Nixon: Slight Increase In Troop Withdrawal

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, putting his second-term hopes generally on the line, announced Wednesday night an only slight increase in monthly troop withdrawals from Vietnam for a seven-month period.

At the same time, Nixon said in an address prepared for a nationwide television-radio audience:

"I can assure you tonight with confidence that American involvement in this war is coming to an end."

The chief executive said it is his intention to withdraw between May 1 and Dec. 1 an additional 100,000 American troops from South Vietnam — a monthly average of barely over 14,000 as compared with the average of 12,500 in effect for the past year.

This would reduce the troop level to about 184,000.

Nixon claimed a success for his disputed decision to invade Cambodia, and said the equally controversial Laotian invasion was "even more damaging to the capability of the North Vietnamese to sustain major offensives in South Vietnam."

Then he went on to make an indirect reference to the court-martial conviction of Army Lt. William Calley Jr. on charges of mass murder at My Lai. Saying he spoke as commander in chief, Nixon said:

"I feel it is my duty to speak up for the two and a half million fine young Americans who have served in Vietnam. The atrocity charges in individual cases should not and cannot be allowed to reflect on their courage and their self-sacrifice. War is a terrible and cruel experience for a nation and particularly for those who bear the burden of fighting."

Nixon never mentioned the Calley case but spoke simply of "concerns which have been raised in this country, fanned by reports of brutalities in Vietnam."

While the increase withdrawal of roughly 1,500 men a month fell well short of much advance speculation, Nixon said:

"This will bring the total number of the American troops withdrawn from South Vietnam to 365,000 — over two-thirds of the number who were there when I came into office."

As he spoke, Nixon several times pointed to colored charts aimed at dramatizing his speech for television viewers.

At the same time, the President dealt with a mounting congressional chorus of suggestions and demands that a fixed date be set for total withdrawal of American forces.

Declaring this to be "a proposal which at first glance has a great deal of appeal to the American people," Nixon went on:

"The difficulty in making such an announcement to the American people is that I would also be making that announcement to the enemy. And it would serve the enemy's purpose and not our own."

In stating his presidency on the end of American involvement in the war, Nixon said:

"But can you believe this? I understand why this question is raised by many honest, sincere people. Many times in the past in this long and difficult war, actions have been announced from Washington which were supposed to lead to a reduction of American involvement in Vietnam. Over and over these actions resulted in increasing American forces in Vietnam and higher American casualties."

"Tonight I do not ask you to take what I say on faith. Look at the record: Every action taken by this administration, every decision made, has accomplished what I said it would accomplish. They have reduced American involvement. They have drastically reduced our casualties," Nixon said.

He went on to say he carried out "a plan to train and equip the South Vietnamese; to withdraw American forces; and to end American involvement in the war just as soon as the South Vietnamese had developed the capacity to defend their country against Communist aggression."

In another context, Nixon stated: "One American dying in combat is one too many. Our goal is no American fighting and dying any place in the world. Every decision I have made in the past and every decision I make in the future will have the purpose of achieving that goal."

Discussing the South Vietnamese moved into Laos, Nixon asked rhetorically if the operation contributed to the goal he sought. Declaring that he has "just completed my assessment," he gave these conclusions:

• "First, the South Vietnamese demonstrated that without American advisers they could fight effectively against the best troops North Vietnam could put in the field."

• "Second, the South Vietnamese suffered heavy casualties. But by the most conservative estimates the casualties suffered by the enemy were far heavier."

• "Third, and most important, line and the consumption of ammunition and arms in the battle has been even more damaging to the capability of the North Vietnamese to sustain major offensives in South Vietnam than were the operations in Cambodia 10 months ago."

While Daley Gets Fifth Term... 'Radicals' Win in Berkeley

By The Associated Press

A group of self-styled radicals, gaining a 4-4 deadlock on the Berkeley, Calif., City Council, said Wednesday it would try to appoint a colleague to gain full control of the university town's government.

The radical candidates won three of the four contested seats on Berkeley's nine-member council in Tuesday's election. The election of a mayor who pledged to vote with them produced the radical-moderate standoff on the council. One seat is vacant.

A proposal by the radicals to split Berkeley's Police Department into three departments — controlled by black, white and student neighborhoods — was overwhelmingly rejected Tuesday by voters who also put into office a black mayor who supports the radicals.

Mayor Richard J. Daley, meanwhile, swept to an unprecedented fifth consecutive term by polling 70 per cent of the vote and winning 48 of Chicago's 50 wards in the lightest turnout for a mayoral election in 36 years.

The final tally showed Daley won another four-year term by a margin of 735,787 to 318,059.

An estimated 80 per cent of the votes in Berkeley went to the polls in the bare-fought contest that saw councilman Warren Widener, who supported the radical coalition, elected as the city's first black mayor.

Widener defeated a moderate Negro, Vice Mayor Wilmont Sweeney, by 56 votes — 21,921 to 21,865 — and Sweeney said Wednesday he would ask for a recount.

A moderate was elected to the fourth vacant council seat, creating the 4-4 radical-moderate makeup. A ninth seat, now vacant and previously occupied by Widener, must be filled by the new council. The radical coalition hopes to get control of this seat.

"The people of this city have decided it's not going to be business as usual anymore. The city said we want change and we will have change," said Ira T. Simmons, 28, black attorney and one of the three new radical council members.

One of the radicals' first objectives will be an effort to bring the City Council under greater community control, despite the defeat of the police proposal.

Edward Kallgren, a white attorney, was the top votegetter among the 33 candidates for the four council seats. He describes himself as an independent liberal.

The radical platform called for the division of the Police Department into three community-controlled units, new city services for the poor including rent control on apartments and free child daycare centers, and imposition of a city tax on income over $12,000 to replace the property tax.

