Students 'Grade' Sociology Profs

The authors of a recent evaluation of the University of Iowa's sociology faculty remain anonymous, but the statistical results and recommendations have been made known.

The purpose of the study, designed in a similar fashion to that used by the sociology faculty in evaluating graduate students for graduate assistant or teaching assistant awards, was "to evaluate and make recommendations as to the qualifications and continued employment of the faculty in sociology."

Overall faculty reaction to the results, which were distributed throughout the department, was varied, depending on how the individual ranked in comparison to other professors.

The findings of the study were based in three areas: knowledge of faculty, teaching and research performance and classroom performance.

The study found that the least well known of the sociology faculty tend to be older, with the status of full professor. Of the four best known, none are full professors.

The makers of the study instructed participating students to score the professors' performances in teaching and classroom performance categories in terms of letter grades. Using the standard grade point required for admission to the doctoral program — 3.25 — the study alleges that only six of the 17 faculty are eligible to continue in their doctoral classrooms on the basis of their scores in the category "teaching and research performance."

Using the same criterion for academic performance in the classroom, the study found that only two of the present faculty are eligible to be admitted into the doctoral classroom. The study also showed that consensus not to rehire was reached for three professors.

Comments on the study ranged from "appropriate" and "reasonable" to "propagandistic device" and "misleading." An associate sociology professor commented that given a different type of university, this evaluation would not be right, but since this university is so hung up about grading and ranking, "it's perfectly OK."

Commenting on the faculty's evaluation of graduate students, another associate professor said that "the impetus was that we evaluate students for awards, and some aren't happy with this procedure. . . I don't think the faculty is placing too much emphasis on it because the rankings don't correlate too highly with general response received in class. Some rankings are suspiciously high and some suspiciously low. I personally don't place much credence in it."

Several sociologists questioned the methods the authors used in determining the results, since the study reported a return of only 15 completed questionnaires. Others questioned whether the evaluation even considered all of the returned questionnaires.

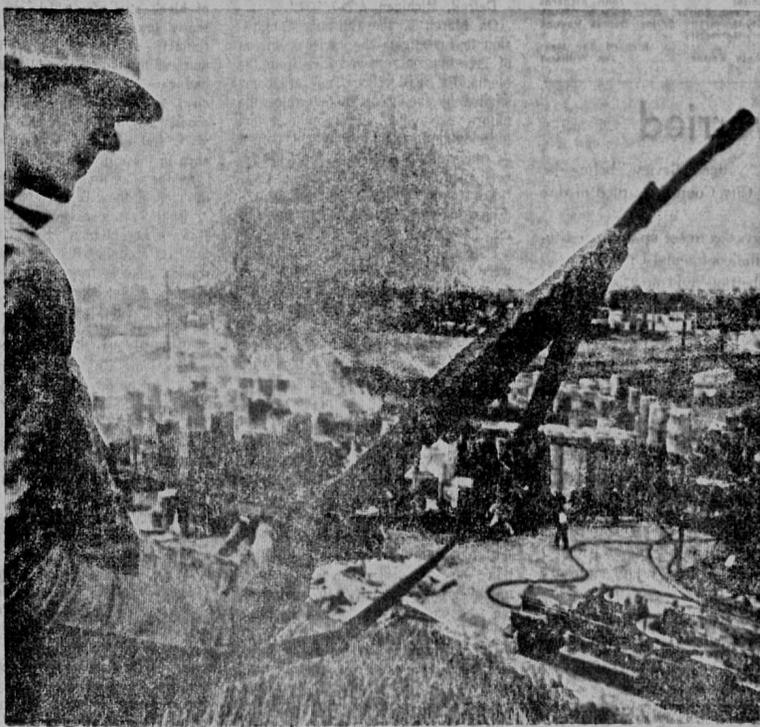

There was likewise no consensus of opinion among sociology graduate students contacted about the faculty evaluation. Comments ran the gamut from "as a whole it was a real good thing to do" to "no-one-really-buys-it."

One student commented that the study seemed "pretty political" in that "the left wing comes out very well; conservative profs come out low on the scale."

Among the first of the unauthored study's recommendations was "those faculty who scored low yet wish to remain with the profession should seek individual counseling with those students whom they know and feel they can trust."

Number five on the list reads: "Because of the apparent low level of interaction between students and some faculty, we recommend that those faculty scoring low on the knowledge question wear name tags and try to smile and say hello upon meeting a student."

The recommendations concluded with: "Those who view their personal situation beyond remedy are encouraged to look for work in other fields and be assured that graduate students will provide them with favorable references to facilitate their reappointment."

Under Guard

Chattanooga Hit By Disturbances; Guard Called Out

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. — Two thousand National Guardsmen patrolled the center of Chattanooga Monday with fixed bayonets after three nights of disorders, mostly in black sections.

At mid-afternoon, 150 members of the Tennessee Air National Guard, especially trained in the protection of firemen, were placed on standby, to guard against fire bombings and property destruction.

Each squad leader was issued live ammunition. Brig. Gen. Van Nunnally, assistant adjutant general, said the ammunition would be used "if the lives of troops or other persons are in danger, but not necessarily in the case of pending property damage."

The Guardsmen moved in during early morning on orders of Gov. Winfield Dunn.

Smoldering racial tension had been triggered by failure of Wilson Pickett, a black soul singer, to perform as scheduled Friday night.

An incident at Brainerd High School, beset by racial disturbances the past two years, had resulted in dismissal of classes the day before.

The city is in the midst of a dispute over increased racial desegregation of the school system. The School Board has less than a month to submit a speedup plan to U.S. District Court Judge Frank Wilson.

It was the first time Guardsmen had been called to aid in a Tennessee civil disorder since rioting broke out in the wake of the slaying of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. at Memphis three years ago. At that time, 8,000 Guardsmen were called to Memphis and Nashville.

Mayor Robert Kirk Walker asked for help Sunday after local officers, with state police reinforcements, were unable to cope with what he called increasing violence including "fire bombings, snipers, shootings, destruction of property and imperiling of life."

