

The Daily Iowan telephoned President Nixon Sunday night to wish him a happy 59th birthday. Instead of reaching the chief executive in Washington, D.C., a mistake by Ma Bell connected the DI with AP's Weatherperson exiled to an all-night beanery in Swaledale, Iowa (which also was 59 Sunday). Weatherperson did say, "Let me make one thing clear: My forecast for this past weekend was not wrong, the weather was."

For today, he promises windy, cooler weather, with the highs in the low 40s. Cloudy skies will prevail tonight, with the lows in the 20s.

Evaluations

Distribution of free course-instructor evaluation booklets continues today on the University of Iowa campus.

Some 7,000 of the booklets have been printed for free distribution to students. The booklets were placed in UI dormitory mailboxes Friday.

Distribution will continue today in the lobby of the Main Library and in the Goldfeather Lobby of the Union.

Booklets also may be picked up at the Student Senate office and in the Activities Center, both in the basement of the Union.

JFK Xrays

NEW YORK (AP) — The first private physician to see the long-withheld X rays taken in the 1963 autopsy of President John F. Kennedy said Sunday there was no doubt in his mind that the president was gunned down by a single assailant.

Dr. John K. Lattimer, chairman of the department of urology at Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons, told a news conference his inspection of the autopsy data removed previous reservations he had about the Warren Commission findings.

The Warren Commission concluded that Lee Harvey Oswald fired all the shots that killed Kennedy on Nov. 22, 1963.

Howard who?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — During an extraordinary telephone interview, a man introduced as billionaire recluse Howard Hughes told newsmen that a forthcoming book heralded as his autobiography is a fraud and "a totally fantastic fiction."

The man, who said he was speaking from the Bahamas, was interviewed Friday by seven newsmen who later agreed, after questioning the man, that they had spoken with the real Howard Hughes.

Division of labor

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) — Siamese twin girls were successfully separated Sunday in a 2½-hour operation that gives the 10-week-old babies a chance for a normal life.

A spokesman at University Hospital said the twins were in "generally good condition."

Thailand terror

BANGKOK (AP) — Terrorist commandos Monday attacked the big Thai-U.S. B52 bomber base at U-Tapao, 90 miles south of Bangkok, a Thai military spokesman said.

The spokesman said the terrorists attacked at 2:40 a.m. No details of casualties or damage were given.

The U.S. Embassy in Bangkok refused to confirm or deny that the attack had taken place.

Recover jewels

NEW YORK (AP) — An estimated $750,000 worth of the jewels from the robbery a week ago of Manhattan's elegant Hotel Pierre has been recovered in Detroit, the FBI announced Sunday night.

The recovery of the loot brings to about $1 million the value of jewels retrieved by the authorities since the precisely timed heist.

About $250,000 in precious stones, believed to be part of the booty taken by four who handcuffed 19 employees and guests during the robbery, was seized by police in a Manhattan hotel on Friday.

Stock answer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally predicts the stock market will reach a record high this year "without any question."

Questioned by reporters Saturday night Connally said the economy will be excellent in 1972 and, referring to the Dow-Jones index of industrial stock prices, said, "I think we'll break 1,000 this year without any question, maybe 1,100." The average stood at 908 Friday.

Youths walk out as caucus 'dumps' Nixon

Ten Republican members of the newly-organized Iowa Chapter of the National Youth Caucus walked out of the chapter's meeting Saturday in Ames, refusing to honor a newly-adopted "dump Nixon" rule.

The walkout came immediately after passage of a voting rule which requires caucus members to sign a public statement saying they will work for the defeat of President Nixon in next fall's election.

Signing such a statement will be a prerequisite to obtaining voting privileges within the caucus.

Several of the Republicans who walked out said they would have remained in the organization, had it not been for the passage of the rule. But they said to sign such a document would be to commit political suicide.

One member who walked out said, "Even though I'm opposed to Nixon's re-election, I'm a Republican just the same and I would be rendered politically ineffective within the party if I signed a public statement of this type."

Another of the Republicans who refused to stay called remaining participants "a bunch of hypocrites."

"They're making a sham of the word bipartisan," he said. "They say they want to help young people get involved in politics and yet by passing this rule they're ignoring a sizable segment of young voters who happen to be Republicans."

"They've made it clear they don't want us in their organization and so we're leaving," he stated.

Before the walk-out a spirit of bipartisanship was evident, as caucus participants listened to speeches from members of both the Republican and Democratic parties.

State Sen. Minnette Doderer (D-Iowa City) advised young voters that to be politically effective they must participate in their local party caucuses.

"I'm not going to tell you how much of an impact you're going to have in this election, because the fact is you won't have any effect at all unless you get started now," she said.

Following speeches by John Murray, administrative assistant to Gov. Robert D. Ray and Robert Strain, assistant to Sen. Jack Miller, caucus participants went into a series of workshops covering party systems, organizing techniques, voter registration, fund raising and the role of women and youth in politics.

Other speakers included State Sen. John Tapscoff, (D-Des Moines), a contender for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, and State Sen. Arthur Neu, (R-Carroll), a candidate for his party's nomination for lieutenant governor.

The conference got underway Saturday, and during much of the afternoon there was little hint of the controversy that was brewing.

But in a plenary session later in the day, it became clear that a partisan rift was forming between those supporting the aims of the conference, and those who opposed the organization's "dump Nixon" plank.

Conference co-chairman Bradley J. Haddy, 20, 4405 Lakeside, told the 10 delegates as they rose from their seats and filed out, "We're sorry you feel that you can't work within this organization."

"You're welcome whether you're Democrats or Republicans, but if you feel that you must leave, then that's your decision."

Nevertheless, Haddy said the Iowa Chapter will continue to welcome members of both political parties into its ranks, despite Saturday's party-line split.

The National Youth Caucus was born from the National Emergency Conference for New Voters which convened at Loyola University in Chicago Dec. 5.

Government probes impact of Atlantic coast oil leasing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Interior Department has begun a detailed environmental-impact study of anticipated oil and gas leasing off the Middle Atlantic coast.

Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton told congressmen Dec. 8 "we are not involved in formal proceedings leading toward an environmental impact statement."

Whether or not it constitutes "formal proceedings," the study begun by Interior last November is described by officials of both Interior and the Commerce Department's National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA), which was asked to help, as the first step toward preparation of just such an environmental statement.

In his latest move to allay public concern, Morton has invited the governors of all 14 Atlantic coast states and Pennsylvania to meet with him here Tuesday to clarify what he termed an erroneous public impression "that petroleum production is being planned along our eastern shoreline."

On Dec. 3, five days before Morton's public disclaimer of "formal proceedings", the head of an Interior Department's Atlantic Environmental Study Task Force met with NOAA's environmental coordinator to discuss NOAA's cooperation in the study.

