Powerless

A power outage Monday night affected nearly 3,800 customers of Illinois Gas and Electric Co. in University Heights, Glen Ellyn, Skokie and western Johnson County.

The outage, which began at 4:40 p.m., was due to a failure in the line that is used for the electrical power distribution system on Bestor Street near the Skokie Apartments complex. The line is owned by IGE.

Fires were taken to the scene. Firefighters reported no injuries. The cause of the outage was not immediately determined.

March has been rough for one local tenant

By MIKE DUNNAR
Daily Iowan-Iowa City

It's been a rough month so far for Max A. O'Connor, who and his 14-year-old daughter, Dawn. The family of four was displaced by floods from the day after Christmas. No one knew when or if they would return to their home.

The family lived in the basement of a small house on the corner of IA-96 and River Road. They had lost everything except for some clothes and personal items.

Max, who worked as a laborer, said he had no idea what would happen to them. He was considering relocating to a different area where he could find work and find shelter for his family.

The O'Connor family's loss is just one of many that have occurred in the area. The Iowa River flooded in late December, causing widespread damage.

Study: Canadian pipeline is less environmental threat

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Interior Department study found that a proposed natural gas pipeline through Alaska would pose less of an environmental threat than a mega-project that has been under study for years.

The study, released Tuesday, estimated that the pipeline would cause less water pollution, habitat destruction, and greenhouse gas emissions than the proposed Alaska Natural Gas Pipeline.

The proposed pipeline would stretch from the North Slope to the Lower 48 states. It has been met with opposition from environmentalists and some communities along its route.

Manager's job offered

The City Council plans to announce the hiring of a new city manager who will replace Frank B. Souley, who quit as city manager last week to take a similar position in Des Moines.

O'Connor said he notified the city of his resignation last week. He said he was surprised by the council's decision and that he had hoped to find a way to continue serving the city.

The council has not yet announced the replacement for O'Connor. It is expected to make a decision in the coming weeks.

COUNCIL MEETING

The Iowa City Council will consider a resolution to purchase a parcel of land for the proposed Des Moines Park during its meeting tonight.

The resolution would authorize the city to purchase a portion of the park from a private developer for $5 million.

If approved, the purchase would be the first step in creating a new city park in the east end of Iowa City.

The park is located on the corner of Mitchell Street and Morris Road.

Iowa State Penitentiary officials said a man who was booked to state prison here to take a similar post in Iowa City.

The instructor, who asked that his name not be released, has taught at the prison for the past three years and is returning to complete a degree in education.

The instructor's name will be withheld until he has completed all necessary paperwork.

UI students donate books to state prison

Iowa Penitentiary officials said they were looking for books to send to the prison. The books will be used to help inmates learn and prepare for life after release.

The prison is seeking books on a variety of subjects, including science, history, and literature.

The prison also has an ongoing program to donate books to other institutions.

Nixon views drug traffic as No. 1 problem in U.S.

NEW YORK (AP)—President Nixon, ordering the U.S. to "get tough" on the drug problem, described it as the "most dangerous problem" the nation has ever faced.

In a radio address to the nation, Nixon vowed to "break the back" of the drug crime problem in the United States.

The president, speaking from the Oval Office of the White House, said that a "new national crusade" was being launched against drug traffic.

He said the U.S. would
"crack down" on drug trafkickers and that the government would use
"every means and resources at its disposal" to fight the war on drugs.

Nixon said the drug problem had "gotten out of control" and that the government was failing to control it.

He said the administration would "use all available means to curb the flow of drugs into this country.

The president said the government would use "the full force of the law" to fight the drug problem, including the use of
"extraordinary measures" if necessary.

Looking hard at Iowa City schools

By CAROL SPATIANI
For The Women's International League

If you are entirely satisfied with the public schools in Iowa City—or if you are so discouraged with them that you are considering changing your residence—this column is not for you. Rather, it is intended for those who believe that public schools can and should be better—those who are determined to play a role in improving the schools that are their children’s education.

It may seem strange to say that the achievement, interest, and quality of education in public schools is affected by the take-or-leave attitude of parents. I feel, however, that it is as necessary to encourage parents to commit themselves to the schools as it is to try to interest a child in a new hobby.

Acceptance of the first premise leads one to the conclusion that it is not terribly important who gets elected to the school board, or who doles out the money which gets spent in the schools. Acceptance of the second premise leads to the same sense of personal futility that is involved in the acceptance of the latter premise.

If so, our schools are really going to play the community needs, the public demand, and the leader’s goals of education. Some of us believe that the school’s goal should be to portray the society’s needs of education.

This is a truly radical statement, for it is in direct contradiction to what our schools actually are doing, which is training the young to be able to make the radical decisions of contemporary American society. It is a radical statement because it means that some of the values of contemporary society might be required to change, that is: a kind of revolution:

The type of person serving as superintendent also has a bearing on the quality of the education system, for if the superintendent is completely dependent on him for actual information about what is happening in the schools, he will be kept informed, and strong dictates that board contact with school personnel be heard. So, determines principles for board action and board action is often crucial here. He, too, can encourage or discourage opportunities for participation in school is determined by the principles of staff and parents. Fourth, through his choice of building principals, the superintendent determines the influence the educational philosophy of the teaching staff.

When the new superintendent arrives in town to have the schools entirely transformed to a new philosophy, and will other segments of the wider community find ways of communicating to him their hopes and goals for the schools?

It is time for many parts of the community to begin the influence of all for the better things, many of which they would use for schools. Whether or not the “no” is the open classroom, early childhood education, opportunities for incoming and college students, or the expansion of elementary schools, better and more school systems, getting rid of “dumb” TV, may do, and “thug” kids in trouble, injecting a little ecstasy into education—these things will happen only if you begin to peddle a little influence with the board of education, with your friends, and with their friends.

Rozelle: problems exist despite NFL's success

Many commercial insurance companies devote a lot of people, time and energy to investing the profits they make on their governments.

We at Blue Cross and Blue Shield don’t have that problem. Our only profit is the well-being of our members. We invest heavily in that.

Insurance companies do other things we don’t do. Our only dividends; for instance, are broadened benefits.

And the only compensation our board members get is a great feeling of self-satisfaction from having served their fellowmen.

We like our way better, and so do our more-than-a-million members.
