Future Actions Decided in Evening Meeting— Students to Face Regents

By LYNNE JOSLIN
Daily Iowan Reporter

The programs of action decided upon in the nine workshops held Wednesday afternoon were revealed to a mass meeting of approximately 500 students in the Union New Ballroom Wednesday night.

As a result of the mass meeting, three demands will be presented to the Board of Regents at its meeting Thursday morning at the Hospital School Conference Room.

The demands include the total withdrawal of U.S. forces from Vietnam and cessation of U.S. expansion in Indochina; an end to university complicity with the military and in particular the removal of ROTC from campus; and an end to layoffs of university workers and other workers throughout the U.S.

Other actions scheduled for Thursday include a demonstration-rally at 11 a.m. in the Union Gold Feather Lobby. The demonstrators plan to discuss the role of the Bank of America in the war in Indochina with the recruiter who will be interviewing at the Union Placement Center.

Another rally will meet in the Gold Feather Lobby at 6:30 p.m. and march to the Recreation Building to participate in the Pershing Rifle drill practice at 7:30 p.m. This action will be taken specifically to protest the presence of ROTC on the University of Iowa campus.

The Workshop Coordinating Committee, in an effort to assure a continuity of action in the proposed programs of the nine workshops, has arranged a second informational meeting for Wednesday night, Feb. 24.

As indicated in the message from Student Body President Bo Beller, the strike activities will be aimed at a continuing dialogue within the classroom.

One of the workshops, Open up the University, suggested that today be used to discuss the present structure of the university, as well as the war.

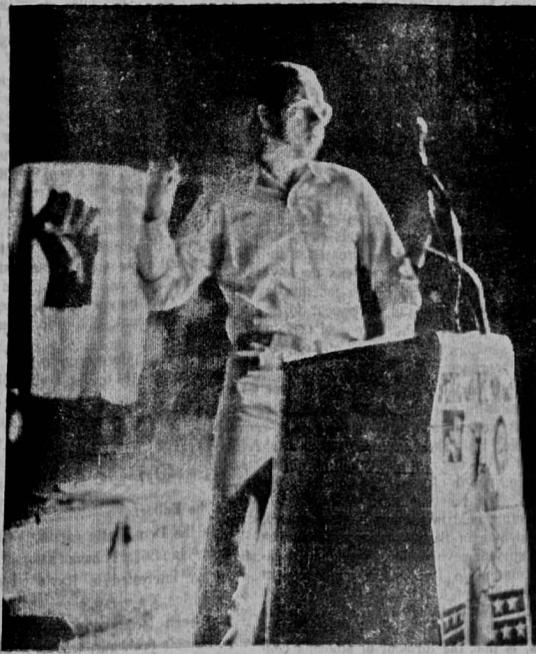

The workshop will also institute a program to bring about the abolition of "elitist-racist admission procedures at the university."

Confusion between the programs and the demands caused some argument among the various group representatives at one point during the mass meeting.

As a result, an attempt to vote support for the numerous demands had to be abandoned.

GIs Set to Invade N. Viet Coastline

SAIGON (AP) — The United States has placed a landing force of 1,500 Marines armed with artillery and tanks off South Vietnam's northern coast to counter a possible North Vietnamese thrust in retaliation for the Laos incursion, it was learned Thursday.

Battle-tested Leathernecks of the 3rd Division, which operated along the DMZ until it was withdrawn from South Vietnam in 1969, are reported standing off the northern coast on ships of the 7th Fleet.

The U.S. Command said it would have no comment.

On the western front, U.S. and Thieu forces drove 25 miles inside southern Laos Wednesday and seized Sepone, a major supply center, apparently against little resistance. The South Vietnamese also reported they blew up two large ammunition depots.

As anti-Communists pushed deeper into Laos, it was disclosed that Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky had warned that they could meet disaster unless the North Vietnamese are cut off from their bases. He said an invasion of North Vietnam across the demilitarized zone might be necessary at some point.

A Statement From Bo Beller

Laos has been invaded. If we, as students and human beings, are truly outraged at this act by a government which purports to represent us, the only question is how can we manifest that outrage in a plan of action which is truly constructive and truly relevant to our lives.

We need to look at ourselves, at our environment. What are we doing here, at this University, while "our" government is murdering people in Laos, in Cambodia, in North and South Vietnam, in Ghana, Guatemala, in our own country? To say that we have no relationship to this mass murder is a feeble rationalization for doing nothing about it.

But what can we do? It seems to me that as a first step we must take a good, hard look at the way we are living our lives, right here, right now. Perhaps the very activity we are involved in as students is functioning to make us into products that will fit into the same machinery which is killing people throughout the world.

I urge everyone in the community to return to (or stay in) their classes with the provision that all classes be devoted to the discussion of the situation we find ourselves in, to confront our teachers and ourselves in order to discover the real source of our collective power and our collective outrage that we may direct ourselves to an effective means of stopping this machinery of war.

I urge all concerned students to make use of their classes on today and tomorrow to challenge every other member of each class, including the instructor, to become equally concerned; to question the nature and motives of their involvement in that classroom; to discuss the ways in which this involvement relates to the invasion of Laos; and to report the results of these confrontations to the Daily Iowan. Stopping the invasion of Laos means among other things, stopping the invasion of our "humanity" by the repressive elements of this university, and by our own apathetic complicity with these elements. Invade your classrooms. Strike there.

Teach-in

Teach-in Draws 1,500 Participants

By JUDY SCHULTZ
Daily Iowan Reporter

"Welcome to the teach-in, students faculty, staff, outside agitators and spies from the Central Intelligence Agency."

Nearly 1,500 students gathered in the Main Lounge of the Union laughed at the opening statement, but the rest of Wednesday morning and afternoon was spent in serious discussion of the war in Southeast Asia and what to do about it.

