From Exchange Papers

Students at Iowa State University in Ames have organized a free food protest to demonstrate against the higher food prices in the Memorial Union. Penney Peterson, a Union Board member, was quoted in the student newspaper, the Iowa State Daily, as saying that "the one major complaint is that the students were not notified in advance that prices were to be raised and were not given the reason for the increase."

The People's Party II of Houston, Texas, is fund-raising on the University of Houston campus for the Carl B. Hampton Free Clinic that they are establishing. The People's Party II has also been involved in trying to prevent the university from destroying trees and lawns on and around the campus. Their efforts were circumvented in December, when, while the students were out for semester break, the administration cut down 12 trees on the campus. An administrator said in the Daily Cougar, the student newspaper, that the trees were intentionally cut down during the break in order to "avoid embarrassing situations."

Though most people have heard news of it already, there was an uprising of students and street people at the University of Arizona in Tucson last month. The uprising was touched off when campus police attempted to arrest six "pan-handlers and loiters" engaged in a wine party near the campus' main gate, and continued, in protest of a new city ordinance against the same. During the three nights of street fighting, 100 people were busted. The new student code, enacted following the demonstrations is typical of codes being written around the country — students arrested may be summarily expelled from school and denied re-registration, anyone on campus may be required to show student identification to a police officer.

Spanish and English editions of the Student Rights Handbook are now available from the New York Civil Liberties Union. The distribution of the handbook has been banned by many New York City high school administrations, although leafletting is a recognized student right.

The free handbook is a guide to specific court decisions and state and city regulations affecting New York City high school students, but the handbook can be used as a model for guides in other parts of the country. In some cases the handbook has nationwide applicability. Write to the New York Civil Liberties Union, 84 Fifth Ave., New York, N.Y., 10001 for copies.

The trials are over

With a little luck, another session of the University of Iowa management's judicial hearings are over. Two days of testimony by 10 students and former students charged with disruption and obstruction at a demonstration that was, if nothing else, successful in preventing a Defense Intelligence Agency recruiter from fulfilling his duty on the Iowa campus — well, it's over. Or nearly so.

What's left of the hearing? For many attending students there remains memories of mirthful hours, thanks to none other than Judge Garfield himself, whose unintentionally droll output brought smiles even to the faces of acting prosecutors Howard Sokol and John Larson.

But the results of the hearing may not be so funny to those people charged by management. Immediately they have to worry about possible expulsion; in the future they may grimace when application forms query: Were you ever charged or disciplined by your college?

In principle the stakes are at least as high for every student, because it is through kangaroo court proceedings like this one that the university management maintains its authority over students.

Why, for example, does management, when its Security force catches students with dope, pressure those students into signing a statement that in effect nominally prohibits the student from appealing any university sanctions to civil authorities? The first aim is to maintain the management prerogative of keeping students who have broken civil laws out of the civil courts. The effect of that is to guard the elitist position of our predominantly middle-class student body. The so-called apolitical university management has a stake in maintaining a class society, and that obviously entails looking after its own.

Secondly, by promoting a monopoly on discipline, at least in the student's mind, management retains its power in loco parentis, thus retaining its power to manipulate students within the kind of university it wants.

And in all these endeavors, this "apolitical" university management has its allies. It has been state and local authorities who have allowed the university to convert a large proportion of its Security force into civil police agents with the power to arrest.

All this adds up to a well-organized system, a system designed to perpetuate the norms of this society, along with its recognized and unrecognized injustices.

Within this system lies the DIA hearing. Like the tip of an iceberg it exemplifies an underlying menace.

In an attempt to weed out those who refuse to conform to the system, the DIA hearings demonstrates the destructive class biases and prejudices of managers.

And in its attempt to stifle challenges to its authority, it denies the dialogue of issues that university managers claim is the function of "their" institution.

'...to all the children in the world'

EDITOR'S NOTE: In Sept. 1968, nearly a year after the six-day Arab-Israeli war, Mona Saudi collected pictures, stories, drawings from the Palestinian children in the Baqaa' Camp in Jordan.

"They were bursting with vitality," Mona Saudi said in her introduction to the recently published book In Time of War: Children Testify. "Their drawings began to take shape, telling the tragedy in colors bright as the sun. Watching their hands drawing I felt the crayons had turned into sharp knives. They had an obsessive desire to carve their experience into paper with all the density of its full reality."

