Prof says Nixon got U.N. vote he wanted

By BILLY ISELL

Daily Iowan University Editor

The decision to admit the government of the People's Republic of China to the United Nations was on Wednesday evening that the People's Republic of China should be readmitted to the United Nations, as the People's Republic of China had been expelled from the United Nations, the People's Republic of China would lose its legitimate rights to participate in the United Nations. The decision was made after a long debate and discussion. The United Nations General Assembly voted in favor of the resolution, with 73 votes in favor, 36 against, and 16 abstentions. The United States, Britain, and France voted against the resolution.

Mr. Nixon was in the UN building in New York when the decision was announced. He immediately issued a statement expressing his satisfaction with the decision. He said that the resolution was a significant step forward in the process of reunification of China.

The resolution was a significant victory for the Chinese government. It was a major step towards the establishment of diplomatic relations between the United States and China. The resolution was also a major victory for the United Nations and its role in promoting international cooperation and peace.

Mr. Nixon's statement was followed by a press conference where he was asked about the implications of the resolution. He said that the resolution was a significant step forward in the process of reunification of China. He also said that he was looking forward to the establishment of diplomatic relations between the United States and China.

The resolution was met with widespread support around the world. Many countries congratulated China on its achievement. The resolution was also welcomed by the Chinese people. They saw it as a major victory for the Chinese government and as a step towards the establishment of a better future for China.

Allow VD survey!

It was very disappointing to read in the last Sunday's Des Moines Register an editorial prepared by the editors that has clearly revealed a bias of the decision to determine the level of sexually transmitted disease in the school population. While the public is being instructed that the study "must" violate the sexual rights of students, the research is being conducted on a voluntary basis and is absolutely necessary in order to provide an overview of the problem on our campus.

No high school student should be allowed to graduate without an extensive knowledge of his or her body, the purposes of the sexual organs, and the functions of the individual parts of the body. A discussion of the diseases that are commonly transmitted should be included.

Of more general interest, the desirability of having an accurate and consistent educational program for the prevention of venereal disease should be emphasized. In this sense, the research being conducted on a voluntary basis is absolutely necessary to provide an overview of the problem on our campus.

The question of whether this research should be conducted or not is not a question of the right to have a survey conducted, but of the right to choose whether to participate in the research or not. Those who do not wish to participate should be free to do so, but those who do wish to participate should be required to do so. The only thing that is certain is that these students will be required to participate in the research whether they want to or not, but they will be informed of the dangers associated with their decision to participate.

To the editor:

Let me be the last to object to this survey. If the research is going to be conducted, it should be conducted in such a manner that the students are informed of the dangers associated with their decision to participate in the survey. The only thing that is certain is that these students will be required to participate in the research whether they want to or not.

Non-student governance is unresponsive

By JIM SUTTON

The major arguments for excluding either the faculty or the students from the governing body of the university are that the elected officials, whether elected in the regular manner or in a special election, would not have the same power of decision as the faculty and the students.

One of the biggest arguments against the idea that the elected officials would be unresponsive is that the elected officials would be unresponsive because they would not have the power of decision as the faculty and the students.

To the editor:

Faculty government is unresponsive

By LOYD MAY

The case of the two-year college, political institutions and the faculty government in this university is very much the same, our decision-making is slow, our government is unresponsive, and our university is committed to the democratic process and the freedom of all people.

In the interest of the students, the faculty and the administration, let me suggest some changes that may be necessary in our university's decision-making process. The faculty government is only one of the many institutions that are committed to the democratic process and the freedom of all people.

Police-community relations

By RICHARD MADER

Seemingly, an objective indication for the research is it that Sheriff Maynard's Florence investigation was conducted on a voluntary basis.

If the police-community relation is not maintained, then there will be no problem in the field of law enforcement. Perhaps we need a little more understanding of the problems and needs of the community on the part of the police force.

The Iowa City Chamber of Commerce wants better police-community relations. This is absolutely necessary in order to have better police-community relations.

The Chamber of Commerce really needs to be involved in the police-community relations issue. If the Chamber of Commerce is not involved in the police-community relations issue, then there will be no problem in the field of law enforcement.

The Chamber of Commerce should not only be actively involved in the police-community relations issue, but they should also be actively involved in the police-community relations issue.

Muscatine woman is Iowa's 5th slaying victim

The body of a 20-year-old Iowa woman has been found in a ditch with a bullet wound in the head. The woman, identified as Rebecca J. Denning, was last seen alive on Tuesday, May 14, in the area where she was last seen. She was reportedly last seen with a friend who witnessed the attack.

Dr. Connell favors city-county planning

Robert J. Connell, a prominent Muscatine lawyer, has praised the idea of a city-county planning board during a recent meeting. Connell, who has a long history of involvement in local government, said he believes a joint planning board would be beneficial in resolving issues that affect both the city and county.

Muscation woman is Iowa's 5th slaying victim

The Muscatine Register reports that a Muscatine woman has been identified as the 5th slaying victim in Iowa this year. The woman, a 25-year-old woman, was reportedly found in a shallow grave near the edge of town. Authorities have not released any further details about the case.

Big question: Peking's revolutionary UN role

UNITED NATIONS, Dec 28 — A few hours or so before the expected opening of its second straight session, the United Nations began to turn a bead to the Mecca of world diplomacy.