Robert Dykstra, associate professor of history, outlined the history of U.S. intervention in Southeast Asia.

Dykstra told the students how the United States broke the Geneva Convention agreements by intervening in Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia.

"The United States must bear the primary guilt for the war in Southeast Asia," Dykstra said.

David Hamilton, assistant professor of history, told the group at the teach-in that the real atrocity of the war was not the My Lai massacre, but the heavy bombardment of the Vietnamese countryside.

"The U.S. is committing daily acts of barbarism in the name of civilization," he said. "By bombing the countryside we're forcing the peasants into the cities where they can be controlled more easily by the South Vietnamese government."

Howard Ehrlich, associate professor of sociology, warned those at the teach-in that "Imperialistic war requires domestic repression and this is its ultimate result."

Tim Gardner of the American Friends Service Committee urged an end to the draft, claiming that nearly 30 per cent of the men now drafted each month refuse to appear or refuse induction.

Another suggestion for ending the war was the People's Peace Treaty, explained to the crowd by Tim Yaeger, A3, of the New University Conference.

Yaeger called the People's Peace Treaty "our best hope of ending the war... the new backbone of the movement."

He contended that the treaty expresses the aspirations of both American and Vietnamese peoples and will help coordinate their actions against the war.

The crowd then heard the statement of a former "gung-ho militarist," Dick Phillips, A1, related his conversion from a Richard Nixon supporter in 1965 to a Vietnam veteran against the war.

"I knew how to return fire. I knew how to administer first-aid. I was ready for everything. But for the poverty and destruction I was not prepared. For a father procuring patrons for his thirteen-year-old daughter's services in order to support his family, I was not prepared," Phillips said.

Another Vietnam veteran, Don Pugsley, AI, received a standing ovation for recounting his experiences as a medic.

Pugsley described the wounds caused by shock waves from M-16 bullets: "It turns bones to powder and muscles to mush. You don't have to aim it, just shoot off a burst of fire into the brush and destroy everything," he said.

"When you realize how disgusting the tools of war are, you realize how disgusting war is. You're not disgusted with the M-16, you're disgusted with war," he said.

Students in the crowd gave various reasons for attending the teach-in. One woman who was passing through the Union said she didn't think the teach-in was publicized enough.

"I don't think it will change much. I think from the experience we had last spring, we can all see that a strike doesn't do much good. What would be more effective would be going out into the community and trying to change people's minds. A strike goes at the problem indirectly. It's not aiming at anything," she said.

Commented one man, "I came because I'm ready for a deadline. I'm through demonstrating and I'm ready for violent action."

The crowd later split into workshop sessions, with 30 to 40 members in each group.

Confrontation

Berkeley, Baltimore Anti-War Protests Violent

By The Associated Press

Demonstrations were held in several U.S. cities Wednesday to protest the South Vietnamese military incursion into Laos, and violence broke out in Berkeley, Calif., and Baltimore.

Most of the demonstrations were peaceful, but tear gas was used to break up demonstrators at Berkeley, and six policemen were hospitalized after a 45-minute melee as a crowd marched on a federal building in Baltimore.

In addition, there was a flag burning and scattered rock throwing at Boston as a crowd marched to the center of town after an antiwar rally at Boston Common.

About 600 demonstrators marched on an Atomic Energy Commission office in downtown Berkeley and threw rocks and bottles and set an AEC car on fire. Police broke up the demonstrators with tear gas. One policeman reportedly was cornered by a group of demonstrators and suffered a head injury.

At Baltimore, the policemen were injured after about 300 persons marched from the Ware Memorial Auditorium to Hopkins Plaza and broke several windows.

In Boston, an estimated 4,000 persons attended an hour-long antiwar rally at the Boston Common. Then, most of the crowd started a march to the center of town that took them to Northeast University, nearly two miles away.

Early in the march, at Copley Square, two or three young demonstrators draped an American flag over a no parking sign and set it on fire. Three policemen moved in, pulled it down and stamped out the flames.

An estimated 500 young persons swarmed through the Social Science Building at the University of Wisconsin in Madison and interrupted an auditorium class which was immediately dismissed by a professor.

The demonstrators moved throughout the building and vowed they would not leave until thrown out. Riot-equipped police physically removed several demonstrators from an office in the building.

In Des Moines, several young demonstrators staged a sit-in and blocked the door to the office of the Polk County Selective Service Board.

Oppression: Here and there

So it was said all over again. Teach-ins were, of course, the means of educating hundreds of thousands of students in the middle part of the last decade. It worked once. And there were students yesterday in the Iowa Memorial Union listening to the chilling statistics and the touching, frightening, eye-witness from Indochina who were in junior high school, perhaps even grade school, when teach-ins were the means of turning vague dissatisfaction into a movement.

Maybe it will work again and perhaps another generation of students can be convinced that, as one of yesterday's speakers put it, the war does not begin with the nightly ABC newscast and end with the CBS newscast.

But in order to avoid the past mistakes of the anti-war movement, it will be necessary to build a new movement, a multi-faceted movement, one which recognizes the relationship between oppression abroad and oppression at home.

The university — contrary to its claims — is not apolitical. Its bondholders, its rulers, its classroom structure are political. And the university perpetuates a class system in this country.

Action: Be it resolved that this institution shall not feed the War Machine and the class structure of this society. Lowell May —

For an economic boycott

To the Editor:

As a member of the Campus Chapter of the International League for Peace and Freedom, I would like to express my great concern over the growing United States involvement in Southeast Asia, especially the recent aggression in Laos.

