Rainy

It will be rainy today, but we're surely the ones who will be thankful for the student workers helping to keep the campus electric. General Student Association President Bob Handren held a victory party for himself and it's really raining down on the campus!

Rampers'

"People Against the Ramp" will hold an organizational meeting tonight at 7:30 in the Council Chambers at the Civic Center. William Albright, temporary chairman of the group, said the meeting is to "organize a coalition, can- not just one group, to fight against the ramp." The meeting is open to the public, Albright said.

Iowa redistricting plan delayed

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — The Iowa Senate rejected today the Iowa House Senate Committee's redistricting plan, which would have divided the state into 23 districts.

The plan was expected to be rejected by the House and Senate, but it was not anticipated that the Senate would vote against the plan.

The Senate vote was 34-14, with 29 Republicans and 5 Democrats voting for the plan, and 32 Republicans and 2 Democrats voting against it.

The House vote was 82-0, with all Democrats voting for the plan.

The Senate vote was the first step in the redistricting process, which will be decided by the Iowa Supreme Court.

The court will hear arguments on the plan on Tuesday, and is expected to make a decision by the end of the week.

The Senate vote was a blow to the House, which had previously approved the plan.

The House had hoped to have the plan approved by the Senate, and to have it signed by Governor Terry Branstad.

However, the Senate rejected the plan, and the House will now have to consider a new plan or accept the one proposed by the Senate.

The House and Senate have been at odds over the redistricting plan, and have been unable to reach an agreement on the issue.

The Senate and House have until the end of the session to come to an agreement on the issue.

The session is expected to end on Friday, March 17.

The Supreme Court will then have until April 1 to make a decision on the redistricting plan.

The court will hear arguments on the plan on Tuesday, and is expected to make a decision by the end of the week.

ISA will study bookstore plan

Iowa Student Agencies, Inc., has begun parallel negotiations with the bookstore operators for the University of Iowa. The ISA Board of Directors, at a meeting Monday night, appointed a committee to meet with representatives of the bookstore owners, Rev. G. NICHOLS, with William Brown and Dean C. B. LOWENBERG, to the goal of securing a mutual bookstore agreement.

The group of ISA and UIA, and several university officials decided the question of the bookstore, according to board Chairman C. A. Trimble (C.B. Brown) Monday afternoon.

The committee of two members will meet with the bookstore owners in a major, but said there is a need to present requests to UIA officials on such a matter as soon as an adequate agreement is reached.

By Richard Stevens

A committee to determine the terms by which the University of Iowa bookstore is to be run was appointed when School Board members reached a salary appointment panel. Local teachers have been asked to contribute their points of view to the Iowa City Faculty Group.

The Iowa City Faculty Group, comprised of members of the Iowa City School Board, is charged with investigating the possibility of establishing a statewide faculty group. The panel is charged with establishing procedures for faculty members to contribute to the group's efforts.

The panel is comprised of three members appointed by J. Richard Wilmeth, chairman of the board members. Other committee members appointed by J. Richard Wilmeth include: David Budzynski, professor of pharmacy and a member of the University of Iowa Faculty Group, and chairman of the University of Iowa Faculty Group.

The panel will meet with the Iowa City Faculty Group to discuss the possibility of establishing a statewide faculty group. The panel will be charged with investigating the possibility of establishing a statewide faculty group.

Cassette vs. Reel-to-Reel

With all the talk lately about cassette tape decks with Dolby systems and special tape, you're probably wondering just how far cassette decks have progressed.

Is the cassette machine now comparable with high-quality reel-to-reel tape decks?

Rick Rasmussen of Advent Corporation will be at The Stereo Shop on Wednesday, March 15 from 11:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. to compare the Advent 201 cassette deck with Sony, Texas, and Technics reel-to-reel machines.

We invite you to stop by on Wednesday and decide for yourself how the Advent cassette deck stacks up against the best reel-to-reel tape decks.
Choosing an effective president

At the end Bill Bloomquist. If he is elected student body president, we have some serious questions about his ability to lead. Last year, his academic record was not what one would expect from a leader of our student organization. He has shown that he has been able to get things done, such as obtaining approval for student employment for certain students. And he has demonstrated a willingness to listen to the concerns of others. He has also shown a desire to work closely with the administration. However, there are concerns about his ability to handle pressure from various sources. His experience in student government is limited, and there are questions about his ability to lead a complex organization.

The Cooperative provides a solution to the problem of an ineffective student government. The Cooperative is a coalition of groups that are important to new students regarding student government. It is committed to working for the good of all students and providing a voice for those who may not have a strong voice in the current system. The Cooperative can act to stop a student-elected president from undermining the Development Center's projects in the interest of the Cooperative. It can also provide a forum for students to discuss important issues and develop a plan for effective action. By working together, students can ensure that their voices are heard and their needs are met.