Its full scope was made clear Dec. 27 when Interior sent NOAA an 18-page list of topics for detailed analysis.

The study topics included:

- "Evaluation of possible effects of mechanical activities, such as drilling, on marine life" in the study area.

- "Description of special environmental concerns . . . related to development activities such as oil and gas exploration, production and transportation.

- "Assessment of possible effects of the weather on structures, such as oil or gas drilling and production platforms, or vessels.

- "Evaluation of the possible impacts of possible future OCS (outer continental shelf) oil and gas developments in the study area on foreign fishing operations . . ."

NOAA was asked to discuss the magnitude of anticipated oil development and technology, and to study, for each of the seven coastal areas involved, the possible environmental and economic impacts on mineral resources, wildlife, aquatic organisms, recreation and land.

As part of a stepped up program of oil development ordered last June by President Nixon, Morton has tentatively predicted the opening of the now oil-free Atlantic coast to federal petroleum leasing prior to 1976.

13 priority items on tap— Iowa lawmakers meet today

DES MOINES (AP) — At least 13 priority measures face the 64th General Assembly as Iowa lawmakers gather here today for the opening session.

Legislative leaders are hoping the 1972 legislature will complete its business in record time.

Some claim their legislative chores will be done with by mid-March. Perhaps the most pessimistic guess for legislative closing is offered by House Speaker William R. Harbor, (R-Henderson), who feels the legislature will be in session until March 31.

One of the reasons legislators look for a short session is the June primary election. Most of the state's politicians want to be free of the statehouse so they can start stumping for re-election.

The House and Senate were to convene at 10 a.m. today, prior to a 2 p.m. State of the State address by Gov. Robert Ray.

If legislators are to have a 90-day session or less, they'll have to hurry.

Hundreds of bills are yet to be contended with that the 1971 legislature never killed — although most may never emerge from committees.

But some 300 bills have been prefiled for the 1972 session, and they'll consume considerable time on the calendar before final disposition is made.

Harbor said, however, that the 13 priority bills will get first consideration in an attempt for a shortened session, with the remainder being acted upon on a secondary basis.

One of the priority bills to be considered would give home rule to Iowa cities and towns.

Others include: establishing an Environmental Quality Control Department, abolishing justice of the peace courts, full majority rights at age 18 instead of 21, and billboard and junkyard control along primary roadways.

Dumb ducks

Ignoring a sign warning them of dangerous ice, these City Park ducks took advantage of the warmer weather over the weekend to get in some swimming time. Unseasonably high temperatures prevailed over the state Saturday and Sunday, but the forecast calls for cooler conditions this week.

Right to life, write off!

Anti-abortion societies tend to have names like "The Right to Life Society," "The Roman Catholic Church," or Prof. Robert Byrn. What they have in common is a funny attitude about when life starts and stops.

Byrn, a Fordham law professor, has shown his concern for fetal life by having himself declared legal guardian of a fetus carried by a woman awaiting an abortion in a New York hospital and the class of such unborn babies. What Byrn is concerned with is the life he believes to exist starting at the moment of conception. What he has not yet shown equal concern with is life after birth. He is anxious to bring unwanted children into the world but he has not yet said what he intends to do with his wards after they are born. It is as if he believed life started and stopped in the womb.

He shares this attitude with many of the other anti-abortion groups. They are all concerned with the unborn, but have yet to present plans dealing with the care of the "lives" they save. One wonders how much they really care about life.

Of course there is a way for them to show their concern for the fetuses they are trying to save. It was suggested by Nancy Stearns, an attorney for the Center for Constitutional Rights. Her idea is simple. She wants Byrn to post a $40,000 bond for each of his wards. The money could then be used to insure that the life Byrn has saved has a chance of reaching three score and ten.

This isn't such an outrageous idea in light of a recent decision by Catholic New York Supreme Court justice Francis X (avier?) Smith. Smith has temporarily restrained abortions in municipal hospitals in New York City. The effect of this is to end low cost and free abortions for the city's poor. Another effect, if the restraining order stands, will be an increase in dead women who will be forced to resort to illegal abortions often at their own hands or at the hands of quacks. These women are alive too, Mr. Byrn. They wouldn't be in a few months if you have your way.

Right-to-life societies seem to get a kick out of pictures of aborted fetuses. Byrn showed such pictures at a press conference he held after Smith's decision was announced. A regional society sent a book to student government officials on this campus last month when the abortion counseling hassle was being fought. This book had a section of full color pictures of aborted fetuses. What it did not contain were pictures of women who died after trying to give themselves abortions or the slum housing that many of these fetuses would have had to live and die in had they not been aborted.

In the south there is a saying: "Mississippi has a town called Freedom and Washington has a department called Justice." Given enough time someone will come up with a paraphrase about the so-called right-to-life societies.

Conlon no Buckley

To the editor:

With regard to the letter in the January 5 Daily Iowan by Walter Conlon for the Young Republicans, flippant and vulgar name-calling of the sort that Conlon resorts to is wildly inappropriate in a university paper, as well as in bad taste. His accusation that "Women's Lib battleaxes" use too many clichés is absolutely ludicrous coming, as it does, in the context of a letter containing no less than 21 clichés and banalities.

Conlon has exposed himself by implying that women are property. This leads us to suspect that Conlon is not so much concerned with the rights of the unborn fetus as he is with making sure that women stay in the home. Women, we assert, are human with the right to control their own bodies.

Conlon has misunderstood the abortion on demand issue. The movement feels that all people have an equal right to the resources of their society, including medical care. That abortion should be a matter solely between a woman and her doctor is only meaningful in a society where medical care is free. The right to a decent life is the right of every human. No amount of penalty to the parent of the unwanted child will make the child wanted.

It is ironic that while Conlon is crusading for the rights of the unborn fetus, he should overlook the rights of the Vietnamese people currently being bombed by Nixon's Republican administration. Or perhaps it isn't ironic at all. If women have no human rights in Conlon's mind, then probably Vietnamese don't either.

We are afraid Conlon will never be able to emulate William F. Buckley, Jr. successfully.

Introduction

Psychology professor Richard Herrnstein of Harvard University published an article titled "I.Q." in the September issue of the Atlantic. In it he says "... data on I.Q. with an inherited stratification of our society for some time." In what he calls our "growing meritocracy," this stratification into rich and poor is supposedly due to the rich having more intelligence coded into their genes, on the average, than the poor.

Stripped of its academic parlance, his thesis is simply and bluntly that poor people are poor because of their average lower inherited intelligence. According to Herrnstein, this explains for example, "(t)he failure of compensatory education" programs, and "the increasingly chronic lower class in America's central cities." If he were correct, then it would be foolish to offer special scholastic help to so-called "underprivileged," "culturally deprived" children. Their intellectual poverty, if genetically fixed, could not be significantly altered. It would justify abandoning many socially progressive programs.