Widener endorsed all but the police partition plan, though he supported greater community control over the police.

Widener, 33, succeeds retiring Mayor Wallace Johnson. The mayor is a voting member of the nine-man council, but the mayor's job is largely ceremonial.

Widener and the three elected radical candidates, averaging age 29, said they would fight for appointment of the top runner, Rick Brown, 28, a University of California graduate student.

Other state and municipal election results included:

• Oklahoma City, Okla., becomes the largest city in the nation to have a woman mayor with the election of Patience Latting. She defeated fellow councilman Bill Bishop, 32,271 to 22,132.

• East St. Louis, Ill., elected James Williams Sr., as its first black mayor. Williams, 49, a political novice, defeated veteran black politician Virgil E. Calvert, 10,792 to 8,202. The election was nonpartisan though Williams got Republican backing and Calvert Democratic.

• Madison, Wis., voters approved overwhelmingly an anti-war proposition similar to one defeated three years ago. It calls for an immediate U.S. cease-fire in Vietnam and withdrawal of U.S.

• Kansas voters overwhelmingly approved an amendment to the state constitution giving the vote in state and local elections to persons 18 to 21 years old.

Board of Education Fires Family Living Instructor

In a three minute meeting Wednesday night, the Iowa City School Board voted almost unanimously to terminate controversial teacher Michael Roe's contract.

Roe, a family living instructor recently reassigned to research for inviting two Gay Liberation Front members to speak to his eighth grade human relationships class at Southeast Junior High School, was involved in a controversy last November over a list of supposedly "dirty questions" about sex prepared by students in his class. After this incident, Superintendent James Reusswig claims Roe made an agreement with him to inform his building principal of any potentially controversial activities he planned for his class. Roe failed to do this, according to Reusswig, at the time of the Gay Liberation Front visit, which resulted in his reassignment.

Roe, according to board president John Moore, had requested a private meeting with the board after being presented a letter stating that it was contemplating his removal. Roe's request for the session was in keeping with his rights, Moore said.

Roe was given his private session Tuesday night, when he presented evidence in defense of his previous actions, Moore said. The session lasted for three hours.

At the end of this time the board took a vote. Moore said he believed that the voting was identical to Wednesday's, although no formal count could be noted at a closed meeting. The Wednesday vote was 5-1 in favor of terminating Roe's contract, Moore said.

Roe now has 20 days to request a public hearing at which he can again present the evidence he disclosed to the board on Tuesday night.

Moore also said that the board instructed him Tuesday night to appoint a citizen's committee to investigate the entire Family Living Program now offered in Iowa City schools. The program is the target of a lawsuit filed by 100 Iowa City residents, which is presently being argued in Johnson County District Court.

A legal defense fund committee has been organized for Roe by ad hoc group made up of teachers and students.

Primary purposes according to a group spokesman are: to support Michael Roe in the principle of academic freedom and the right of all teachers to handle controversial issues in the classroom; to encourage letters of support to the school board; and to raise funds for his legal defense. All checks may be sent to Box 495, Michael Roe Legal Defense Fund.

Sen. Bayh Claims Nixon Playing Politics With Calley

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Birch Bayh (D-Ind.) accused President Nixon Wednesday of playing politics with the case of Lt. William L. Calley Jr. He said Nixon should henceforth "keep his mouth shut" about the My Lai murder conviction.

Sen. Robert Taft Jr. (R-Ohio) defended Nixon's intervention in the case as an act of courage, one necessary for the sake of military morale.

The White House, meanwhile, said there probably will be some response to the letter in which Capt. Aubrey M.

Daniel III, who prosecuted the Calley case, criticized Nixon's actions.

The President ordered Calley's release from the stockade at Ft. Benning, Ga. in favor of a military version of house arrest. Later Nixon announced he will personally review the final military judgment of Calley.

Calley was convicted March 29 of the premeditated murder of 22 South Vietnamese civilians in My Lai, and was sentenced by a court-martial jury to life imprisonment.

Daniel wrote Nixon on April 3 that he was shocked and dismayed that the President had intervened. He said Nixon's actions damaged military justice and enhanced Calley's image as "a national hero."

Representatives Seek Court Test Of War Legality

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three antiwar congressmen Wednesday asked the U.S. District Court to declare the Vietnamese war illegal and to order it stopped in 60 days unless Congress approves it.

Since the Constitution gives Congress the right to declare war the Nixon and Johnson administrations violated their right as congressmen to decide whether the nation should fight.

It is the first time members of Congress have sought such a court test. The Supreme Court has refused to hear other suits against the war.

Last year it refused a direct test of a Massachusetts law against sending state residents to fight undeclared wars. That case now is working its way up through lower courts.

"This is something we hope will not be just another futile gesture," said Rep. Michael Harrington (D-Mass.). The suit was filed by Harrington and Reps. Parren J. Mitchell (D-Md.) and Benjamin S. Rosenthal (D-N.Y.).

Lawrence R. Velvel, one of five young attorneys who drew up the suit, said recent legal trends make it likely the courts would consider the suit.

The questions of whether congressmen are being denied a right to decide on the war is not political but legal, he said. Courts refuse to hear cases they consider political.

Velvel said a ruling could be expected under normal circumstances in three or four months, but he said attempts would be made to speed up the process.

Earthworms May Be Food Source, UI Freshman Says

By MARY BURKE

Daily Iowan Reporter

Eisina foetida, one of 1,800 earthworm species, may be humans' next food source as well as an ecological problem solver, according to Daniel McInroy, a freshman at the University of Iowa.

McInroy will be on the Arthur Godfrey Show this morning at 10:30 and at the same time Friday, Saturday and Monday. The program is broadcast on WMT radio.

