

UI Judicial Court Ends Election Hassle

The University of Iowa's student Judicial Court ruled Tuesday night that two students who were disqualified after successfully campaigning for seats in the Student Senate must be allowed to take their senate seats.

In a unanimous decision, the five-member court declared John Tinker, A2, St. Louis, and Greg Johnson, A2, Princeton, Ill., as winners of two of four seats from the Town Men constituency in the Dec. 16 special Student Senate elections.

The election of two other candidates for the four seats, Jeff Conklin, A3, Iowa City, and Steve Mitchell, A3, Iowa City, was not challenged. Conklin and Mitchell finished third and fourth in the election.

The election of Tinker and Johnson was challenged on the grounds that they, with two other student candidates, had violated campaign rules by campaigning on election day.

Charged with improper campaigning with Tinker and Johnson were Bruce Wilson, A3, Perry, and Dave Wilson, A4, Central City. Since only four seats were open, and Bruce Wilson and Dave Wilson had finished fifth and sixth, they were not directly affected by the court decision.

Two other students who were affected were Walter Plunkett, A2, Iowa City, and Mike McCready, A2, Iowa City. As the seventh and eighth finishers in the election, and with four of the top six candidates disqualified, they were listed by the Elections Board as winners of two senate seats.

With the reversal of the Elections

Board decision by the Judicial Court, Plunkett and McCready will not be certified as election winners.

Elections Board chairman Jay Darling, A3, Davenport, said that a set of elections rules had been distributed at a meeting for candidates, but that the rule about campaigning on election day had been inadvertently omitted. He said that he announced the omission at the candidates' meeting, and asked that all candidates note the rule on their copy of the rules.

All four candidates who were disqualified said subsequently that they had not heard and were not aware of the announcement.

On election day, Greg Johnson was distributing campaign literature in the Union, and was warned by the Elections Board to stop distribution. Johnson said that he immediately stopped, and placed his remaining leaflets in a drawer in the recreation room. Later that morning, Darling said that he was given one of the leaflets by an unidentified person in the Union. Johnson said that when he checked the recreation center that evening, all the leaflets that he had left there were still there.

Darling also said that leaflets were being distributed on election day by Tinker and Bruce Johnson. All leaflets carried the names of all four candidates, and after the election all four were disqualified.

In appealing to the Judicial Court, all four candidates stated that they had not known of the no-campaigning rule. Johnson said that the other three candidates had not known that their names were on his leaflet, and that after he had stopped distribution, he had not felt it necessary to warn the others to stop distribution. He said that he did not know that they were distributing leaflets on election day.

In ruling that Tinker and Johnson should be declared elected, the Judicial Court said the basis of its decision was that the rules had not been fully published by the Elections Board.

Lamont Olson, L3, Iowa City, chief justice of the Judicial Court, said that the entire court had been impressed by the integrity of people on both sides of the question, and that the feeling of the court was that nobody was "trying to pull the wool of anybody's eyes."

Other members of the Judicial Court ruling on the question were Wayne Hoppe, A3, Storm Lake; Tom Eilers, A1, Des Moines; Ralph Throckmorton, L3, Coralville; and Ken Murphy, A2, Iowa City.

City Snow Dumping Policy Criticized

By LEE DORLAND

Alternatives to dumping snow removed from Iowa City streets into the Iowa River will be investigated and presented to the City Council next Monday, when future policy regarding snow disposal will be made, the council decided Tuesday.

Dr. Robert Morris, associate director of the Hygienic Lab of the Iowa Water Pollution Control Commission, recommended to the council that the city

"cease and desist" dumping snow from the Burlington Street bridge into the river. Citing the high petroleum content of the plowed snow, he added that there is also "a lot of debris" going into the river.

"I would call it litter disposal into the Iowa River," he said. "We're cleaning our streets."

Morris, who also represented the State Conservation Commission, passed a flask containing melted snow to council members.

"It stinks to high heaven," he remarked.

Morris insisted that under the Water Quality Act, nothing "potentially deliterious" can be put into the river.

Robert C. Russell, Executive Secretary of the Iowa Division of the Izaak Walton League of America, a conservation organization, quoted both state and federal laws that he claimed prohibited the snow dumping.

The main priority, he said, is to "slow down its process of going into the river."

Russell brought up the possibility of leaving the snow on a section of the Iowa City municipal airport. Dumping the snow on landfill areas was also discussed.

Iowa City Mayor Loren Hickerson acknowledged the problem but said that the city is under pressure to remove the snow from the streets in the business district, and "the solutions are costly."

City Manager Frank R. Smiley said he wasn't sure if Iowa City had either the financial or physical resources to dump the snow elsewhere. He replied to the council, "If you provide the money, we'll do whatever you want us to do."

A motion by Councilman J. Patrick

White to cease and desist dumping snow into the river was amended to allow a postponement of a final policy decision until the regular informal session next Monday. The amended motion passed, with Hickerson casting the deciding vote.

Scranton Hits ROTC, FBI Campus Agents

NEW YORK (AP) — The chairman of the President's Commission on Campus Unrest agreed with students Tuesday that infiltration of campuses by federal agents was harmful and that ROTC training facilities should be removed from colleges where they are protested.

William Scranton, the commission chairman, gave the opinions as he entertained questions from New York University students after he spoke on the commission's report.

One question contended that police in college towns were buying more riot equipment and going in for more training in handling civil disturbances, and that the number of federal agents was being increased on campuses.

"Will this infiltrating the students to death solve the problem?" he asked.

"The technique of repression is not a technique we believe in at all," Scranton replied.

He said spying on students "would do much more harm than good as important as it is to seek out subversives who are planning destructive action."

Another student called for burning down all campuses facilities of the Reserve Officers Training Corps because he said they represented the armed forces and American imperialism.

A few members of the audience of about 300 greeted this suggestion with applause and shouts of, "Right on! Right on!"

Scranton said, "the Army would do well to eliminate ROTC on campuses where it is not desirable." But he said he could not condone violence such as burning down buildings.

Asked his position on the Vietnam war, the former Republican governor of Pennsylvania declared, "I think the faster that we can get out, the better off the whole world would be."

Scranton told the students, however, that he felt the war and American involvement in Cambodia last spring had little to do with campus unrest.

"Campus unrest is the result of new values," he said, citing what he said were youth's rejection of materialism and authoritarianism and its appeal for more humanism.

Auditors Find Overpricing By U.S. Defense Contractors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government auditors have found overpricing by defense contractors in more than half of the military contracts examined in a spot check.

Reporting the findings to Congress, Comptroller General Elmer B. Staats said Tuesday the overpricing stemmed from submission by contractors of incomplete, inaccurate and outdated cost information in price negotiations.

Auditors of the General Accounting Office examined 35 contracts totaling $135 million awarded to 21 contractors in 1968.

For 18 procurements totaling $47 million, the auditors found that negotiated contract prices were $1.5 million higher than the cost indicated by data available to the contractors at the time of negotiation. The contractors were not identified.

The auditors said little or no overpricing was found in the other 17 contracts totaling $88 million.

As examples of overpricing, the report said one contractor's bill for purchased parts for hand grenade fuses was $303,000 higher than justified by previous cost experience. It said a negotiated price for gun direction computers and magnetic discs included materials overpriced by $236,000.