Several selections from the collection are printed below.

YUSRA AHMAD (10 year old girl)

Sad and silent... She draws roses and birds. The roses are big, as if they were legendary dream trees... not an actual presence, but a presence in the memory. It is an escape from the sun, the dust and the tents, travelling on the wings of that longing for life and fertility, to the good village, Al-Karameh.

The roses burned.

Yusra said, "We had birds and hens in Al-Karameh. (A village on the Jordan river destroyed completely by Israelis on March 21, 1968.) When the war started, they panicked, scattered, and died.

"When the planes first came, we were drinking tea. My uncle's family was attending a wedding. We hid in the shelter. in the evening we fled along with the others. We kept walking for two nights in the mountains, and there at the graveyard there were many flowers. We slept in caves, and beneath trees. And when we were told the war was over, we returned once again to Al-Karameh. Some of the houses were destroyed, and we saw thousands of people who had come to Al-Karameh from the West Bank; men, women and children; more arrived every day. The Israelis had forced them out of their homes and blown up their houses so they could never return."

MUSTAPHA HUSSAIN (an 11 year old boy)

Mustapha waited all morning for the returns. He was feeling indignant. He said "Everyone of us has a ration card but when we go to receive supplies, we feel humiliated. UNRWA (United Nations Relief and Works Association) gives us flour and sardines to make us forget Palestine! In the past, people used to accept the aid. Today I wish we could get rid of it. We read on the flour sacks "Gift from the People of the United States" and at the same time the United States gives Israel the Phantom jets and tanks to kill us and occupy our country."

**★ ★ ★

SAQR (14 year old boy)

Saqr's "cub" comrades say he is a poet. He recites poetry to them during nightguard duty when the moon is up or when heaven is black. One cold winter night, I sat with Saqr and the other "cubs" in a tent at a PFLP center (Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine) near the camp.

"I'll never forget Palestine..." he was saying. Saqr went on: "These words are repeated by children and adults; and we shall repeat them until victory and after..."

"I say these words after the tears go dry in my eye..."

"Why did he start off talking about tears? Yes, when I heard someone saying 'Oranges from Jaffa!' Strange, very strange! Do you cry because of an orange? Because of an olive tree? Is that a reason for crying? — Yes, I cry for the atoms of the soil, I cry until you realize that Palestine is my country. And she knows she will remain a tear in my eye until we return and after..."

"I say these words after the tears go dry in my eye..."

In 1968, the girls of Bakaa' camp made a demonstration, demanding that the government give them arms and protect the Palestinian commando movement.

Truce Continues; Middle East Quiet

By The Associated Press

The new 30-day extension of the Middle East cease-fire went into effect at midnight Friday after days of tension-filled diplomacy in the world's capitals.

There were no reports of shooting incidents.

Israeli military officials said their troops were on the alert along the Suez Canal, the major hot spot where Israelis face Egyptians across the narrow waterway.

Israel was under increasing pressure to give ground to Egypt's demand for a partial pullback of its troops from the canal. Concern mounted that a refusal by Tel Aviv might deadlock the Israeli-Arab peace talks.

Diplomatic sources at U.N. headquarters in New York where the talks are being held through special envoy Gunnar

V. Jarring said the main pressure was coming from France and the Soviet Union.

President Anwar Sadat of Egypt followed his announcement Thursday that Egypt would extend the canal cease-fire 30 days with a demand that Israel make a partial pullback from the area in return for a reopening of Suez to world shipping.

The extension offer was made on the eve of the expiration of the six-month cease-fire, which had been set for Friday midnight.

Sources in Jerusalem said Premier Golda Meir had ordered her Cabinet to keep silent about Sadat's proposals. She called for private meetings in ter Moshe Dayan, Foreign Minister Abba Eban and Deputy Premier Yigal Allon, the sources said.

Israeli newspapers which often reflect official views generally assailed Sadat's proposals.

In Washington, State Department officials said the United States has told the Soviet Union, Britain and France that it is prepared to start preliminary talks on guarantees in which the Big Four might join on a Middle East peace settlement.

In the Arab world, there was mixed reaction to Egypt's new proposals.

