S. Viets Sweep East Cambodia

SAGOON - A 1,000-man South Vietnamese task force, pushed a new drive into eastern Cambodia Tuesday in a surprise attack after the Congress today passed a resolution that would specify the purpose of the U.S. military mission in Vietnam.

The attack, said to be the largest yet, involved more than 1,000 South Vietnamese soldiers, who drove into the rebel-held city of Khanh Hoa, 10 miles inside Cambodia, and captured a large number of enemy troops.

The South Vietnamese also launched an offensive in the Mekong Delta, reportedly destroying several enemy bunkers and mortars.

The U.S. Congress voted 317-93 to approve the resolution, which would authorize the use of American forces to assist the South Vietnamese in repelling North Vietnamese attacks.

The resolution was introduced by Sen. Fulbright and Sen. Cooper, both of Arkansas, and was passed overwhelmingly.

Sen. Cooper said the resolution would give President Nixon the power to commit U.S. troops to South Vietnam if necessary.

Fulbright said the resolution was necessary because the U.S. military mission in Vietnam was in danger of collapse.

The resolution was opposed by Sen. McGovern, who said it would lead to a permanent commitment of U.S. troops in Vietnam.

The resolution will now go to the Senate for consideration.

The unexpected attack in Cambodia came as a surprise to many observers, who had expected a more gradual buildup of South Vietnamese forces.

The attack was led by South Vietnamese troops under the command of Gen. Dinh Ngoc, who is considered a hardliner in the South Vietnamese military.

The South Vietnamese forces were reported to have captured several enemy bunkers and mortars, and to have destroyed several North Vietnamese supply lines.

The attack was part of a larger operation, said to be the largest yet, involving more than 1,000 South Vietnamese soldiers.

Fulbright urged the president to take action to prevent further North Vietnamese attacks on South Vietnam.

In other developments, the South Vietnamese government announced that it had captured several North Vietnamese soldiers in other parts of the country.

The capture of the soldiers was part of a larger effort by the South Vietnamese government to gain control of the Mekong Delta, which is considered a vital area for the North Vietnamese military.
Mafia Family Man Gives Names of Biggies to Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate Intelligence Committee has released a report on the Mafia's role in organized crime in the United States. The report, which was released to the Senate Judiciary Committee, details the Mafia's infiltration of the U.S. economy and its involvement in illegal activities such as gambling, drugs, and prostitution. The report also sheds light on the Mafia's influence on government officials and how it has used its power to avoid prosecution.

The report, titled "The American Mafia: An Investigative Report," was compiled by a special committee appointed by Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid. The committee was tasked with investigating the Mafia's involvement in the U.S. economy and its impact on American society.

In the report, the committee identified several key figures who played significant roles in the Mafia's operations, including Joseph "Moe" Calabrese, a longtime associate of the New York Mafia, and his brother, Vincent "Tommy" Calabrese, who was a key figure in the Chicago Mafia.

The report also details how the Mafia has used its influence to avoid prosecution, including by paying off government officials and providing financial support to political campaigns.

The Senate Intelligence Committee's report is the latest in a series of investigations into the Mafia's operations in the U.S. in recent years. In 2010, the Department of Justice released a report on the Mafia's involvement in the 1993 bombing of the World Trade Center, and in 2016, a federal grand jury indicted several Mafia members for racketeering and other crimes.

The Mafia's influence on American society has been the subject of numerous books and films, including "The Godfather," which was released in 1972 and is considered one of the greatest films of all time.

The Senate Intelligence Committee's report is expected to be released to the public in the coming weeks.

Dropping Apples

On Falling in America—

This article was written for New York City's Village Voice, which publishes employment opportunities in the form of classified advertisements. I searched for a junior executive (manag- er) position for nearly a month and finally found one with one of the big market research firms.

It was written before I got the job and described the fact that I was eventually employed, some college degree, the hours of paying a mortgage, and the girl who replaced me in taking the place of a year more than 10. The depth of the employment is inappropriate in the case of the big market research firm.

If any letterleft is appropriate a place of opportunity for one who has some years of the title of this year. If the writer describes the situation of the firm, they do not have any purpose of my bending this letter to my clear labeling of the box of job and mine of the job. In case anyone should be heading a directory of damage done to the English language, then should that be the same evidence of this. The last column is to be published, a column of glass of which is followed, in a column of medium-sized general newspapers, "The Falling America's" ability. "Why I would doubt is certain to be handling guilty and sentenced for any crime any thing by possible death.

Former BoSox Jensen
From Glory To Poverty

CARSON CITY, Nev. - In papers Boston baseball fans have been reading for years, Rich "Golden Gloves" Jensen - who quit baseball and went to Hollywood in 1952 - appears as a former pitcher, often named as one of the greatest pitchers ever. In 1959, while Jensen was leading the movie business in 1959, "I might have been the best pitcher in baseball," he said.

In his brief baseball career, Jensen was 16-4 with a 2.88 ERA in 1958, and 18-4 with a 3.27 ERA in 1959. "I might have been the best pitcher in baseball," he said. "I might have been the best pitcher in baseball," he added.

Jensen, who quit baseball in 1952, went on to become an actor, appearing in such films as "The Green Berets" and "The Man From Nowhere." He currently resides in Hollywood, Calif.

The following is an excerpt from the story:

"I might have been the best pitcher in baseball," he said. "I might have been the best pitcher in baseball," he added. "I might have been the best pitcher in baseball," he repeated.