The auditors conceded the overpricing on the contracts examined was not large in relations to the totals involved, but said it occurred under the same conditions that the 1962 Truth in Negotiations Act was intended to correct.

Angela Davis: Charges Are Frameup

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP) — Black militant Angela Davis, accused of murder, kidnaping and conspiracy in the Marin County courthouse shootings of last August, declared her innocence Tuesday as the victim of a political frameup.

Her fellow defendant, long-term black convict Ruchell Magee, 31, who was wounded in the break that took the lives of two other convicts, an accomplice and a Superior Court judge, was removed from the hearing as he shouted defiance.

Magee was shackled hand and foot and chained to a chair bolted to the floor.

Davis, 26-year-old former UCLA philosophy instructor, sat unfettered in the jury box with her five attorneys, across the room from Magee.

She is charged under a California law on accomplices. Police claim she furnished the four guns used in the New York Oct. 13 and extradited to San Rafael on Dec. 22.

As she was led into the heavily guarded courtroom Tuesday, she raised a clenched fist in a black power salute and smiled as some of the 60 or so spectators called out, "Right on!"

Wearing a navy blue miniskirt and blouse and a busy Afro-style hairdo, she told Superior Court Judge Joseph Wilson, "I want to declare publicly before the court and the people of this country that I am innocent of all charges brought against me by the state of California."

She said, "My presence in this court is unrelated to any criminal activities.

She demanded that she be recognized as her own counsel, saying, "If I am to be granted a fair trial, of which I am doubtful, it is imperative that I be given the right of co-counsel."

Judge Wilson told Davis she could not enter a plea at this time. Attorneys explained later that no formal plea would be entered until a decision was made on various motions.

Her chief counsel, Allan Brotsky of San Francisco, made motions for bail and for dismissing the grand jury indictments on grounds of insufficient evidence and improper makeup of the grand jury.

Judge Wilson told him to put them in writing by Feb. 5 and gave the state until Feb. 22 to reply.

Legal Maneuvering By Defense Attorneys—

Toomey: 210 Trial Hinges on Jan. 11 Hearing

By DEBBIE ROMINE

DI Assoc. City-University Editor
The delayed trial of 210 people arrested on disorderly conduct charges here last May can take one of several new directions, depending heavily upon the outcome of a Jan. 11 hearing, defense attorney J. Newman Toomey said Tuesday.

The hearing is to be held before a district court judge, presumably Judge Ansel Chapman, who earlier overruled the Iowa City Police Court in issuing a continuance for half the defendants and who originally scheduled the hearing.

Whether he will grant a writ of certiorari, which would authorize a review of pretrial proceedings. If the judge determines it proper to issue the writ, another hearing on the merits of the writ itself must be scheduled, according to Toomey.

Legal Defense attorneys Toomey and Joseph Johnston, who represent about half of the 210 defendants, have asked for the judicial review of Iowa City Police Court Judge Joseph Thornton's denial of four defense motions and a bid to have the city's disorderly conduct ordinance, under which all defendants are charged, to be declared unconstitutional.

On Dec. 21, Thornton overruled a defense motion asking for a continuance of the trials on the grounds that the attorneys did not have a complete description of the city's charges and that they did not have adequate time to prepare a defense without that information and without most of their clients, who had left the city during the holidays.

The mass trial was scheduled for Monday but was postponed indefinitely when requests for continuance were granted to Johnston and Toomey's clients and then to any of the defendants requesting it. No defendants requested a Monday trial.

On Dec. 29, defense attorneys filed three motions, one asking for a bill of particulars outlining specific charge leveled by the city, and another charging that information forms submitted as evidence for the prosecution were not signed by eyewitnesses to the May arrests.

In response, City Attorney Jay Honohan amended the original informations, which charged the defendants with "conducting self in a disorderly manner" to "conducting self in an offensive manner by continuing to congregate with a large group of persons at a time when large groups of persons could and had provoked breaches of the peace." Hon-ohan said he found no precedent for information forms having to be signed by eyewitnesses.

Another motion on the same day requested separate trials for the defendants on the grounds that the evidence was not shown to be the same in all cases — a point which Honohan said the defense had not proven.

In another legal maneuver, defense attorneys challenged the constitutionality of the city's disorderly conduct ordinance, claiming that its vagueness is "unconstitutional for vagueness and overbreadth."

All three motions and the charge of unconstitutionality were overruled.

If the writ is granted Jan. 11, the subsequent hearing will probably focus on the issues of constitutionality and the plea for severance of the cases, Toomey said.

If the city's ordinance is ruled unconstitutional, all cases will be dismissed. If the ordinance is found constitutional, the defendants will be tried separately or in mass by the police court.

There, Thornton could dismiss the cases on motion after hearing the city's evidence; by issuing a "not guilty" verdict; or upon request from the prosecuting attorney, Toomey said.

But, if the defendants are tried and found guilty, an appeal to district court for "trial de novo" — a completely new trial disregarding the police court proceedings — will be in order for the 210, he said. From there, appeals to the Iowa Supreme Court or to a federal court could be possible.

Fifteen defendants arrested with the 210 have been severed from the group and are to be tried individually at as yet unscheduled times.

Bureaucrats & conscience

To the Editor:

Having lived through the minor (perhaps major) political disturbances recently in the groves of Academe, it is possible to see the issues resolving themselves less dimly into the phenomenon of unconscionable men in positions of power and authority throughout the educational system.

Where, how, and why, do and can they originate - the -s, the -s, the -s in the paneled offices, who appear only rarely to the student eye and communicate through Codes, Regulations, and pronouncements of sentence on the effrontery of dissidents, always on the position of propriety, with no slightest mention of the issues or values involved.

Four categories emerge to explain this phenomenon of truncated conscience in the highest centers of culture and intellect.

1) Lack of morality - actual support of the inhuman and degrading presence of the Military Corporation around the world. (Possible, but not probable.)

2) Ignorance of what goes on - My Lai, tiger cages, torture, murder, all made in USA. Support of fascist tyrants in Greece, Spain, Brazil etc. (Incredible.)

3) Job-holders, sacrificing principles for security. Justifying themselves in some hypocritical content of Law and Order. (But can they sleep at night?)

4) So immured in their own microcosmic specialities that nothing really touches them. (Occupationally diseased). This would also include the faculty - specialists who maintain the stench of social cancer.

Report for the Weather Underground: 'New Morning-Changing Weather'

Editor's note: This communication, from the Weatherman Underground, was delivered to various newspapers and news services in the second week of December. Along with it was a warning that several of the "weather reports" that have appeared recently, including one following the second Haymarket Square bombing, have been inauthentic - "not accurate or from anyone we can identify." New Morning - Changing Weather was signed and fingerprinted by Bernadine Dohrn.

Because of the length of this latest communique, we are reprinting it in two parts. We have reprinted it verbatim.

This communication does not accompany a bombing or a specific action. We want to express ourselves to the mass movement not as military leaders but as tribes at council. It has been nine months since the townhouse explosion. In that time, the future of our revolution has been changed decisively. A growing illegal organization of young women and men can live and fight and love inside Babylon. The FBI can't catch us; we've pierced their bullet-proof shield. But the townhouse forever destroyed our belief that armed struggle is the only real revolutionary struggle.