As an organization, we have expressed this concern by participation in a "Shoppers' Stoppage" — or a "never on Tuesday" boycott of the war (not the store). We sincerely believe that the war in Indochina is basically an economic effort, and that the consumer can show concern for the war in a non-violent way by not shopping on Tuesdays. The Shoppers' Stoppage, just begun this past fall, is gaining momentum and the results are beginning to be felt.

In order to involve the community of Iowa City and the university community in a united effort against the war, the Campus Chapter of the International League for Peace and Freedom has been canvassing the city, distributing information, and gathering pledges of never-on-Tuesday shoppers.

For more information concerning the International League for Peace and Freedom, the Shoppers' Stoppage, or the city canvassing (we need volunteers), please call 351-1174 and ask for Shelly.

Letters: Abortion, bldgs., apathy

To the Editor:

I would like to inform the Daily Iowan and its subscribers of my intention to mail a copy of the Alcoa ad in the Feb. 9 Daily Iowan to Ralph Nader in support of the campaign against deceptive and fraudulent advertising involving the issue of ecology. Any additional support against the advertisement should also be sent to them by your readers.

Since the ad asks if I am turned on by the idea of an aluminum 2x4 because it conserves the use of "beautiful green trees" I would publicly like to inform Alcoa that I'm not. You see the ad doesn't tell people that the mining of bauxite (aluminum ore) leaves a great big hole in the ground. Now it's a little bit harder to replace that dirt than it is to plant another tree as the lumber companies do to replace those they use. At this time I have yet to learn of any aluminum producer which is attempting to solve this problem. For that reason I am not turned on by a company attempt to fraudulently portray itself as a non-pollutant at the expense of another industry.

To the Editor:

At the end of this week, the Iowa Legislature will open discussion on a bill that has great relevance for students. This bill will allow women who are up to 20 weeks pregnant who have lived in Iowa for 60 days, and who have the consent of their doctor to have an abortion.

While only a small number of Iowans favor the existing abortion law (11 per cent according to the Des Moines Register's Iowa Poll), those Iowans opposed to the reform bill have organized a letter writing campaign. Some legislators say that the letters have run 100 to one against reform. Senator Charlene Conklin, the main sponsor of the bill, said that there are "deep and frightening implications that threaten our representative system of government when a letter-writing campaign from a minority of people can begin to sway legislators." The only way to change this trend is to write letters in support of the bill to those legislators who are either undecided or against it. Send your letter to: State Capital, Des Moines, Iowa, 50319.

The following is a partial list of representatives who are undecided:

- Johnston (1st district) Lipsky Menefee Strand And those against: Camp, Ellsworth, Mendenhall, Sorg, Taylor, Tieden, Blouin, Dunton, Husak, Kennedy, McCormick, Norpel, Patton, Wells, Wyckoff.

To the Editor:

It is my understanding that the Recreation Building is open for the use of all students, since their tuition and fees helped to build the mammoth structure. The facilities are also utilized by the faculty members and citizens of the community. Because both my husband and I are students at the university, we assumed that our daughter could accompany us in our recreational activities. We were informed otherwise, for it appears that the use of the building is restricted for the children of the students. I believe this is unjust.

On Tuesday, I brought my active two-year-old to the building when it was almost empty so that we could run around and get some exercise. Living in the barracks may be inexpensive and convenient, but the space is limited and with the inclement winter weather, my daughter is no longer able to play outside and get necessary exercise. After we ran a few laps along the side of the floor, we were informed we would have to leave for "children were not allowed in the building."

This unfair rule, I was told, is policy dictated from "higher up". Maybe some type of policy should be created to avoid the Saturday and Sunday congestion in the Recreation Building but completely eliminating the use of the building for children except on one night a week is an unfair and unjust decision. Such a decision will contribute to a society with limited interest in activity and exercise, a society in which people would rather be spectators than participants.

I appeal to the people "higher up" on the Recreation Board to review and alter this present policy.

Ronnie Silver, G 235 Stadium Park

To the Editor:

I think it's high time for the students in the University of Iowa to change their predominantly apathetic attitudes. A large majority of the students complain long and loud about the increases in tuition. But how many students do anything about it? One reason for this is that most of the students appear to be uninformed about the actions of certain state senators and the Board of Regents. But ignorance is no excuse.

A few concerned students are making attempts to educate the majority of students with little or no success. For example, last Thursday, a meeting was held to discuss this problem of increased tuition and to offer solutions to the problem. The meeting was an Association Meeting held in Rienow I. Mike Vance, chairman of the Legislature Committee in student government, presented the information to the students. Vance was available for any questions the students may have had. The sad fact about this attempt to help students help themselves, is that the turn-out of students consisted of 17 people.

Maybe no one actually does care about the increased tuition that will be paid if the cut in appropriations isn't stopped. Maybe someone will care when the increase goes through, and the students are paying more money next year. But then it will be too late.

Iowa is now ranked among the top 10 state universities in tuition costs. I, myself, can think of at least 10 other state universities that can offer more in acaademic opportunities than the University of Iowa.

So what's the answer? TAKE ACTION! Stop apathetic attitudes. Write Gov. Ray, Lt. Gov. Jepsen, the Board of Regents, and the state senators, and express your viewpoints on tuition increases. In particular, write Sen. Francis Messerly, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, Rep. John Camp, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, and the senator from your district. Talk to President Boyd and Dean Huit and let them know your opinions. Address your letters to the person to whom you're writing, State House, Des Moines, Iowa. If you are an officer or if you hold another prominent position, sign your letters as such. Honest discussions and respectful letters that show sincere concern and intelligence can do no harm. And who knows, it just may help. Be a concerned, educated student, and help better the university.

On Gov. Ray

To the Editor:

As the Democratic candidate for governor in 1968, I have naturally been keenly interested in Ray's conduct in the office. On a few occasions, when he has been faced with seemingly insurmountable problems, I have said to myself, in effect, "There, but for the Grace of God, am I." Indeed, I have endeavored to be sympathetic, and Gov. Ray could attest to the fact that he and I have discussed this.

