

IN THE NEWS
briefly
Tammany 12

We was all just kinda sittin' around last night, tryin' to think of something neat to put in the weather when a dozen real cool dudes from the Kappa Sigma (we guessed) house strolls into our office.

They was all real pretty, dressed up in their prom clothes and chompin' on impressive lookin' cigars. They says they's lookin' for Dave Helland and gots "an offer he can't turn down." They says they're the boys from Tammany Hall that Dave's been writin' about lately on the editorial page.

They was pretty wanted 'cause Dave wasn't here—guess they wanted to play some tricks on him they seen in The Godfather.

But anyways, as they was leavin', struttin' out of the office like pregnant pigeons, one of these dudes whips out his hanky and wipes off some cigar ashes from a desk. Don't know why he bothered—bubble gum cigars don't leave ashes.

We sorta hope this little story brightens up Dave's day seein' as how the weather's going to be cloudy and all.

Oooops

The item announcing the cantata at First Presbyterian Church on Sunday was in error; the cantata will not be presented this Sunday.

Oooops again

The story on the proposal to expand the campus shuttle bus system was in error in Wednesday's Daily Iowan. With a student fee of $7 per year, the average bus ride would cost each student less than two cents, rather than ten cents.

Ramp valid?

"To me, at least, if in fact the information, the data, the facts and all the homework that was done in accessing and evaluating the ramp were valid 24 hours ago, they still have to be valid," Mayor C. L. Brandt said Wednesday night.

He also said that he has no doubt that the city can sell revenue bonds to finance the construction of a four-level parking structure on Linn Street.

Voters rejected Tuesday, by a two to one margin, a referendum asking approval for the city to use lower interest rate general obligation (G.O.) bonds to pay for the ramp. If revenue bonds are used, as a majority of the City Council has pledged, the interest on the $2 million in bonds will be about "1½ million—$1 million more than the interest on a similar amount of G.O. bonds."

Brandt said Wednesday that the Iowa City referendum was the first try in the state to finance a ramp with G.O. bonds. "It's always been done before with revenue bonds," he explained.

The mayor said the rejection of the referendum will force the council to reconsider the time table for the ramp which was to be completed by May, 1973. He said the present timetable was planned with the assumption that G.O. bonds would be sued for financing.

Arrested

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI Wednesday arrested a United Mine Workers official on federal charges in connection with the slaying of UMW leader Joseph Yablonski, his wife and daughter.

William Jackson Prater, 52, a UMW district 19 field representative from La Follette, Tenn., was arrested by FBI agents in Lake City, Tenn., the FBI said.

The arrest came after a federal grand jury in Pittsburgh Pa., returned a sealed indictment charging Prater with conspiracy to violate federal laws prohibiting interference with the rights of a union member, obstruction of justice and obstruction of investigation.

Prater is the sixth person to be charged in the 1969 Yablonski slaying.

Yablonski, his wife and 25-year-old daughter were found shot to death in their Clarksville, Pa., home Jan. 5, 1970.

Still no

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate refused again Wednesday to set aside a bill to limit the war powers of the President.

It defeated, 56 to 23, a substitute proposed by Sen. J. Glenn Beall Jr., R-Md., to appoint a 24-member national commission for a year-long study of the warmaking roles of Congress and the President.

The test was the second in two days indicating majority Senate support for legislation designed to implement the constitutional authority of Congress alone to declare war.

A final Senate vote on the bill was set for 1:30 p.m. EST Thursday.

On Tuesday, the Senate turned down 60-26 a motion to send the bill to its own Judiciary Committee for 45 days to review its constitutionality.

The bill would limit the President's use of the armed forces to emergency defense against attack or threat of attack or rescue of Americans endangered abroad, and then only for 30 days unless Congress consented.

N. Viet tanks invade An Loc

SAIGON (AP) — Under the cover of darkness, a column of up to 42 North Vietnamese tanks launched an assault Thursday against the besieged provincial capital of An Loc, 60 miles north of Saigon. Several of the tanks were reported to have blasted their way into the city and adjoining airfield.

Field reports said North Vietnamese anti-aircraft guns were set up to ring the town and were attempting to drive back waves of U.S. and South Vietnamese bombers attacking the tank column.