The disturbances began Friday night with window smashing after the aborted rock music show, and continued in scattered, guerrilla-type incidents through the weekend despite a 7 p.m. curfew Saturday and Sunday.

Arrests, most of them for curfew violations, totaled more than 300 by Monday morning. The majority of those arrested were blacks.

Wiretaps Disclosed In Berrigan 'Conspiracy'

HARRISBURG, Pa. — The federal government disclosed Monday it had obtained wiretaps of what it believed to be telephone conversations of one of the defendants in an alleged plot to kidnap a presidential aide.

It was not revealed, however, whose phone was tapped, when the conversations occurred, or if the tap was on the phone of someone not involved in the current case.

"It is our contention that such surveillance was lawful and was necessary and essential to protect against a clear and present danger to the security of the United States of America," the government said in a brief presented by Daniel J. McAuliffe, a Justice Department lawyer.

The disclosure at a federal court hearing came in response to demands by former U.S. Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark that the government reveal all wire-taps involving the Rev. Philip Berrigan and seven other defendants.

Clark, making his first appearance as defense counsel, argued that the government could not pick and choose what wiretaps it would disclose. Berrigan, currently serving a sentence at a federal prison in Danbury, Conn., for destroying draft board records, and the others were to be arraigned here Tuesday on charges contained in an indictment returned by a federal grand jury April 30.

That indictment, superseding one handed down Jan. 12 accused the eight of plotting to kidnap Henry Kissinger, President Nixon's foreign affairs adviser, blow up heating tunnels in the nation's capital and destroy draft board records around the country.

Berrigan is accused of masterminding the plot from his jail cell at Lewisburg, Pa., Federal Penitentiary prior to his transfer to Danbury.

Appended to the indictment were copies of letters the government claims were transmitted between Berrigan and Sister Elizabeth McAlister, 31, of Tarrytown, N.Y. The letters discussed the possibility of seizing Kissinger as a way to force an end to the Vietnam war.

Judge Herman took the case under advisement.

Hughes Gloomy On Possible Drop In Unemployment

WASHINGTON — Sen. Harold E. Hughes (D-Iowa) said Monday he sees little prospect of the unemployment rate going down to 5 per cent by the fall of 1972.

The April rate was 6.1 per cent. President Nixon has said his aim is a rate of 4.5 per cent by the middle of 1972.

"Our problem is a lack of determination to do the things that are needed," Hughes told the National Association of Home Builders.

"We've got to overcome the ancient notion that unemployment is natural and that employment should only be provided by the traditional process of business offering jobs in pursuit of its own self-interest."

Hot Pants, Minis 'Sliced' In Downtown Clothing Store; Manager Offers 'Reward'

Someone's been busy with a razor blade at the Country Cobbler in Iowa City, and William Brooker, manager of the women's clothing and shoe store, would like to know who it is.

The amount of damage done to merchandise is about $700 to $800, Brooker says. The vandals have been slashing mostly hot pants plus some lowcut sweaters and low-cut minidresses.

The store employees discovered the damaged items Saturday after several customers had tried on outfits and found

Supreme Court to Hear Amish Education Plea

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court agreed Monday to decide whether the states can force a high-school education on Amish children.

Set for argument next term was a case from Wisconsin in which Amish children have been exempted from compulsory attendance laws by order of the state supreme court.

Wisconsin is appealing with a view that 20th century children must have the opportunity of a high-school education to reasonably expect success in life.

On the other side are three Amish fathers from Green County who insist high school "just doesn't fit us."

The Amish, descendants of 18th century Swiss Anabaptists, shun modern technology and generally disapprove of education beyond the eighth grade. They and closely related Old Order Mennonites reside in 19 states.

In a second action, the Supreme Court barred Georgia from suspending the driver's licenses of uninsured motorists who are unable to post security to cover accident damage claims.

Justice William J. Brennan Jr., delivering the unanimous opinion, said a motorist is entitled to the chance to prove the accident was not his fault.

In another unanimous decision, the Supreme Court cautioned the states that their loitering and suspicious persons laws must include "ascertainable standards of guilt."

The notice was served as the justices reversed the conviction of James Palmer, who was arrested late at night near an apartment complex in Euclid, Ohio. Palmer had dropped off a woman and sat in his car where an off-duty policeman saw him talking into a car telephone.

The ruling reversed Palmer's 30-day sentence and $50 fine.

In another action, the court agreed to decide whether a suspect is entitled, before indictment, to have a lawyer at his side when police bring witnesses to the stationhouse to have a look at him, says, but he submitted his resignation to the commission, which has accepted it.

Shively says the commission voted to retain seven of the current eight positions in the state. Six of the current staff were approved for next year, but no action was taken on Shively, Smith and Mark Rutledge from Ames.

Shively does not believe the firing had anything to do with his activities during the demonstrations last spring, noting that this point was not discussed in the commission meeting.

According to Shively, "the only negative thing, that was reported to me concerned my ability to communicate with other members of the commission. This is a personal thing and not a judgment on the work of my ministry."

The commission claims the cut in personnel is due to financial difficulties, but it has decided to hire a full time minister for the Iowa City campus. The result is a cut of only one part time person in Iowa City.

Shively says, "while the commission could support their financial position by not taking action on the three people, they could not do so by hiring another person."

"The action is not a personal one to either Sally or I," Shively said. "It is in response to long standing tensions between local board and state commission."

Triangle Club: Deadwood

DI News Feature
By MIKE EATON
Daily Iowan Reporter

(This article is the second in a series about the Iowa Memorial Union.)

Of all the little enclaves within the Iowa Memorial Union, one of the most interesting and at the same time useless to students is the Triangle Club, a social organization formed by members of the university faculty and staff, and members of the Iowa City business community.