Herrnstein also writes that "we now have the mental test (the I.Q. test) that he (Galton) thought was the crucial prerequisite" for a program of eugenics — a program "of supplanting inefficient human stock by better strains." Moreover, although he concedes that "the overwhelming case is for believing that American blacks have been at an environmental disadvantage," he nevertheless says there is some evidence "for a genetic component in the... well-established, roughly fifteen-point black-white difference in I.Q." Upon publication, Professor Herrnstein's article received widespread public notice, e. g. The New York Times, Sunday, Aug. 29; The Washington Post, Time, Aug. 23; The Boston Globe; Sunday, Sept. 19; Newsweek, Aug. 23.

Noted psychologist a racist, sexist

Thus it is apparent why Dr. Alvin Poussaint, a black psychiatrist in the Harvard Medical School, wrote of Herrnstein, "Whether he intended it or not, he has become an enemy of black people and his pronouncements are a threat to the survival of every black person in America." (Boston Globe, Dec. 3).

Because of Herrnstein's academic prominence, some people have mistakenly assumed that his article is a careful distillation of scientific information based on experimentally well-established facts. It has quickly become the subject of wide and vigorous controversy, and has prompted the undersigned individuals to issue this statement.

the herrnstein — social darwinism

Professor Herrnstein's article on I.Q. in the September Atlantic can hardly be described as honest, serious, or legitimate scholarship. It is not at all unfair to characterize it rather as non-scholarly, pseudo-scientific, pseudo-objective polemic: a popularization of the social doctrine that people who are born poor in our society are, on the average, genetically inferior in intelligence and other qualities. In Herrnstein's words:

"As the wealth and complexity of human society grow, there will be precipitated out of the mass of humanity a low-capacity (intellectual and otherwise) residue that may be unable to master

Constable's candidacy

To the editor:

There have been some improvements in the Johnson County government in the last year, but there is still need for much more.

Supervisor Robert J. Burns has brought about several worthwhile changes but the composition of the present Board of Supervisors is lacking a progressive atmosphere.

Having a sincere interest in the increased efficiency of county government and its expenditures, I am announcing my candidacy for Supervisor of Johnson County on the Democratic ticket, — for the 1973 term.

I have a master's degree in the Transportation Program in Civil Engineering at the University of Iowa. Safety programs are necessary on Johnson County roads.

My seven years residency in Johnson County has exposed me to local special interest groups and their practices which need to be updated to the twentieth century. I would continue as Supervisor, as I have in the past, to bring fresh thought to the local political arena, and I would encourage participation by the public.

I have served in the elective offices of Justice of the Peace and Constable, and my wife shares my enthusiasm for this political venture. I have three fine children whom I desire to rear in the best environment possible — Johnson County.

Woman adds info on FDS

To the editor:

I would like to add some more information to the very pertinent article of Tim Yeager concerning vaginal sprays. These sprays are outright harmful not only because of hexachlorophene but also because of the gas which propels the deodorant. Many studies have confirmed that gases used in almost every kind of spray (including hair spray, shaving creams, etc.) are potentially carcinogenic.

I would like to offer some practical advice to women (and men). After defecation and urination (can you find more elegant words for these unavoidable functions!) pour water over the genitalia, from a container, glass, jug, etc. (If not at home, you can take a paper cup filled with water into your cubicle). Dry well with tissue paper or better with a small towel that you'll keep for this purpose. This manner of washing will well replace the very convenient bidet of which our puritanical culture has deprived us.

Any conscientious doctor could tell you that this washing could prevent the million cases of infection, irritation and pruritus (itching) which afflict the average American. Isn't it a simpler, cheaper and less dangerous way of not only "feeling" clean but being clean?

Union Board on McGovern visit

LEGISLATIVE REPORT By MARTHA EBBIN for the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom

The Second Session of the 92nd Congress will convene on January 18. One of the first items to be considered in the Senate will be S.2515, a bill to strengthen the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. The bill would give the EEOC the authority to issue cease and desist orders to stop discriminatory practices. The coverage of the EEOC would be broadened to include: (1) private employers with eight or more employees and unions with eight or more members; (2) state and local governments; and (3) educational institutions.

ACTION: Write to Senators Hughes and Miller to urge that they support the present wording of S.2515, and oppose any efforts to weaken the bill.

Rep. Burton (D-Calif.), along with 64 co-sponsors, has introduced H. R. 34, a bill "to abolish the House Committee on Internal Security and enlarge the jurisdiction of the Committee on the Judiciary." The only Committee member to support this resolution is Anderson (D-Tenn.).

ACTION: Write to the other members of the Rules Committee, asking them to release and support the bill. Other members are: Colmer (Miss.), Madden (Ind.), Delaney (N.Y.), Bolling (Mo.), O'Neill (Mass.), Sisk (Calif.), Young (Texas), Pepper (Fla.), Matsunaga (Hawaii), Smith (Calif.), Anderson (Ill.), Martin (Neb.), Quillen (Tenn.), and Latta (Ohio).

Identical bills called the Death Penalty Suspension Act were introduced in the Senate by Phil Hart (D-Mich.), S. 1969, and in the House by Emanuel Celler (D-N.Y.), H.R.8414. These bills would suspend the death penalty for two years while considering the following two questions: (1) whether the death penalty constitutes cruel and unusual punishment, in violation of the Eighth and Fourteenth Amendments; and (2) whether the death penalty is inflicted discriminatorily upon members of racial minorities, in violation of the Fourteenth Amendment.

ACTION: Write to members of the two subcommittees where the bills are and urge them to report out a bill. Members of the Senate Subcommittee on Criminal Law and Procedures are: McClellan (Ark.), Ervin (N.C.), Hart (Mich.), Cook (Ky.), Eastland (Miss.), Kennedy (Mass.), Hruska (Neb.), Scott (Pa.), and Thurmond (S.C.). Members of the House Subcommittee are: Kastenmeier (Wis.), Conyers (Mich.), Ryan (N.Y.), Mikva (Ill.), Drinan (Mass.), Railsback (Ill.), Biester (Pa.), Fish (N.Y.), and Coughlin (Pa.).

A report entitled "The Case Against Capital Punishment" is available from the Washington Research Project, 1823 Jefferson Place, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036 for $1.

A vote is expected this session in the Senate on S.2574, the "National Voter Registration Act." This bill would facilitate voter registration in areas where it would otherwise be difficult to register. It would call for a federally operated system and forms for registering by mail and a 30 day residency requirement for voting in federal elections.