It is time for the movement to go out into the air, to organize, to risk calling rallies and demonstrations, to convince that mass actions against the war and in support of rebellions do make a difference. Only acting openly, denouncing Nixon, Agnew and Mitchell, and sharing our numbers and wisdom together with young sisters and brothers will blow away the fear of the students at Kent State, the smack of the Lower East Side and the national silence after the bombings of North Vietnam.

The deaths of three friends ended our military conception of what we are doing. It took us weeks of careful talking to rediscover our roots, to remember that we had been turned on to the possibilities of revolution by denying the schools, the jobs, the death relationships we were "educated" for. We went back to how we had begun living with groups of friends and found that this revolution could leave intact the enslavement of women if women did not fight to end and change it, together.

And marijuana and LSD and little money and awakening to the black revolution, the people of the world. Unprogramming ourselves; relearning American history. The first demonstration we joined; the first time we tried to convince our friends. In the wake of the townhouse we found that we didn't know much about each others' pasts - our talents, our interests, our differences.

We had all come together around the militancy of young white people determined to reject racism and U.S. exploitation of the third world. Because we agreed that an underground must be built, we were able to disappear an entire organization within hours of the explosion. But it was clear that more had been wrong with our direction than technical inexperience (always install a safety switch so you can turn it off and on and a light to indicate if a short circuit exists.)

Diana, Teddy and Terry had been in SDS for years. Diana and Teddy had been teachers and both spent weeks with the Vietnamese in Cuba. Terry had been a community organizer in Cleveland and at Kent; Diana had worked in Guatemala. They fought in the Days of Rage in Chicago. Everyone was angered by the murder of Fred Hampton. Because their collective began to define armed struggle as the only legitimate form of revolutionary action, they did not believe that there was any revolutionary motion among white youth. It seemed like black and third world people were going up against American imperialism alone.

Two weeks before the townhouse explosion, four members of this group had firebombed Judge Murtagh's house in New York as an action of support for the Panther 21, whose trial was just beginning. To many people this was a very good action. Within the group, however, the feeling developed that because this action had not done anything to hurt the pigs materially it wasn't very important. So within two weeks time, this group had moved from firebombing to anti-personnel bombs. Many people in the collective did not want to be involved in the large scale, almost random bombing offensive that was planned. But they struggled day and night and eventually, everyone agreed to do their part.

At the end, they believed and acted as if only those who die are proven revolutionaries. Many people had been argued into doing something they did not believe in, many had not slept for days. Personal relationships were full of guilt and fear. The group had spent so much time willing themselves to act that they had not dealt with the basic technological considerations of safety. They had not considered the future: either what to do with the bombs if it had been possible to reach their targets, or what to do in the following days.

This tendency to consider only bombing or picking up the gun as revolutionary, with the glorification of the heavier the better, we've called the military error.

After the explosion, we called off all armed actions until such time as we felt the causes had been understood and acted upon. We found that the alternative direction already existed among us and had been developed within other collectives. We became aware that a group of outlaws who are isolated from the youthful communities do not have a sense of what is going on, can not develop strategies that grow to include large numbers of people, have become "us" and "them."

It was a question of revolutionary culture. Either you saw the youth culture that has been developing as bourgeois or decadent and therefore to be treated as the enemy of the revolution, or you saw it as the forces which produce us, a culture that we were a part of, a young and unformed society (nation).

In the past months we have had our minds blown by the possibilities that exist for all of us to develop the movement so that as revolutionaries we change and shape the cultural revolution. We are in a position to change it for the better. Men who are chauvinists can change and become revolutionaries who no longer embrace any part of the culture that stands in the way of the freedom of women. Hippies and students who fear black power should check out Rap Brown's Die Nigger and George Jackson's writings. We can continue to liberate and subvert attempts to rip off the culture. People become revolutionaries in the schools, in the army, in prisons, in communes, and on the streets. Not in an underground cell.

Because we are fugitives, we could not go near the Movement. That proved to be a blessing because we've been everywhere else. We meet as many people as we can with our new identities; we've watched the TV news of our bombings with neighbors and friends who don't know that we're Weatherpeople. We are often afraid but we take our fear for granted now, not trying to act tough. What we once thought would have to be some zombie-like discipline has turned out to be a yoga of alertness, a heightened awareness of activities and vibrations around us - almost a new set of eyes and ears.

Even though we have not communicated about ourselves specifically before this, our actions have said much about where our heads are at. We have obviously not gone in for large scale material damage. Most of our actions have hurt the enemy on about the same military scale as a bee sting. But the political effect against the enemy has been devastating. The world knows that even the white youth of Babylon will resort to force to bring down imperialism.

NEW MORNING - CHANGING WEATHER

On women in universities

By SUSAN B. KAUFMAN

Despite claims by most colleges and universities that they include women in top-level administrative positions, women administrators seldom have major policy-making responsibilities, according to a survey conducted by the American Association of University Women.

Women also are under-represented in top-level faculty positions and in influential student offices, the survey disclosed, although 90 per cent of the institutions surveyed said their promotion policies for women teachers were the same as for men.

ANSWERS FROM 450 INSTITUTIONS

More than 450 of the association's institutional members responded to questions about policies on hiring, promotion, women's participation in various positions, maternity, and nepotism.

In administration, women's jobs involve skills and attention to detail, not policy making or influence, the association said.

More than 90 per cent of the institutions questioned indicated that their policy was to include women in top-level administrative positions. The survey also found, however, that women are generally at the middle-management level or in stereotypically female jobs, such as deans of nursing.

UNDER-REPRESENTED AT LARGE UNIVERSITIES

Women in administration are most likely to be head librarians, directors of placement, or directors of financial aid, the AAUW said, and least likely to be president, vice-presidents, or directors of development.

Forty-seven per cent of the women's colleges have women presidents. Women fill more positions of responsibility at women's colleges, private institutions, and colleges with fewer than 1,000 students, than at large and public institutions, the study found.

According to the survey, women are most frequently under-represented on student-staff committees at large universities; 66.7 per cent of those institutions reported proportionately fewer women than men on the committees, compared with 43.4 per cent of the total sample.

The study also showed that women students were most likely to hold positions requiring detail work or special skills, such as writing. Female yearbook editors and activities chairmen far out-numbered women with influential, political offices.

Women served as student-body presidents from 1967-1970 at only 5 per cent of the sampled coeducational institutions, and as yearbook editors at 49 per cent of the coeducational colleges and universities.

There was an average of 2.6 female department chairmen at the colleges in the survey.

However, 34 institutions reported no female department chairmen at all.

Women were most likely to chair departments of home economics, physical education, nursing and education.

Other findings of the study:

Only 79 per cent of the institutions surveyed had an official policy on staff maternity leave.

Twenty-one per cent had no women trustees, and 25 per cent had only one.

Thirty-five per cent did not hire husbands and wives for faculty posts.

Only 49 per cent made special adjustments for the needs of older women students.

Forty-three per cent provided birth control information in their health centers, and five per cent provided day-care facilities for the children of students.

appropriate, these are the top products of American education and culture, the arbiters of human values for over seven million young people.

What can be done? Are there no men of principle - Berrigans, Stringfellow, Spocks - anywhere in the educational system? Better to close all the institutions of learning than turn out an unending baccalaureate in the art of expedience.