Jason Andrew, an officer of the Triangle Club, was asked for a membership list, but refused to give such a list to The Daily Iowan. He also refused to comment as to why the membership list was not available. Sources outside of the club, however, say that members include such people as university president Willard Boyd, Iowa City Mayor Loren Hickerson and City Manager Frank Smiley.

The club has its quarters on part of the second and third floors of the northeast corner of the union. Facilities include a dining room, bar, and lounge on the second floor, and a ballroom, billiards room and recreation rooms on the third floor. There are approximately 300 members.

Funds for the construction of this portion of the union were furnished by members in the amount of $50,000. In return for the $50,000 fee the university agreed to a 50-year, rent-free lease. However, the university also retained the right to cancel the lease upon 18 months notice and payment to the club of 1/33 of the original $50,000 for each year left to run on the lease.

One of the features of the Triangle Club is its bar. The regent's 1970-71 Code of Student Life states under "Social Regulations" the following: "(2) DRINKING — alcoholic beverages may not be served on campus or in approved housing. . . Obviously this statement applies only to students.

By law, the regents have the power to make any kind of arbitrary, capricious or discriminatory rule they wish to make as long as that rule does not directly conflict with statutory law. They have the right of imposing any such rule on students, without imposing it on staff, managers, faculty, public officials or other campus visitors.

Thus it is quite possible for a member of this exclusive club, existing in a subsidized area of a Union which is becoming more and more overcrowded, to enjoy a bar where students, even those over 21 and legally eligible to drink alcoholic beverages, are barred from drinking.

Apparently in this case what is not good for students (drinking in the Union) is good for faculty, staff, regents, businesspeople, guests, public officials and other citizens who are members of the club.

The Triangle Club appears to be nothing but deadwood as far as the union is concerned — it had a $3,600 deficit in fiscal 1969-70 and makes no direct contribution to the university.

Because of the lack of information, it is difficult to make any kind of case at all for the existence of the Triangle Club, especially in view of the need for space by other organizations. The student activities center, for example, which occupies space two floors beneath the Triangle Club, has some eighty student organizations crammed into less room than the club's ballroom. . . . and most organizations aren't even lucky enough to have an "instant desk" to do organizational work and keep organizational papers.

Union and university officials have decided to make the Triangle Club a world within a world, exclusively for an elite drawn from an elite. And apparently they are content to keep it that way.

Look who's worried

John R. Coyne, writing in the March issue of "National Review" before the election of four radicals to seats on the Berkeley City Council, warned of dire consequences should those persons be elected.

What the Berkeley radicals intend to do, he says, "is to set up an honest-to-God New Left Democratic People's Republic on the continental United States."

And even better than that, he adds that "the betting right now is that they will succeed."

The radicals, he says, took to heart the words of Herbert Marcuse (who spoke in Berkeley in February) when he told them, "The center of the movement should be in local and regional committees organizing around popular rather than ideological issues. Temporary alliances with certain liberals seem to be on the agenda for us."

But what is interesting about Coyne's remarks is not that he predicted the easily predictable victory of the slate of candidates fielded by the "April Movement," not that he was dismayed and outraged by their coalition efforts, but what he proposes that conservatives do to halt the move of radicals toward city government.

In anguish he calls for a coalition of conservative Republicans and liberal Democrats, thereby lending credence to the claim that there's not a nickel's worth of difference between the parties.

Further, he implies that students should not be permitted to vote in the communities in which they live — those communities where their colleges and universities are located. Instead, presumably, he would attempt to gerrymander the students into areas where they would be totally ineffectual — back into the communities where their parents live. But there was this ruling, see, about how that is unconstitutional.

All manner of battle, however, constitutional or otherwise, becomes acceptable if the intent is to beat off the hordes who might vote in another kind of government. "Today the university community," he cries. "Tomorrow?"

But of course, Coyne really needn't worry all that much. The United States activities in Indochina have settled beyond a reasonable doubt what this country will do to those who try to VOTE in a system different than the one under which we've been laboring so long. (And already in the streets of Berkeley the National Guard shoots off tear gas marked "Not for use in the United States of America or any of its territories.")

But, though Coyne ought not to trouble himself so much, perhaps the left should take greater note of his remarks. There is nothing finer to boost sagging morale than to read the predictions of a right-winger, to read about the certain victory of the left.

"... think for a moment," he says, "of the vibrations a radical electoral takeover at Berkeley would set up along that great national network of university city-states. If Berkeley, why not Madison, Wis.; Lawrence, Kan.; Ann Arbor, Mich.; Kent, Ohio? Today the university community. Tomorrow?"

To the Editor:
AN OPEN LETTER TO JEFF MILBOURN

Dear Jeff:

We read with interest your letter of Monday, May 24, to the Daily Iowan in which you feel wronged because of your political leanings. Being fired is (at least, use to be) a serious matter for a young man and you are certainly entitled to another explanation, particularly since we were so woefully ineffectual with the first one.

Yes, Jeff, you apparently ARE the unfortunate product of "political assassination." Your views and those of the Audio Visual Center just don't seem to coincide.

We have always been of the belief that, as a service agency of the university, we should be as responsive as possible to the needs of our primary clientele — the faculty, staff, and students of the university. We further believe that this can be achieved best through a well-balanced support program, grounded in the basic virtues of "quality" and "service."

Is it, therefore, too much for us to ask of the many students we employ, that they "conduct themselves at all times and on every occasion in accordance with good taste?" (University of Iowa Operations Manual) As representatives of the Audio Visual Center, is it not reasonable and true that your actions and appearance reflect upon us and affect our ability to finance the very livelihood of our 70-member staff?

Is it too old-fashioned to expect from you courtesy, initiative, honesty, punctuality and good grooming?

We don't think so, Jeff; and that's all we've ever asked of our staff (as you so well were made aware!). It matters not to us whether you're a Mugwump, Buddhist, SDS, or purple! We want people who want to work, who take pride in themselves and their accomplishments, and who enjoy serving others! These are the "political views" to which we hold!