The time has come, however, when I can no longer remain silent. It is enough that Ray has continued to derogate the economic gains of the Hughes years during which I served as vice chairman of the Iowa Development Commission, authored the "Sell Iowa" trips, and served two terms as state treasurer.

It was enough, moreover, that I heard Ray say repeatedly during our 1968 campaign (although he knew better, as I repeatedly stated and proved to joint audiences) that the Democrats had "frittered away the state surplus." Having been the Republican State Chairman he knew as well as I that it was a Republican legislative majority which voted these appropriations and he also knew that Democratic legislatures, because of their lesser numbers, could not possibly have reduced the state surplus by themselves.

What is now truly remarkable is that Ray, in his Jan. 27 budget message to the General Assembly, once again referred to a "bare financial cupboard" when he entered office two years ago. First, of course, his statement was untrue because he was actually left a treasury balance. Second, he nonchalantly glossed over the deficit (purported to be about $11 1/2 million) which his administration in its first term left for his second term. Interestingly, Ray attributes much of the difficulty to a slackening of the national economy which, also interestingly, occurred during the first two years of the Nixon administration.

The facts are that not only will Robert Ray's administration totally have exhausted the Hughes balance and the tax dollars collected since, but it has also used $10 million "borrowed" from road funds, plus some $800,000 interest newly derived from Korean War Bonus funds, plus $500,000 from the Feed the Fertilizer trust funds. All of these monies, and more, went into the General Fund while Ray proudly proclaimed that "our spending has been kept within the budget."

Not once, however, in his 1969 budget message, did he suggest procuring dollars from established funds for the general operation of state government. Nor should we overlook here the fact that the 1969 budget was drawn partly through the withdrawal of the sales tax credits (these credits having been established under Gov. Hughes to offset the disproportionately high sales taxes paid by low income families). Nor only were the credits withdrawn for the years 1969 and 1970, but worse still, retroactively denied for the year 1968.

There is real irony in all this, for Ray would have Iowans believe the Republican leadership to be cautious and wise in fiscal matters. The truth is that he is even a poorer governor than I predicted he would be, in the 1968 campaign. As a Democrat, perhaps I should be pleased. Instead, as an Iowa citizen, I am disturbed and angry.

Mastering the Draft

Reopening Your Classification

"Reopening" is the most important and least understood step in the selective service process. Unless you can persuade the draft board to "reopen" your classification and reconsider it, you may never gain the new reclassification you desire.

No classification can ever be changed until it has first been reopened for thorough reconsideration. Reopening is a preliminary screening process. It siphons off claims for reclassification that do not even warrant the board's consideration.

If the board decides not to reopen your classification, no further time will be spent to determine whether you should actually be reclassified. You will merely be notified that your case did not warrant a reopening.

Draft boards grossly abuse their power to reopen, because every reopening triggers consequences which stall the conveyor belt edging you toward induction.

First of all, whenever your classification is reopened, the draft board must perform the task of reclassifying you. The board can legally decide to reclassify you in the very same classification you were trying to leave. Nevertheless, you can fight such a decision.

Following the reclassification, you have 30 days in which to request a "personal appearance" before your draft board. During this period, and while the appearance remains pending, no valid induction order can be issued to you.

The appearance at which you contest your reclassification will result in still another classification decision.

Within 30 days after that decision, you can request an appeal to the state appeal board. Throughout this second 30-day period, and until the appeal is resolved, you cannot be sent a valid induction order.

The procedural delays accompanying reopening, reclassification, a personal appearance, and an appeal may consume from two to six months (or more). During this time you cannot be issued an induction order — regardless of your lottery number.

Therefore, many draft boards arbitrarily refuse to reopen even when reopening is warranted. These boards know that you have no right to a personal appearance or an appeal when reopening is refused; your rights arise only after the reclassification that must follow every reopening.

Although Selective Service Regulations give draft boards discretion in deciding whether to reopen, the United States Supreme Court recently clamped down on the arbitrary abuse of discretion. In Mulloy v. United States (398 U.S. 410) the court ruled that an arbitrary refusal to reopen unfairly deprives the registrant of his basic procedural rights to a personal appearance and appeal.

The Mulloy case lays down strong guidelines for processing requests for reopening and reclassification: "Where a registrant makes nonfrivolous allegations of facts that have not been previously considered by his board, and that, if true, would be sufficient under regulation or statute to warrant granting the requested reclassification, the board must reopen the registrant's classification unless the truth of these new allegations is conclusively refuted by other reliable information in the registrant's file." (emphasis added).

Under Mulloy your draft board must reopen if your request meets the Supreme Court's specifications. Your board cannot avoid reopening by arbitrarily disbelieving the truth of your claim. Instead, the truth must be refuted "conclusively" — not just "possibly," or even "probably," but conclusively — before reopening can be refused. This refutation cannot be based on mere suspicion or idle hearsay. It must depend upon your "reliable" information — not hints or unsubstantiated suggestions — already in your selective service file. You would be well advised to inspect your file submitting your reopening request.

Mulloy made reopening so easy to obtain that the government protested (unsuccessfully) that the court was, in effect, allowing many young men to delay an induction order indefinitely. The court was unimpressed with this argument, observing only that "... the board need not reopen where the claim is plainly incredible, or where, even if true, it would not warrant reclassification, or where the claim has already been passed on, or where the claim itself is conclusively refuted by other information in the applicant's file."

If you think your board has denied you a reopening in violation of the Mulloy rule, consult an attorney in order to confirm your suspicions. Failure to follow Mulloy arbitrarily denies you due process of law. As your attorney will advise you, an induction order issued in violation of due process is invalid.