One or two men of conscience in a university might possibly reverse the process of decadence. Defined here as putting not your life, but only your career on the line, as so many students have done in support of their values. To the average middle-aged administrator, born and bred in the American commercial-industrial complex, this may seem the last resort. But it may be also the only salvation of the universities (and secondary schools) from the dry-rot of bureaucracy.

To the Editor:

It is good to see people showing interest in anti-pollution products. However, I don't agree with Barbara Shaffer's suggestion that Amway Products - Shakee I know nothing about - are better than the new no-phosphate detergents (letter to editor, Dec. 17).

Analyses performed by Northwestern Students for a Better Environment show 20 units (grams) of phosphate per wash load (1/4 cup) of Amway SA-8. For comparison the popular phosphate-type detergents range from 27 to 60 units per wash load with most being in the 30's and 40's. The Amway product may have less phosphate than most detergents but it still contains too much to be of real Ecolo-G, which is the new washing benefit in cleaning up water pollution. preparation I have tried, has no phosphates (or NTA) and is biodegradable and low-sudsing.

For those persons interested, I obtained the list used above by writing to: Northwestern Students for a Better Environment, Cresap Lab, Northwestern University, Evanston, Illinois 60201.

Additional analysis will come from a group of prominent Americans who will answer questions and offer opinions in their fields.

Among them are Ramsey Clark, former attorney general; Walt Rostow, and Bill D. Moyers, former assistants to President Lyndon B. Johnson; Walter Heller, former chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers; and Eva Jefferson, student president of Northwestern University.

The show, "National Polling Day: What Americans Think," will be seen live on ABC at 9 p.m. CST Jan. 13, from the East Coast to the Rocky Mountains. On the Pacific Coast it will be seen on a delayed basis.

"Very simply, there are a lot of things we don't know about ourselves," said Lester Cooper, the producer. "We think we have all the answers. I think we will find that what we think isn't really the answer."

"We're trying to find out what we all think. And if we think differently from each other, how we can use that knowledge to come to some kind of agreement."

Former GI Given Immunity, Admits Killings at My Lai

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former soldier who told a national television audience he killed 10 to 15 Vietnamese civilians at My Lai has been granted immunity to testify at Lt. William L. Calley Jr.'s court-martial without risking self-incrimination.

Paul David Meadlo had refused to answer questions Dec. 3, when called as a prosecution witness at the court-martial.

Borlaug Speaks In Des Moines

DES MOINES (AP) — The world must not only produce enough food for everyone, but must also provide a "decent standard of living for all the people coming into the world," Dr. Norman Borlaug said here Tuesday.

The 1970 Nobel Peace Prize winner, a native of Cresco, was in Des Moines as a guest of Planned Parenthood of Iowa.

In a CBS television interview Nov. 24, 1969, he said he stood at Calley's side and sprayed bullets from his automatic rifle into men, women and children who had been herded together.

Under the order signed by Asst. Atty. Gen. Will R. Wilson, Meadlo cannot refuse to testify if called. His attorney, John A. Kesler, said Meadlo has been ordered to be at Ft. Benning, Ga., when Calley's trial resumes Monday.

Calley is charged with the premeditated murder of not less than 102 undefended, unresisting Vietnamese civilians in the hamlet of My Lai March 16, 1968.

A number of witnesses testified they saw Meadlo, tears streaming down his face, obeying Calley's order to kill the civilians.

In the television interview, Meadlo said Calley ordered him to shoot at about 45 people who had been rounded up at the intersection of two trails.

Meadlo, from Terre Haute, Ind., lost part of one leg in a mine explosion the next day and was evacuated.

"Like I said," he told CBS, Mike Wallace, "God punished me. The very next morning."

New Iowa Coach Brings Bright Outlook— Lauterbur Looking to Future

By JOHN RICHARDS

A newsman asked new Iowa football coach Francis X. (Frank) Lauterbur if he could compare his team's national ranking last year at Toledo with that of Michigan and Ohio State of the Big 10.

Lauterbur smiled and firmly replied, "I'm not worried about what happened last year or my national ranking. Starting with my being named coach here, I began thinking of Iowa's future."

Lauterbur met the Iowa sports media for the first time Tuesday and by first appearances, is just as determined to have a good football program here as most Iowa fans are.

"I didn't hesitate at all when I was offered the coaching job at Iowa," Lauterbur said. "I was very honored at being offered the position. Also I am very excited about working with this athletic staff and a fine man like Bump Elliott."

"I feel like a little kid with a new bunch of toys," he jokingly added. "There is so much here for me to work with. Iowa is rich in tradition and nearly every coach wants to coach in the Big 10. I'm very glad to be here, especially after sitting in O'Hare Airport for so long Monday."

Lauterbur also added that the state of Iowa was the chief selling point for his acceptance of the job. He said the lack of professional sports teams in the state and the pride of the fans in the university's football program were factors in this judgment.

The type of football that Lauterbur coaches was the chief subject of most questions thrown at him. He described it this way.

"People ask me if I'm primarily a defensive coach. I'm primarily a football coach. I coach a lot of defensive and I'm very proud of my defense."

"I like an aggressive team and a wide-open offense. I like my offense and defense to be disciplined in an aggressive way. I like to turn the opponent loose, chase 'em down and jump on 'em."

"Football is a game of mistakes and when you eliminate mistakes you win. I try to teach consistency to my players and my staff."

Lauterbur said he hopes to have his staff completed by a week from Monday. He plans to keep the staff at eight men with three offensive coaches, three defensive coaches and a head freshman coach.

Two men have already been named to the staff and were with Lauterbur Tuesday at the conference. They are Don Lewis and Elroy Morand, who were assistants at Toledo under Lauterbur.

Lewis has been with Lauterbur seven years and coached the defensive secondary last season. Lewis has coached nearly every phase of the game in his seven years with Lauterbur.

Morand was coach of Toledo's linebackers last season and they intercepted nine passes. He is a former quarterback at Florida A&M and played in the same backfield with Bob Hayes of the Dallas Cowboys.

Lauterbur said he would keep one and maybe two of the members of Ray Nagel's coaching staff. He said he had talked with all but Dick Tamburo and Frank Gilliam on that staff.

Lauterbur said he hopes to meet with the members of the team sometime this week. He hopes to get them started on some type of winter running and conditioning program as soon as possible.

"I want to make sure that everyone gets through his final exams first of all," Lauterbur said. "We will start a conditioning program as soon as possible so I can evaluate the prospects."

Lauterbur said he will be traveling back and forth between Iowa City and Toledo for a while, but hopes to get settled soon so he can begin recruiting high school prospects.

Lauterbur Meets the Media—

New Iowa football coach Francis X. Lauterbur held his first press conference with the Iowa writers and broadcasters Tuesday in the Letterman's Lounge of the Field House. Lauterbur was named head coach Dec. 29 and succeeds Ray Nagel. His teams at Toledo University were unbeaten the past two years with a string of 23 straight wins.

Recreation Dept. News

Harry Ostrander, Director of Recreation and Intramurals, announced Tuesday that the new University ice rink is ready and available for use with weather permitting.