You possess many of these characteristics, Jeff; in fact, you were thought of as a "good worker." But you left us no alternative when you decided to exercise YOUR political rights. Like the many times you failed to show up when you were scheduled for a film showing; or when you flouted our student employe memo by throwing it into the wastebasket; or the times you failed to carry your end of the load when it was obvious an important deadline had to be met; or your phone call from the University of Wisconsin the Monday after the demonstrations informing us that you wouldn't be back to handle the full schedule that had been assigned you the previous Thursday; or the times you were caught misappropriating PA and VTR systems for campus demonstrations and the rock festival at Lake McBride; or the time you lied about and sneaked a 16mm motion picture projector down to the River City Trade Zone; or the continual harassing and obstruction of the performance of duty you have given to our PA/VTR technician, who just happens to be an honor ROTC student; or the last straw on May 7 when a friend of yours called to announce with no reason "Jeff won't be in"; or the day you and your cronies burst into Mr. Forbes' office uninvited and unannounced, hoping to document (on the portable VTR you were carrying) a dramatic confrontation between the imperialist AV pigs and the downtrodden peace-monger! I imagine it WAS upsetting to your friend to have to be thrown out, so an already understaffed office could handle the waiting crowd of customers.

My guess is that what separates us, Jeff, is not really "political" at all, but simply our differences in the basic values and virtues of work, honesty, and personal integrity.

Incidentally, Jeff, you are not alone — we are rather disillusioned with many of the students we have hired these past two years. Our efforts to provide jobs and camaraderie for the "less-advantaged — work-study — EOP crowd" that has been sent to us has been a miserable failure. For the most part, they have been unreliable, and in some cases thieves. But we are extremely thankful for the few fine young men who have done a conscientious job for us. We are through fooling around being an out-patient clinic for wayward boys — our staff is bugged-out with them, and the faculty won't tolerate their insolence and indifference. We're going back to recruiting the wholesome red-blooded, all-American college student. He can be square or round, and his hair can be long! Just so he's neat in his appearance, with a sparkle in his eye, a bounce in his walk, a cheery smile, a helping hand, a positive attitude, a definable academic goal, and a clear-cut reason for being in school! That's a lot to ask for, but we've got a lot to offer. Many are the young persons who have pursued a life's vocation in instructional technology as a result of working as a student in an Audio Visual Center. If any of your friends fill the bill, please send them around.

A word from Big Brother

From Liberation News Service
 "To: All Agents
 From: Agent Kenneth K. Smythe
 Subject: National Association of Black Students Convention,
 Wayne State University
 Detroit, Michigan, 6/26-7/5/71"

On March 8, the Citizen's Commission to Investigate the Federal Bureau of Investigation removed files from the Media, Pa., FBI office. They are being studied by the group to determine the nature and amount of surveillance and intimidation carried on by that office — which groups and individuals are investigated and the extent of illegal practices by the FBI. As the study proceeds, the group will publicize more of its results.

Fifteen documents from those files were sent to Sen. George McGovern (who sent them back to the FBI unopened), Rep. Jarron J. Mitchell (who sent them to Atty. Gen. Mitchell), The New York Times, the Washington Post, the Los Angeles Times and Liberation News Service. The FBI has acknowledged the authenticity of the documents.

Atty. Gen. Mitchell has asked that news media not publicize the contents of the file because the disclosure of the information could endanger the lives of federal agents and the security of the country.

The 15 FBI documents can be divided into four different types of investigations: black student groups, black community groups, campus groups and people who travel or are planning to travel to Communist countries.

The following is from a document from the director of the FBI to FBI headquarters in Albany, N.Y., dated Nov. 4, 1970:
"Black Student Groups on College Campuses Racial Matters
"Increased campus disorders involving black students pose a definite threat to the Nation's stability and security and indicate need for increases in both quality and quantity of intelligence information on Black Student Unions

(BSU) and similar groups which are targets for influence and control by violence-prone Black Panther Party (BPP) and other extremists... Effective immediately, all BSUs and similar organizations organized to project the demands of black students, which are not presently under investigation, are to be subjects of discreet, preliminary inquiries, limited to established sources and carefully conducted to avoid criticism, to determine the size, aims, purposes, activities, leadership, key activists, and extremist interest and influence in these groups."

Another document, addressed to the director of the FBI from a chief agent in Baltimore, gives a history of Rotan Edward Lee, a member of a black nationalist group in Baltimore. The information comes from Dr. Howard E. Wright, acting chancellor of the University of Maryland, Eastern Shore Campus. He tells of Lee's family and his previous activities on the campus.

The Media FBI files also included a report on the Swarthmore Afro Students Society (SASS) made in January 1969. SASS had made some non-negotiable demands that frightened college officials enough to send them to the Swarthmore Police Department to ask for assistance in case of "student violence." Constant surveillance of the college campus was maintained, all printed literature on the campus was obtained, as well as a list of all the black students on campus.

The National Association of Black Students (NABS) also has a file kept on its activities. A document addressed to all agents requests informants to locate NABS charters and representatives and asks agents to go to the NABS convention at Wayne State University in Detroit, Mich.

The FBI is also conducting investigations of the Black Panther Party and the Black Development Conference (which formulated the Black Manifesto — the demand for reparations from churches) in Philadelphia, Pa. An FBI memorandum from agent Ronald D. Butler to FBI headquarters in Philadelphia lists telephone calls made at the Panther office on Feb. 1, 1971. The names of the persons calling, the names of the persons called, the telephone numbers called and the conversations are all recorded. This information goes into the files of 15 people.

Four documents from the investigation of the Black Economic Development Conference include two memoranda from agents James I. Halterman and Edward M. Cole that give detailed information about meetings of the Black Economic Development Conference on Jan. 25 and Jan. 30, 1971. The information includes who attended the meetings, where they took place, how long they lasted and what was discussed at the meetings. This information goes into the files of nine people. The FBI also received information from the records of the Bell Telephone Co. of Pennsylvania. The statement at the end of this report says:
"The above information is confidential and should not be made public without the issuance of a subpoena directed to Donald V. Powell, Security Department, Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania."