There were no reports of any U.S. air losses or of what damage the air strikes had caused.

In other developments in the two-week-old North Vietnamese offensive:

Communist-led forces early Thursday shelled the Da Nang air base and Phu Bai, biggest U.S. installations in the northern quarter of South Vietnam, causing 17 American and South Vietnamese casualties, destroying one aircraft and damaging nine others, field reports said.

Communist troops also renewed attacks across a key river defense line anchoring the government's northern positions against the North Vietnamese offensive.

In the air war, B52 bombers, America's most powerful warplanes, attacked targets inside North Vietnam for the second time in four days. Informants said the attacks were below the 20th parallel, which runs about 80 miles south of Hanoi.

Allied military officials have been most concerned with the siege of An Loc, where 12,000 government troops, most of the Vietnamese 5th Division, have been bottled up.

The Communist tank column was said to be moving from the northwest toward the city, but its exact position was not known.

The column apparently moved southward from Cambodia down Highway 13, accompanied by North Vietnamese infantrymen.

Several other tanks have been knocked out in the border region but this was the first time such a large force had been sighted.

The North Vietnamese used tanks to overrun the district town of Loc Ninh, 15 miles north of An Loc, last Friday.

An Loc reportedly is surrounded by as many as 30,000 North Vietnamese troops.

Despite scores of U.S. B52 bombing raids in the area plus hundreds of other strikes by smaller tactical fighter-bombers, the North Vietnamese were still able to thrust southward.

Only Thursday, waves of B52 bombers launched heavy attacks on North Vietnamese troop concentrations on two sides of An Loc within one and two miles of the city limits.

Initial reports said the city apparently was still in government hands. President Nguyen Van Thieu has ordered it held at all costs.

Eighteen rockets slammed into the Da Nang air base, the biggest U.S. fighter-bomber installation in Vietnam, and eight to 10 other rockets hit in the vicinity of Phu Bai, 40 miles farther north.

The command said 10 Americans were wounded in the attack against Da Nang. Spokesmen said one U.S. Air Force EC47 electronics warfare plane used to jam Communist radar and intercept communications was destroyed and three of the twin-engine electronics planes and an F4 supersonic jet fighter-bomber sustained light damage.

Earlier, in the confusion of darkness, it was reported that the destroyed EC47 was a South Vietnamese transport plane and that two helicopters sustained light damage.

South Vietnamese officials at Da Nang said two Vietnamese civilians were killed and four were wounded.

At Phu Bai, there were no casualties or damage, the Command reported.

The attacks were the first against the two installations since the Communist command launched its major offensive March 30. It came only a day after 600 U.S. infantrymen were shifted from Da Nang to Phu Bai to protect an electronic communications facility and a key airstrip at the northernmost U.S. base.

Two hours after the Da Nang attack, U.S. jets roared off the runway on missions to support South Vietnamese troops.

The Bien Hoa air base used by American Air Force units was shelled 24 hours earlier. Mortar rounds wounded two Americans in the attack 15 miles northeast of Saigon.

Field reports said Communist troops now had surrounded Fire Base Bastogne 12 miles southwest of Hue and 60 miles south of the DMZ.

Enemy gunners fired 50 rounds into the base Tuesday and government forces battled an estimated 300 to 400 North Vietnamese troops three miles from the shell-scarred base's barbed wire perimeter.

The situation around Bastogne was described as critical. It commands Route 574, a narrow dirt road that was used by the Communists during the 1968 Tet offensive to spearhead a drive that partially captured Hue.

GIs balk forward role fearing enemy ambush

PHU BAI, Vietnam (AP) — About 100 GIs reluctantly moved into a forward defensive position outside an important American air base Wednesday after first refusing because they believed it was too dangerous.

They took up the assigned position about three miles west of Phu Bai, the northernmost point in South Vietnam now occupied by Americans.

An electronic communications facility and a key airstrip are there.

The battalion commander, Lt. Col. Frederick P. Mitchell, assailed television newsmen and journalists who were present when the incident took place.

"All you press are bastards," he said. "I blame you for this and you can quote me on it."