Only the governments of Libya, Sudan and Lebanon were quick to rally behind Cairo, calling the proposals the last chance for peace in the Middle East.

The measure, sponsored by Sen. Harold O. Thorsen (R-Davenport) and 13 others, would allow holders of beer and liquor licenses to be open from 1 p.m. to midnight Sundays, but would require them to close at least one other day during the week.

Licenses holders would indicate when their licenses are issued whether they would be open on Sunday, and if so they will be closed.

Sen. Thorsen said his measure, bill introduced in the Senate, would keep the sale of liquor areas who now go to drink beer and liquor to drink beer and liquor. He also said it would help keep tourists in Iowa a day longer.

The prestigious automobile company collapsed in a sea of red ink Thursday under a disastrous development contract that could cost the firm $108 million.

Ready for Introduction in Senate— State Budget Tightening Bill OK'd

DES MOINES (AP) — A bill to wrench Iowa state government's belt $8 million tighter by July 1 to head off a projected $11.1 million budget deficit was approved for introduction by the Senate Appropriations Committee Friday.

The bill, approved on a 23-1 vote with four committee members abstaining, would postpone new building projects, leave vacant jobs unfilled, tighten out-of-state travel and curtail purchases of new equipment and supplies by state departments before July 1.

The measure will go on the Senate calendar Monday, but under Senate rules will not be eligible for floor action until Thursday.

The committee action came a week after Senate Democrats ripped into Gov. Robert D. Ray and majority Republicans for the projected $11.1 million deficit by June 30, Riley said.

And, he said, if the cigarette tax is raised by more than the three cents per pack the governor requested — a move for which he said there is some sentiment — "We could have parity" between spending and revenues by the end of the fiscal year.

But Senate Democrats demanded the deficit be wiped out before the end of the current fiscal year June 30, and received a pledge from majority Republicans to get the job done if possible.

Sen. Tom Riley (R-Cedar Rapids), who presented the bill to the Appropriations Committee Friday, said it would save an estimated $8 million by the end of the fiscal year.

That saving, coupled with $2 million in new revenue which could be realized from enacting Ray's requested increase in cigarette taxes to take effect immediately instead of July 1, could wipe out $10 million of the projected $11.1 million deficit by June 30, Riley said.

And, he said, if the cigarette tax is raised by more than the three cents per pack the governor requested — a move for which he said there is some sentiment — "We could have parity" between spending and revenues by the end of the fiscal year.

The committee bill would bring up about $6 million in capital appropriations which were allocated but have not yet been obligated, postponing building projects not yet under way until after July 1.

It also would prohibit filling state job vacancies, limit out-of-state travel by state employees, prevent the rental of new office space or property and prevent state agencies from buying motor vehicles, equipment or large quantities of supplies for the rest of the fiscal year.

The figures reported by the Bureau of Labor Statistics showed the jobless rate for workers covered by state unemployment compensation programs dropped from 4.2 to 3.7 per cent.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of out-of-work Americans rose in January to the highest point in ten years, but seasonal factors shaved the rate of unemployment back to 6 percent, the government said Friday.

But seasonal adjustment removed nearly a million persons in the unemployment calculations, giving an equivalent 110,000 decline.

As the figures were announced, a high Labor Department official told reporters summoned by the White House that the January report shows a "change in trend. It's a change in direction."

Shortly afterwards, Hodgson appeared at the White House and told reporters he found it significant that the jobless rate has declined for the first time in many months.

From Democratic National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien, however, came a statement that "no amount of statistical juggling can hide the fact that unemployment is at its worst level since late 1961, when a Democratic administration was reducing the record unemployment rates inherited from the last Republican administration."

Although the Labor Department official said he was not prepared to predict that peak unemployment has been reached, he said, "I think you will see a definite improvement in the next six months."

President Nixon has pledged to bring the unemployment rate down to about 4.5 percent in mid-1972, ordering a vigorous expansion of the economy to achieve his goal.

The labor official minimized the 780,000 increase in unemployment, saying it is always higher in January and adding the government always uses seasonally adjusted figures.

The figures reported by the Bureau of Labor Statistics showed the jobless rate for workers covered by state unemployment compensation programs dropped from 4.2 to 3.7 per cent.