McInroy began experimenting with earthworms as a student at Marshalltown High School. In a series of experiments he compared the food value of the earthworm with other protein sources — such as cattle, hogs and hens — and dehydrated earthworm meal with food stuffs used in rations for dogs, mink, and foxes.

At the Hawkeye Science Fair his work with the earthworm earned McInroy first place in the oral seminar and a university scholarship as a second place runner-up in the biology display division.

Results of the experiment were also reported at the University of Iowa Science and Humanities Symposium and published in the Feb. 20, 1971 issue of Feedstuffs, a technical feed journal.

McInroy came on the idea for his project while observing birds eating earthworms. From wondering about the earthworm's food value he progressed to thoughts of their potential for recycling garbage. Since then he has learned of a Kansas farmer who has employed part of his proposed plan.

The farmer pens his hogs on a slatted platform above ground. Worms underneath the platform digest the wastes that fall through, significantly decreasing the waste material.

McInroy noted in his article for Feedstuffs "that a ton of farm animal manure potentially cultures 185 pounds of E. foetida, which at 8.8 per cent protein carry 16.3 pound protein. Accordingly, the 1½ to 2 billion tons of fecal waste produced per year by major farm animals in the U.S. theoretically will support the production of 12,000,000 to 16, 000,000 tons of E. foetida protein."

As a second stage, McInroy suggests that "earthworm protein produced on wastes may possibly be recycled to farm animals and poultry or pets as the feed ingredient dehydrated earthworm meal or as the whole organism, appropriately sterilized."

McInroy sees a time when people may use E. foetida as a protein source. McInroy himself, who has tasted deep-fried earthworms, reports that they have a mild flavor resembling puffed pork rinds in texture, odor and flavor.

A pre-dentistry student, McInroy is now working on dental research with Charles Krementak, associate professor of orthodontia at Oakdale.

Letters day: varied thoughts on Calley...

To the Editor:
How should we, who consider ourselves rational, compassionate human beings, react to the My Lai war crimes trial? According to the April 3 Iowa City Press-Citizen, our military, intellectual and political leaders offer three suggestions.

The first is from Gen. Westmoreland, who considers personal guilt "an absurd allegation." The good general explains that no comparisons can be made between himself and Japanese or German generals because they "failed to follow up on allegations and reports of atrocities and bring them to justice." In other words, because he has brought Lt. Calley to "justice," his conscience is clear. No matter what atrocities are committed, no matter how many thousands of human beings are murdered, maimed, tortured or raped, as long as he can prosecute a scapegoat every now and then, his soul remains untarnished.

The fact that human lives continue to be "wasted" does not seem to matter. (Remember, Calley was termed responsible for the murder of about 20 people. Who killed the other 80?) All we have to do is shift the blame to someone else and miraculously, we are purified as he suffers for all of us. Calley as Jesus. Incredible!

But, before we follow the we-are-all-guilty argument too far and upset the man-on-the-street ("Try to tell the blue-collar American, on the street or in the bar, that Nixon, Laird, Kissinger and the Joint Chiefs are war criminals, and see where you get?"), let us hear from the honorable Max Lerner. He is so worried about the gap between the liberals and the middle class developing from the My Lai controversy that he suggests we "cool it." "Stop talking in moral absolutes" and try to understand that "all war today — from guerrilla to nuclear — is a dance of death."

This is a fine rationalization ("dance of death" — I like the way that sounds) but still something tugs at my gut, reminding me that which Mr. Lerner seems to have forgotten — human lives have been "wasted" in this dance. How can I "understand" this and not talk in terms of morality? How can I "understand" this and still remain human?

Of course there is still another way to react to this horrific situation: decide how it can be used to our advantage. This goes under the headings of "Learn From It," or perhaps more properly, "Exploit It." For the definitive word on how to make personal use of this affair, see the press releases of Richard Nixon and George Wallace.

But where does this leave us — the intelligent, sensitive human beings? Can we blame it on someone else, ignore it, or exploit it? Somehow we have to live with it and with these fantastic, insane rationalizations. Keeping all this in mind, it becomes easier to understand political assassinations, kidnapping and bombings. But this too is insane madness. What do we do?

Writing an angry letter-to-the-editor helps. So does drinking wine and reading poetry. But what do we do when we read tomorrow's newspaper?

To the Editor:
The other day I was rereading a term paper I wrote in high school. The subject of the paper was a man who holds a rather extraordinary place in the military history of this country. One incident that this man was involved in impressed me as very appropriate for recounting at the present time.

As a young officer in the year 1868, he was ordered by his superior officer to take his command on a "search and destroy mission" along the Washita River near Cheyenne, Okla. Coming upon a small Indian village on the river, he and his 600 men wiped out over 100 men, women, and children (familiar number?) not knowing, as he stated later, "whether they were hostile or friendly." It turned out they were the then friendly survivors of an earlier Indian massacre, the Battle of Sand Creek.

Another young officer, Captain Frederick Benteen, who was also involved in the massacre, decided his conscience would not permit him to let this incident go unnoticed by the public and thus, he wrote letters to several Eastern newspapers recounting the horrible incident. When the news reached the Eastern papers, the public was outraged and demanded an end to the exploitation of the Indians' reservation land. As a result, all troops were withdrawn and the Kiowa, Apache, and Cheyenne returned peacefully out of the hills to their reservations. Peace prevailed until the white man invaded the Indians' land several years later.

When the big stink was raised in the Eastern papers, the young officer gave as his excuse that he was just carrying out orders. The young officer was not chastised by the Army. On the contrary, he stayed on as a career officer. Eventually, the public forgave him when they realized he was a product of the military system and ever since his death he has been an American military hero. The young officer's name, George Armstrong Custer.