In Saigon, the U.S. Command said, "A rumor to the effect that the area was an ambush site loaded with booby traps circulated among some members."

The unit involved is Charlie Company, 2nd Battalion, 1st Infantry, 196th Brigade.

The command statement, without offering any direct criticism of newsmen, said: "Numerous correspondents were in the area interviewing soldiers. Several soldiers told correspondents that they did not want to go into the field."

No soldier actually disobeyed orders or refused to go into the field, the command said. No disciplinary action was taken.

The men at first refused to board trucks waiting to take them to the position, but after a lieutenant called for volunteers and a handful stepped forward, all except one platoon had climbed aboard within an hour.

The platoon of about 45 men, after saying they were told other American defenders in the area of the position would be endangered by their absence, agreed a short time later to go.

Fierce fighting is in progress about 13 miles further west, around Fire Base Bastogne, which is surrounded by North Vietnamese troops. Although often shelled in the past, Phu Bai has not been a target of the current offensive.

Combat refusals have become a not infrequent occurrence among U.S. troops in Vietnam in the past 2½ years, especially since the American withdrawal began.

The U.S. Command has adopted a policy of trying in most cases to reason with soldiers who refuse such orders, rather than invoking punitive measures. Usually, the soldiers eventually agree to carry out the orders, officers say.

Moscow reaffirms aid to Hanoi war offensive

MOSCOW (AP) — Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev reaffirmed Wednesday Kremlin support for North Vietnam and assured Hanoi's ambassador to Moscow that it will continue to supply the Vietnamese war effort with "assistance and support."

A report from the Soviet government news agency Tass said North Vietnamese Ambassador Vo Thuk Dong conferred with Brezhnev on questions concerning Soviet-Vietnamese cooperation.

Tass said Brezhnev conveyed to the Vietnamese people "wishes of further success" and declared: "The Soviet Communist party... will continue to give them assistance and support."

War goes on

Two South Vietnamese soldiers put down their weapons Wednesday to carry a wounded comrade to an evacuation point. The man was injured when the tank he was riding in was

France urges renewal of Vietnam peace talks

PARIS (AP) — France is pressing for an early resumption of the Vietnam peace talks, broken off by the United States three weeks ago. The Vietnamese Communists demanded a meeting of the conference Thursday.

The U.S. and South Vietnamese delegations would not comment on the French suggestion made Wednesday but rejected the demands of the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong to return to the peace table. The allies argued the Communists were not ready to negotiate seriously.

The French position has long been that the United States should get out of Vietnam and let the Vietnamese decide their own future.

In Washington, the State Department called in Emmanuel de Margerie, the French charge d'affaires, to express its displeasure over France's request. Press officer Robert J. McCloskey said the United States objected to the timing and to "what we judge is a one-sided statement because it picks up demands of the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong delegations to return immediately to the conference table."

President Nixon indefinitely suspended the talks March 23, saying he was trying to break "a 3½-year filibuster ... on the part of the North Vietnamese." Nixon declared: "Whenever the enemy is ready to negotiate seriously, we are ready."

White House responds Aide hints secret talks may break Viet stalemate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House hinted broadly Wednesday that the United States is pursuing private channels in an effort to break the Vietnam peace talks logjam.

But presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler would divulge no specifics on the possible secret maneuvering as he repeated that President Nixon hopes to continue with the withdrawal of U.S. troops from Indochina.

But Ziegler said again that Nixon's decision on further withdrawals would be based on circumstances existing before May 1, when U.S. troop strength is to stand at 69,000.

"Our intent and our hope and our policy is to continue with troop withdrawals," Ziegler said, "but I'm not going to predict what decision the President might make" before he makes his scheduled announcement on or before May 1.

The hint of secret diplomatic maneuvering came when Ziegler repeated that the "enemy knows full well what it takes to proceed to full negotiations."

"When the record is known, the U.S. will not be found wanting," Ziegler said. Asked whether this meant secret diplomatic initiatives are under way, Ziegler said "Perhaps it could and perhaps it couldn't."

The United States expressed formal displeasure to the French government Wednesday for requesting that the Vietnam peace talks be resumed without delay.