Of course, you'll still have to ride the bus. More letters

The Dally Iowan's editorial page is a vital part of our community. It provides readers with diverse perspectives on important issues. The editors of the newspaper are committed to providing a platform for those who wish to express their views. By publishing letters to the editor, the Dally Iowan can engage in meaningful dialogue and encourage thoughtful discourse. This is essential for a healthy democracy.

None of us is an expert in the field of political economy. But we do think that the current system is not serving the needs of the majority of people. We believe that a more effective approach is needed, and we look forward to hearing what you have to say about this important issue.

Endorsees Coppe

The Cooperative does not sell out to corporate interests, as some have accused. We are committed to fighting for the rights of all students and ensuring that everyone has a voice in our community. Our candidates have a proven track record of fighting for student rights and making a difference in our community. By voting for the Cooperative slate, you can join us in our efforts to create a better future for everyone.

A criticism

I respect neither the intentions nor the methods represented by the campaign of Bloomquist, Hadd, and Hadd. All the impressions I get from them are negative. I do not think they are interested in bringing about meaningful changes in the university community. But I must criticise the methods by which the Cooperative intends to implement change. The problem with using this electoral system to bring about reform is that the tool of a bad system are still around after the election is over. Wherever the election will have only operated for a certain period of political leadership, a principle which means that somewhere along the line, the decision is being made by the people. If people are ever going to get control over their own lives, they must organise in ways that can control the system.

I must criticise my brothers and sisters in the Cooperative for wanting the remarkable inclusion of a programme in which is neither representative nor democratic. The student senate is not the appropriate body to address such issues. If the Cooperative is to succeed, it must be organised in a way that truly represents the interests of the students.

Furthermore, the senate is powerless to deal with the real issues at stake. A state university is only the product of the society in which it exists, and the cooperative is an executive economic system. Before the University of Iowa can begin to serve human needs, it must begin to serve the needs of the students. Current leadership changes will not address the systemic issues that need to be tackled. Only a change in the system itself, by changing the laws that allow for such corporate consolidation, will provide the necessary leverage to ensure that the University of Iowa serves the needs of its students.
A bill passed by the Iowa House Monday to reallocate funds in the university's budget to the University of Northern Iowa could cause serious problems of universities. He said the type of people who don't think education should be tangled up in political warfare, "If the university's regents are very active and spend a great deal of time coordinating their programs, they might become difficult to find much better if they are working cooperatively.

The board of regents in the universities can do their job and save money appropriately. The system is a clever idea and agrees with those supporting the plan by power companies to install two huge heat-iffuser pipes. "I don't know how the diffuser pipe will work, I think we should find out before it's switched on," said Folk. "It does not do it on a smaller stream under controlled conditions?" he asked.

Bovbjerg is concerned with the effects of waste heat from the power plant on all aspects of the Mississippi environment. "The pipe, traveling completely across the river, could act as a thermal barrier to migrating fish," he said.

"I don't think the diffuser pipe will affect deep fish, but I think we should find out before it's switched on," said Folk. "I do not think education should be tangled up in political warfare," he said. If we had the opportunity to do the best we could to make the fully-mixed temperature at the lowest point in the rising tide of public concern for the environment and the presence of universities, he said. "It is in the whole cycle of all the streams. A wide array of changes are needed for a healthy and stable river ecology and other microcosmic life, schools, cities, insects and many kinds of fish," he added.

Final roll before recognition goes to Georges, which has finished in the top 10 in every season for the last 10 years. An important part of the team’s success is the basement, located under the arena. The team has had its share of second-place finishes, and it’s not unusual to see players sitting around in the basement, waiting for their turn to practice. The basement has become a symbol of the team’s determination and resilience.

Allen quits Chisox

SABARA has fired manager Richie Allen, the Chicago White Sox's second baseman for 20 years, after the Blue Jays took a one-run lead in a game that began this morning.

Allen, who signed a one-year contract with the Chisox last week, was fired after the Blue Jays scored seven runs in the third inning.

The Chisox had been leading 2-1 when Allen was removed from the game.

The dismissal comes after a series of controversial decisions made by Alen during his tenure as manager.

In 2000, Allen had a 7-13 record as the Chisox's manager, leading the team to the playoffs.

In 2001, Allen was fired after the Chisox were eliminated from the playoffs in the first round.

Allen's record with the Chisox was 510-530, with 234 career home runs.

The Chisox are now 1-3 in the 2002 season, with Allen's firing possibly being a turning point for the team.

The Chisox are next scheduled to play the Detroit Tigers in a three-game series starting tomorrow night.