The new rink (45,000 square feet) is located north of University High School along the east bank of the Iowa River near the foot bridge. The Dad's Association donated funds to construct the rink and purchase a shelter for the skaters.

The rink will be open from 3:30-9 p.m. Monday-Friday and 1-9 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. The rink will not be available until 3:30 so as not to interfere with University High School classes.

Skaters are asked not to use University High School as an access to the rink. The rink will be supervised during the normal scheduled hours.

The Division of Recreational Services announced today that all Recreational Sports Clubs are eligible to receive limited financial support.

Recreational Sports Clubs have been in existence at the University for several years but have never received any financial support from the University. The Recreation Advisory Committee recognized that these sports clubs are struggling and needed financial help so they requested an additional allocation to the Recreation and Intramural budget which received favorable approval from central administration. The total amount allocated was $2,000.00.

Any Recreational Sports Clubs interested in receiving funds must pick up an application at the Recreation and Intramural Office, Room 111 Field House. Any questions concerning the Sports Club funds may be directed to Harry R. Ostrander, Director of Recreation and Intramurals.

J.J.'s Still Dealing

Good basketball players never die — they just go from a winning team to a losing one. Such is the case of former Iowa cage star John Johnson.

Johnson, who led the Hawkeyes to an undefeated Big 10 championship a year ago, was named to the National Basketball Association All-Star team Monday night. That's not bad for a guy in his rookie season and playing on an expansion team that has won five games and lost 40-some (Who's counting in Cleveland?).

It's true that Red Holtzman, coach of the New York Knicks and the NBA East squad, had to choose a player from each team for his roster — but Johnson must have been high on his list anyway.

The talented Milwaukee native is leading the Cavaliers or the Cadavers (as some Cleveland writers call them) or Lovables (as the few fans that frequent their home games call them) in almost every statistical department.

Johnson is the team's leading scorer at about 17 points a game with a game-high of 33, leading assistant at seven per game and a high of 16, leading field goal shooter and second leading rebounder with nine a game.

"I'm never sure where I'm going to be playing before the game starts," said Johnson Monday night by phone. "I've been spending about equal time between guard and forward and can't say which I like best. One of these nights I may even be starting at center."

The crowds for the Cleveland games have been a big disappointment thus far this season.

"We drew about 7,000 for our game with Milwaukee after we won two in a row," Johnson said. "The Harlem Globetrotters came to town soon after that and drew over 10,000."

"They call our fans the 'Mad Mob' and our arena 'Fitch's Fun House,'" he added jokingly. "Despite the poor attendance, I don't think they are planning to move the franchise."

Johnson's voice and that of his wife, Marica, sounded somewhere between happy and sad.

"I would like things to be a lot better here," Johnson said. "But I realize they can't. Maybe with a couple of good draft choices next year and the improvement of the good players we have this year, things will be different next season."

Iowa's basketball team opens its 1971 Big 10 season Saturday when it hosts Ohio State. How good they will be or who the top conference team is now, is anybody's guess.

"The Big 10 looks like a real rat race this year," Hawkeye coach Dick Schultz said Tuesday. "Indiana has shown that on a given night they can play with anybody, but as yet they haven't been consistent."

"Minnesota looks good, but has lost badly a couple of times. Illinois, despite their good record, has been somewhat of a disappointment. Purdue looks like it might be as good or better a team without Rick Mount."

"Those four teams seem to be at the top right now and Iowa, Ohio State, Michigan and surprise Michigan State are in the next group."

Schultz remains optimistic about his team's chances in the title run and is somewhat disappointed at their performance to date.

"Before the season I might have been happy with a 4-4 record right now," Schultz said. "But the way things have gone, we could very well have been 9-1. Creighton is the only team that has blown us off the court."

Schultz complimented Omar Hazley, Lynn Rowat and Glenn Angelino for their recent play. He also said the Hawkeyes played their best defense of the season in the last 12 minutes of the Wyoming game.

Iowa basketball player James Speed, who was stricken down by meningitis before the season, has been transferred to training school for the blind in Des Moines.

"Speed is for the most part, totally blind," said Schultz. "Doctors said there is no chance he will regain any sight in his right eye and he may regain only vision enough to detect light changes in his left eye."

"We took him to Des Moines Tuesday where he will be taught to operate without his vision. The school is operated by the Iowa Commission for the Blind. They claim he will be taught well enough that he can travel anywhere in the country."

"Jim has taken this better than I ever could and has a lot more to lose," Schultz added. "He has done a great job mentally with himself and hasn't shown his grief on the outside."

Speed's mother is in Des Moines now with him and will return to Iowa City after he is settled there. She plans to return to their home in Louisiana in the next few days.

A trust fund has been established for Speed by the Athletic Department. Checks should be made payable to the 'James Speed Trust Fund' and mailed to Bud Suter in care of the Iowa Athletic Department.

Nebraska Is No. 1

By The Associated Press

Nebraska is king of major college football for the first time, but the wild happenings that led to the title followed a script that is not new to the Cornhuskers.

Nebraska voted No. 1 in the final Associated Press poll Tuesday after its 17-12 Orange Bowl victory which followed Notre Dame's 24-11 upset of previously top-ranked Texas in the Cotton Bowl and Stanford's 20-17 upset of No. 2 Ohio State in the Rose Bowl.

Notre Dame finished second with Texas third and Ohio State fifth behind Tennessee, the Sugar Bowl winner.

The 1965 national championship was determined the same way. Alabama came out on top in the final AP poll by winning the Orange Bowl and previously No. 1 Michigan State was upset in the Rose Bowl and Arkansas was surprised in the Cotton Bowl.

Alabama's victim in the 1965 Orange Bowl was Nebraska which had gone into the game with a 10-0 record and could have ended up No. 1. The Cornhuskers had to settle for No. 5.

Notre Dame received eight first-place votes and 814 points while Texas notched three first and 721 points.

Following No. 5 Ohio State was Arizona State, with an 11-4 record the only other unbeaten team in the Top Ten, which received the other two first-place ballots and 472 points.

LOMBARDI AWARD —

WASHINGTON (AP) — Alex Webster of the New York Giants, will receive Saturday the first Vincent T. Lombardi Memorial Award as the National Football League Coach of the Year at the 36th annual banquet of the Touchdown Club, it was announced Tuesday.

Webster, named head coach in September 1969, moved the Giants to within a hair of capturing the NFC's Eastern title after inheriting a team that had not had a winning season since 1963 and was only 1-12-1 in 1966.

Cold Cripples Much of U.S.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Still battling the drifts of a weekend snowstorm, many parts of the nation faced a new problem Tuesday: bitter arctic cold.

Temperatures dropped to below zero in Iowa where a Sunday night storm dumped amounts of snow and resulted in at least 20 deaths.

The mercury dropped to -33 at Alamosa, Colo., and to a record -4 at Lubbock, Tex.

In Iowa, state and local officials pulled out all stops in an effort to finish cleaning roads and highways. Foster Smiley, state maintenance engineer, said the state already had spent an estimated $1.5 million to remove snow which piled up in drifts as high as 10 feet. Airports began to open Tuesday and the Iowa highway patrol reported most primary roads were open. The National Weather Service, however, predicted the possibility of more snow Friday.

The story was the same in much of the rest of the nation: cold and snow.