The checking account of the Black Economic Development Conference was also studied with the help of a cashier and an executive at the computer center. They made copies of bank statements and checks and tried to identify the nature and source of deposits and credits to the account.

An example of investigations of radicals on campus is the investigation of Mr. and Ms. Daniel Bennett. Mr. Bennett is a professor at Swarthmore College. The information on the Bennetts comes from a variety of sources. Henry Peirso, security officer at Swarthmore College, provided general information about the family and who visits their home. Judy G. Feiy, chief switchboard operator at the college, gave information about his activities on campus and agreed to furnish information about telephone calls Mr. Bennett makes and receives. Even the postmaster and the carrier who handles the mail for the Bennett residence were asked and agreed to watch for any mail that might look "suspicious."

In a document addressed to the director of the FBI, dated Feb. 26, 1971, the activities of Mary Jane Lawhorn, "an inveterate Marxist revolutionist," are described. Most of the information concerns where she lives, who she lives with, and the courses she is taking at the University of California at Berkeley.

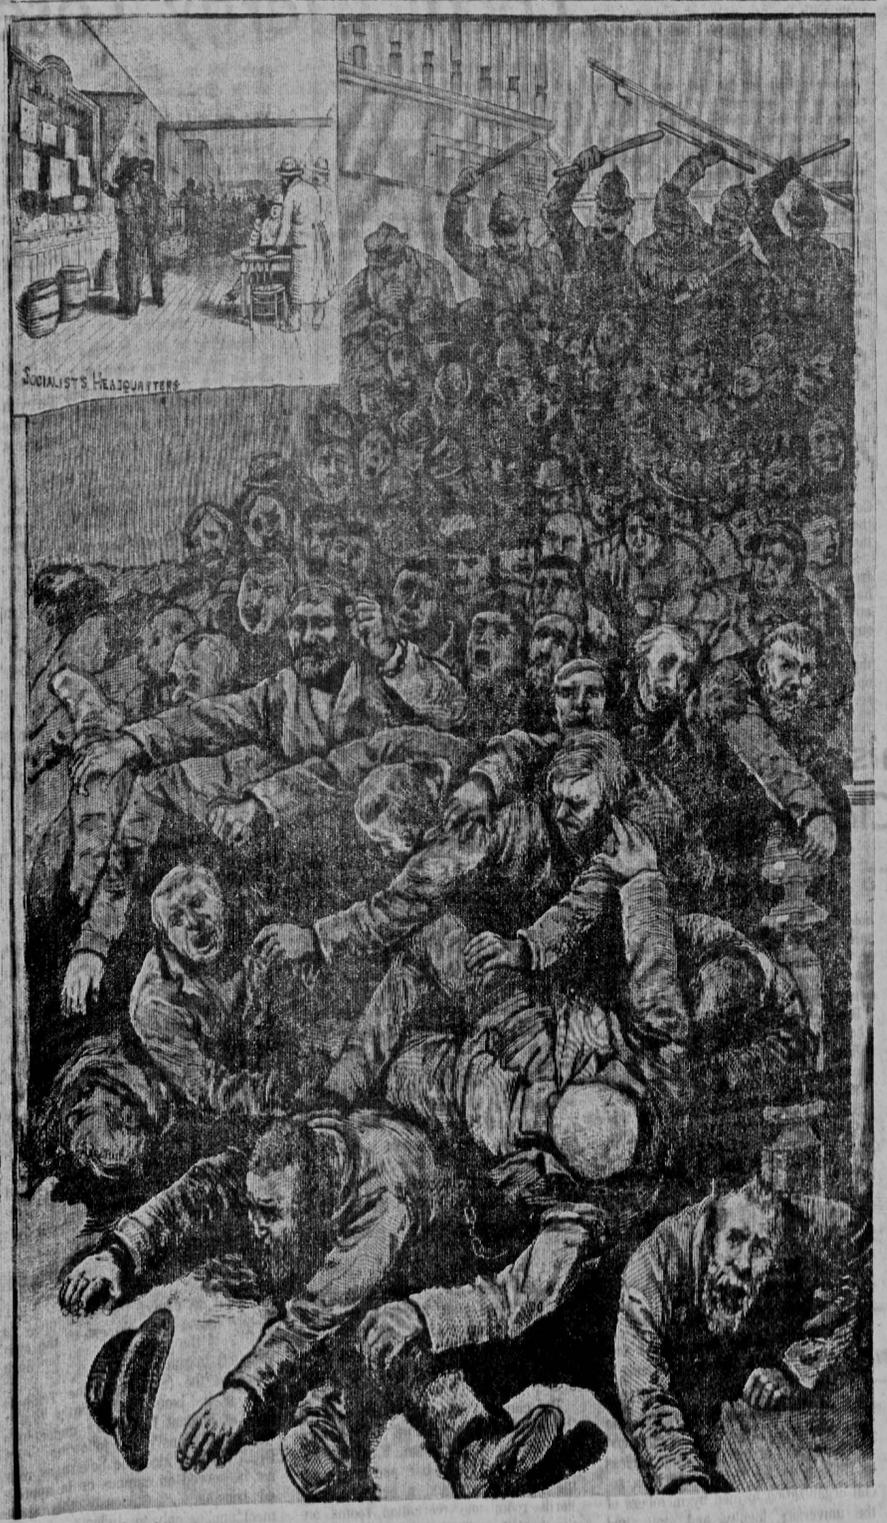

"Subject attended a meeting of the Venceremos Brigade on 7/20/70, at 23rd Avenue and 14th Street, Oakland, California. This meeting was covered by SF 2231-S who stated subject was one of numerous individuals turned down on their applications to be members of the Fourth Contingent of the Venceremos Brigade. During this meeting, there was no discussion of violence or revolution. San Francisco sources personally conversed with subject and received no indication that she was anything other than the average liberal-minded student that is common in the Berkeley area."