Today our country and in particular, one Lt. William Calley, are faced with a similar situation. It was exactly 100 years after the Washita massacre that the My Lai incident occurred. Similar circumstances prevailed. Yet this time we've seen fit to crucify this man in front of the entire nation and world. Why? These incidents happen in every war. It's just that they aren't always publicized. Why can't we take a lesson from the atrocious Indian persecution wars of the late 1860's and '70's? It's not the fault of the individual, it's the fault of war and more specifically the system that trains individuals to kill so that they may fight in wars such as the one in South Vietnam.

To the Editor:
We should not sit back and let murderers like Calley be glorified. His crimes equal those of the Nazis and should be judged similarly.

...and the war goes on and on and...

To the Editor:

The polls show that over 70 per cent of Americans want all U.S. forces withdrawn from South Vietnam now! It is said that figure isn't 100 per cent. Very likely it would be higher if one more fact were made known. But President Nixon won't tell you it. I will however, because I've yet to hear it told and I've grown sick and tired of hearing that if for no other reason Nixon cannot withdraw GIs any quicker than at present since the remaining troops must be protected. Never once has this excuse been questioned by anyone. Not even considered. I realize it probably seems reasonable to believe that argument holds water if one has not been over in South Vietnam at a base camp. I say base camp because many Vietnamese veterans who were not stationed in a base camp also are not aware of what I will say. But those like me who have been stationed at a base camp do know and I am surprised this secret has been kept so well.

I was stationed for half of my time at Bien Hoa and the other half at Long Binh. The latter is the biggest complex in Vietnam and where the generals congregate. Both of those bases and several other big ones (Saigon, Da Nang and Cam Ranh Bay) are impenetrable from ground attacks. The only danger of any sort is from rockets, mortars, or artillery. And in bunkers the latter aren't too dangerous.

The point I'm trying to make is simply that the withdrawal of "ALL" our G.I.s could be done immediately and safely. Considering the North Vietnamese would try and make the withdrawal bloody, which I doubt, a base camp like Bien Hoa (which is one of four bases from which troops eventually must leave from anyway) could successfully defend anything thrown at them with as few as a couple thousand troops. Notice I say a couple thousand, which is hardly the 300,000-400,000 figure Nixon uses.

If this seems hard to believe consider it after learning the following facts at Bien Hoa for instance. It's perimeter is eight miles with a 10-foot high dirt wall (burr) around it and bunkers built into the burr every 25 meters. Every bunker has, besides m-16's, a machine gun, a grenade launcher, flares, and claymore mine detonators. Plus, beginning approximately 100 meters in front of the perimeter, starts the first of seven layers of consantino wire (barbed wire rolled in a ball and extremely hard to get through), trip barrels of kerosene and fuel gas (a deadly chemical), and lastly tear gas canisters which launch 40 grenades simultaneously. And if that doesn't guarantee that a mass ground attack against Bien Hoa would result in mass suicide on the attackers part, consider also the fact Bien Hoa has the busiest air base in the world. At all times helicopters, gunships, and fighter bombers are on hand for instant air strikes. One Cobra (helicopter) alone usually possesses a couple mini guns, each capable of firing 6000 rounds per minute. Picture then what just one Cobra could do to an attacking force.

In short, our big base camps are just like castles of olden days which make the defense of them possible with a tiny fraction of the attacking forces. And though the protection of the withdrawing troops makes for a convincing rationale it is completely baseless. Yet, it allows President Nixon to delay the inevitable, wise wish of the public. This is merely one of numerous examples of the President withholding information from the public, thus deceiving them. And one wonders why the credibility gap.

The Tuesday Shoppers Stoppage project, sponsored by the International League for Peace and Freedom, has gained the support of two local merchants. Epstein's Bookstore and Things & Things are closing their doors for one hour — 11 a.m. to noon every Tuesday for the rest of this semester.

We are gratified that the owners of these businesses have chosen this means to register their opposition to the Indochina War. We hope that the message will get through to other merchants: as long as this war continues, none of us can afford a business-as-usual attitude.

ed; but that's no excuse to let Calley off the hook. (Calley has also hurt U.S. workers and served the bosses faithfully when he was a scab switchman during a railroad strike in Florida.) An ever-growing number of working class GIs are not following orders to kill their fellow workers in Vietnam and are organizing against the Army brass. Paul Meadlo's father, a retired coal miner, said that if Calley had ordered him to shoot, he would have turned and "shot him right between the Goddamn eyes." Stockades full of GIs who refuse to fight this bosses' war prove that GIs by the thousands are not "following orders."

It's these rebelling GIs we should support, and not racist butchers like Calley.

To the Editor:

The current uproar over the conviction and sentencing of Lt. Calley strikes me as symptomatic of a country that places such a high value on ephemeral symbols (patriotism, the flag, the American way, etc. ad infinitum) that it has come to totally ignore reality. What did Calley do? really do? The words of the German poet Gottfried Benn describe the horror of atrocities such as My Lai much better than I could do so. The following poem is entitled "Beautiful Childhood."

The mouth of a girl who had lain so long in the reeds looked so gnawed at.

We did not ask Epstein's and Things to close all day because it made no sense for sympathetic businessmen to suffer losses while their competitors' Tuesday profits increased. Even closing for one hour represents a financial hardship. We hope students will make a point of patronizing these two stores, in recognition of their willingness to put principle ahead of profits.

To the Editor:

In the past two months we have heard a lot about the war and its equivalents to the Nazi massacre of Jews. No doubt most of this is true. But just to say this does not help anybody to fight against the war. In fact, it probably leads one to despair more than anything else.