Please continue sending your proposals for draft reform to us at "Mastering the Draft," Suite 1202, 60 East 42nd Street, New York, N.Y. 10017. We want to take your ideas to Washington.

ARH Plans Charity Projects

A possible book-selling project, a plan to rent busses to carry dormitory students to basketball games and a proposed "Walk for Development" were discussed Wednesday night at an Associated Residence Halls (ARH) meeting.

The "Walk for Development" or "Hunger Hike," now scheduled for May 2, is an ARH project designed to raise funds for charities.

Funds raised by the hike will go to both domestic and foreign charities: 15 per cent to the American Freedom from Hunger Association, 42.5 per cent to various foreign charities, and 42.5 per cent to American charities.

A similar project held in Iowa City two years ago raised more than $1,200. Mike Dahm, B4, coordinator of the hike, said that the project is a community as well as a university function, and said that he hoped the hike would "dramatize the existence of hunger not only in the United States, but throughout the world."

In other action, ARH decided to run busses for dormitory students for the next three home basketball games. The busses will run from 5:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m.

U.S. Civilian Photographers Killed Over Laos Panhandle

SAIGON (AP) — A South Vietnamese helicopter carrying four civilian news photographers was shot down over the Ho Chi Minh trail in Laos on Wednesday apparently killing them and seven other persons aboard.

Among those missing and presumed dead were three of the best-known combat photographers of the Indochina war: Henri Huet, 43, of The Associated Press, Larry Burrows, 44, of Life magazine and Kent Potter, 24, of United Press International.

Others aboard were Keisaburo Shimamoto of Japan's Pan-Asia Newspaper Alliance; Sgt. Tu Vu, a Vietnamese army photographer, two senior Vietnamese officers and the four-man crew.

A second South Vietnamese helicopter was shot down at the same time, with at least its four crewmen killed. It was not known if it was carrying any passengers. Huet and Burrows were winners of the Capa award for courageous photography.

At the time of Wednesday's crash, the worst of the war involving civilian press, the photographers were covering the South Vietnamese push aimed at breaching the Ho Chi Minh trail in the Laotian panhandle. U.S. helicopter pilots who witnessed the incident said one of the South Vietnamese aircraft exploded in the air when hit.

The other lost its trail boom and main rotor and "dropped like an egg" into the rugged mountain jungle, where it exploded and burned.

Bears Boast Only Full Unit In Football's Hall of Fame

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Bears, with end Bill Hewitt the latest addition, now can claim the only complete team lineup in pro football's Hall of Fame.

"We needed another end and the late Bill Hewitt rounds it out," commented owner George Halas Wednesday of a Bear array of 13 Hall of Fame members representing a formidable line-up at least in the rugged days of one-platoon football.

Hewitt, fatally injured in a 1947 auto accident almost a decade after his playing days ended, was among seven new members named last week to the pro football shrine at Canton, Ohio. Who's the other end among the Bear Hall of Famers who spent the major part of their National Football League careers with the Chicago club?

None other than Halas himself, 76-year-old founder and former playing-coach of the Bears.

Said Halas: "Now in the Hall we have Sid Luckman as a quarterback; Red Grange and George McAfee as halfbacks, Bronco Nagurski at fullback, Bulldog Turner or George Trafton at center, Joe Stydahar and Link Lyman at tackles and Dan Fortmann and Ed Healey at guards.

"For a good spare halfback, there's Paddy Driscoll.

"That's 13 men which isn't far under the 18-player limit set by the then-young NFL from 1922 through 1924 when, incidentally, the league also set a salary limit of $1,800 for the entire squad."

Halas described Hewitt as "absolutely fearless," an all-league end, who played without a helmet for the Bears from 1932 until he was traded to Philadelphia in 1937.

Hewitt will be enshrined in the Hall July 31 along with the late Vince Lombardi, whose Green Bay Packers dominated the NFL in the 1960s, and five other players.

They include fullback Jim Brown, defensive end Andy Rustelli, quarterbacks Y. A. Tittle and Norm Van Brocklin and tackle Frank "Bruiser" Kinnard.

May Name New Card Boss Today

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals are expected to name their new head coach Thursday or Friday, with two former bosses of National Football League clubs considered the leading candidates.

Cardinal owners Charles W. "Stormy" and William V. "Bill" Bidwill were reported out of town Wednesday and were unavailable for comment.

But a source close to the club, which last season nosedived following a bid for the NFL's National Conference East title, said former Detroit coach Harry Gilmer and ex-Washington coach Bill McPeak are among those being considered.

The 44-year-old Gilmer directed receivers for the Atlanta Falcons in 1970 after assisting deposed Cardinal coach Charley Winner the three previous years.

Gilmer, a former NFL quarterback, was head coach of the Lions for two seasons prior to his Cardinals stint. Before that he assisted the Pittsburgh Steelers and Minnesota Vikings.

McPeak, also 44, served a fourth season as offensive coach for Detroit last fall after a 1961-65 term as head coach of the Redskins.

Stormy Bidwill, Cardinal president, said two weeks ago the club had no intention of hiring a successor to Winner from the college coaching ranks.

Leading by 9— ISU Loses In Overtime

AMES, Iowa (AP) — Iowa State squandered a nine-point lead in the second half and lost its seventh straight 69-67 to Nebraska in overtime here Tuesday night.

The Huskers, who trailed almost from the outset, were behind 59-50 with eight minutes to play. They reeled off ten straight points on three baskets by Chuck Jura and two by Al Nissen to gain a 60-59 lead with 5:17 to play.

Each team led briefly until Iowa State's Gene Mack tied it at 63-63 with 1:44. Nebraska, forced to shoot over a Cyclone defense all night, played for one shot, but Marvin Stewart's 25-foot shot missed.