The average work week went up two-tenths of one per cent of 37.1 hours and the number of persons unemployed because of losing their last job fell by 250,000, the first decline in six months.

Harold Goldstein, assistant commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics said the decline in insured state employment was no indication the over-all jobless rate will come down.

As the figures were announced, a high Labor Department official told reporters summoned by the White House that the January report shows a "change in trend. It's a change in direction."

We have this war on poverty and we got our ships out and we got one that's lost. It's sunk. Let's face it. Write it off," said a Romney aide.

Romney is expected to decide within the next two weeks whether to accept the recommendation or try once more to find a formula that will make Pruitt-Igoe a fit place to live.

In 1968, police reported 10 murders, 14 rapes and 129 assaults at the project. Vandals cost at one point were running at $1,700 a day.

The latest murder victim was an 8-year-old girl, found slain and sexually molested before Christmas in one of the complex's hundreds of deserted apartments.

Scramble Begins For Rolls-Royce

LONDON — An international scramble to buy the prestigious Rolls-Royce automobile interests began Friday as the repercussions of the giant aerospace company's crash began rolling through the British economy.

Not only were an estimated 20,000 Rolls-Royce aircraft jobs at stake, but so too were the thousands of jobs provided by the many subcontractors working for Rolls, which asked to be placed in receivership.

The tiny Jensen Motor Co. announced it is seeking to form a British group to take over the manufacturing of Rolls-Royce cars.

Winston Churchill Jr., Conservative member of Parliament and grandson and namesake of Britain's wartime leader, said bids for the car division had already been made and more were expected to arrive from foreign interests.

No Changes for Clash with Badgers Today—

Iowa Seeks 3rd Big 10 Win in Row

By JAY EWOLDT
Sports Editor

Iowa basketball Coach Dick Schultz, whose squad put together its finest team effort in upsetting 15th-ranked Illinois Tuesday, hopes to keep that unity intact today when the Hawks meet Wisconsin at Madison at 3:30 p.m.

Schultz plans to start the same lineup that handed the Illini their first loss in a 92-84 shocker, although he indicated that post men Omar Hazley and Kevin Kunnert might play together in the lineup today.

Hazley and Kunnert turned in creditable performances in the Illinois game as they played together a good part of the game.

Kunnert, 6-11 center from Dubuque, scored 11 points, grabbed eight rebounds and blocked several shots while coming off the bench against Illinois as the Hawks won their second straight Big 10 contest after two early conference losses.

"We may make a lineup change at Wisconsin," said Schultz, "but I doubt it. We've won a couple of games and have a little momentum going and I don't want to do anything to harm it."

While the Hawks, picked to finish eighth in the Big 10 on the basis of a pre-season poll, have come alive to even their overall record at 7-7, the Badgers have had their troubles recently and stand 6-7 overall.

Wisconsin, considered a contender before the conference season began, is struggling with a 1-3 Big 10 mark.

Probable Lineups

IOWA	WISCONSIN
Grabinski, 6-6	F. Howard, 6-4
Williams, 6-5	F. Watson, 6-6
Hazley, 6-6	C. Richgels, 6-7
Lusk, 5-10	G. Sherrod, 6-2
Brown, 6-3	G. Fraser, 6-3

The Badgers have five players averaging in double figures. One of them, star guard Clarence Sherrod, was a high school teammate of Iowa's Fred Brown and ranks fourth in Big 10 scoring with a 27.5 average.

"Sherrod is one of the best players in the Big 10 or in the country, for that matter," said Schultz. "He's hurt us in the past. But Wisconsin has some good players

Consequently the Badgers' 1-3 conference mark doesn't accurately represent their ability. Michigan is 5-0 and stands alone atop the Big 10, while Illinois fell to 3-1 after its loss to Iowa.

Last year Iowa's Big 10 champions dashed to a 29-point halftime lead against the Badgers at Madison and hung on in the second half for one of the Hawks' 14 conference wins.

With only Brown returning from last year's squad, Iowa's road task will be that much more difficult. "A victory at Madison would be a big boost to us," said Schultz, who still considers his team "average" despite its recent strong showing.

"We could finish 500 or better in the conference," Schultz

Iowa Track Team Seeks 1st Win over Gophers in 9 Yrs.