Perhaps the best thing one can do is elucidate to the public a more accurate picture of how the society works today — what strengthens the military and how one can fight against it.

For example, few people will let you know that in the U.S., the military equipment is named after important civilian benefactors, individuals or groups that contribute to the maintenance of the military.

When one broke open the breast, the esophagus was so full of holes.

Finally in a bower under the diaphram one found a nest of young rats. One little sister lay dead.

The others were living on liver and kidney, drank the cold blood and had spent a beautiful childhood here. And beautiful and fast their death, too, came.

One threw the lot of them into the water.

Oh, how the little snouts squeaked!

Patriotism? The Stars and Stripes? The American way? Is everything allowable as long as one of these banners is waved? Calley and America both stand guilty. The agonizing shame of it all is that only Calley has to serve his sentence.

To the Editor:

Lt. William L. Calley Jr.'s latest remarks, "But I'll be very proud to have been in the U.S. Army and fought at My Lai if it shows the world just what war is," reminds us of Hitler's ideas of bringing about peace as well as Truman's. (The latter stated after the Hiroshima and Nagasaki bombings that this will bring about peace because it will have the spinoff effect of creating organizations devoted to peace.) The logic of this thinking is totally bankrupt as well as near-sighted. No culturally bonded group of peoples who have been attacked and brutally wounded will forget that fact, and some day they will (some of them) return the tit for tat. Calley should be hung, not because he alone is guilty — but because as a sucker for the brass he has given support to an old theory — "The War to End All Wars" which will never work. It is interesting, though, that people who espouse these ideas can gain acceptance. I myself tried this out in Seattle, Wash. and found a few suckers — but then, most of these are already in Vietnam killing.

To the Editor:

How ironic it is that people feel sorry for Lt. William Calley regarding his conviction and impending "life" prison sentence. One should feel sorry for Lt. Calley, but on grounds far greater than the so-called severity of his punishment.

Have people's values been warped so much that they do not recognize murder? How different it would have all been if Lt. Calley had thrown your grandmother, grandfather, mother, father, wife, daughter or son into a ditch outside of Akron, Ohio, and pulled the trigger on them!

His callous disregard for human life epitomized in a statement made before the trial that his actions at My Lai with "those goods, didn't mean anything," reflects credit on his character.

Lt. Calley certainly received a "fair" trial, i.e. he would have been tried in Vietnam with the survivors of the My Lai massacre as his judge. He would have gotten what he deserved then.

Open letter to the university community:
In the first two weeks of May this spring, one million or more people — predominantly of high school and college age — will march hundreds of miles, in cities all over the nation.

The demonstrations will not be those normally associated with our times. They are not violent demonstrations... and they are more than symbolic gestures. They do not draw upon the ranks of one generation... they bring together young and old minds and spirits for one cause.

These concerned Americans will organize from start to finish a 20-30 mile Walk for Development (Hike for Hunger) in their local communities. Parents, friends, businessmen will pledge to the individual walkers so much money for each mile that they walk on the hike day.

The money collected from the walkers goes into a fund which is locally divided among several local, state, national or international development and relief projects. Thousands of people will actually benefit from the demonstrations of concern shown by the walkers and sponsors.

The local walk committees operate under the auspices of the American Freedom from Hunger Foundation, which was established in 1961 at the suggestion of Pres. John Kennedy, as a private extension of the United Nations' Food and Agricultural Organization.

Walk for Developments have been held in Iowa before. Many of us may have participated in the hike held in Iowa City two years ago on Mother's Day.

On May 2, Iowa City is going to have another hike. The international and local projects to be funded have been chosen. Members of the university community, along with many high school students, are now busy trying to talk with as many people as they can.

We need much from all of the community. We need your commitment to walk or to be a sponsor. We need volunteer nurses and doctors to help with the inevitable blisters. We need people to help man our offices. We need volunteers on Hike Day to work at check points and to relay food and supplies. We need time at your meetings and in your classes to explain what we are doing and why we want you to join us.

And even more than all these things, we need your openness and eagerness to learn and become involved with the problems of hunger and poverty here in our country and around the world.

Over 350 walks are planned in the United States and as many as 40 countries are participating in International Walk Weekend in May. Certainly the students and faculty of the university as well as the people of Iowa City and Coralville can be as generous with their support as these other communities.

The Hike for Hunger office is located in 1105B Quadrangle Dormitory. The phone number is 353-6241. Please contact us out of your concern to be part of the world wide movement to fight hunger and poverty.

After viewing the movie, "Trash," recently, I was struck — not with revulsion, disgust, nor even surprise — but with an intense sense of the absurd. Taking the probable viewpoint of women when they view a typical female skin flick with their hyper-sexual, All-American boyfriends smirking lecherously by their sides at every slick gross-up, my satori was the horrible inequity of the vast majority of contemporary exploitative X-rated cinema.

As a normal male, I was not particularly aroused by "Trash," but no doubt the normal woman would experience at least a mild sense of liberation, or sense of release, relief even, as she acknowledged Joe "hung" Hero of the male sex flick, "Trash," in his role of victim in place of the conventional role of victimizer

"Trash" contributes in a very real way to the long overdue female liberation movement, or revolution. Perhaps more of this justice, more "Trash," will strike males, as it did me, with the gross absurdity of the role of sex in American culture. If the female wants to view a male sex film, she should not have to go to New York. Males should try to accept the reality that their quiet, shy girlfriend gets horny too. After all, sex was not patented by the male. As people together, let us get over this frustrating, divisive hangup that is wrenching apart our society. And men, remember that your sisters can be pretty nice guys if you just let them be themselves. Let us all just be ourselves.

To the Editor:

A revision of Iowa City's disorderly conduct statute or a study in totalitarian politics?

