Citizens' group ramps plan

A proposed $18.4 million parking ramp in downtown Iowa City is a topic of heated discussion by the downtown business owners, charged Richard Waterman at a Citizens for Environmental Action meeting Thursday.

He charged that the ramps, to be built near the Public Library on Linn and College streets, are not needed and should not be included in the Iowa City urban renewal plan. A public hearing on the site was announced last week.

"A parking ramp for this site is not justified," Sandhagen said. "It would cost $18.4 million to build, and it seems to me that if we don't need it, we don't need it."

For those who take the breads for $35 would be more in a" alternative, he would place the downtown on the street for the next 10 years.

Walk-out

PARK (AP) — North Vietnam, with a wary eye on the U.S., has shuttered its Communist front headquarters in Moscow.

The move was prompted by a protest against recent U.S. and other "termination" of ties with North Vietnam.

No ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — There will be no progress toward a real ban on nuclear testing unless the U.S. and the Soviet Union are more serious about giving up their nuclear test programs, a meeting of Western European nations was told Tuesday.

Payments

Business Development, Inc. has repaid the city of Iowa City $2,028,000 in a controversy of what some saw as a sweetheart deal at the site of the H.J. Heinz Co. warehouse on Linn Street.

The city will now be forced to negotiate with the Heinz company for use of the site, waiting quietly for the final outcome.

Regional med centers

proposed for UI interns

The Senate Social Services Committee approved a bill Thursday and brought out a bill to require the University of Iowa College of Medicine to establish one regional medical center.

The bill, proposed by Sen. Bruce Rastetter, of Mason City, was referred by the committee to the Senate Ways and Means Committee.

Ras tetter told the committee the bill would not be "a directive" for the university. The committee voted 10-0 to send the bill to the Senate Ways and Means Committee.

The bill would require the board of Regents to establish one regional medical center, said the committee chairman. "The bill would not be a directive, but it would be a statement of policy."

The board of Regents must refer the bill to the Senate Ways and Means Committee, said the chairman. "We must now refer the bill to that committee."

JANUARY FOLK CO-OP
Earnings at the University of Iowa may change. The board of regents will consider on Thursday a proposal to increase tuition by 3%, which would bring the total cost of tuition for a full-time student to $5,641. The proposal was made by the University of Iowa's budget council, which recommended that the board raise tuition by 2% to maintain its ability to meet its financial obligations.

The proposal comes as the state of Iowa faces a budget shortfall, with szes in the budget council noting that the university needs to increase its revenue to cover its operational costs. The council's recommendation was based on a review of the university's financial statements, which showed that the university's revenue has increased by 5% in the past year, while its expenses have increased by 4%.

The proposal would also include a 3% increase in fees for non-resident students, which would bring the total cost of tuition for a non-resident student to $7,080. The council notes that the increase in fees is necessary to ensure that the university can continue to provide quality education to its students.

The proposal will be discussed at the board of regents meeting on Thursday, where it will be voted on. The board of regents is expected to approve the proposal, as it has done in the past.

Chicago's Second City: Satiric Improvisations

By CINDY CARR
Diane Fossey's Diet & Behavior

Second City is a solid club and it's a tight club and it's a theater famous for improv, which means it has a lot of character. The people show up for the theater experience, the not-for-profit theater experience, and they're happy about that. At that time just so few people are out there trying to go to improv shows that it's a sense of community, a sense of being part of something special.

It's strange but the only thing with the theater is that it's a religion. The people come here because they love doing it, not because they want to make money. The money is the by-product of doing it. The people who are doing it are just happy to be doing it.

He's using a camera at the bar. The bar is packed and he is taking pictures of people. He is talking to people and he is smiling. The people are looking at him and they are smiling. He is showing them pictures and he is pointing at them. The people are pointing at the pictures and they are talking to each other. The bar is noisy and the people are talking loudly.

Second City's current resident artistic director, Mike Luftman, is a jack-of-all-trades, capable of bringing a range of talents to the company's improv scenes. Luftman, who joined the company in 1979, has been a mainstay of the Chicago improv scene for more than 30 years. He has also performed with other companies, including the Second City Training Center and the Chicago Improv Festival.

Second City's improv shows are known for their irreverent take on current events and issues. The company's improvisers are trained to think on their feet and to come up with spontaneous material on the spot. This allows the company to comment on current events and to stay relevant to their audience.

The company's improv style has evolved over the years, but it has remained true to its roots. The company's improv shows are still characterized by their fast-paced, fast-thinking approach, and they continue to be a popular choice for audience members who appreciate a good laugh.

The Second City improv shows are a must-see for anyone who enjoys a good laugh and a good debate. The company's improvisers are always on top of their game, and they never fail to deliver a show that is both funny and thought-provoking.

The Guiding Star

John Foles plays Joseph of Nazareth, and Ms. Sawchuk is the Angel of the Nativity. The scene was a touching and emotional moment in the play. Foles' portrayal of Joseph was moving and the way he interacted with the other actors was impressive. The Angel of the Nativity was equally impressive in her portrayal of the angel. The scene was a beautiful portrayal of the Christmas story and the love and sacrifice that it represents.
About ‘racist’ views
SDS to ‘question’ controversial prof

By JERRY DEPEW

A controversial SDS professor faced a Senate Judiciary hearing today amid charges that he discriminated against students and violated academic freedom. According to an article in the Atlantic magazine, Professor Johnson related hormones in an attempt to scientifically ‘prove’ his views.

The chairman of the 13-person committee, Senator John F. Kennedy, said that Johnson’s views are unrelated to his controversial articles. “We are concerned with the quality of research in one of several speakers in experimental psychology who will appear here today,” said the senator. “We believe that Professor Johnson’s views are not based on sound research.”

Johnson said he and others involved the liberal and libertarian questions on the Atlantic. “We believe that this is a more important issue than the one he presented.”

We have 200 signatures on a petition asking him to resign. Asked about possible dismissal of the professor, Senator Kennedy said, “We’ve heard of various attempts to dismiss the professor.”

“Most of these attempts seem to be aimed at trying to silence the professor. We believe that this is definitely an issue of academic freedom. There is not enough evidence to prove that Johnson is averse to scientific research. These attempts seem to be aimed at trying to silence the professor.”

Johnson said that there will be no “retaining rent not a right, Supreme Court rules 5-2.”