The State Department said the French were told their call was one-sided and made without notifying the United States.

Press officer Robert J. McCloskey said the French request is similar to North Vietnamese and Viet Cong demands and that serious negotiations cannot be made under military pressure.

Put up posters, student charged with trespass

A University of Iowa student who is to appear before a university hearing officer today for violating campus rules will also appear before a Iowa City police judge this morning on a new charge by the university.

Simon J. Piller, 21, 321 South Johnson Street, who is scheduled to appear before university hearing officer Theodore Garfield on a charge of aiding the Worker-Student Alliance (WSA) in its violation of the campus ban on SDS has also been charged with "criminal trespass" by the university.

In a preliminary hearing at 8:00 a.m. today, Piller is slated to appear before police judge Joseph Thornton on the trespassing charge filed against him by campus security.

Piller is charged with criminal trespass, a misdemeanor, because he "was putting posters on private property without the owner's consent," according to Kenneth P. Saylor, campus security officer who signed the charge. Piller said that the charges stem from putting posters on university buildings.

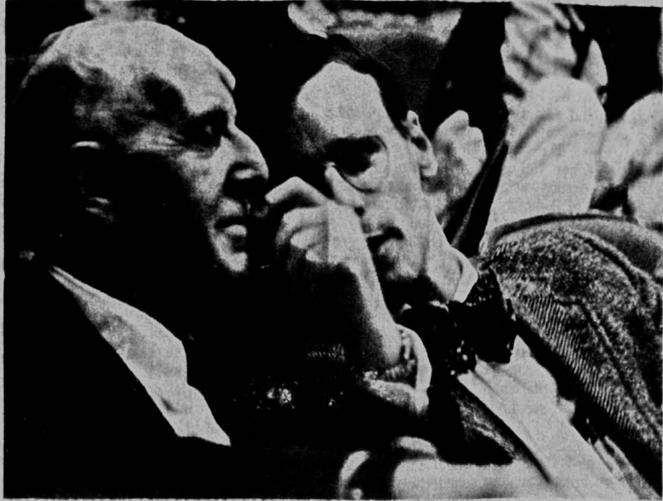

The trespassing charge carries a penalty of $100 fine and/or 30 days in jail, according to Saylor.

He added that the charge of illegally putting up posters is not connected with the other university action against Piller, in connection with the WSA hearing today.

The WSA and Piller are both scheduled to appear at 10:00 this morning in the small courtroom of the Johnson County Courthouse for the university's hearing on the rules violation.

WSA is charged with acting in the name of SDS while SDS was suspended from campus.

The university's hearing scheduled for 10:00 a.m., is open to the public.

New theories

Simon Kuznets, left, 1971 Nobel Laureate in Economics, chats with an unidentified professor before his lecture Wednesday at a University of Iowa economics seminar. Kuznets, a professor emeritus at Harvard University, said that new theories would have to be developed to measure the effects of technological change on a society. Photo by Norman Lyzenga

'Costs of technology difficult to determine'

By STEVE MAXWELL
Daily Iowan Staff Writer
Simon Kuznets, 1971 Nobel Laureate in Economics and one of the first men to quantitatively relate technology to economic growth, questioned Wednesday the methods that he helped formulate.

Kuznets, professor emeritus at Harvard University who has written 15 books on measurement of the economy, said, "We should recognize the limitations of our ability to measure the relative costs and values of technological growth."

Speaking at a University of Iowa seminar, Kuznets related the economic growth of modern

Union sets its final concert

For the last time in the Union, the University Symphony Orchestra, Oratorio Chorus and University Choir will perform together in concert tonight at 8 p.m. in the Main Lounge.

Next year, all combined concerts will be held in the New Music Building.

There are still free tickets available for tonight's performance of Joseph Haydn's "The Creation." More than 300 university students, including 200 chorus and choir members, will present the concert.

"This ('The Creation') is one of the great choral-orchestral masterpieces that has been produced in Western Civilization," according to conductor Daniel Moe. "And you won't find a finer production in Chicago or New York."

countries to several factors, the most important of which was technological development.