Afternoon temperatures failed to rise much above zero in a region extending from northern New Mexico north to Montana and east to Wisconsin.

In Utah, the Mountain Fuel Supply Co. of Salt Lake was forced to cut natural gas service because demand exceeded supply. Salt Lake City schools switched to standby coal or oil heating.

The cold snap caused light damage to the Southern California citrus crop. Agriculture officials said that if the frigid conditions persisted the entire avocado crop of northern San Diego — 65 per cent of the California crop — might be wiped out.

The cold front passing over the warm Great Lakes waters produced many snow squalls on the lee side of the lakes.

Only the East Coast escaped the frigid onslaught. Temperatures were above freezing along the entire Atlantic seaboard and climbed into the 60s as far north as Virginia.

But the advancing cold front started temperatures on a slow decline and set off locally heavy thundershowers in parts of the Southeast. A tornado damaged a school 20 miles north of Fayetteville, N.C.

Officers Rejected For My Lai Board

FT. McPHERSON, Ga. (AP) — A Green Beret colonel who said "vicious and brutal" crimes occurred in My Lai was among three officers rejected Tuesday as court-martial board members in the trial of Sgt. Charles Hutto.

Hutto, a Tallulah, La., farmhand before enlisting in the Army in 1967, is charged with assault with intent to murder at least six My Lai civilians.

His court-martial board must include at least five members. Ten potential board members were summoned Tuesday, opening day of the trial.

Col. James A. Lillard, who served two tours in Vietnam as a Special Forces commander, said that he felt crimes had occurred at My Lai and that they constituted a "pitiful blot on our record."

"Some of the people killed there if not innocent were at least defenseless women and children."

"No Excuse" "I have seen pictures of children too small to have planted mines and who were shot," he said. "I can find no excuse for that in my mind."

The tall, dark-haired native of Memphis, Tenn., said that the U.S. troops who occupied My Lai on March 16, 1968, found "what amounted to no resistance."

He said that "the residents were rounded up. A regrettable, vicious and brutal series of crimes took place."

"American troops were out of control — in fact, led out of control," he said.

The officer's ability to sit as an impartial juror was challenged by Edward Magill of Miami, Fla., Hutto's civilian lawyer.

The military Judge Lt. Col. Kenneth A. Howard, a native of Atlanta, Ga., and a Navy man during World War II, upheld the challenge to Lillard and the two other officers.

Others Rejected

Also rejected were Col. Edmond O. Eggleston and Lt. Col. Warren L. Gillett, both of Ft. Campbell, Ky. Neither served in Vietnam.

Eggleston was the first to be rejected. "In my own mind, I have reservations about my competency to be an unbiased member of the court," he said.

Gillett, a native of Lincoln, Neb., due to retire from the Army in April, said "Based on news reports, it would appear unnecessary killing did take place." He said he based his judgment "only on what I have seen and read in the news media."

CORRECTION

Tuesday's Daily Iowan listing of University of Iowa faculties ranked as "good" by the American Council on Education omitted the department of physiology and biophysics.

North Viet Drive Expected, Ho Chi Minh Trail Hit Again

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Bombers gave the Ho Chi Minh trail in Laos another pounding Tuesday to try to thwart a drive that North Vietnam is reported planning in Cambodia late this month.

Intelligence reports indicate the North Vietnamese may be in position by the end of January to launch a new but relatively small TET lunar new year starts Jan. 27.

To counter the buildup, Strategic Air Command B52 bombers and smaller tactical bombers have been striking the Ho Chi Minh supply trail daily. So far in the recent bombing campaign, U.S. planes have not struck at the Mu Gia Pass on North Vietnam's western frontier with Laos, which leads into the Ho Chi Minh trail.

President Nixon said Monday he would order air strikes against the Mu Gia Pass if North Vietnam moves troops and supplies through the mountain gateway.

As the sustained bombing of the Ho Chi Minh Trail continued, the U.S. Command disclosed the loss of another plane taking part in that campaign.

In a delayed report, the command said an Air Force F4 Phantom fighter-bomber went down Sunday and that its two fliers are missing.

Old Congress Gets Nixon Parting Shot

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon flew off for Southern California Tuesday, taking a parting shot at the old Congress and preparing a welcome for the new.

He said the 91st Congress, which ended last Saturday, had within its grasp "the opportunity to write one of the most productive and memorable chapters in the history of American government."

"That opportunity was lost," Nixon said, adding, "The nation was the loser."

In a lengthy written statement, the President listed federal revenue-sharing and welfare reform at the top of a list of 21 specific proposals that he said "died of neglect" in the 91st Congress, and which he promised to renew after the new Congress convenes Jan. 21.

Before departing for an eight-to-10-day working vacation at the Western White House, Nixon assured his Cabinet at a formal meeting that he does not intend to fire any more of them; talked with three leading Republican governors and top White House advisers about revenue-sharing and welfare reform; and, with Chief Justice Warren E. Burger looking on, signed a bill to speed court business by creating a special executive officer for each federal judicial circuit.

While at the Western White House Nixon plans to work on his State of the Union address to Congress, the major thrust of which he has said will concern an expanded program to share federal income tax revenue with states and localities.

A modest revenue-sharing proposal died last year in the House Ways and Means Committee, and Nixon cited this among the "major failures" of Congress.

Besides revenue-sharing and the Family Assistance Welfare Reform Plan, Nixon said he will renew proposals to overhaul the federal system of grants-in-aid to states and localities, to aid schools that have special problems because of rapid desegregation, to raise military pay, to protect consumers, to increase Social Security benefits, to set up import quotas for textiles, to reform the electoral college system of electing presidents, and to deal with pornography.

The President began his day with a 1 1/2-hour Cabinet meeting devoted mainly to the economy.

Mayne Urges 18-Year-Old Vote in State

SIoux CITY (AP) — Rep. Wiley Mayne (R-Iowa) Tuesday called for prompt action by the Iowa Legislature to permit 18-year-old voting in state elections.

Mayne, speaking to government classes at a Sioux City high school, warned that the recent U.S. Supreme Court decision upholding the 18-year-old vote will inflict confusion and a heavy burden on voters and election officials if the youths are barred from state balloting.

The 6th District congressman praised the 1970 Iowa Legislature "for already having the vision to start the constitution amending process necessary to blanket 19 and 20 years old into the electorate."

The 1970 legislative session approved a constitutional amendment to lower the voting age from 21 to 19. The action requires another positive vote by the 1971 session and okay from the voters before it takes effect.

Mayne said the lawmaker's action last year paved the way for ready public acceptance for a further lowering of the voting age this year. Gov. Robert Ray has said he will seek an 18-year-old voting bill this year.

Nixon Budget Contradictory?

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon says he will produce a fiscal 1972 budget that will show a deficit but won't be inflationary.

His explanation of this feat, which seems to contradict the shirt-sleeve economic beliefs of most Americans, was too brief to be helpful though based on a theory now widely accepted among economists.

Some officials now foresee a real dollars-and-cents deficit of $10 billion or more in a record spending total of around $230 billion. Yet Nixon will be able to claim a surplus in the "full employment budget."

FULL EMPLOYMENT BUDGET

What is this "full employment budget?" The President gave only a three-sentence explanation in his radio-television interview Monday night. It did not explain much, Nixon said:

"What we're going to do first is to have an expansionary budget. It will be a budget in deficit, as will be the budget in 1971.