ACTION: Write to Senators Hughes and Miller and ask them to vote for this bill.

You may want to write your representatives at this time in support of the U.N. Recently, mail has been running as much as 6 to 1 against the United Nations in Congressional mail. It doesn't make sense to publicly call for normalization of relations with China, and then punish the U.N. for her admission.

The Senate Subcommittee on Constitutional Amendments has just defeated the Equal Rights Amendment and approved a substitute offered by Ervin (D-Mich.).

The entire board, including those directors whose presidential preference is not McGovern, feels that the Senator deserves exposure to a wide university audience, that it will benefit Iowa students to hear personally the views of all the presidential candidates and "non-candidates."

McGovern's visit, as first scheduled, was to be a part of the Model United Nations, and was to be jointly sponsored by Ciruna and Union Board. The fact that the trip was delayed in no way detracts from its status as a lecture in the Union Board series.

The Board does not view this speech as a campaign appearance, and has no qualms about paying a $300 honorarium, particularly since this is considerably less than is normally paid to a speaker of national stature.

It would indeed be unfortunate if the Union Board Commission was not allowed to bring campaigning presidential candidates to Iowa by paying an honorarium. It is our hope that McGovern's appearance will spur other presidential contenders to accept our invitation to speak at the University.

We also hope that all candidates will keep in mind our limited funds when requesting an honorarium, so that an excessive fee will not preclude our arranging their appearance on campus.

Tools ripped off

To the editor:

How come the metal smithing building and facilities aren't open "like any other art area?"

During this semester at least one half of all the tools in the metal smithing shop are "missing," not to mention personal tools, materials, and much-labored-over projects.

Some of the things, like raising and chasing tools, couldn't possibly be used by anyone without a complete studio. It has to be the metal smithing students doing the ripping-off, because they are the only ones who know how to use these kinds of materials and equipment.

The trouble is that these students will probably never take another metal smithing course; and if they do, they will probably write some nasty editorials saying that the department won't give them tools to work with and won't keep the shop open. It's much easier to blame these inadequacies on the department and administration.

What they should realize is that the department is not, more than likely, going to give metal smithing more money for tools, because it's a self-defeating fight against the students' established habit of 2:ugDand ?

What is needed is personal, individual discipline and consideration of other people, something they say the Government and the University do not have. Governments and universities are not

Cross with Ross

To the editor:

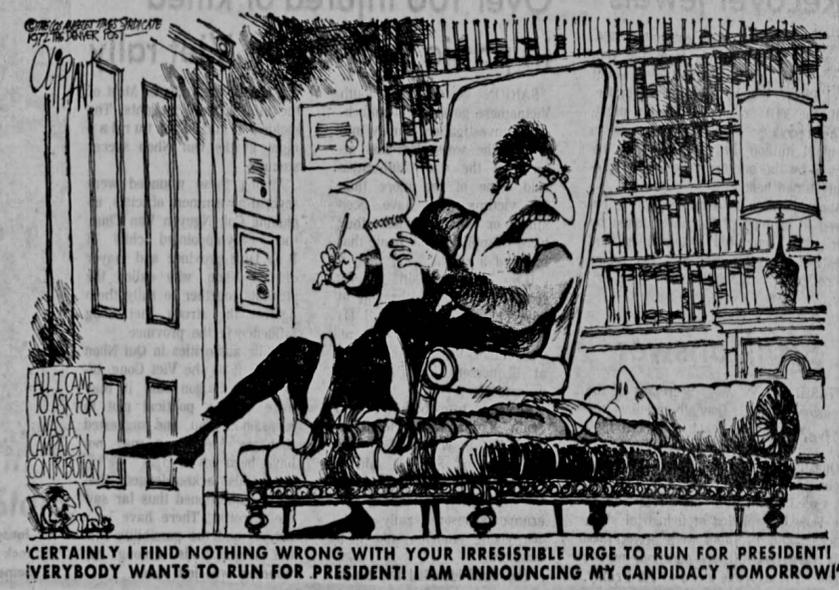

I was very distressed today, Jan. 6, to see some of our "student leaders" patting the Regents on the back for a loan fund of $300,000 to help needy students to pay their dorm bills. On one hand, they fight for students to be able to stay where they want to live, yet encourage the Regents to take over their money. For those who don't already know, (obviously Ms. Ross is in this group) that money comes directly from the Student Activities Fee (directly from an unspecified building fund).

The Regents never bragged about the fact that money which the students pay ($30.00 a semester from their tuition) specifically $3.50 for this fund supposedly for Student Activities, has been taken over for this fund. What it boils down to is that money which Student Organizations should have to spend is out of their control, and being used to gain support for the Regent's unbelievable rules. A little more research should be done before anyone pats the Regents on the back.

Space scientists gather today for moon meeting

Moon theories remain despite lunar landings

SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) — Two years ago, with the first moonwalks fresh in their minds, excited scientists gathered for the first lunar science conference. They expected many old theories about the moon's origin to be refuted. The third such conference starts here today, but the old theories remain and much of the expectancy that marked the first session is gone. Even with samples in hand from four manned landings and one unmanned probe, scientists are unable to prove or disprove any basic ideas about how the moon came into existence and settled into earth orbit. The theories, simply stated, are:

- The moon was an already formed body wandering through space which was captured in the earth's gravity field.
- The moon formed at the same time and in the same manner as the earth.
- The moon was once a part of the earth, but broke away to form an independent body. This is the so-called "fission" theory.

About 700 scientists from 17 countries, including the Soviet Union, will participate in the four-day conference. They will present more than 250 papers on studies of the moon rocks. Three Soviet scientists will present nine papers based largely on studies of moon material brought to earth by the Russian unmanned probe Luna 16. Apollo 15 astronauts David Scott, Alfred Worden and James Irwin will give a first hand report of their observations while on the moon last summer. "Any of the theories are good," said Dr. Paul Gast, chief of the lunar and earth sciences division at the manned spacecraft center. "It's still possible to modify them, to fit the present findings." Although all the traditional theories on the moon's origin remain, Gast said that much has been learned about the forces and events which shaped the moon. Age dating of the rocks, heat flow studies and seismic instruments left on the moon, he said, indicate the moon stopped evolving geologically two to three billion years ago and is now frozen in its infancy. Although there is some disagreement over the moon's internal temperature, Gast said few believe the moon now has a molten core like that of the earth. The vast smooth plains of the moon, called maria, he said, are actually huge craters gouged out millions of years ago by meteorites and then filled in by lava erupting from the moon's interior. The extent of volcanic activity on the moon is still being debated, but Worden, orbiting the moon during Apollo 15, took the first picture of what is thought to be a lunar volcanic cinder cone. The prime result of the lunar studies, says Gast, is the series of important new questions raised about the evolution of planets. "The moon is perhaps a unique body in the solar system because it is the only place where we see the early history of a planet (the moon) preserved," he said.