"People," he said, "have become disturbed because conventional standards of growth do not record some unfavorable factors. We have to ask ourselves new questions such as what a shift in the production structure means to the lives of people, and how the cost of it should be measured. Could it be that the cost for the same satisfaction in living is greater today than it was in the past?"

Kuznets said that throughout history few inventors responsible for shifts in technology really knew what their discoveries would mean for society.

"The problem we face is how to change modern theory to take into account non-measurable factors so that we can tell just how well off we are," he said. "There is great difficulty in comparing communist countries to the free nations of the world," he said. "How can one weigh freedom of expression and personal security against a high mobilization of resources?"

He said that "economists will be unable to resolve many of these problems. What we need is a fusion of the social sciences to study a new concept: The investment in and of man."

He was asked to comment on the findings of the Club of Rome, an international group of scientists who used computers to predict the end of modern civilization by the year 2100 unless industry is cut back significantly today.

In response, he said that the same type of predictions have been made before. Kuznets noted that the scientists who evaluated the alarming figures had failed to see that invention in the form of technology will balance off many of the adverse effects of growth, and may even make the problems less threatening than they are today.

Cooperative raps monitor plan

The Cooperative, in a letter to the University of Iowa Security Committee, said that faculty and staff members should not participate in an organized monitoring system.

The letter was in response to the monitoring system recently established by the UI Security Committee, in which faculty, staff and students would volunteer to serve as monitors in the event of campus unrest.

The system is set up so that the names of volunteers will be placed in a pool and drawn at random at the occurrence of anticipation of campus unrest.

The new monitoring system has been supported by state, county and city law enforcement agencies, Security Committee member Kenneth D. Dolan said.

He added that most UI administrators said that monitors were effective in last spring's disturbances.

"However," Dolan added, "the monitoring system is not a part of the formal administrative plan, the Emergency Operations Board."

In its letter, the Cooperative recommended that faculty-staff members should not participate as organized monitors but should act only as individuals on a spontaneous basis.

The Cooperative also said that student government should not organize a monitoring system. "Again, we find the system of creating 'junior-policepeople' equally distasteful to us."

They said that student government has been "elected as a service organization and not as a control group."

Finally, the Coop advocated the organization of a communications network, a rumor control center, and a first aid service—all through the Campus Ministry and the Crisis Center.

The letter said "services, and not control, is where we're at and where the 'monitor' system should be."

The letter was read before a Student Senate meeting Tuesday night but it was not endorsed by the senate.

According to Susan M. Ross, member of the student body executive, the letter was not approved by senate because of one statement: "Our reasoning has led us to believe that there is an underlying mistrust of most faculty members."

Ms. Ross said there were some senators who did not agree with the statement and could not endorse the letter wholeheartedly because of it.

However, she added that there was a general feeling by senators that in the case of a monitoring system, faculty members probably would not be trusted by students.

Ms. Ross, who acted as a student monitor last year, said "Last year I felt monitors could do some good and maybe help people from getting hurt, but after my experience I don't believe that anymore."

"There isn't very much that monitors can do to prevent violence."

She said the things that were of value were the first aid service, rumor control and a communications network.

These things should be operated by people students feel they can trust, "people who they know are neutral and impartial such as people from Campus Ministry and the Crisis Center," she said.

The Cooperative said that the organization of such groups was subject to the acceptance by the Crisis Center and Campus Ministry.

Although the Cooperative has not received a response from the Security Committee, Ms. Ross said that hopefully they can work together in organizing the proposed services.

Court will decide Coop case

The Student Judicial Court will announce today its decision on the legality of the Cooperative executive branch of student government, and according to Richard M. Jennings, chief justice of the court, their decision "won't surprise anyone."

The court met Wednesday to determine if the five member Cooperative legally filled the position of student body vice-president as well as the presidency.

Archie L. Schrottenboer, 27, 608 Hawkeye Court, told the court that the Cooperative was trying to let five people serve simultaneously as president without filling the position of vice-president. According to the senate constitution, he said, this is illegal.

Schrottenboer asked the court to "stop the Cooperative from exercising executive power until another election is held or allow Student Senate to select another executive to fill the position of vice-president."

Michael J. Pill, a Coop member, argued that the technicalities of the constitution are not the question.