The American system of constitutional justice uses the existing burdensome legal code to propagate itself, thus rationalizing further encroachment in the area of civil liberties with a principle first expounded by the Nazi regime in Germany in 1935. Anything is punishable if it deserves punishment according to "the fundamental conceptions of penal law and sound popular feeling."

It is increasingly evident that administrative and legal ears have become deafened to the real sound of popular feeling. It is also evident that officials will try to suppress social and political inequities by drowning them in the legal system that fathered them.

An attempt is being made to enforce support for unpopular national policies by restricting freedoms at a local level. Beware, good Germans.

To the Editor:

Wanna know what they teach at the Writers Workshop. Inept puffery. Or so I gather from William Allen's "Beautiful Mill Inn," one of the dumbest, blindest pieces of promo I've come across since the edited transcription of Nixon's last press conference. (Allen didn't say, but I'm assuming he's part of the family he writes about like a mother.) How else to understand his claim that our local scriptionium's "ex-students, teachers and ex-teachers probably account for ten per cent of the FICTION published in this country?" One can only assume Allen's chosen have cornered the speech- and ad-writing markets across the land.

Fiction. There never was such a beast as the "Hemingway-Fitzgerald crowd." Mr. Allen, Tennessee Williams apprenticed not in the Writers Workshop, but in the Drama Workshop. And how many times must Flannery O'Connor be resurrected to justify the Millers' posturing, before everyone realizes she stands alone. (And on and on.) Better lay off the 3.2 awhile and drop by the library.

Don't get me wrong. I'm not against free enterprise. Just dumb articles. However drab Mr. Allen makes the workshop's hangout seem, in a contest for dullness it would lose to my department's stomping grounds any day. (The gym. And I may be a woman, but I'm 183 lbs. of striated, so tell that ex-White Sox catcher to stay safe at home with his plates.) Contest or no, I'd be willing on faith alone to buy the words of William Price Fox (an eccentric gymnast?); "It beats Burger-Chef."

But so does Smorgastable. All 40 feet of it.

(Hey. Is it absolutely necessary to have an agent to get this letter published?)

Doris Patterson, G

To the Editor:

Re the article "The Beautiful Mill Inn" (March 28).

It seems as though any bit of foolishness that has existed once in this world exists forever. You think it's dead and buried and then it comes to life again. I mean the business about the Dome in Paris and the Algonquin in New York. Dorothy Parker herself said, "It was just a place where a lot of drunks went so they could load up at lunch to get through the afternoon."

At the Dome the drinks were too high and the waiters were rude to you and someone's wife was always nagging. Besides there were pigeon droppings under the plane trees on rue across the way. Something like that. Well, go over to the Mill and have a 30-cent beer and then look at things as they are. No harm done. But it's kind of a shame to treat people like figures out of some comic book. Give them some human dignity. Or at least give them funnier lines.

If they have so much trouble carding IDs at the Mill, how did (Bill) Allen get in. If I read the article correctly, he's 12 years old and has just made the greatest literary discovery of his life: Elliot Paul's "The Last Time I Saw Paris."

But even Elliot Paul (not to speak ill of the dead) wouldn't write this in 1971.

Rebel Forces Suffer Losses In Ceylon War

COLOMBO, Ceylon (AP) — Ceylon's government hurled armor and warplanes against hit-and-run Che Guevarist insurgents Wednesday and claimed there were heavy rebel casualties in countryside skirmishes.

The government radio said air support was called in to help dislodge insurgents in control of a key bridge at Alawwa, 50 miles from Colombo, the capital.

There were reports of scattered resistance in several other areas but security forces appeared to have the upper hand in the three-day-old fighting.

The government said an armored column swept down the main road connecting Colombo with Kandy, a major trade center 60 miles to the northeast, and wiped out terrorists armed with homemade bombs and firearms.

Attacks on many public buildings, mainly police stations, were repulsed, the broadcast said.

A 3 p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew was maintained throughout the island nation of 12 million Wednesday for the second day. All offices were ordered closed at noon. The capital and its suburbs were deserted.

Prime Minister Sirimavo Bandaranaike, who took office in 1969 as the world's first woman premier, announced the rebellion Tuesday and blamed it on an organization of young leftist militants known as the Guevarists, after the Latin-American revolutionary.

The Guevarists, well-to-do radical youths with Maoist sympathies and numbering about 20,000, are dissatisfied because Bandaranaike and her leftist coalition government have not carried out a promised program of socialism.

According to the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, the cost of living has gone up more than 34% since 1960.

But there are still a few prices which have changed very little.

The prices you pay for gas (per hundred cubic feet) and electricity (per kilowatt hour) are little, if any, higher than they were 10 years ago.

If your monthly bill is higher than in the past, it is due primarily to a substantial increase in the use of gas or electricity.

A Detective's View of Rape

EDITOR'S NOTE: In the following interview Iowa City Police Detective Sgt. Ronald Evans talks about the rape problem in Iowa City. Today's story is the second part in a series on rape to be followed by interviews with several convicted rapists.

By JAMES B. HEMESATH

"I work the night shift. Fifty per cent of my time is spent investigating sex crimes. That rape case you mentioned, we caught the suspect, but charges haven't been filed because I can't find the victim. The people in her college department told me she had left town for a couple of weeks."

"Most of the guys brought into the station on suspicion of criminal assault or rape are quiet types; they don't give me any problems. The average rape suspect is in roverted — not the barroom brawler-type."

"Rape isn't a one time affair, the guy will do it again and again. That's how come it's important that the woman report it to the police."

"We have a 98 per cent arrest rate on rapes and assaults that are reported. Most of the victims pay attention and can give us a good description. Only about one woman in fifty decides not to press charges."