Klein accuses newsmen of libeling Nixon advisor

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's communications director, Herbert G. Klein, Sunday accused some news reporters of libeling Henry Kissinger in accounts of Kissinger's role in strategy sessions on the India-Pakistan war. Klein said he has read some news reports which "I consider to be libels against Dr. Henry Kissinger, accusing him of lying." He did not name the publications. Klein was asked to comment on columnist Jack Anderson's disclosure of secret papers said to be minutes of White House strategy sessions on the India-Pakistan conflict. The papers quoted Kissinger, the President's national security adviser, as saying at one point that Nixon wanted a "tilt in favor of Pakistan." At the same time the administration was denying that it was anti-

Lindsay, Ms. Chisholm stumping for minority votes

By The Associated Press
New York Major John Lindsay and U.S. Rep. Shirley Chisholm sought the vote of Florida minorities Sunday in their quest for the Democratic presidential nomination, while Sen. Edmund Muskie prepared to switch his attention to Illinois and Wisconsin. Sen. Hubert Humphrey was scheduled to arrive in Tallahassee, Fla., today after announcing in Philadelphia that he would again seek the nomination.

Muskie ended two days of Florida campaigning with a strong bid for support from the state's two largest minorities, Jews and blacks. He was to fly early Monday to Springfield, Ill., where he will appear with Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III, who is endorsing his candidacy. Lindsay flew into Tampa, Fla., Saturday, spent the night in St. Petersburg, and then spoke Sunday before several groups in Tampa and the Zionist Organization of America in Miami Beach.

Speaking at the congregation of the Mt. Carmel AME church in a Negro section of Tampa, the New York mayor called for a "coalition of left-out people" in his drive for the presidency. "Can you imagine what would happen if all the people who needed help got together in a just cause?" he asked his audience. Lindsay also made a halftime appearance at the American Bowl football game at Tampa Stadium, where he was introduced on television. Rep. Chisholm, also from New York, made her farewell appearance at Bethany Church in Jacksonville, after intensive campaigning before black organizations, women's groups, colleges and universities throughout the state. "I know I won't get all the black votes, the women's votes or all the young people's votes, but I will get a good share of support from all three," she said.

More about 'Fly Girls'

By MICHAEL KANE
Daily Iowan Film Critic
(second of a two-part review)

At times the director's "play around" technique is annoying as when he repeatedly intercuts a scene with shots of meat frying. When the film ends with a lingering shot of the beach at sunset and dissolves to the galaxy (the film begins with a similar picture of the cosmos), then Jack O'Connell is simply being pretentious. For the most part, however, the sometimes meaningless cuts give "Swedish Fly Girls" its impulsive movement and a great deal of humor. As the protagonist undresses there is a sharp cut to an auto's single headlight on the extreme left of the screen, then a fast pan right to four headlights, again towards the left. O'Connell must have read those theory books that "prove" the strongest areas are the left side of the screen in film, the lower left of the canvas in art and the fact that many people read left to right. Also when he makes a sharp cut to birds flying, disappointing an ad-conscious audience by denying them the explicit sex scene the ads would have them expect, he is being entertaining. The birds don't necessarily mean anything, but they are more lively than dissolves to a rainy morning or a pan to the ocean.

Christa is called a "free spirit," a woman who might be called promiscuous but is not, the kind of truly moral individual who traditional moralists call immoral. The fact that she marries is not so much a cop-out to mass morality as it is a move consistent with her own feelings and beliefs, besides which she wants a father for her child. The film obviously agrees with Christa eschewing the hypocritical "moralizing" of exploitation pictures that show the public what not to do and then punishes the drama's characters because if it is enjoyable, it is wrong. Furthermore, the film is not sexist. Until very recently, exploitation films hated women for such movies were made for an audience of men who hate their sexual need for women. Again the ads directly contradict the motion picture. What Christa can do "for or to a man" is blatantly sexist, and untrue. She does nothing to harm a man, and does not allow men to use her. Each male in the film is totally responsible for his own destiny. The film does not present a sexual utopia. Christa is a good example for all males as well as females, but she is shown in contradistinction to the society the film portrays and its ads cater to — presenting Sweden as sexy, stewardesses as sex symbols, and replacing trains (in films) with airplanes. This is obvious from the beginning. Christa comes out of the ocean and contented with nature sighs. An immediate cut is made to a soaring airplane, and then to the very unnatural world of airports and the sexist world of makeup and nylons, a shallow world Christa readily leaves. One lover, a sexist completely baffled, explains to Christa, "You are not one person, you are 15." But Christa is one person, the sexist is 1/15.

We're interested in partying at the Mardi Gras in New Orleans but we don't know when it is or where we could stay cheap during the festivities. Also, what is the drinking age in Louisiana? — P.F. and D.H.

They say it's not exactly an easy ride, folks, but here's the dope. The Mardi Gras takes off February 1 but the real show is from February 10 to February 15.

Our sources in New Orleans checked out the lodging situation during Mardi Gras and found there aren't any places to crash for free. Even underground papers had no ideas.

And the innkeepers charge $65 to $100 a night during Mardi Gras for rooms near downtown New Orleans or in the French Quarter. However, here's a list of motels which are further out and "less expensive."

- Candle Light Inn, 4801 Airline Hiway
- Bel Aire Motel, 4104 Cheffment-Tour Hiway
- Buena Vista Motel, 7531 Cheffment-Tour Hiway
- Carib Motel, 4025 Tulane Avenue
- Good Luck Motel, 6201 Airline Hiway
- Town House Motel, 949 Airline Hiway
- Sugarboat Cottages, 4303 Airline Hiway

Prices at these motels range from $16 to $52 a night for a double room. All of the above motels insist on reservations before Feb. 1 with money in advance. And they've got a Feb. 12 to Feb. 15 contract clause.

The drinking age in Louisiana is 18 years and for all of you Easy Riders out there, the bars boogie 24 hours a day.

Way it sounds you'd better bring a billfold, unless you know what's coming off and can scrounge for yourself.

I am a freshman living in Burge. I work in Coralville and it's a hassle in general for me to live in the dorm. Is there anyway I can get out of my dorm contract? I could live with my brother who is 21. — C.R.

You now have a relative exemption form and, if approved, you'll be able to live with your brother. You're got to submit this form at least 30 days prior to the beginning of the semester... for which the exemption is requested.

These forms are investigated and, as you were told, the housing contract is a binding legal contract that cannot be canceled unless approved by the residence hall administration. According to Charles Gill, of the University Housing Office, most forms are denied.