"We are not asking the court to make a decision on the basis of the definition of a few specific words. We are asking them to decide on the basis of a two to one popular vote for the Coop and a functional scheme that gives a specific plan under which the Coop must function," Pill said.

He described the question as one of "legality versus legitimacy."

Pill said the Coop is legitimate because they represent the choice of the people.

The basic decision the court will have to make is whether the Cooperative has to specifically meet the provisions of the Student Senate constitution.

If the court decides the Coop fills the vice-presidency, then the court will have to establish specific procedural guidelines under which the Coop must operate, according to Pill.

The Cooperative has set down a specific set of governing procedures in their "Statement on Decision Making," which they presented to the court.

The court could adopt this statement as legal procedure for the executive branch or define another procedure, Pill said.

Politis, Vance review year Cite Hulk, Cambus as successes

By STEVE MOORE
Daily Iowan Staff Writer

Wednesday was "moving day" at the Student Senate office in the Union as student body president Ted P. Politis and vice-pres. Michael C. Vance cleaned out their desks and the members of the Cooperative moved in.

"I just studied eight hours for a test and got a 'D' on it. Can you imagine that? One sacrifice in being student body president is academic," Politis said.

Vance said he was "relieved" and felt good about being done with his duties as vice-president. Neither expressed regrets over the 40 to 50 hours per week they put into their roles. "It's a life in itself," Politis said.

Politis described the year as a good, productive one. "Things really fell into place this year; we've been fortunate. But it has involved a lot of hard work on the part of many students."

Vance cited The Hulk and the shuttle bus system as particularly pleasing accomplishments.

Politis said Iowa Student Agencies, Inc. (ISA) was the area where he accomplished the most. In addition to The Hulk bar, he noted the success of the student book exchange, where $25,000 worth of books were handled.

"ISA has grown to where it can now realistically talk about a student bookstore."

Politis said that the course evaluation was a big accomplishment; 8,000 copies were made and distributed to students free.

The two student-leaders also were proud of the funding of day-care centers and the expansion of the lecture notes services.

When asked to comment on the charge that student government is a farce, Vance said "it is unless students are willing to work and get themselves interested in how they are represented."

He said some progress was made this year by the Student Senate, but that to a great extent student apathy is a problem that must be solved by the students themselves.

Although both students cited a good working relationship with the senate, Vance said "We didn't do as much as we could have."

"I feel a turning point was reached this year," Politis said. More students than ever before are benefitting from student government through such services as shuttle bus, book exchange, lecture notes and The Hulk.

"The senate of the past was the kind that signed a petition to end the war then forgot the thing. Now the senate is backing things in the real world with concrete actions and monetary support, the kinds of things that help students."

"The student senate in the future will be a powerful and influential organ of student government," Politis predicted.

Vance said the lack of cooperation among student leaders is the biggest problem of student government. "Too many individuals are playing Mickey Mouse politics for their own gains. Likely presidential candidates started emerging two weeks after school started last fall. They took positions for political reasons and not for the good of students.

"A lot of our problems could have been worked out if we had a little cooperation ahead of time," Vance said.

Politis and Vance both were optimistic about the election of the Cooperative. They noted a smooth transition between administrations as a good sign.

"They were the best choice for the office," Politis said. "They are intelligent people and are willing to work hard. They can listen to campus radicals and conservatives with the same detachment."

"The Cooperative is trying to stay away from politics but they'll find out soon that politics comes with the office," he added.

Vance said he saw no big difference between his own administration and the Cooperative. "Only the faces have changed. The beliefs are pretty much the same. They are very innovative people and should have some good new ideas."

Politis said if the Cooperative fails, it will be because of hassles given them because of the nature of a five-member executive. "Hassle" will be the key word for their year, people won't confront them face-to-face on the issues, but only argue about the five-member thing," Politis said.

Both Politis and Vance expressed a favorable opinion of the university administration and especially UI Pres. Willard L. Boyd.

"He's a human being with a difficult job," Politis said. "You've got to appreciate the man and the decisions he has to make. I trust and respect him for what he is."