The Huskers went four points up on baskets by Tony Riehl and Nissen. A basket by Jack DeVilder with 1:39 left trimmed the deficit to two for the Cyclones, but Nissen was fouled and made one of two free throws 40 seconds later.

Mack, who led all scorers with 26 points, fired in a short jumper with 17 seconds to go, but Nissen added a free throw with seven seconds for the final difference. DeVilder missed a 30-footer at the gun for ISU.

Palmer One-Down in Desert Classic— Tourney Lead to Fleckman

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Long-troubled Marty Fleckman carved out a six-under-par 66 for a one-stroke lead over Arnold Palmer in the first round Wednesday of the five-day 90-hole Bob Hope Desert Classic Golf Tournament.

"It's probably the best round of my career," the darkly handsome 26-year-old from Port Arthur, Tex., said after his effort at LaQuinta, one of four desert courses being used in this marathon which carries a $140,000 total purse.

Palmer had a 67, also at LaQuinta, and was tied with four others for second place.

Italian rookie Roberto Bernardini and three relatively unknown regulars on the tour — Bill Brask, Joe Carr and Larry Wood — all played Indian Wells in 67.

Former PGA champion Ray Floyd, Ted Hayes and George Hixon, followed at 68. Hayes played Tamarisk, Floyd at LaQuinta and Hixon at Indian Wells.

The best score at Bermuda Dunes, the fourth course, was a 69 by several players.

Masters champion Billy Casper had a 71 while 1970's leading money winner, Lee Trevino, and Tom Shaw, the only double winner of this year, matched 72s, all at LaQuinta.

Under the unusual format for this event, the 136 pros all play one round on each of the four courses, shifting three-man amateur teams each day. After 72 holes, the field is cut to the low 70 pros for the finals at Bermuda Dunes.

Fleckman had a brilliant amateur career before turning professional in 1967. He won the first tournament in which he was eligible to receive money, the 1967 Cajun Classic, and was hailed as potentially one of the brightest young stars on the tour.

He was in the top 60 money winners the following year, then went into a decline the next, winning only $4,995.

Beta Theta Pi Advances in Cage Tourney

Beta Theta Pi proved to be one point better than Phi Kappa Psi in each half of play in the Intramural Basketball Tournament. They held an 18-17 half time lead and won 38-36 to advance to second round play Thursday night.

In Hillcrest action, however, O'Connor house came from seven points behind at the half to nip Bush house 26-25. Rienow I-Floor 12 pulled a similar feat to stun Rienow II-Floor 3 24-23.

All three winning teams had been second place finishers in their respective leagues and the three losers were first in their respective leagues. Second place teams have been causing plenty of trouble in playoff action. In 16 encounters, the second place finishers have come off better 10 times.

In other action Fenton beat Steindler 31-11; Rienow II-Floor 2 whipped Rienow II-Floor 7 & 8, 38-27; Trowbridge romped over Phillips 42-20; the Souls Unlimited squeezed by the Parasites 42-35; the Dealers II edged the Huskies 39-30; Pine Jocks beat the Blitzers 43-24; and Sigma Phi Epsilon romped over Tau Kappa Epsilon 39-25.

Seniors Plan To Stage Cage Benefits

Ten football seniors at the University of Iowa have formed a basketball team and are interested in playing benefit games in the area. Persons interested should call Tom Hayes at 351-1815 in Iowa City.

"We're interested in helping worthy causes," said Tom. Other players on the team include Kerry Reardon, Jim Miller, Dennis Green, Jim Douglas, Dave Clement, Dave Brooks, Marcos Melendez, Layne McDowell and Dan McDonald.

WHITE TO BROADCAST— NEW YORK (AP) — Bill White, former major league first baseman, was named Wednesday as a broadcaster for the New York Yankees, the first black to hold such a job in the majors.

Ex-Iowa Coach Near Retirement as Academic Counselor— Raffensperger Helps Keep Athletes Eligible

By JAY EWOLDT
Sports Editor

Leonard Raffensperger, former Iowa head football coach and now academic counselor for the athletic department, had never seen a football game before he came to Iowa in 1923.

Raffensperger, who will retire next year at the mandatory age of sixty-eight, was born and raised in Victor, Iowa, where high school football was not offered.

"You might say I played in the first football game I saw when I went out for freshman football," said Raffensperger, who was head football coach at Iowa for two years from 1950-1952.

Raffensperger, a 1927 graduate of the University of Iowa, spent over 20 years coaching high school sports and five years coaching at the University before being named academic counselor in 1952. Now nearing retirement, he looks back with satisfaction at his long athletic career.

"I get a great feeling of satisfaction to see an athlete go through here and make good," said Raffensperger, whose main job is to keep athletes eligible and moving toward graduation.

"We try to keep a check on the players. We don't ask instructors to help them — that would offend them and only add fuel to the fire," he said. "We ask the teacher to keep us informed of a player's progress, treat them nice and stay away from pressuring them. We don't tell the teacher, 'this guy is a star athlete so keep him eligible,' we just ask the instructor what the athlete's problem is."

Another of Raffensperger's chief tasks is to arrange tutoring for athlete's who desire or require it.

"A player's athletic scholarship includes tutoring and something less than half the athletes take advantage of it," said Raffensperger, who majored in business and earned his master's degree in education from Iowa in 1942.

Noting the 3.43 overall grade point average of the Iowa tennis team a year ago, Raffensperger pointed out that many athletes are fine students and some return after their years of eligibility to tutor other athletes.

"Jim Andrews was one of the best tennis players in the conference and in the nation and was still an 'A' student," he said. "Now Jim is an attorney in Waterloo," said Raffensperger. Dennis Pauling, a graduate in engineering and former captain of the Iowa basketball team, and former football and basketball player Fred Riddle were given by Raffensperger as examples of fine student-athletes who later tutored in their area of concentration.