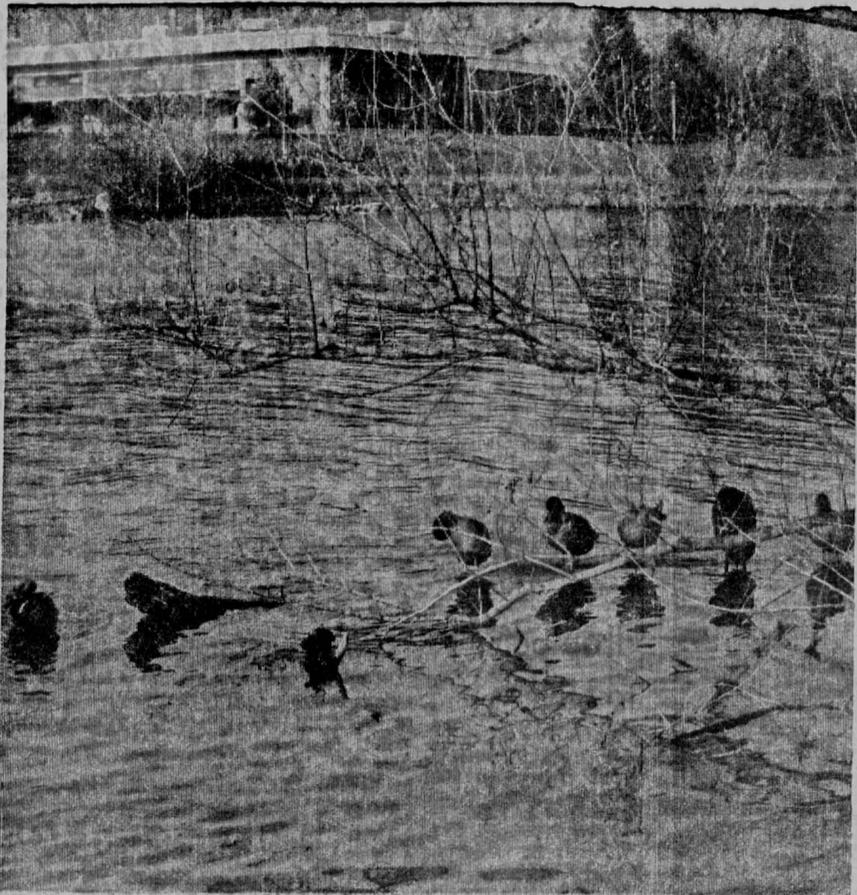

So it'll probably take a bit of meditation to get you closer to the job.

Tanning of animal pelts used to be a cottage industry. I have never heard of anyone doing it anymore in their own home. Can it be done successfully? Do you know where I can get information about doing it? — G.A.

Tanning of animal pelts can be done in the home successfully, we're told. For a how-to-do-it book you can send for A. B. Forum's Home Tanning and Leather Making Guide ($1.50) from Harding's Books, 2878 East Main Street, Columbus, Ohio 43209.

Or you can send for further information to Leeds University, Department of Leather Industries, Leeds, England. (That's the old country.)

Remember, though, if you tan too long, you'll get sunburned.

New application policy in effect—

Work-study deadline set

Students who want work-study jobs at the University of Iowa this summer or next year must file applicants with the UI Financial Aids Office no later than April 1.

The new policy will replace the present method of submitting an application for a work-study job just two or three weeks before beginning work.

According to William J. Bushaw, assistant director of financial aid students who submit their applications during the summer or during the next school year will not have a chance to get work-study employment.

Under the new policy, to receive an application for work-study a student must complete a parent's confidential statement, a family confidential statement, a student's confidential statement. The student's statement must be notarized.

After submitting the confidential financial statement, the student will receive an application.

Since the application must be in the financial aids office by April 1, a student should plan to fill out the confidential statement well ahead of that deadline.

John A. Kundel, assistant director of financial aid, said that the new policy is the result of guidelines which have been set recently by the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. HEW pays 80 per cent of the wage of a student employed in the work-study program.

To submit a student's confidential statement, a student must meet HEW qualifications for being "independent," meaning he may receive no more than $200 per year from his parents and must not have been claimed as a tax exemption by his parents for at least one year prior to the year he requests financial aid.

A student requesting aid should have a minimum need of $300. Top priority is given to a student whose family has less than $9,000 income.

Kundel suggested that confidential statement forms be picked up at the financial aids office by Feb. 29 so they can be fully processed before April 1. Late applications will not be accepted.

The financial aids office is in Room 103 of the Old Dental Building.

Trivia

The medical formula plot began long before "General Hospital" and today's other soap operas. We all know that Richard Chamberlain played Dr. Kildare and Raymond Massey played Dr. Gillespie on television a few years ago, but who were the movies' Kildare and Gillespie back in the 1939-40 era?

Watch for the answer tomorrow.

The University of Iowa building described as the "largest structure of its kind in the United States" in the 1927 Hawkeye was the new Field House. And the president of the University of Iowa was Walter A. Jessup. "Classism" reared itself during this period as well with the Senior Hop, Junior Prom, Sophomore Cotillion, and Freshman Party.

When are you going to start salting away some of your good intentions?

Everybody wants to save money. Unfortunately, most of us seem to have a rough time actually doing it. We start, then we stop. The money never piles up.

The Payroll Savings Plan is the easy way to start saving; the painless way to keep saving. Your money gets a chance to pile up because the amount you specify is automatically set aside from your paycheck and used to buy U. S. Savings Bonds.

You actually salt away savings, paycheck after paycheck. And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U. S. Savings Bonds—for E Bonds, 5 1/2% when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year).

That extra 1/2%, payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970... with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

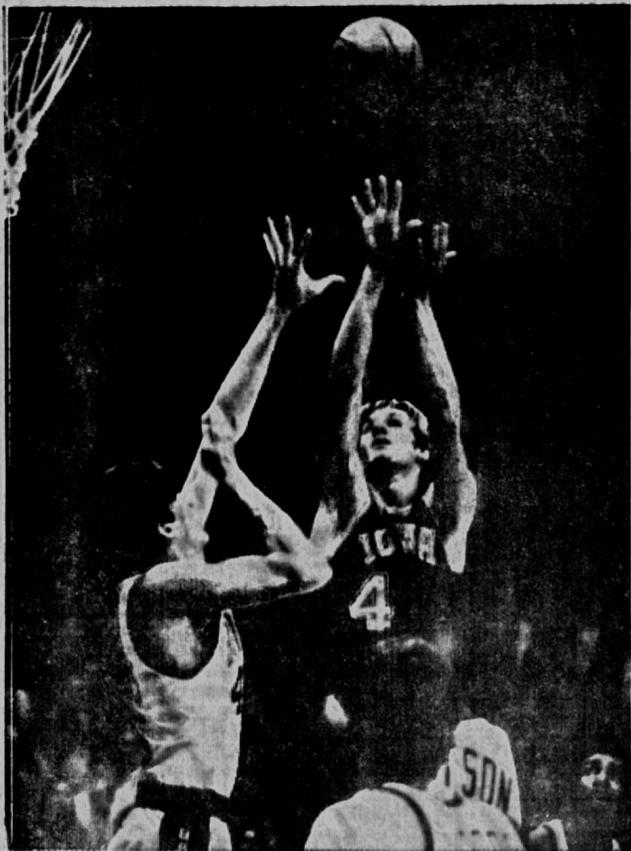

Join the Payroll Savings Plan where you work. It's a great way to make today's good intentions pay off tomorrow.