"It will not be an inflationary budget because it will not exceed the full employment revenues."

Nixon was suggesting that a deficit, even a fairly large one, need not necessarily be inflationary. He and his economic advisers accept the full employment budget concept, which means that they believe these two statements:

First, that when the economy is working at less than capacity — less than full employment — the deficit spending of the government stimulates the jobs and income needed to take up the slack and restore stable growth.

But second, if the deficit spending is greater than the amount needed to generate full employment and full-capacity plant operations, then those excess dollars are not absorbed in creating growth. They merely create more buying demand and bid up prices. So there is a limit on how much deficit can be tolerated. The full employment budget is a measure devised by economists to indicate what the limit should be — how much red ink will be stimulative without being inflationary.

The "full employment budget" is in balance when total spending equals the federal tax revenues which the treasury would be collecting if the economy were operating at a full employment rate.

Economists can compute quite accurately how large the national output would have to be to achieve full employment. They also know about how much revenue the treasury would be receiving at that level of national output.

And if federal spending did not exceed that latter figure the "full employment budget" would be in balance. Federal outlays up to that amount, it is held would be helpful and stimulative. Above that amount they would be inflationary.

Now, how big are the "full employment revenues" which Nixon mentioned — the income that the government would be receiving in fiscal 1972 if factories were running at a full employment rate, instead of today's 77 per cent capacity? Recent estimates range around $230 billion to $235 billion for fiscal 1972.

SPENDING LIMIT

That sets the limit on Nixon's spending program. His economists may fix on some slightly different total, depending on their latest estimates of anticipated total personal income and corporation profits. But it now appears that Nixon will have to hold spending at or slightly below $230 billion to keep his promise of balancing the full employment budget.

Some economists dislike this whole theory. Others argue that any deficit raises the risk of inflation under present circumstances. These latter argue: If the government pours more dollars into the public's pockets than it takes out — at a time when the wage-price spiral is strongly in motion — the real federal deficit is bound to accelerate the upward whirl regardless of any "full employment surplus."

It should be noted that Nixon himself doesn't claim there will be no inflation. He only says his 1972 budget won't be causing it.

The Nixon advisers believe that if the government does not supply some financial force-feeding, the slack economy could slip farther and farther below its production potential, as it has been doing for the past two years.

But they are also being challenged on a different element of the Nixon economic plan — his recovery timetable. Full employment, by his definition, means reducing joblessness to about 4 per cent of the labor force. Unemployment is now 5.8 per cent, and most economists predict it will go higher before it turns down. Nixon wants it down to 4 per cent by 1972.

The 1972 goal has special significance. It is a presidential election year.

Back in July, when Nixon first embraced the full employment budget concept publicly, his target date was the middle of 1972, only 18 months from now. In Monday's interview he set back the timetable by six months. "Our goal is full employment by the end of 1972," he said.

Would Prevent Emergency Strikes— Nixon Wants No-Strike Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon will press vigorously for early enactment of a law to prevent emergency strikes such as the still-threatening nationwide railroad walkout, his labor secretary said Tuesday.

"Such strikes become something like an industrial H-bomb," said Secretary of Labor J. D. Hodgson in announcing the White House is putting top priority on the first new anti-strike legislation since the Taft-Hartley Act a quarter century ago.

"They cause hardships, mass inconvenience, danger and a threat to the nation's health and safety," Hodgson told newsmen.

"Decisions are going to be required of the nation whether we will enact a realistic law to deal with national emergency disputes in the transportation industry or limp through repeated crises with a wayout crutch," Hodgson said.

Congress halted a 24-hour nationwide rail strike Dec. 10, imposing a partial 13.5 per cent pay hike for some 500,000 workers involved. But the special law expires March 1 and the strike could resume if there is no settlement.

chairmen told The Associated Press three weeks ago hearings will be held early this year on emergency strike legislation.

Hodgson said Nixon will resubmit a strike law proposal similar to the one that languished in Congress last year.

That proposal would have junked the 45-year-old Railway Labor Act which now covers rail and airline disputes and replaced it with one covering all transportation strikes.

The earlier White House would have given the Nixon bill several options including the power to order strike delays of up to 110 days instead of the current 90 days, to permit partial striking of a major industry, or to appoint a neutral board to choose either management's or labor's final contract proposal as a binding settlement. Hodgson said Nixon's new bill will be much like the earlier one.

Both rail labor and management opposed the initial Nixon proposal, and Hodgson said "I doubt if we can get something both sides will like."

Hodgson said Nixon will put high priority also on a reintroduced version of his family-assistance plan of welfare reform to put a $1,600 floor under the annual income of an indigent urban family of four. It will be revised to meet some of the objections that caused it to become bogged down in the Senate after House passage last year.

"Reform of the nation's runaway welfare system remains at the center of the New Federalism," Hodgson said.

Dole Seen Headed For Top GOP Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite strong opposition from top members of his own party, Sen. Robert J. Dole of Kansas will be the next Republican national chairman, several highly placed sources said Tuesday.

Formal confirmation of Dole's appointment is expected Jan. 15 during a meeting here of the Republican National Committee. However, according to one account, President Nixon will meet with a special nominating committee the day before and announce that Dole is his choice.

The GOP announced Tuesday afternoon that the nominating committee will be named later this week.

When told of the latest reports that he would get the job despite considerable opposition among other Republican senators, Dole told The Associated Press he believed that he had not been informed but said he had not been informed he would get the post.

Dole, a 47-year-old first-term senator, is a staunch supporter of the Nixon administration and one of the more conservative members of the party's congressional wing. He has figured from the start in speculation over who would replace Rep. Rogers C. B. Morton of Maryland for the chairmanship.

Morton is giving up the GOP post and his House seat to succeed the ousted Walter J. Hickel as secretary of the interior.

Dole is opposed by some moderate and liberal Republicans, several of whom reportedly have told the White House they would look with disfavor on a Dole appointment.

Tourists Bring Flu Outbreak To Florida

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Bug-carrying Northern tourists were partially blamed by a health official Tuesday for an outbreak of influenza that claimed 18 lives and struck 13,000 persons in this resort town last week.

"We have an international airport," said Broward County Health Director Paul Tughes. "We're only 14 hours from any spot on earth . . . and any disease."

Hughes said he had not yet pinpointed what type of flu was involved.

"It could be any of four types of flu or flu-like diseases," he said. All 18 victims succumbed to pneumonia after being hit with the flu, he said.

"All of those who died were elderly persons with chronic diseases such as emphysema," said Hughes. "They were in bad shape to start with and it didn't take much to tip the balance."

In addition to the tourists from Northern states and Canada who came to bask in 80-degree temperatures on ocean beaches, Hughes blamed a recent cold snap which hit this ocean resort last month.

President Nixon shivers as he steps from his plane on his arrival at El Toro Marine Base for an eight-to-ten-day working vacation at San Clemente Tuesday. The temperature was 57 degrees with a brisk wind. — AP Wirephoto

Atmosphere of Quiet Diplomacy— Arab-Israeli Talks Resume

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. — In an atmosphere of quiet diplomacy, the disrupted Arab-Israeli peace talks resumed Tuesday under the guidance of Gunnar V. Jarring, the U. N. special envoy for the Middle East.