The Conference of War Resisters International at Haverford College, Haverford, Pa., also was investigated to "determine its scope and whether or not there are any indications that it will generate any anti-U.S. propaganda." This was to be done "in view of the current international situation and the Paris Peace Talks."

The FBI also ordered that all students, teachers, and scientists who were in the USSR at least one month should be investigated. Specifically, the Bureau instructed that U.S. passport records be checked. The purpose of the investigations is to determine whether any of the people "have been approached for recruitment by the Soviet Intelligence Services... the motives of the Bureau in investigating American students, professors, and scientists must not be construed as infringements of the American educational system and the pursuit of intellectual freedom."

Another document from the FBI files is a letter to the Embassy of the USSR in Washington, D.C., from the advisor of a group of Explorer Scouts in Moscow, Idaho. He requested information about how his troop could travel through Russia during the summer and if it would be possible for them to meet young people while they were there.

The last information received from the Media FBI files was an internal FBI newsletter, entitled "New Left Notes — Philadelphia," to keep persons dealing with the new left problem up to date. It was the first edition, dated Sept. 16, 1970. It included the following information:
"...there was a pretty general consensus that more interviews with these subjects and hangers-on are in order for plenty of reasons, chief of which are it will enhance the paranoia in these circles and will further serve to get the point across there is an FBI agent behind every mailbox. In addition, some will be overcome by the overwhelming personalities of the contacting agent and volunteer to tell all — perhaps on a continuing basis. The Director has okayed (agents) aged 18 to 21. We have been blocked off from this critical age group in the past."

Letter: The New Party

To the Editor:
 If one thing is obvious, it is that we cannot rely on the traditional two-party system to meet the needs of American society. What's the alternative? One is the creation of a new political party, whose leaders are responsible to the party membership and program.

How can such a party be created? In order to have a base among the masses, it must begin here, in Iowa City and in every other town and city in the nation. It's a big job, but it has been begun. The New Party has a national organization and many state organizations. However, state and national organizations are removed from the grass roots base — so they are not enough. The Iowa City New Party and the University of Iowa Students for the New Party are having an organizational meeting at 8 p.m. tonight at the Unitarian Church for Karen Eades. She is running for City Council, the elections for which are scheduled next fall. I urge all who are interested in working to bring a radical change to American society and Iowa City government to attend. If we don't start here, where else should we begin?

No Verdict-Mistrial For Seale, Huggins

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Judge Harold M. Mulvey declared a mistrial Monday in the six-month trial of Black Panther Chairman Bobby G. Seale and a local Panther leader. The prosecutor said he would bring them to trial again.

The Superior Court judge made his ruling after the jury of five blacks and seven whites, selected over a period of four months, insisted it could not agree on verdicts on any of the charges faced by Seale or Ericka Huggins arising from the slaying of Alex Rackley, another party member.

"I declare a mistrial for the reason that the jury has failed to reach a verdict on all of the charges" in the two cases, Mulvey said.

The judge set Tuesday for a meeting in court with both defendants, their attorneys and the prosecutor. He did not ex-

Senate Votes To Bury SST

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate agreed finally Monday to appropriate $97.3 million in burial costs for the supersonic transport project, and sent to President Nixon the $7.2-billion miscellaneous money bill that carried the item.

The Senate action dropped, at least for the present, $58.5 million that had been earmarked for repayment to airlines involved in the SST project.

Iowa House OKs Area College Fees

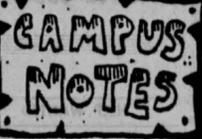

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — A bill to legalize the collection of student fees by area community colleges and technical schools was passed 81-9 by the Iowa House Monday.

The House withstood all efforts to amend the bill, although it came close to adopting one to make payment of students fees voluntary instead of mandatory.

Rep. Laverne Schroeder, R-McClelland, then filed a motion to reconsider the bill.

Nuclear Physics at UI: 'A Fascinating Adventure'

While society invests hundreds of millions of dollars in massive "atom smashers," such as the 500-billion-volt accelerator being constructed at Weston, Ill., smaller facilities costing a fraction as much are serving as tools "for some of the most important basic research in nuclear physics today," says a University of Iowa scientist.

Richard Carlson, physics professor and director of the nuclear physics research program here, says that the search for more fundamental subatomic particles — made possible by the huge atom smashers — is "a fascinating adventure with great potential long-range significance."

But he asserts that research using smaller accelerators, involving collisions between whole atomic nuclei rather than tiny subatomic particles, "is most likely to result in practical applications."

"The larger particles can't penetrate and reveal the structure of subatomic particles such as the proton. But when collisions between nuclei occur, physicists can learn much more about the nucleus itself and the strong forces holding it together," Dr. Carlson noted.

For research in this direction, the university has been awarded a $165,300 National Science Foundation grant. The grant, representing the eighth consecutive year that the nuclear physics program has been funded by NSF, will support the work of 10 faculty and graduate students through the spring of 1972.

They will use, as their primary research tool, the university's 6.5-million-volt particle accelerator purchased six years ago with NSF funds.

The accelerator — which acts like a gun to shoot high-energy nuclei (or ions) at target nuclei — causes "transmutations," nuclear reactions in which one element is changed into another.

In one reaction, for example, the nucleus of a lithium atom may be slammed into a carbon atom. The lithium nucleus, which has a total of 6 neutrons and protons in it, fuses with the carbon nucleus, with 12 such particles, to form a nucleus of a new element plus 1 loose pro-ton. The new element is oxygen, with 17 subnuclear particles.

"Such reactions," Carlson explains, "may tell us much about the structure of the nucleus, how different parts of the nucleus are interacting and how they are resonating."

"With this information, we may then construct more detailed 'models' of nuclear structure."

Commenting on the differences between low-energy studies designed to reveal the structure of atomic nuclei — and high-energy studies probing the nature of subatomic particles such as the proton, Carlson cited work by the great Italian physicist Enrico Fermi leading to the discovery of nuclear fission.