Iowa rally fails to tip Badgers

MADISON, Wis. — Iowa's Hawkeyes came close, but as they always say, close doesn't count as Wisconsin took the Big Ten basketball opener for the two schools here Saturday, 81-80.

A combination of a quick Wisconsin start in the first half and some cold shooting by the Hawks put the Badgers up early and Iowa spent the rest of the afternoon trying to catch up.

"In the first 10 minutes we let them get off to a good start," said Iowa Basketball Coach Dick Schultz.

"Their coach (Wisconsin) said they played their best game of the year against us. We just let them get the jump on us, but we played good ball the last 27 minutes."

One of the things about this young Iowa basketball team that has Schultz bothered is the team's slow start at the beginning of a game.

"It really has us puzzled.

Lakers' streak ends

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 39 points, 23 in the second half, to lead the Milwaukee Bucks to a 120-104 victory over Los Angeles Sunday which snapped the Lakers' National Basketball Association record 33-game winning streak.

A capacity Arena crowd of 10,746 and a national television audience watched reserves Lucius Allen and John Block score 18 and 17 points, respectively, for the defending champion Bucks, now 36-8.

It was the Lakers' fourth loss in 43 games and first since a 108-105 setback by Golden State Oct. 31. It was the longest winning streak in major professional sports history.

The Lakers pulled from a nine-point deficit late in the third period to within 94-92 with 6:50 to play. But Abdul-Jabbar sank two baskets to spark Milwaukee on an 18-2 tear that produced a 112-94 lead with 2:48 to play.

Jerry West led the Lakers with 20 points and Jim McMillan, Gail Goodrich and Happy Hairston added 18 each. Flynn Robinson and the 7-foot-1 Chamberlain each had 15, but the veteran Laker pivot man picked up his fourth foul one minute and 27 seconds into the third quarter.

We've tried everything from pep talks to going easy on them before the game and the results are always the same," Schultz said.

"It wasn't that we were cold in the first half, our defensive pressure just wasn't what it should have been."

The Badgers jumped out to a 13-4 lead and controlled a ten point margin for most of the first half.

With about six minutes left, Wisconsin had a cozy 38-22 lead, but three straight buckets, two on steals, trimmed the lead to ten points.

Early in the second half the Hawks were down again by a 16-point margin but still didn't give up.

The Hawks cut the gap to five on a pair of freethrows by Kevin Kunnert and a jump shot by Neil Fegebank, 57-52. With 3:14 left in the game, Iowa's Harold Sullinger had a chance to put the Hawks into the lead with the Hawks trailing 74-73, but Sullinger hit only one of the pair of foul shots, for a 74 all tie.

Wisconsin managed to maintain a two point lead the rest of the way.

Iowa missed on a couple of open shots in the final minute. Lee Oler became the hero for the Badgers when he was fouled by Kunnert with nine seconds left and with Wisconsin leading 80-78, sank one of his two shots.

Iowa got up court quickly and sank the final basket at the buzzer but it was too little, too late.

With Northwestern coming up for the Hawkeyes this Tuesday, Schultz hopes that his club is over the case of jitters it had in the early minutes against the Badgers.

"We showed a lot of poise and a lot of courage. They (Wisconsin) were under a lot of pressure in that second half, and they were sinking the shots they had to sink to beat us."

All in the game

By KEITH GILLET
Daily Iowan Sports Editor

Iowa's narrow loss to Wisconsin Saturday gave some indication of how the Hawkeyes are going to play on the road this year, and it may indicate that the home court advantage may not be that overwhelming, even though Iowa did lose.

Although down some 16 points in the opening minutes of the second half, Iowa's young basketball squad didn't fold up, instead they played their hearts out right down to the wire.

The real unfortunate thing is that Iowa doesn't get another chance this year against the Badgers. A similar game in Iowa City would have found Iowa winning by as many as ten points.

Instead, the Hawks will have to pick up as much maturity and experience as they can out of the defeat and get ready for a tough Northwestern team that nearly upended Illinois at Evanston.

The Big Ten conference went true-to-form in its openers Saturday. Four of five home teams won games, including Minnesota which nipped fifth-ranked Indiana, 52-51.

It would appear now that Ohio State, Indiana (despite the loss) and Minnesota will be the teams to beat this year for the Big Ten Basketball title.

It's going to be a close race and the winner could have as many as four losses. It will take a lot of strength to win on the road this year since the league is so well-balanced.

Because of this balance, don't look for a Big Ten team to be ranked in the top ten nationally.

The vote by the NCAA Saturday to allow freshmen to compete in basketball and football came as a surprise to most people, including me.

Although representatives of the Big Eight conference indicate that they are against playing freshmen, what happens when you combine red-shirting with four years of eligibility?

The new freshmen eligibility ruling will tend to increase the already growing trend of professionalism in college athletics while tending to reduce its amateur status.

If anything could continue the trend this ruling will, if combined with red-shirting.

Imagine what a school like Oklahoma or Nebraska could do if it had a boy sit out his freshman year. Then have four more years of eligibility?

Unless the Big Ten moves to accept red-shirting or freshmen eligibility, the conference may become just another football league like the Atlantic Coast or Western Athletic leagues.

If the Big Ten does accept red-shirting and freshmen eligibility, Iowa City fans will have the same worries that people in Milwaukee and Boston have.

They'll be worrying about the Big Ten shifting the Hawkeyes' franchise to Des Moines or Waterloo.

Big Ten, Big 8 may still limit frosh competition

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — A move appeared to be growing among some of the nation's major college football conferences Sunday to band together against the use of freshmen on varsity teams, as now permitted by the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

"If we could get enough major conferences to agree, we wouldn't play freshmen," said Charles M. Neinas, commissioner of the Big 8, which produced the top three teams in the country this past season.

A spot check showed the Big Ten and Pacific-8 conferences, which send their champions to the Rose Bowl, opposed to the use of freshmen, with the Southwest, Missouri Valley, Atlantic Coast and Western Athletic conferences for it.