"At least three football players I coached are now doctors, but it's unfair to mention a few — there are probably 50 or 60 more players I should mention," Raffensperger said.

Raffensperger has seen many players — and coaches — come and go in his 30 years at Iowa and has detected a dynamic change between athletes today and those of 20 years ago.

"We've had a lot better and more ambitious students since 1952," said Raffensperger. "It used to be only the 'D' and 'F' students who wanted tutoring. Now if a boy is close to a 'B' he wants tutoring to make sure he gets it," he explained. "You didn't hear of that 10 years ago."

Athletic scholarships were nonexistent when Raffensperger succeeded Eddie Anderson as head coach in 1950 and financial aid for athletes didn't become acceptable until 1952.

"You could get them jobs, but we couldn't give them anything and we more or less took what came," Raffensperger said. "When scholarships plans first came into being, Iowa had what you could call the 'Golden Years' — the Rose Bowl years," he said. "In those years we had good football players, but they didn't care about anything else."

"You'd be surprised to look at a Rose Bowl roster and see how few graduated — half of them wouldn't even be eligible to enter Iowa today," said Raffensperger.

"In those days athletes wanted to compete, but didn't care if they graduated. Today more boys definitely want to graduate," he said.

Raffensperger said he expects nearly all the Iowa senior football players to graduate, although not necessarily on time.

Raffensperger said ineligibility is seldom a problem in football, but in sports such as basketball where play extends over two semesters, no Iowa basketball players became scholastically ineligible this semester although a few had difficulties and freshman star Harold Sullinger will be temporarily ineligible until he completes incomplete work in a course.

Although he says Iowa has not had too many problems considering the size of the school, Raffensperger recalls one particularly bad instance.

That was during Sharm Scherman's coaching days when Iowa lost four regulars at mid-term during Don Nelson's senior year. All except Nelson flunked and did not play at all second semester.

Raffensperger, who played guard and tackle on Iowa's football teams of 1924 and 1925 and was the regular center on the 1924-25 basketball team, joked about his basketball ability.

"I led the Big 10 in personal fouls," he said. "I guess I was a little rough around the edges." At 6-2, he was one of the tallest centers in the conference in those days.

Raffensperger's two-year record as head coach at Iowa was 5-10-3 overall and 2-9-1 in the Big 10. He was succeeded in 1952 by Forest Evashevski. Raffensperger's career coaching record was 115-58-17.

Raffensperger has three sons and a daughter. One son, Gene, is a city editor for the Des Moines Register and Raffensperger himself intended on majoring in journalism although he ended up never taking a single course.

Israel's Eban Urges Study Of Meir Plan

By The Associated Press

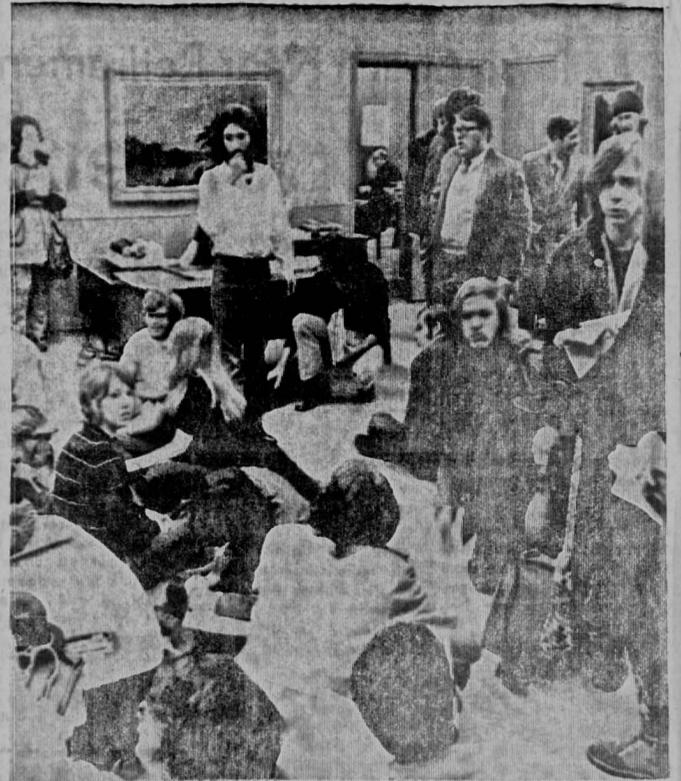

Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban called on Egypt Wednesday to lift its 30-day deadline on the latest Middle East cease-fire and urged it to take a second look at Premier Golda Meir's Suez Canal proposals before turning them down.

Eban told a news conference that the March 7 limit imposed by Egyptian President Anwar Sadat does not create the proper atmosphere for free and fruitful talks on the complex issues at stake.

The foreign minister said Cairo spokesman Mahmoud Hafez acted "precipitately" on Tuesday in asserting that Mrs. Meir had turned down Sadat's proposals for reopening the Suez Canal.

Hafez also rejected Ms. Meir's counterproposal that Israel and Egypt agree to a mutual cutback of their forces along the canal. The de-escalation suggestion of Israel's premier had been viewed by many as a bid to meet Egypt halfway on its demands for a partial Israeli pullback before opening the canal again.

"The Egyptian government is now in a position as a result of recent Israeli initiatives to move the situation positively forward," Eban said.

"You can't measure it by money. Thinking in terms of the good it's going to do people is reward in itself," said a local carpenter, Gene Englebrecht, of the new Free Medical Clinic in River City Free Trade Zone. Englebrecht is donating time to help construct the clinic.

Paul Goellner, M3, one of the organizers of the clinic, said, "There were people coming to me that weren't having their problems taken care of."