"Our conviction rate isn't 98 per cent, I don't know what it is."

"Yeah, I can see how a woman might think I'd get a kick out of asking her questions. When the victim comes into the station, she's pretty shook up a . . . It makes me sick to see a woman come in here — assaulted, raped, her face beaten. If the victim's been hurt, I always shoot for maximum sentence. That means life for rape."

"I try to be sympathetic with the rape victim, but I have to get a detailed statement or the case won't hold up in court. You know, a woman can be sued in civil court for false arrest so we have to be sure we got the right guy."

"A lot of rapes and assaults in Iowa City are not reported because the victim doesn't want her name in the newspaper. Immediately following the incident, we give the press only the time of night and the street location. However, when the case gets to court, then the victim's name is bound to be printed in the newspaper."

"Last fall a young woman was hitchhiking to Iowa City on Interstate 80. She was picked up by three area men and raped. We know who the guys are, but we can't do anything about it. The victim wouldn't press charges — afraid her family would hear of it back in Ohio."

"Hitchhiking . . . That's one good reason for doing away with hitchhiking. We arrest people who hitchhike in the streets, a person can hitchhike legally from the sidewalk side of the curb, but not in the street."

"Remember that rapist from West Liberty? He raped three young women before we got him. Each of them had been hitchhiking. . . . When he came in here, we talked just like you and I are talking. He was a good-looking guy and could've had himself a steady girl, maybe he did, but he didn't get his kicks like a normal man."

Meany Hits Nixon Economic Policies

WASHINGTON (AP) — AFL-CIO President George Meany accused the administration Wednesday of pursuing what he called misguided economic game plans and trying to make labor "the scapegoat for the economic mess."

"Chairman Arthur Burns of the Federal Reserve and much of the administration leadership have been engaged in the shocking and blatant use of a double standard," Meany said.

"To cover their record of failure in economic policy, with its tragic consequences for millions of American families, they try to pin the blame on workers while providing subsidies and aid for the banks and big business," Meany said.

Testifying before a Senate banking subcommittee, the labor chief said wage curbs recently decreed for construction workers are unfair and unworkable.

Any restraint, he said, should be applied across the board on all segments of the economy.

Meany was appearing to endorse proposals to extend legislation providing the President with stand-by authority to stabilize prices, rents, wages and salaries and invoke selective credit controls.

But he used the occasion to mount a sharp and frequently sarcastic attack on Burns and the White House.

Defending the administration, Sen. John Tower (R-Tex.) said the President had been conciliatory toward organized labor and "I don't think he merits this kind of thing."

Meany told the subcommittee, chaired by Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wis.) that despite a "game plan" devised by Burns to curb inflation and restore economic health, everything has been going up, up, up.

"He really accomplished something," said Meany. "Almost a miracle."

"This business of making the construction worker a whipping boy is absolutely and completely unfair," said Meany.

President Nixon, in an executive order late last month, created a 12-man commission to review wage settlements in the construction industry.

Dismiss $3 Million Flood Suit

NEW YORK — Curt Flood lost another battle Wednesday in his $3.1 million anti-trust suit against baseball, but his lawyers refused to admit defeat until the last out—an appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The three-judge U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals here upheld an earlier dismissal by Federal Judge Irving Ben Cooper in

New York of Flood's antitrust claims. While Flood claimed that he was forced into "peonage" by baseball's reserve clause system, the written appellate decision by Judge Sterry R. Waterman ruled that Flood "retains the option not to play baseball at all."

"We readily acknowledge that plaintiff is caught in a most frustrating predicament, a predicament which defendants have zealously seized upon with great perspicacity," wrote Judge Waterman.

However, following the ruling, Flood's lawyers reiterated their intention to pursue the case to the Supreme Court.

"That certainly is our current expectation," confirmed J. Topkis, one of Flood's attorneys, when asked about carrying on to the U.S. Supreme Court.

He said the appeal probably would be made to the high court this spring, although "it won't be decided before fall whether the Supreme Court will hear the case."

In Baltimore, where the Washington Senators were playing the Baltimore Orioles, Flood said he expected the ruling.

"We knew nothing would be resolved in the lower court," he said.

Flood signed with the Senators last winter and started the season with them Monday after sitting out last season while his case was being heard.

The former All Star center-fielder filed his suit when he was traded by the St. Louis Cardinals to the Philadelphia Phillies after the 1969 season.

He claimed the reserve system, which binds a player to one team unless he is traded or released, violates the Sherman Anti-Trust Act, along with antitrust laws of the state and Canada.

Judge Cooper had conducted a long trial which ended last June, and handed down his ruling last Aug. 12. The appeal was argued last January.

The other two appellate judges were Judge Leonard P. Moore and Judge Wilfred Feinberg.

17 Iowans Sign Hawkeye Tenders

New Iowa football coach Frank Lauterbur has announced the signing of 17 Iowans to Big 10 tenders with the Hawkeyes.

Lauterbur, who became the Iowa boss in late December after guiding Toledo to 23 consecutive victories, said he will announce about 15 more tender signees in a few days.

Lauterbur's first list of recruits reflects two things he has emphasized: he likes home-grown talent and he likes all-around athletes. At least a dozen of the 17 Iowans play other sports, some of them extremely well.

The in-state recruits include six backs, four ends and seven linemen. They are (listed alphabetically):

Denny Arrington, an all-state end for Des Moines East. The 6-3, 200 pounder also participates in basketball and track.

Bill Brondyke, a 6-2, 195-pound star quarterback at Clinton.

Larry Bush of Davenport Assumption, who was named the best blocking lineman in the Quad-Cities area. The 5-11, 210 pounder also competes in wrestling and track. His father and grandfather both played at Notre Dame.