Fermi's work, which ushered in the age of nuclear technology, was conducted in the 1930's and 40's "when most nuclear physicists were thinking in terms of high-energy physics and fundamental particles," he added. "It involved the use of comparatively inexpensive facilities for bombarding uranium with low-energy neutrons," Carlson said.

"This is a classic example of the importance of less expensive, basic research," he added.

Nuclear research began here in the 1930's coinciding with the very first work with artificially accelerated ions. Until the 1960's, nuclear research was largely concerned with the study of reactions produced by light-weight ions such as hydrogen, helium and deuterium (heavy hydrogen). With the installation of the present Van de Graaff accelerator, research emphasis changed to heavier ions such as lithium.

Nine 'Wanted' In Crackdown In Istanbul

ISTANBUL, Turkey — Martial law authorities put up posters throughout Istanbul on Monday with pictures of eight young men and a woman wanted in connection with the kidnap-slaying of Consul-General Ephraim Elrom of Israel.

At the same time the government asked parliament to approve a two-month extension of martial law imposed April 26 for a month in 11 provinces. Passage in Tuesday's session was considered certain.

The wanted group includes Neomi Demir, a medical student who graduated from the American Robert-College High School here after attending on a Fulbright scholarship.

Elrom was seized a week ago by "warriors" of the Turkish Peoples Liberation Army (TPLA). The government of Premier Nihat Erim and martial law commanders replied with a roundup of leftists which involved about 1,000 persons, some of them later released. Elrom's body was found Sunday. He had been shot three times in the head.

Since then, police intensified the crackdown.

There were new reports of midnight visits by plain-clothesmen with known leftists taken to martial law headquarters.

Under martial law, suspects may be held for a month without charge.

Qurke's Shocks Still Rip Turkey

ISTANBUL, Turkey — Aftershocks from Saturday's disastrous earthquake rippled through eastern Turkey on Monday, collapsing weakened buildings and striking panic among dust-covered survivors.

People had been warned to stay out in the open, and no additional casualties from the new tremors were reported.

Army Junkies

BALTIMORE, Md. — Presidential adviser Robert H. Finch said Monday 20,000 drug addicts are being discharged annually from military service.

Treatment programs are handled within each service, but Finch noted a "violent difference of opinion" on how to combat drug abuse.

Finch said recent military cases in Europe and Africa had revealed that efforts to prevent drug abuse among American troops "appear not to be altogether effective."

Dollar Supported

WASHINGTON — The Treasury Department announced Monday it will borrow up to $500 million of U.S. currency from overseas branches of American banks.

The decision, taken on the heels of an international monetary crisis, means the United States is trying to soak up some of the flood of dollars on deposit in Europe.

The Treasury said it is issuing special three-month certificates of indebtedness to overseas branches of American banks.

The special borrowing issues will bear an interest rate of 6 1/2 per cent, higher than the prevailing short-term interest rates in the United States.

Ecology Check

WASHINGTON — Rep. John Blatnik, asserting "the performance by the water-pollution control agency is absolutely miserable," begins Tuesday an examination of all aspects of environmental pollution.

The Minnesota Democrat said the prolonged investigation will focus on progress — or lack of it — in fields of water and air pollution.

School Bill

DES MOINES, Iowa — The Iowa Senate voted 26-22 Monday evening to pass a massive tax and school aid bill.

The bill was immediately sent to the House for approval or rejection.

The bill completely rewrites the House measure, passed nearly two weeks ago after three weeks of debate.

The House is expected to reject the Senate's version, sending the bill to a conference committee.

Tax Hike?

DES MOINES, Iowa — The Iowa Senate voted Monday to raise both sales and income taxes as debate drew to a close on a massive tax and school aid bill.

In a 27-21 vote, the Senate agreed to boost the sales tax from three to four cents on the dollar. A few minutes later the upper chamber voted 30-18 to hike income tax rates to raise $31 million.

HOW MUCH HEALTH CARE DO YOU WANT FOR FOUR DOLLARS?

80c WORTH OR 95c WORTH?

The one best way to compare the difference between non-profit Blue Cross and Blue Shield and profit-making insurance is by the amount of the premium dollar each returns in benefits.

Those figures tell the whole story in a nutshell. The figures aren't hard to come by. They are published annually by National Underwriters, an organization with no axe to grind. The most recent of those figures show that commercial insurance paid out an average of only 80% of earned premium income while Iowa Blue Cross and Blue Shield paid out a hefty 95%.

Fifteen cents more out of each dollar went directly into benefits the Blue Cross and Blue Shield way.

What happened to the 15 cents the insurance companies didn't pay out?

It could have gone into things like agent's commissions, directors' fees, dividends to stockholders, and profit.

We like our way better, and so do our nearly a million Iowa members.

Dewey Named; Committee Seeks Replacement— Big 10 Selects Interim Head

By JOHN RICHARDS
Sports Editor

John Dewey was named interim commissioner for the Big 10 Monday at the league's annual spring meeting being held here this year and at the same time announced that he wasn't a candidate for the head job.

Dewey, assistant since 1961 to commissioner William R. (Bill) Reed who died suddenly last Thursday, was chosen as the acting head of the league by the Council of Faculty Representatives. He will serve there until a five-man committee appointed by the Council finds a suitable replacement for Reed.

In a statement presented to the press by spokesman Marcus Plant, the faculty representative from Michigan, Dewey said, "I do not wish to be considered for the job of commissioner." He did agree to serve until a new man was found.

The five-man committee will begin immediately in their search for a new man although no time limit was set for finding him. Members of the committee are: Professor George Young of Wisconsin, chairman of the group, Professor Max Schultz of Michigan State, Dean John Fuzack of Michigan, Indiana athletic director J.W. Orwig and Ohio State athletic director J. E. Weaver.

"The committee will move to a selection with all deliberate speed," Plant explained. "The league constitution says only that we have to meet again on the matter within the next four weeks."

"The committee probably already has a number of people they wish to interview.