Heath will enter the nine-day Commonwealth parley Jan. 14 apparently still planning to cooperate militarily with South Africa but with his government still not finally committed.

Heath Cabinet Split Over S. Africa Arms

LONDON — Prime Minister Edward Heath is leaving Wednesday for Commonwealth talks in Singapore with his plan to resume sale of arms to South Africa apparently running into opposition in his own Cabinet.

On the eve of Heath's departure, which will take him on a swing through Cyprus, Pakistan, India and Malaysia, there were reports that key ministers were wavering on the controversial arms issue.

Heath is the first to call on the Swedish diplomat in his 38th-floor office at U.N. headquarters. They talked for almost a half hour. The substance of their conversation was not disclosed.

Jarring arranged late afternoon meetings with Ambassador Mohammed H. el-Zayyat of Egypt and Ambassador Muhammad H. el-Farra of Jordan.

After the meetings, however, El-Zayyat said, "I am not as hopeful as when I went in. I didn't get any indication there is a serious intention to begin talking." He indicated he expected to see Jarring again Wednesday.

El-Farra had no comment on his talk with Jarring. Tekoah told newsmen that he did not have another appointment yet with Jarring, but that "the telephone lines are open" and he would be in touch with him.

The reopening of the talks got a nod of approval from Moscow. The government newspaper Izvestia said a positive step had been taken toward restoring peace.

President Nixon declared in a television interview Monday night that if the Soviet Union did not play a conciliatory peacemaking role in the Middle East there was no chance for peace.

In advance of the resumption

Gunnar Jarring

of the talks, Secretary-General U Thant issued a report by Jarring to the U. N. Security Council on the status of his three-year-old mission.

The 15-page report and annexes contained the positions of Israel, Egypt, Jordan and Lebanon stating their firm positions in the wake of the Security Council resolution approved on Nov. 22, 1967, containing the formula for a Middle East peace. This includes an Israeli withdrawal from Arab territory.

Both the Arab countries and Israel have accepted the resolution, but differences still exist on how it should be implemented.

Israel said withdrawal should take place after "permanent, secure and recognized boundaries are agreed upon." The Arabs say Israel must withdraw its forces first.

A letter from Foreign Minister Abba Eban of Israel made clear that his country believed extension and consolidation of the U.S.-arranged cease-fire should be taken up in the talks with Jarring.

Chile Establishes Relations With Peking Government

SANTIAGO, Chile — Chile established diplomatic relations Tuesday with Red China, the second Latin-American nation to do so. Nationalist China immediately severed its ties with Santiago.

A joint communique said: "The government of Chile recognizes the government of the People's Republic of China as the one legal Chinese government."

Chile took note of Red China's claim to Formosa — called Taiwan by the Chinese — the seat of the Nationalist Chinese government.

This is the same position taken by Canada and Italy recently in establishing relations with China. It avoids saying that Formosa belongs to Red China.

In Washington, White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said he was not prepared to comment on Chile's decision.

Foreign Minister Clodomiro Almeyda said the document establishing relations was signed Dec. 15 in Paris by their ambassadors there, Enrique Bernstejn of Chile, Huang Chen of Red China.

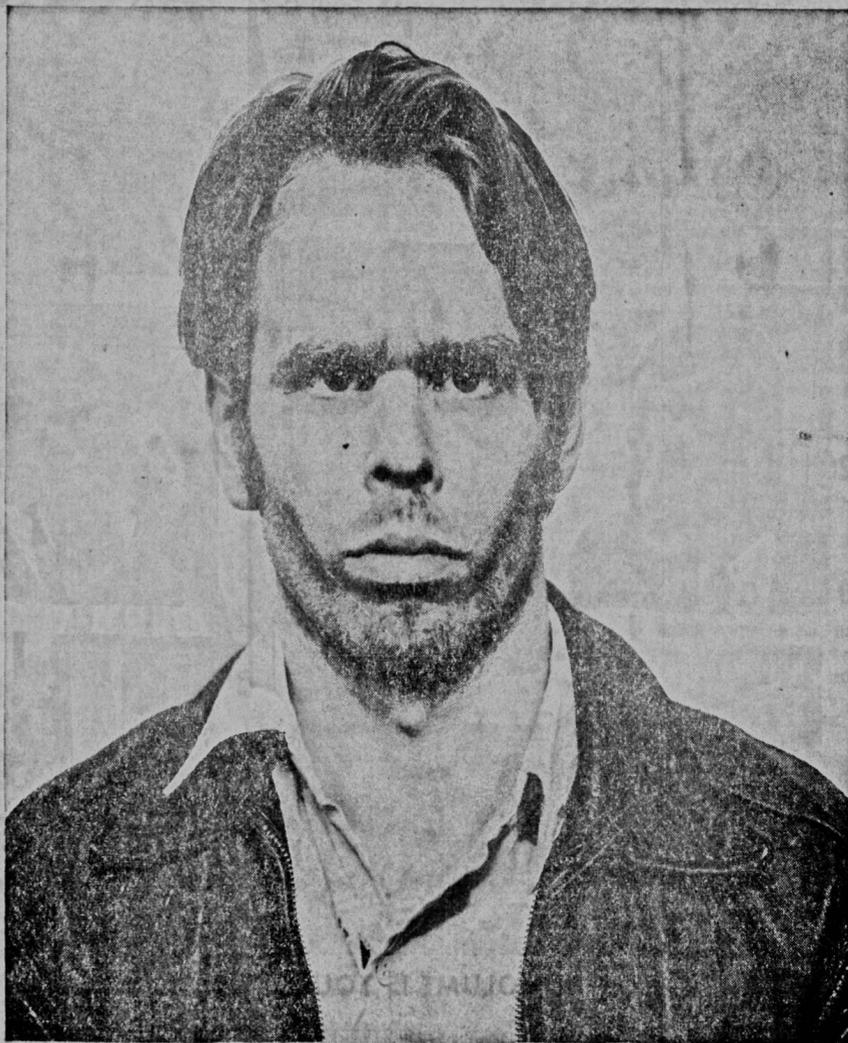

The first Latin-American nation to recognize Red China was Cuba.

Chile is the 57th nation to establish relations with Peking. Almeyda said Red China offerred a potential market for Chilean products of "gigantic dimensions." The establishment of relations, he said, has opened the door for mutually advantageous trade agreements.

The establishment of diplomatic relations with all nations of the world was an important part of the program of the Popular Unity Coalition of Marxist President Salvador Allende.

Shortly after he took office in November, Allende re-established relations with Cuba. Allende has also promised to establish relations with North Korea, North Vietnam and East Germany.

"Happy 21st Birthday, Johnny"

At least, we hope it's happy, Johnny's strung out on "speed," and most people take him for about 35. He's shooting "meth," now, but he started on pills: "dexies," "bennies." He has to use a little more each day to maintain the "high" and avoid "crashing." It's as though he were a car that's raced its motor continuously for a year. No wonder he looks like he's ready for a 50,000 mile overhaul.

health... because you feel so "up" all the time. So while you're "up" on speed, your body runs down. Johnny raps all the time about how, since he's started "speeding" he's really living. At this rate, he may have lived his whole life before he reaches 22.