The new freshman rule, passed Saturday during the NCAA's annual business session, approves the use of freshmen in football and basketball. Freshmen approval in all other sports was granted a year ago.

Technically, the new rule means major colleges may now use freshmen in NCAA postseason and championship events. It is up to the conference themselves, and individual schools in the case of independents, whether to allow freshmen to play during the regular season.

Basketball was considered less of a problem than football, since fewer players are needed and practice doesn't begin until mid-October.

The new freshman rule was opposed by a 2-to-1 count last year in a poll of major college members of the American Football Coaches Association. College division coaches were generally for it, since they were able to promise a prospect four years of competition rather than three.

The new rule puts immediate pressure on the major college coaches as far as recruiting is concerned since they don't know yet whether to tell a boy he can play as a freshman.

"The problem is very simple," said Neinas. "If the major conferences stay together, it won't hurt recruiting. But if some say okay, we're going to get feedback from our recruiters in the field. If the other guy gives them four years, we're going to have to change the rules, too."

Neinas said Big 8 football coaches were unanimously against the use of freshmen. There also seemed to be little doubt that the Big Ten and Pacific 8 would follow identical routes — both are against it — because of their Rose Bowl tieup.

The ACC and WAC obviously were for the new rule since they helped sponsor it before the convention. The SWC voted for it, although not unanimously, in a poll Friday night. DeWitt Weaver, commissioner of the MVC, said his group was "all for it" as a means of cutting costs by enabling schools to reduce the size of their freshman programs.

Fred Shabel of Pennsylvania, chairman of the Ivy League athletic directors, said he had "great restraint" about using freshmen and it was considered highly doubtful whether the Ivy presidents, with whom the decision rests, would pass such a rule.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association wound up its 66th annual convention Saturday leaving the impression that the 656-member body eventually will be split into separate divisions, probably at next January's meeting.

The delegates rejected three proposals that would have convened an unprecedented special convention later this month to consider methods of curbing the rising costs of inter-collegiate athletics.

In other key legislation, the football and basketball seasons were granted earlier starts. Football can begin Sept. 1 rather than the second Friday in September and basketball's opening was advanced from Dec. 1 to the last Friday in November.

The convention turned down proposals to abolish the controversial 1.6 scholastic eligibility grade requirement and to permit two outside scrimmages in addition to a 26-game basketball schedule.

In other action, the delegates:

- Refused to limit the number of college campuses a prospective athlete may visit, but ruled that he may make only one expense-paid visit to each institution, all in his senior year of high school. The limit has been two visits to a school.
- Refused to restrict the number of visits a college's staff member may make to a prospective athlete.
- Refused to permit summer basketball competition for members of college teams.
- Refused to restrict the use of summer camps by coaches for recruiting purposes.
- Restricted entertainment of prospective athletes and their families to the campus and prohibited entertaining their friends and other relatives.
- Prohibited representatives of athletic interests from transporting relative and friends of prospective athletes.

Big Ten to decide on ruling

Iowa Athletic Director Bump Elliott said Sunday evening that it was too early to tell what the effect of freshmen eligibility in football and basketball would have, or whether it would be accepted by the Big Ten.

"The Big Ten must take a serious look at the entire situation with regards to freshmen eligibility. The difficult decision will concern what the other conferences are doing," said Elliott.

"I'm sure that the Big Ten will take a close look at it since it will affect our recruiting in the future."

Iowa's Big Ten faculty representative, Robert Ray, said Sunday that a meeting with the rest of the Big Ten faculty representatives to discuss the new ruling was being set up and could come as early as next Sunday. Ray said that the meeting likely would be held within two weeks.

Ray said that the Big Ten was unanimous in its opposition to the rule change in the NCAA convention at Hollywood, Fla.

Hawk wrestlers upset Michigan St.

The Iowa Hawkeyes posted a major wrestling upset Saturday by beating Michigan State, 22-14. Prior to Saturday's meet, the Spartans were ranked second in the nation.

"It was a great victory," said Iowa Wrestling Coach Dave McCuskey. "They were ranked pretty high and we didn't know how good we were at this time."

McCuskey explained that the Hawk matmen have not been up against any tough competition so far this season, so an evaluation of team strength prior to Saturday's meet was difficult.

"It looks like we've got a balanced squad with some good men in each weight class. Michigan State is still a good team," McCuskey said.

The Hawk matmen got rolling quickly on Dan Sherman's 19th straight victory, a 6-2 triumph over 118-pounder Lon Hicks of MSU.

Michigan State took a 12-11 lead in the match at one point, but the Hawks collected the last ten points for the victory.

John Evashevski won a narrow 6-5 victory over Greg Zindel at 177 and Paul Zander pinned defending Big Ten champion Dave Ciolek at 190.

Iowa's Jim Waschek and MSU's Ben Lewis battled to a 1-1 draw at heavyweight.

In the second dual meet of the afternoon, Iowa ran its record to 3-0 with a 24-6 victory over Northern Iowa.

Sherman ran his string of victories to twenty as the Hawkeyes won eight of 10 matches. Michigan State topped UNI, 31-6 for a 3-1 dual meet record.

Next meet for the Hawks is at Minnesota, Jan. 22.

Large crowd sees Gophers pull upset

By The Associated Press

Ohio State, Illinois, Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin opened the Big Ten championship basketball drive with victories Saturday.

Minnesota and No. 5 Indiana, among the preseason favorites in what shapes up as a balanced title race, met in Minneapolis with the Gophers edging a 52-51 decision.

Illinois downed Northwestern 67-63, 10th ranked Ohio State trimmed Purdue 18-70, Wisconsin shaded Iowa 81-80 and Michigan whipped Michigan State 83-75.

Next stop is Tuesday when Purdue is at Illinois, Wisconsin at Indiana, Michigan at Ohio State and Northwestern to Minnesota.

Bob Nix hit two free throws in the last 17 seconds and Jim Brewer blocked a shot to lift the Gophers over Indiana before 19,121-second largest crowd ever at Minnesota's Williams Arena.

Joby Wright topped the Hoosiers with 24 points, Clyde Turner and Ron Behagen each made 14 to head the Gophers.

Ohio State led all the way to down the Boilermakers who nearly rubbed out a 20-point deficit early in the last half. Allan Hornyak keared the Buckeyes with 28 points, 18 in the first half, while William Franklin led Purdue with 23.

Illinois took the lead for the first time in the last 4:57 of the game on a 49-point final half to defeat Northwestern. The Illini went ahead to stay 60-57 on Larry Cohen's jumper at 3:25. Nick Weatherspoon and Nick Conner each netted 17 points for the Illini while