A whole new situation may be in the offing. United Nations observers have reported that the Chinese have demanded drastic resumption of diplomatic relations. Peking has been demanding ever since the United Nations was founded, and the Chinese have demanded it repeatedly. The Chinese have been demanding it as a matter of right. Perhaps in July or August of next year, the United Nations may turn from what it is to what it should be.

The way the Red Chinese put it, the United Nations if they don't get back to business is of the United Nations is of the United Nations. They may be right.

The Chinese have said that they would not let the United Nations remain in its present state. They have threatened to demand a resolution on the Chinese question. Students, residents view council responsiveness.

Iowa City residents view their city council as responsive to their needs. The city council meets the first Tuesday of every month. The council is composed of seven members: five elected at-large and two elected from single-member districts.

"How much attention do you think Iowa City council members pay when they decide what to do in the council meetings?" is a question that the council members are asked.

Directions in Rock music

The Who: accent on energy

As told by Jeffery Tambor

The Who is often described as "the band that changed the world." Their music is characterized by its driving rhythms, powerful vocals, and innovative use of the electric guitar. The band was formed in London in 1964 and consisted of Roger Daltrey (vocals), Pete Townshend (guitar), John Entwistle (bass), and Keith Moon (drums).

The Who's music is often described as "protest music," reflecting their desire to challenge the status quo and push for social change. Their songs often addressed issues such as war, poverty, and inequality.

Their music is also characterized by its raw energy and intensity, with live performances often described as "frenetic" and "electric." The Who's live shows were known for their high-energy atmosphere, with the band often performing in front of enthusiastic crowds.

The Who's influence on rock music has been significant, with their innovations and style inspiring many other bands. The band's legacy continues to be celebrated today, with their music still resonating with audiences around the world.

Sioux Citians win street-paving battle

Des Moines, Iowa - 35 years of road-building by public officials have paid off for the city of Sioux City. Despite the efforts of city officials, the residents of the city were able to win a battle against the construction of a new road.

Sioux City residents have been fighting against the construction of a new road for years. The road was proposed as part of a larger project to improve the city's transportation system. However, residents were concerned about the impact the road would have on their community.

Their protests did not go unnoticed, and the city officials were forced to take action. The residents continued their protests, demanding the withdrawal of the project. They also held a series of public hearings to discuss the project.

Finally, after years of fighting, the residents were victorious. The city officials announced that the road project would be canceled. The residents celebrated their victory, knowing that they had saved their community from the impact of the new road.
Three bands schedule yearly concert Monday

"Stop the band" is the theme for the annual concert of the University of Iowa Bands, which will be held at 7:30 p.m. tonight at the City -County Building. The concert will feature the University symphony band, the University Band and the University Marching Band.

Robert R. Gilchrist, George Leventhal and Robert Peterman will direct the bands. The concert is free to the public. The concert is being held in conjunction with the annual meeting of the University Band Association.

Robert Gilchrist is the director of the University Band and George Leventhal is the director of the University Marching Band.

The concert will include a variety of music, including "Hey, Jude," "Proud Mary," "Hey, Phil," and "Can't Help Myself." The concert is sponsored by the University Band Association.

State to sponsor 19 schools to aid local drug investigations

DES MOINES — A series of 19 schools will be selected to aid local law enforcement departments which lack the manpower to bring drug offenders to trial.

The schools will be selected on the basis of their willingness to accept the schools, the number of students in the area, and the availability of volunteers.

The schools will be selected by the University of Iowa, which is currently conducting a study of drug use among Iowa students.

Badgers seek first road victory here

The Iowa Hawkeyes, searching desperately for their first victory of the season under Head Football Coach Frank Lauterborn, have a chance this Saturday to end a four-game losing streak. It seems the University of Iowa Bradys believe that they will get this victory, their last last year.

The Brads have played seven games this year and in each game they have scored a touchdown, but have not won. They have lost their first seven games.

Saturday's good news for Iowa fans will be the return of quarterback Tom Green, who was out with a foot injury. Green was the starting quarterback for Iowa's first six games.

The Badgers, coached by Dan Dailing, are still looking for their first victory of the season. Dailing has been partners in team management for seven years.

The Brads, who won last year's game, 10-0, hope to win this year's game.

To Hawkeye's Tom Loechel, 15-mile run is just another day's workout

By NICK RALEF
Daily Iowan, Iowa City

Distance running is a way of life for those who really like the sport. People run from five to 10 miles a day, every week, or whenever they feel like it. There are some who get up at 6 a.m. and run ten miles a day, every day, no matter what.

Tom Loechel is one of those runners. He not only runs, he also coaches. He is the assistant track coach at the University of Iowa and a runner. I won the conference meet in track, too. In the two mile run, I was fourth in the nation. Also I won the conference meet in cross country that year. Also I won the conference meet in cross country that year. Also I won the conference meet in cross country that year. Also I won the conference meet in cross country that year.

But my coach and I had a great rapport. We would talk about running and the sport in general. I would tell him some of the new techniques I was using. He would help me with my training. He would give me tips on how to run better. He would also help me with my workouts. He was a great coach and a great friend.

Distance running is a very demanding sport. It requires a lot of dedication and hard work. But it is also very rewarding. You get to see improvement every day. You get to see how much you have improved. You get to see how much you have improved. You get to see how much you have improved.

Distance running is a sport that is definitely for those who love it. Those who are hooked on distance running are the ones who love it. There is nothing better than being able to run your best and not have any worries. It is all about having fun and enjoying the sport.