Vance said he appreciated the cooperation the administration gave him. "Boyd is an honest person that doesn't mislead you. He tells where he stands."

Vance worked with the State Board of Regents and said there is much work to be done concerning relations with them. "They were receptive enough about letting us participate, but I went away feeling we got screwed."

Politis and Vance also commented on how The Daily Iowan has served the university.

Politis said the DI under 1970-71 editor Leona Durham was a "completely biased organization. Tom Walsh has done as good a job as anybody could have. The DI has a tendency to muckrake more than necessary, but this year is a definite improvement."

What to do with 4 tons of matzoh?

WASHINGTON (AP) — What to do with four tons, more or less, of matzoh mailed to the Soviet embassy—which refused to accept it?

The Postal Service burned it.

Spokesmen for Jewish organizations expressed outrage that they were not allowed to reclaim the traditional Passover unleavened bread and give it to the poor.

A House Post Office subcommittee let both sides tell their stories Wednesday.

Rep. Joshua Eilberg, D-Pa., said the Postal Service action, based on sanitary considerations, was "stupid, callous and unfeeling."

Samuel Lewis Gaber of Philadelphia, regional director of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, which organized the mailing to protest what it said was inhumane treatment of Jews in the Soviet Union, said

"Jewish tradition interdicts the waste of food when there are those who go hungry."

Francis X. Biglin, assistant regional Postmaster General, said the Postal Service "received no direct inquiries or requests for the material at any time."

He added that even if such a request had been received, the decision might still well have been "to destroy the matter because of the risk of adulteration or contamination."

The one-pound grocery store packages of matzoh began arriving in Washington in the latter part of March, Biglin said.

By March 27, he said, it was obvious the embassy would accept none of the parcels and:

"It also became certain that the parcels could not be returned to sender because only a small percentage had a return address."

"The senate of the past was the kind that signed a petition to end the war then forgot the thing. Now the senate is backing things in the real world with concrete actions and monetary support, the kinds of things that help students."

"The student senate in the future will be a powerful and influential organ of student government," Politis predicted.

Vance said the lack of cooperation among student leaders is the biggest problem of student government. "Too many individuals are playing Mickey Mouse politics for their own gains. Likely presidential candidates started emerging two weeks after school started last fall. They took positions for political reasons and not for the good of students.

"A lot of our problems could have been worked out if we had a little cooperation ahead of time," Vance said.

Politis and Vance both were optimistic about the election of the Cooperative. They noted a smooth transition between administrations as a good sign.

"They were the best choice for the office," Politis said. "They are intelligent people and are willing to work hard. They can listen to campus radicals and conservatives with the same detachment."

"The Cooperative is trying to stay away from politics but they'll find out soon that politics comes with the office," he added.

Vance said he saw no big difference between his own administration and the Cooperative. "Only the faces have changed. The beliefs are pretty much the same. They are very innovative people and should have some good new ideas."

Politis said if the Cooperative fails, it will be because of hassles given them because of the nature of a five-member executive. "Hassle" will be the key word for their year, people won't confront them face-to-face on the issues, but only argue about the five-member thing," Politis said.

On spring revolution

The long miserable, jobless, heatless, and hopeless winter is gone. And with its exit is ushered in that glorious time of the year when sexual awakening blossoms outdoors, when the sunshine comes back to town, and when young folks' thoughts turn to REVOLUTION.

And a lot of people are really PISSED OFF! They are tired of exorbitant rent rates, of "acceptable" levels of unemployment, of rising costs and declining quality of food. But people are not simply thinking in terms of venting their frustration in isolated acts of street violence, which may have been the case in recent years. More and more, people are trying to build a broadly-based movement to make a sustained and solid campaign for meaningful change here in the U.S.

It is the duty (and the right) of people to struggle against those who oppress them. "Rebellion Against Tyrants is Obedience to the Will of God," says the motto proposed by Benjamin Franklin for the new American nation. And we in Iowa City have our tyrants and tyrannical institutions. They are very real; they must consequently be opposed by real efforts.

Rocks will not force change in a society armed with nuclear missiles. Revolutionary activity which degenerates into blind terrorism is easily isolated and exploited by the ruling class.