The Iowa track team will try to defeat Minnesota for the first time in nine years when it entertains the Gophers today at 1 p.m. in a Big 10 indoor track meet in the Recreation Building.

Iowa, which beat Northern Illinois 104-36 last weekend, hasn't beaten the Gophers in a dual meet since 1962 and trails in the series 15-13. Last year Minnesota won, 90-60.

"This should be a very close meet," said Iowa Coach Francis Cretzmeyer. "Minnesota has its first meet and our marks were very similar."

Iowa bettered two school indoor records and won 12 of 16 events in its first home test.

Phil Wertman pole-vaulted 15-6 1/4, topping Iowa's previous indoor mark of 15-1 1/4 set by Don Ulsinger in 1958. John Teter and Lynn Ovesor also topped the old mark with 15-2 1/4 vaults.

Gary Shelly finished second in the triple jump, but still shattered Iowa's record of 41-10 1/4 set by Tefer last year.

Cretzmeyer was delighted with the performance of his young squad and felt it was one of Iowa's strongest showings in years.

A leg injury to veteran hurdler Bruce Presley could hamper the Hawkeye cause against Minnesota. Presley, Iowa's best all-around performer, is a doubtful performer.

Iowa Gymnasts Host MSU; Wrestlers, Swimmers Travel

Iowa's freshmen basketball squad, fresh off a sound victory over Blackhawk J.C., travels to Omaha Monday night to face the Creighton freshmen.

Coach Dick Kuchen's frosh, who have won four games in five starts, played their best game of the season last Tuesday night putting 97 points on the scoreboard and getting some fine play from five starters.

Harold Sullinger and Neil Fegebank continue to give the Hawks balanced scoring at the forward positions, averaging 22.6 and 18.0 points per game respectively. 6-6 center, Jim Collins has steadily improved and is now hitting 15.6 points a game.

Kuchen, commenting on Collins' play said, "Jim has made a lot of progress, but has been over-shadowed by the efforts of Harold Sullinger and Neil Fegebank."

No lineup changes are apparent for Monday night's game as Kuchen will most likely start Collins at center, Sullinger and Fegebank at the forwards and Reggie Vaughan and Tom Hurn at the backcourt positions.

LAVER SEEKS 9TH

NEW YORK (AP) — Australia's Rod Laver, given a $10,000 scare by Tom Okker the last time the two met, will try to make it nine victories in a row today against the Dutch ace when the $120,000 Tennis Champions Classic resumes at Madison Square Garden.

Vries won three matches to improve his record to 8-0 at the Field House's north gym.

The Hawkeyes are 2-2 overall after losing to Michigan and to Indiana in close meets last weekend. Iowa, which beat Oklahoma 158-24-157-35, is 0-1 in Big 10 meets.

Despite the sub-par performance, Schmitt is still encouraged about his young gymnasts and feels the Hawkeyes can score about 160 points against the Spartans.

One of Iowa's biggest surprises has been freshman Carl Walin. Walin won all-round honors in Iowa's victory over Western Illinois earlier this year.

Iowa leads the dual series between the two schools 10-7-1 after nipping Michigan State 157-157 last year.

A tough road test at Michigan today confronts Iowa's wrestlers, who are 7-2-1 overall and 4-1 in Big 10 competition.

Despite missing four regulars, the Hawkeyes won three meets last weekend by beating previously undefeated Northwestern, 28-6, Indiana, 27-11 and Arizona, 19-17.

177 pounds. Half of his wins have been pins.

Paul Zander (190) also won three matches to boost his mark to 6-1-2. Double-winners included Steve Natvig (118), Bill Stopperan (150), Todd Rhoades (158) and Jan Sander (160).

Iowa's swimmers, 2-2 overall, after their second straight Big 10 win today in a dual meet at Illinois. The Hawks downed Northwestern 71-52 in their initial test.

ALI NOT RATED

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — The World Boxing Association again omitted Muhammad Ali from its monthly ratings Friday even though the former world heavyweight champion will meet reigning champion Joe Frazier, in a title fight at New York, March 8.

The February ratings had unbeaten George Foreman, the 1968 Olympic heavyweight champion from Hayward, Calif., as the No. 1 contender behind champion Frazier, of Philadelphia.