"I wanted to help alleviate those problems."

The clinic is being erected on the second floor of River City, with construction workers as well as students donating time to help partition the area.

"There will be three examining rooms, one waiting room and a combination office and lab," Goellner said.

The clinic, Goellner stated, will be run mostly by medical students assisted by doctors from University Hospitals. Among those doctors are Donal Dunphy, chairman of the Department of Pediatrics; James A. Clifton, chairman of the Department of Internal Medicine, and John C. MacQueen, associate dean of the College of Medicine.

Goellner said, "Most equipment will be simple tools . . . tools medical students have."

"We will try to borrow equipment from various other doctors in the community. We could use help with equipment and money," he said.

Goellner said that clinic associates will engage in various money making activities, such as rock concerts, to finance the clinic. He also stated that the business community has contributed $700 to the free clinic.

Medication to be distributed will be that which drug companies give as free samples.

Goellner said construction of the clinic should be completed in 10 days and operation should begin in about three weeks. The clinic will probably be open one to two nights a week.

Death Count at 46— Quake Toll Rising

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The toll of dead continues to rise and property damage mounted into the hundreds of millions Wednesday as Southern California continued to quiver from aftershocks of Tuesday's devastating earthquake.

Workers searched the ruins of a veterans hospital where the bodies of 27 patients and employees had been found. They said 13 persons still are missing. In all, authorities tallied 46 deaths, nine by heart attack. More than 1,000 persons were injured.

Fears of a rupture in the cracked dam of the city's largest reservoir eased as the water level fell, due to draining. The 80,000 persons evacuated from the area were not allowed to return but officials said only a powerful new shock could cause trouble.

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, sent here for consultations and an inspection tour after President Nixon declared California a disaster area, arrived for a helicopter look at hard-hit areas with Gov. Ronald Reagan and Mayor Sam Yorty.

Attention centered on the veteran's hospital at Sylmar in the west end of the San Fernando Valley just 10 miles from the quake's center. Some 250 workers probed the steel and concrete rubble of two collapsed three-story ward buildings.

Well over 100 patients and employees were inside when the 6:01 a.m. tremor shook the 45-year-old structure apart. Scores were injured and additional scores trapped. For nearly 24 hours moans and cries came from victims trapped alive. Many injured were extricated and flown by helicopter to other hospitals.

Authorities said there was little chance of additional survivors.

Aftershocks by the hundreds emanated from the region of the quake's center in the San Gabriel Mountains 26 miles northwest. A dozen or more fairly strong ones kept the area jiggling Wednesday but caused no new damage. Magnitudes of the stronger shocks were around 5 on the Richter scale, compared with 6.6 for the first.

Authorities began the massive job of assessing damage, most of it within a 40-mile radius of the quake's center.

Los Angeles County estimated damage to public facilities at $125 million. It had no estimate of damage to private structures but said the toll would be high. The city made a preliminary estimate of $186 million for homes and businesses plus additional "tens of millions" for public facilities. The California Division of Highways reckoned $15 million damage to state roads, much of it attributed to collapsed bridges and freeway overpasses.

Utilities suffered damages estimated in the tens of millions. A city spokesman said there have been nearly 2,500 requests for building inspections and more than 100 structures have been found unfit for occupancy.

Leftover Radioactivity Poses Major Threat

NEW YORK (LNS) — Now that we've been exploding atomic weapons and creating other nuclear reactions for almost 30 years, the question posed by none other than the WALL ST. JOURNAL, is what do we do with the leftovers. The "leftovers" are the highly radioactive wastes that are produced by the atomic reaction that produces atomic bombs and on the more respectable side, the atomic energy that we are using more and more for fuel.

The Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) has already come up with the following tentative solutions:

• For a while now the AEC has been storing radioactive waste in Southeastern Idaho, 600 feet directly above the Snake Plane Aquifer, a huge underground river whose waters eventually reach much of the Pacific Northwest.

• The AEC stores millions of gallons of liquid radioactive wastes in huge underground tanks near Richland, Wash. The tanks have a life expectancy of 20-30 years, while the wastes themselves remain deadly for 600 years. "Minor" leaks have already sprung at least 11 times.

• A similar collection of waste tanks exists near Aiken, S.C. The AEC had decided to dispose of them by pumping them into a man-made cavern below the Tuscaloosa Aquifer, which happens also to be very heavily used for drinking water and industry.

• The AEC is planning to store all the radioactive wastes produced by commercial atomic power plants for the rest of the century 1,000 feet below Lyons, Kansas. These wastes are so highly radioactive that "if evenly distributed they would contaminate much of the nation." They will have to be sealed away for 500,000 years. The wastes would be concentrated and solidified and packed into steel cylinders. The loading and unloading of the cylinders (expected to be arriving at 1,220 a year by 1990) would be by remote control.

The only problem seems to be that under certain conditions the wastes would bombard the rock salt in which they're buried with radiation, causing energy to be stored in the salt. It's possible that this energy might be released in a sudden burst of heat shooting temperatures up to 800 degrees Centigrade.

The results? According to the director of the Kansas Geological Institute which did a study for AEC, "I don't know. One possibility is an explosive upheaval, which could release all that radioactivity to the world."

Glenn T. Seaborg, AEC Chairman, concedes that "you could argue, in retrospect, that the AEC might have moved faster" on waste disposal but "it was logical" to build up the "industry" first.

So He Said...

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — Two weeks ago, G. W. "Wade" Johnson, senior pilot for Continental Airlines, retired just ahead of reaching the mandatory age of 60.

He joined Continental in 1938 and logged more than 30,000 hours without a serious accident.

Interviewed on his retirement, Johnson said: "I'm much more comfortable in a plane than in an automobile."

Johnson died Monday, victim of a head-on collision with a truck.