Mike Elgin, a three-sport star at West Des Moines. A 6-2, 180-pound wide receiver, he is the brother of Hawkeye Jeff and a son of Valley Coach Jack.

Marty Hawley, a 6-1, 195-pound multi-sport star at Davenport Assumption, where he was an all-state halfback.

Lynn Heil of Goose Lake. The 6-6, 225 pounder was a star tackle for Northeast Community, where he also played basketball.

Dave Holland, a 6-2, 190-pound linebacker at Cedar Rapids Jefferson. He also excels in baseball and played basketball.

Dave Iverson, a 6-1, 215-pound all-state guard at Oelwein.

Jeff Jones of Indianola. He is a 6-2, 200-pound all-state center.

Dan LaFleur, a 6-1, 195-pound all-state end at Sioux City Healan. His home is Jefferson, S.D.

Cal Leonard of Indianola who rushed for more than 3,000 yards the last two seasons to rank No. 1 in the state. He's a 6-1, 200-pound all-stater.

DAN MCCARNEY
Iowa City Athlete Signee

Dan McCarney, a 6-2, 200-pound all-state guard from Iowa City. He's a fine wrestler, and his father Pat is police chief here.

Scott Millikan of Ames. A 6-2, 185-pound all-state quarterback.

Warren Peiffer, a 6-5, 220-pound all-state guard at Keota who performs well in basketball and track.

John Speaker from Keota. He's a 6-2, 195-pound halfback and also competes in track and basketball.

Steve Welk, a 6-6, 220-pound tackle from Muscatine. He used his size to star for the Muskies in basketball and also is a trackman.

Brandt Yocum, an all-state end from Chariton. The 6-2, 185 pounder is the son of Curt, former restaurateur here. Brandt is an outstanding basketball player and distance runner in track.

Glauber Rocha, foremost director of Brazil's Cinema Novo, has created a revolutionary folk-epic with operatic, expressionistic, melodramatic overtones out of the elements of folk-history, superstition, and social injustice.
Antonio das Mortes fashions a new revolutionary esthetic out of the rhythmic crescendo of primitive and violent symbolism, myth and legend, reinforced by African and Portuguese folk music, Indian chants, and classical sambas. Portuguese with English subtitles.

Left-hander Steve Carlton, a 19-game loser last season, blanked the Cubs on three hits until Peppone homered in the seventh inning. Billy Williams hit a two-run homer for the Cubs' in the eighth.
The Cards, helped by three errors, scored five unearned runs in the third, with Cardinal's two-run single off losing pitcher Bill Hands the key blow.

Carlton's two-run double capped a six-run explosion in the fourth, with the last three tallies unearned following Peppone's second error. Hague delivered two of the runs with a single and another scored on a bases-loaded walk by rookie reliever Bill Bonham.

Crisis Center Gets Money Tentatively

The Iowa City Crisis Center received tentative financial support from the Iowa City Council Tuesday under the stipulation that the center provide a copy of its budget before the city gives its final okay.

Robert Engel, a member of the Board of Directors of Crisis Center, asked the city for $2,000 as its share of a proposed $23,000 budget. Engel said he was unable to put a dollar figure on the amount of good the center had done already but pointed to a breakdown of calls handled by the center. Engel called attention to the fact that between Sept. 26, 1970 and Feb. 26, 1971 the center handled 30 phone calls from potential suicides and 115 calls from people who had drug problems.

At present the center is funded by a one time non-renewable grant from the Iowa Mental Health Authority which expires on June 30. Engel said the present $12,500 budget is spent on salary, rent, heat, insurance, phone bills, equipment and supplies for a nine hour day. He said the board of directors feels that the center should be expanded to a 24-hour-a-day service and that is why a larger budget is necessary.

Engel told the commission that the center has made application to the Crime Commission, United Community Service and various student organizations for funds but some of the funds cannot be received before Jan. 1, 1972. Because the present funding runs out in June, the center needs funding from July 1 to the beginning of the next calendar year.

Mayor Loren Hickerson said, "The center had done a good job and proved that it is a worthwhile enterprise; the problem is commitment of city funds for the year." Hickerson added, "Personally, I support the Crisis Center."

Councilman Tim Brandt echoed the mayor's sentiment saying, "I think it's (the Crisis Center) done a good job." At the same time, Brandt said he felt there were too many uncertainties and that representatives from the center should come back in July when they have a better picture of its financial needs.

Iowa House To Hear Bill On Migrants

Legislation was introduced into the Iowa General Assembly Friday by William E. Gluba (D-Davenport) that would require migrant workers entering the state to register with the Iowa State Employment Service.

Under Gluba's bill employers of migrant laborers would be responsible to see that their workers are registered with the State Employment Service. The purpose of the bill, Gluba said, "is to bring migrant laborers under the greater protection of federal control and regulations applicable to agricultural workers."

In addition, Gluba said, "that inasmuch as Title I monies appropriated for the education of migrant families is based on the number of migrant workers actually registered with the State Employment Service, their required registration would afford a more adequate appropriation for migrant workers and their children."

The bill introduced by Gluba in the House is being co-sponsored in the Iowa Senate by John Tapscoot, (D-Des Moines). Legislation of this nature had been requested by the Area Board for Migrants, which is a community program of the Roman Catholic dioceses of Davenport, Rockford and Peoria.

Abortion Rule Criticized

WASHINGTON (AP) — A women's group assailed President Nixon Wednesday for tightening rules on abortions at military hospitals and said he should not interfere with women's "rights to control their own bodies and lives."

The United Women's Contingent of the National Peace Action Coalition is angered over Nixon's directive to all military base hospitals to abide by abortion laws of the state in which they are located.
