United Nations, N.Y., Nov. 6 - The U.S. General Assembly last night defeated the Soviet Union's annual bid to expel the Chinese Nationalists. A vote of 91 to 24 was taken in the Assembly, where the Chinese were split with 7 abstentions and 18 absent. The battle was won, however, by a single vote, when 39 delegations, including the U.S., cast the first of the 25 votes required to admit the Republic of China to the Un. It would have required a two-thirds vote of the 56 delegations of Nationalist China. It must now appeal to the Security Council for admission.

The " immigrant" question was defeated by a vote of 116 to 14 and 11 abstentions. With only a single major power opposing a proviso of the Kiang Nanese expel clause, a similar proposal that expired on a 10-year moratorium and a joint appeal was submitted to the Security Council. The Council from the "important" nations to the Sec. The Kiang Nanese accept the U.S. plan of organization.

The question of the "important" nations is to be presented to the Security Council by the U.S. Ambassador George E. Custer, looking glass, proposal, requesting the nations to make their decisions. The part of the Assembly, which would have required a two-thirds vote of the 56 delegations of Nationalist China, was not adopted. The U.S. proposal has been referred to the Security Council. EPC questions activities fees $1,500 unaccounted for Nearly 300 at the National Union of Iowa activities assessment collected annually by all 13 students, among which they included the people who pay the fees. All in all, figures revealed at the meeting of the Executive Council last night. The figures thus far are not final, but are used for the purpose of consideration by the Executive Council to find out what proportion of the fees is used for each university.

Buckup, a Councilor in the University Student government, said that the figures were so low that they were not used in the organization. A similar resolution will be presented in the City Council by Bob Buckup.

Council forum leaders and candidates will meet in the University of Iowa Student government to discuss the results of the forum.

Student power and the mode of governance

By JIM SUTTON
Partner Of Student Body President

When students see that they lack "real power," they may feel frustrated and make poor judgments that may influence their personal, social, and political choices. Students who experience this feeling are those who are not involved in campus governance. If they are included, they will tend to become more active citizens and more informed voters. The student body is the most important organization on campus because it is the one that all students are members of. The student body is the one that is interested in the survival of those students. It is not the role of the student body to be the one that makes decisions that will last for years. It is the role of the student body to make decisions that will last for a shorter period of time.

When tots turn on the t.v.

By DEBRA HILLMAN

We're in big trouble if the study made by University of Arizona pedagogy professor David L. Lerman is correct. Although the study has not been published yet, there have been more than two months in which students spent more than half of their time on campus starting in a classroom. By the end of the study students were spending more than half of their time in classrooms, and there is a lot of evidence to suggest that students are spending less time outside the classroom, even if they are spending more time in the classroom.

Tots in the study have to cope with the stress of the "real" world, but also the stress of being "real." They have to cope with the stress of being "real," but also the stress of being "real." They have to cope with the stress of being "real," but also the stress of being "real." They have to cope with the stress of being "real," but also the stress of being "real."

The upcoming election

By DONNIE MACKEN

for the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom

As many of you know, the Student Council election will be held on Nov. 11, and I would like to take this opportunity to discuss some of the issues that are currently facing our campus community. I believe that all students should be aware of these issues and should be involved in the decision-making process.

One of the biggest issues facing our campus community is the ongoing budget crisis. The Student Council has been asked to make cuts in the budget, and I believe that all students should be aware of these cuts and should be involved in the decision-making process.

Another issue that is currently facing our campus community is the lack of student involvement in the decision-making process. The Student Council has been asked to make cuts in the budget, and I believe that all students should be aware of these cuts and should be involved in the decision-making process.

Stopping Badger offense main job for Hawkeyes

By MARK ROCH

Duffy Iowa sports writer.

If Iowa's defense is given one problem this week, it has to be that it needs to find a way to stop Wisconsin's offense. The Badgers have been averaging more yards per game than any other team in the country this year.

The question that has been asked the most since Iowa returned to Hawk:invoke the Triple-Option offense, bringing in a new coach, and putting together a team that could be a contender for the Big Ten title.

This week Iowa faces a strong Wisconsin team that is in the top 10 in the country in many categories.

Iowa fans. HAMMS Beer is calling Oklahoma Maiion 12 yards per carry, who is averaging more than 3 yards per carry. The Sooners are a good team, but they have been playing better than expected.

Iowa state's Majors praises Sooner

Iowa State's Majors praises Sooner.

Iowa City, Iowa- (AP) -- Iowa State coach Hayden Fry praised his team's performance against Oklahoma, saying they played well.

Fry noted the Sooners were a good team, but he was pleased with how his team was able to control the game.

The Cyclones minus star running back Jaysea Pruitt, recently learned they would have to deal with Oklahoma's big offensive line, which is led by tackle Kevin Johnson.

Meanwhile, Iowa State's defense held Oklahoma to just 203 yards of total offense. The Cyclones allowed just 141 yards passing, while the Sooners rushed for 62.

Fry said he was pleased with how the defense performed, but added he would like to see more improvement in the secondary.

The Cyclones defense shut down Oklahoma's offense, allowing just 1 yard rushing and 106 yards passing.

Iowa's victory was a turning point in the season for the Cyclones, who are now 5-1 overall and 2-0 in the Big 12.

Iowa fans were excited by the team's performance, as they are now 2-0 in the Big 12 and 6-1 overall.

Sooner's gain, but Nebraska still No. 1

Explode Oklahoma's offense to life in the final seconds of the second half and send the Longhorns' 24-21 Wednesday night. The Sooners' fourth-quarter surge set up Saturday's showdown with Nebraska, which still leads the Big Eight race by one game. The Sooners outscored the Horned Frogs 3-2 in the final seconds to claim the Big Eight title.

The Big Ten

COLUMBUS

Woodie Wilson knows Ohio State fans are questioning the young Buckeyes, but they aren't going to let the Big Ten's worst defense take the focus away from the Three-Point Problem.

"We're still in the game," said Wilson, who has been a Buckeye since 1971. "We've got a lot to play for."

The Buckeyes hold a 5-2-0 record and are 4-1 in the Big Ten, with only three games remaining. Ohio State is 4-1 in the Big Ten, the second-best record in the conference.
