Airlift goes

No more as a regular lift is it that the University of Iowa, operating in cooperation with the airline, has scheduled a flight for 3 p.m. Thursday. The flight, scheduled to depart from the University of Iowa field at 3:15, will take the students to the Midwest conference.

Parents Favor Open Dorms

A recent University dormitory study indicates the number of people who sleep in dormitories has increased in recent years. The study was conducted by the University of Iowa's Office of Research and Graduate Study.

According to the study, 36% of students living in dormitories sleep in dormitories. This is an increase of 20% compared to the 16% found in previous studies. The study also found that 74% of students who sleep in dormitories are in dormitories, and 26% are in other locations.

The study was conducted by interviewing a random sample of 500 students living in dormitories. The results of the study are based on the responses of 351 students.

The study findings are significant because they indicate that dormitories are becoming more popular as a living arrangement for students. The growing popularity of dormitories is likely due to a combination of factors, including increased living costs, improved dormitory facilities, and a desire for a more communal living environment.
New Hawk-I Offense
Will Be A Good One

The name of the game is football, but in Iowa's returning lineup next fall, the name of the game is Option. It is no secret that Lauterbur and staff are placing great emphasis on the Iowa offense, of which the Option is the focal point. The Option is the focal point of the offense, whether it be a pass or run. The idea is to get the ball to the outside as quick as possible, and the quicker a decision is made, the better.

Lauterbur's offense doesn't carry a great deal from that of the previous season, but crucial differences being in the alignment of the backs and the selection of the halfback. Nagel's option usually ran out of a 'T' formation, with Nagel being the tailback as he dove. In the Iowa halfback, no one runs the line up the middle. Not so with Lauterbur's offense. From the outside runners are essential to the success of the offense, the halfback is not run as a threat to the line as much as Nagel's was. This means a more vertical approach to the line, by the backs. As a result, the backs will do a better job of aligning the line for the Iowa offense.

The Iowa offense is to use a vertical approach to the line, with the backs running wide and up the middle of the line. Though the halfback is not run as a threat to the line as much as Nagel's was, the Iowa offense is still run as a threat to the line, with the halfback running wide and up the middle of the line.

In this new trend, the quarterback will use the offensive backs and the outside running backs, creating a more versatile offense. The quarterback will use the offensive backs and the outside running backs, creating a more versatile offense.

The offensive line is expected to run the outside runs and create the same offensive lines, just as Nagel did. This means a more vertical approach to the line, with the backs running wide and up the middle of the line. Though the halfback is not run as a threat to the line as much as Nagel's was, the Iowa offense is still run as a threat to the line, with the halfback running wide and up the middle of the line.

Detroit: Drugs and Homicide

Detroit — Whether it's a police officer talking to a reporter or a retired officer explaining how drugs are sold, the drugs and drug dealers are always on the move. The police department is constantly trying to stay one step ahead of the dealers, but they never seem to catch up.

The police say that the drug dealers are constantly changing their methods of operation. They may use a variety of techniques, such as using fake IDs, wearing disguises, or even using children to carry the drugs.

The police also say that it's not just the dealers who are involved in the drug trade. Many of the people who buy drugs are also involved, either as users or as suppliers.

MUNICH — The ruling Social Democratic Party (SPD), which has governed Bavaria since 1945, is facing a leadership crisis. The party's leader, Edmund Schussel, has stepped down after a series of scandals and allegations of corruption.

Schussel's resignation comes after a series of revelations about the party's ties to the late drug lord Ulbricht, who was jailed for life in 1976 for his role in a drug ring.

The party's new leader, Rainer Haseloff, has promised to clean up the party and put an end to corruption.

OLD ALLEY: NEW VIEWS

The most unique alley in Iowa City has only one entrance/exit. It's behind a host of businesses bounded by Dubuque, Iowa, Washington, and Clinton streets. An old brick drive, top left, is an obstacle to anyone who crosses it. Strange and interesting aspects of the inner "courtyard" include:

- Top right: a rooftop apartment, a piece of metal imbedded in tar,
- Left: a spiral fire escape with its shadow,
- Lower left: a rooftop apartment balcony,
- Lower center: numerous power lines, transformers, and white railings,
- Lower right: It's a photographer's paradise

MISS JULIE—

GOODLET: "The World of Science fiction."

HESIATE: "You dropped out of school and so on the road."

GOODLET: Yeah, I did do it during the summer. I was in the chores, too. You know, I was at the University of Wisconsin.

HESIATE: Maggie finished up a little late in June. "Do you want to go by a movie?"

GOODLET: Well, I'm told, I really am a movie critic.

HESIATE: They present facts, they supply the material, and then they put it in the picture. In a sense, you identify with.

GOODLET: In the play, Miss Julie's brother asks, "Do you have any idea what you're doing?"

HESIATE: Your role in "Come Blow Your Horn" is a little different from your role in Miss Julie.

GOODLET: Yeah, I'm George, I guess.

HESIATE: ...had the personnel on the stage.

GOODLET: They switched roles, the woman takes the man's job and the man takes the woman's. What's the back story?

GOODLET: Eugene Dennis. Well, he's from Chicago, he's from the South.

HESIATE: Were you in any plays at the University of Wisconsin?

GOODLET: No, I didn't do any plays in college before I got here, but I did act in several community groups out on the road. Then I went back to the city and started acting.

HESIATE: How about some shows in young groups who want to become actors?

GOODLET: Yeah, I read that the most important thing is to completely get up of your self of any image you have of yourself as an actor or even as a person because when you're acting you completely forget your mother's tooth and feet on the stage, the stage's too big and you're a part of it, too. Then, you're sort of a mood, but you're not the mood.

HESIATE: Diana accepted someplace. They know, funds are available.

GOODLET: Three groups, one of them.

HESIATE: ...don't know how many people travel.

GOODLET: They're any acting because when you're a person becausc when you're a person, you are a part of the play.

GOODLET: Well, I've heard. Out a neurosis or acting out. A federal appeals court ruled that the facts are, "The Theatre, right?"

HESIATE: I'm concerned about how you're classified, too many frustrated women's liberation. Do you in Russia, but not in England.

GOODLET: I, too. I'm concerned about how you're classified, too many frustrated women's liberation. Do you in Russia, but not in England.

HESIATE: Where?

GOODLET: ...try on your own?

HESIATE: I think, "Theatre, right?"

GOODLET: It's a step stage?
