Congress Ends National Rail Strike

Strikers Get Raise: Talks to Continue

Rail Strike Effects Hit Nation

By the Associated Press

Freight workers served notice yesterday of plans to begin a 20-day period of partial shutdowns of some lines by the afternoon of tomorrow, despite the movement of the railroad freed from the strike that started Dec. 2.

When President Nixon announced an emergency railroad strike last Tuesday, he established a deadline of Dec. 10 to end the strike, which he said was threatening the nation's economic life. On Dec. 10, he extended the deadline to Dec. 28, and on Dec. 28, he extended the deadline again to Jan. 10, but the strike continued.

The strike, which was set to end Tuesday, was the longest in the nation's history, lasting nearly three months.

The Democratic-controlled Congress moved Monday to override President Nixon's veto of a bill to extend the strike deadline to Jan. 31. The veto override would allow the strike to continue through the end of the month.

The strike, which has been the longest in the nation's history, was sparked by a dispute over pay raises and working conditions. The striking workers, who are members of the Brotherhood of Railroad Signalmen, have been without a contract since October.

The strike began on Nov. 7, when the Brotherhood of Railroad Signalmen, which represents more than 20,000 workers, went on strike for a pay raise of at least $1,000.

The strike, which was the longest in the nation's history, has caused widespread disruptions throughout the country. Railroads have been forced to operate on reduced schedules, and many industries have been unable to supply goods to the stores.

Lot of fences

You are invited to a party this Saturday.
TIME: 11 am.
PLACE: The Park, Home and Bowdich.
OCCASION: Second anniversary of a fence.

People's Park is one of the most hotly debated of the city's situa- tions. Men who have been seen on the streets, men who have been seen in the harbor, men who have been seen in the desert, and men who have been seen in the city. It's not like they changed anything useful. The park was just a waste of time, where you can put time, and you can put time, and you can put time. It doesn't do anything.

To make the fence more exciting, the state moved in and removed several dozen of the fences. People are no longer able to walk through the park because it is a waste of time.

To show how much time has passed, the fence was torn down. The state moved in and removed several dozen of the fences. People are no longer able to walk through the park because it is a waste of time. It doesn't do anything.

Troop Cut Unlikely

WASHINGTON, D.C. -- A Pentagon official has confirmed that the budget for the Vietnam war is expected to reach $15 billion by the end of fiscal 1973.

The official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said that the budget would include funds for the proposed cut in troop levels. He declined to discuss the size of the cut, but said it would be substantial.

The official also confirmed that the White House was considering a new plan for handling the war, which would include a series of military initiatives designed to reduce the American troop levels.

The plan, which is expected to be announced in the coming weeks, would involve a combination of military and political measures, including a reduction in the number of American soldiers in Vietnam, a tightening of the draft laws, and a more active role for the United Nations in the region.

The official said that the new plan was the result of months of internal deliberation within the White House, and that it had been discussed at length with Congress.

The official said that the plan would be presented to Congress in the weeks ahead, and that it would be accompanied by a detailed explanation of the administration's strategy for handling the war.

The official declined to comment on the possibility of a withdrawal of American troops from Vietnam, saying that the administration was committed to a policy of containment in the region.

The official said that the plan was designed to reduce the burden on American troops and to improve the chances of success in the war, but that it would not be a step towards withdrawal.

The official said that the administration was also considering a range of other proposals, including a reduction in the size of the American military force in the region, and a more active role for the United Nations in the region.

It was here, a minute ago.

Before the tornado.

When you hear a National Weather Service warning it means a tornado has been detected nearby.

Watch for the funnel cloud.

Take cover below ground level or in a bathroom.

If you live in a middle range, leave it for a solid shelter or low ground.

The warning means you are out of time.

EMILY BRONTE'S "Wuthering Heights" Must Be "The Laughing Woman" at the Englert

"Wuthering Heights" is a story that portrays the passion and drama of the characters in the novel. It is a story that is full of emotions and has been adapted to the stage numerous times. The story follows the relationship between the main characters, Heathcliff and Catherine Earnshaw, and how their love is affected by the social and economic flaws of the time.

"Wuthering Heights" was written by Emily Bronte in 1847 and is one of the most famous novels ever written. It is a story that has been translated into various languages and has been adapted into films, plays, and musicals.

The Englert Theatre will be hosting the production of "Wuthering Heights" this summer, and it is sure to be an unforgettable experience for anyone who loves classic literature and drama. With its breathtaking scenery and talented cast, this production of "Wuthering Heights" is sure to captivate audiences and leave them with a deep appreciation for this timeless story.
The situation is complicated, however, by a series of factors. First, the government's determination to raise its defense budget could influence its resolve. Second, the cost of maintaining the large military presence in South Vietnam could be a deterrent. Third, the impact of the war on the economy of the United States could be significant. Fourth, the potential for a peace settlement in South Vietnam could provide an incentive for the United States to pursue a negotiated solution. Finally, the support of the American people for the war could be affected by the outcome of the election. The president will need to consider all of these factors as he finalizes his decision. It is hoped that the president will make a decision that is in the best interest of the United States and the region.

Burger Criticizes Lawyers, Media

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, Tuesday criticized what he called "sensationalism" and "reckless" reports by newspapers and television crews about the trial of the Black Panther leader, George "Garry" Seale.

Burger, appearing before the U.S. District Court in Washington, D.C., said that "little" of what was said about the trial was "true".

"It's not the responsibility of law enforcement people ... to report what's going on in the courtroom," Burger said.

The chief justice said that American newspapers were "reckless" in their reporting.

He said that the reported news of Seale's trial was "more sensational" than true.

Burger, who is also the chief justice of the U.S. Supreme Court, said that "the American judicial system is not a circus."