All of the presidents, faculty representatives and athletic directors are free to recommend someone for the position.

"The committee was instructed not to consider only those people with a Big 10 background. We are looking for the best man in the country to suit our purposes. He must have the best possible combination of all the factors: age, experience and background."

Plant also said that "no names were brought up at Monday's meeting other than Dewey's." He added that no more discussion of the matter was likely in the next two days.

The next scheduled meeting is set for August 9-12 at Boyne Highlands, Mich., but it is quite possible a special meeting will be called. The August meeting is also an annual meeting, but is mainly a leisure meeting where they discuss a number of matters but no motions are passed.

Among the other things discussed was the possibility of moving the Big 10 offices somewhere else in Chicago or even out of Chicago. Also discussed was a minor change in the policy for predicting a high school student who is being considered for a scholarship.

Previously the policy was to use the student's SAT score and his rank in class. Now, in cases that merit it, the student's high school grade-point average and SAT score will be considered.

At the meeting of athletic directors there was a lengthy discussion of the financial situation of many of the conference schools and a possible change in the use of scholarships that go to minor sports.

Football with 30 and basketball with six are the only sports that have a specific quota of scholarships. The other 34 grants are divided among the minor sports according to the policy of each school.

The directors discussed ways of dividing the scholarships into partial grants. The total number would remain the same, but the amount of the total money spent on 34 full-rides would be lessened by making some of them partial grants. Once a scholarship is used, whether full or partial, it is considered a complete grant and the rest of it cannot be used for another athlete.

The meetings will continue today and Wednesday.

Hawks End Season On an Unusual Play

Regardless of whether your season has been good, bad or indifferent, a coach likes to have his team end its season with a flourish. Iowa's baseball team tried Saturday, but didn't get much of a chance.

The Hawks did get a victory in the nightcap of the day's doubleheader, but it wasn't earned as Minnesota forfeited the game after some of the strangest mixups ever in a baseball game.

Iowa led 2-0 going into the Gopher half of the sixth inning of the second game. Minnesota had won the first contest, 3-2, on Mark Flander's three-run homer in the seventh and it looked like they were going to rally again.

The Gophers scored a run to make it 2-1. They then loaded the bases with one out which brought the Hawkeye infielders in to try and cut off a run. Minnesota batter Tom Epperly hit a sharp grounder to Iowa third-sacker Dave Marshall who bobbed it momentarily, but found the handle. He touched third to force the Gopher's Gary Morgan coming from second and fired to first, hoping for the double play.

The throw was a little low (the runner had it beat anyway) and first baseman Tom Hurn couldn't scoop it up. Hurn finally got the ball and turned to see if any Minnesota runners were attempting to advance a base. He saw one man heading for the plate and fired home to catcher Joe Wessels.

Wessels and Marshall got him in a rundown for the third out of the inning or so they thought since the umpires called him out. But the Minnesota runner turned out to be Morgan who had already been forced out going to the third.

Both teams left the field and didn't realize what happened until Morgan said something to his coach. The Gopher runners quickly ran back to their bases while the rest of the team hovered over the two umpires.

After a 20 minute hassle, the umpires finally ruled that because Morgan had stayed in the field of play he interfered with the game and counted as both outs. They also ruled that when the Minnesota base runners left the field for the dugout they went out of the baselines and were out also.

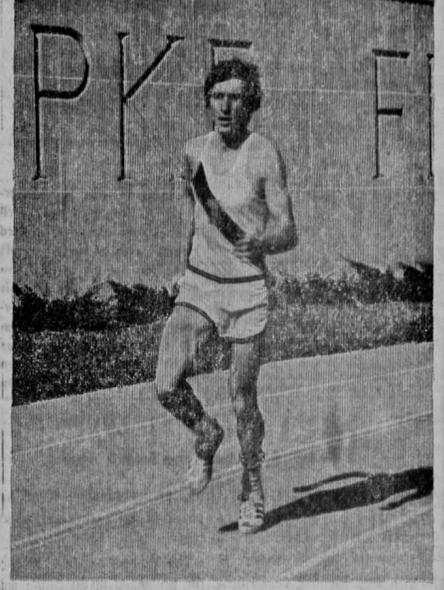

Gopher coach Richard Siebert could not accept the decision and decided to forfeit the game. Michigan State's doubleheader win on Friday had already assured the Spartans of dethroning Minnesota as league champs.

Iowa had scored its runs in the second on a double by Dave Blazin and a single by Hurn and in the third on Jim Cox's 12th homer. There were no winning or losing pitchers because of the 7-0 forfeit.

In the first game Iowa led 2-0 going into the final inning. They had scored in the fourth on an error and in the fifth on Ray Smith's solo home run. Hawkeye hurler Mark Tscopp was sailing along with a four-hit shutout when the first two Gopher batters singled and Flanders unloaded his homer.

Iowa ended its season with a 28-17 mark and 10-8 in the Big 10. That was good for fifth place in the conference and equaled the Hawks record for victories in a Big 10 season. Minnesota ended 28-13 and 12-6 and in second place.

Illinois' Little Big Man —
One of the top favorites for a victory and a new meet record at the Big 10 Track meet to be held here Friday and Saturday is Lee LaBadie of Illinois. LaBadie, a 5-9, 135-pound junior, has already run almost five seconds under the league mile record of 4:03.6. He also has the second best 880 clocking this spring. The meet opens at 3 p.m. Friday at the track just east of the Recreation Building.

You've got a new car.

Our new car gasoline helps fight pollution.

Sometime this year you might be one of the thousands of college students who will be getting a new car. Like this one.

Old? Not to you. It's a new car.

And our new car gasoline works fine in many of these older "new" cars as well as in most of the '71 cars.

Now you can use Lead-Free Amoco in your car and know that you're not putting lead pollution in the air. And you'll be helping your car, too. Because there won't be lead deposits to foul your spark plugs or lead fluids to chew up your exhaust system. Both could last at least twice as long.

Your new car . . . our new car gasoline. They're made for each other.
