheat varieties, and his work has been credited with saving millions of lives around the world. He was awarded the Nobel Prize in 1970 for his work in developing new wheat varieties that could be grown in poor soil conditions.

The Peace Prize was established in 1901 by the Swedish government and is awarded annually to an individual or organization that has made significant contributions to world peace. The prize is one of the highest honors that can be given to a person or organization.

The Peace Prize has been awarded to a wide range of individuals and organizations, including the United Nations, the International Red Cross, and the International Court of Justice.

icits in Mexico. "Somebody must have made a mistake," Borlaug said with a broad smile, "and I was working in a wild field to develop new varieties of wheat.

"Well, we had better get a place for you," Borlaug said, "because we are going to have a lot more work for you."

A Daily Iowan Story Analysis

By CARYN BALBARI

Daily Iowan Reporter

In 1970, as early as a second-year medical student at the University of Iowa, one of the young women revolutionaries was active in the School of Medicine. She was one of the first to speak up for women's rights in medicine. Her name was Virginia. However, she admits that she and her cohort of fellow students were not always well-received. They were often met with opposition from the medical community and from their peers. But they persisted, and their efforts were eventually recognized.

Virginia's mentor, Dr. Mary Mackenzie, played a pivotal role in Virginia's decision to enter medicine. Dr. Mackenzie was a prominent physician and advocate for women's rights in medicine. She encouraged Virginia to pursue her interests and to speak out on behalf of women in medicine.

Virginia's decision to enter medicine was motivated by her desire to make a difference in the lives of women. She believed that medicine was a field that was underrepresented by women and that women's contributions were often overlooked. Virginia was determined to change that.

Virginia's involvement in the School of Medicine was not limited to the University of Iowa. She also worked with other organizations, including the National Organization for Women (NOW), to promote women's rights in medicine. Her efforts were ultimately successful, and women's participation in medicine has increased significantly in recent years.

Virginia's story is an inspiration to all women who are interested in pursuing careers in medicine. Her dedication and perseverance were key factors in her success.

Big Red

is hung up on girls.

That's no newfangled peace thing. That's just loveable Big Red. The funky red pen that likes to hang around girls. Instead of a clip there's a necklace—because Big Red believes women look best in chains. Girls who don't agree can skip the necklace and just use the loop on top to hang Big Red from scarves or beads. Or a skinny thong belt. Big Red hates to run out, anyone. But when he does, he refills by cartridge in a covey of colors. That's our swinger, Big Red, from Parker. For $5, it's a great gift.