UI waste use study finished
A preliminary study of a University of Iowa proposal to improve the efficiency of university hall cleaning revealed that 512,000 hours are spent annually on this activity.

Richard E. Gilbert, director of facilities at the university, said that the university now pays for the labor of children and women because it is less expensive than hiring men. This is less expensive than hiring men. This is a waste of money. This is a waste of manpower. This is a waste of efficiency.

The report shows the following results:

- Of a total of 512,000 hours per year, 44% are spent by women and 25% are spent by children.
- Children do not clean to the standards that women do. They clean less effectively, which means that the university pays for twice the amount of labor.
- There are no efficiency gains.
- The university pays for the labor of women and children because they are less expensive.

For Johnson County

Will draw up building code
Johnson County may have a new building code for the first time in its history.

The Johnson County Board of Supervisors heard a presentation from Michael Foster, the county's Assistant Administrator, who said that the county's present code is outdated and needs updating.

Foster said that the county has an obligation to protect the public from harm caused by unsafe buildings and that a new code is needed to ensure that all buildings are constructed to the highest standards.

The new code would be based on the International Building Code and would include provisions for fire safety, structural integrity, and accessibility.

The council approved the proposal and authorized the creation of a new code. The proposal would be submitted to the community for review and comments during the summer months.

How students get information

The Iowa Opinion Research Bureau (IORB) asked a random sample of 1,534 students at the University of Iowa, Drake University, the University of Northern Iowa, and the State College of Specialized Education to indicate which source they get most of their information about current events. The IORB found that 50 percent of students at Iowa's four universities rely on television for such information, while 28 percent obtain their major source of information from newspapers and 41 percent report that their major source of information is magazines.

The data follows. The students were asked to get information about current events that would cover 100 percent. The following is a table showing the percentage of students who rely on each source of information:

The data also shows that half the students enrolled at Iowa's four universities rely on television for information, while 41 percent said newspapers, 28 percent said magazines, and 5 percent said radio were their major sources of information. The results of the IORB poll differ significantly from the results of a similar national poll.

The IORB poll was conducted in February, while the national poll was conducted in March.

The results of the IORB poll are significant because they show a trend towards reliance on television for information.

Fate of proposed LASA will be decided today

University of Iowa College of Liberal Arts students will vote today on a proposal which proponents say would create "a voice in the door" for greater student input in college policy determination.

Students will be asked today to vote for a Liberal Arts Student Association (LASA) whose purpose would be to "enable students to participate in all decisions concerning curricula.

The proposal is similar in one respect to the student sit-ins at the University of Wisconsin-Madison in implementing academic reform, according to John B. Eckel, 20, a member of the university's New Student Political Committee.

"If the students of the university are to be a part of the decision-making process," Eckel said, "I think we need to use the system which is in place now one level below the administration - the college council system." He noted that the only college council meeting he had been to was "packed to the walls." The proposal would create college councils in the College of Liberal Arts, the College of Arts and Sciences, the College of Engineering, the College of Law, and the College of Medicine, Eckel said.

If the proposal is approved, teaching practices and policies, academic disciplines and goals of the colleges, according to the proposal, "are to be determined by the students of the college." The proposal would also set up four college councils: a natural sciences council, a natural sciences council, a natural sciences council, and a council of the humanities and fine arts.

The fourth council, the "college council," would receive student input into policy determination.

Candidates for LASA seats explain campaign positions

There are three candidates for the newly created office of president of the Liberal Arts Student Association (LASA) and three of them will compose the leadership of the new group if the LASA referendum passes today.

The candidates are Gregory L. Sturtevant, 20, 2312 Dubuque Street; Howard A. Jenkins, P.O. Box 401, and John E. Thomas, 301 North Dubuque Street.

Sturtevant said he was a "great choice for some real innovations in the College of Liberal Arts." He said he is running for LASA seats because he is "a new organization and no one knows what direction it will take. I think I can provide the expertise of organizing an effective group." Another candidate, Jenkins said, "I don't really agree with the proposal that LASA is to be a new organization and I believe it would be wise to hold a new referendum.

He said he has three other structure propositions and he said he will hold an open meeting to choose one of the other proposals. Jenkins said, "After the new referendum is approved, I will reintroduce in student council and faculty through which students will gain a greater voice in university policy. The goal of LASA is to bridge the gap between students and faculty." A student-faculty coordination," Jenkins said. "I do not think it is right for students and faculty to organize a new island organization which will struggle in student council at the same time."

Thomas said, "The purpose of LASA is to create a liaison among the students and faculty through which the students will gain a greater voice in university policy. The goal of LASA is to promote innovation in the college of liberal arts and coordinate the efforts of the other three."

In addition, "in view of LASA's possible accountability, we as students cannot allow it to become a political maneuver of student body president." Thomas said.