Solidarity is the greatest weapon in the people's arsenal. There are more people than tyrants, more workers than exploiters, more things to live for than to escape from.

Drop out!

Everyone complains about overcrowded classes, but nobody does anything about it. Students seem to think that the only ways conditions can be improved are to 1. Convince the state legislature to supply more funds, and/or 2. Convince the administration that teachers are more important than impressive buildings and football teams; both of which are admittedly insurmountable tasks. However, students have yet to realize that they have at their disposal another, more effective means to improve the quality of education on our nation's campuses: 3. Drop Out.

Dropping out is one of the most simple, quickest, surefire ways that the individual student can help alleviate overcrowding in our classrooms. And it is perfect for the student who is always looking for a way that he, as an individual, can contribute significantly to solving a problem.

This idea came to me within a few weeks after switching my major to Pre-Dropout. When I first decided to drop out, it was for selfish reasons (if preserving one's sanity can be considered selfish). But then I kept running into hundreds of conversations like this:

"You're quittin' school!? Dropping out?! Wow!! That's really far out, man!"

Yeah.

"Wow, man, what'rya gonna do?!"

I don't know.

"Far out, man! Fantastic!! What a great idea! That's what I oughta do, you know?"

Why don't you?

"Drop out, you mean? Me?? Far out, man, I really oughta!"

Why don't you?

"God, man, if you only knew how much I'd like to..."

Dammit! Why don't you!!

"I don't know, man, like that's my whole life here, you know what I mean?...Like, what would I do for chicks?"

I don't know.

"And do you know how much dope costs off campus?!"

No.

"Wow, I would, man, if I had the answers like you..."

The question is still unanswered: Why don't you drop out? Yeah-YOU!! All you fools who go to school because you can't think of anything else to do, or because Mom wants you to, or because you mindlessly stumbled off the high school assembly line and found that your mold fit easily into the college assembly line. Why are you cluttering up classrooms with your surplus, non-functional bodies? Why don't you follow my example and do something to better our educational system?

The main reason classes are overcrowded is because college has become a kind of purgatory between high school and work, with the implication that if you can stay in this purgatory long enough, maybe you will get to heaven where you don't have to work at all.

But of course, the natural question that always comes up when you suggest something rash is: What if everybody did the same thing? My feeling is that higher education is just like any other commodity on the market; if people aren't buying it then the manufacturers will have to do something to improve the product.

LETTERS

Like Florence, like Iowa

To the editor:

This morning I was handed a leaflet and urged to Vote No On 11th Against The Ramp. Unfortunately I belong to a deprived, disenfranchised minority (the British) here, so cannot vote, but I can offer a crumb of information which might help the Iowa City Council to change its mind.

The City of Florence in Italy realized two years ago that it had to get all petrol (gas) and diesel vehicles off the streets if it were to be possible in the future to live in the city centre. The mayor proposed banning all traffic in an area of some forty blocks. The business community made all the noises we hear from them and their representatives here in Iowa City, but the mayor went ahead and banned the traffic.

Now, in fact, the business community has discovered that far from losing customers it has gained scores of thousands. People are now able to wander about, take their time, look—and buy. Now Florentine business men outside the traffic free area want the ban extended to traffic in their area.

What has been the salvation of Florence could save Iowa City, too.

Deploras auto propaganda

To the editor:

So The Daily Iowan now purports to serve the University of Iowa City with the advertizing enclosure "Care for your car now...and enjoy every carefree moment of summer fun!" Bullshit.

It really distresses us that you decided to compromise your integrity in order to gain some unhealthy advertizing revenue. While telling the "Civic Fathers to shove their parking ramp up their civic behinds," you decided to run 16 pages of pro-auto propaganda including a distorted article "Air Pollution Levels Receding."

What kind of shit is this? We feel inclined to say that we are royally pissed off when insulted with such slanted statements as "Sometimes the difference between a polluting car and a clean one can rest in a few simple and inexpensive-to-replace parts, or "Drive easy, breathe easy," and "Save our earth. Fight Pollution. Tune your car."

Granted these articles were not totally fallacious, but they were misleading. The tone of the ads was such that the reader was made to feel less morally concerned about buying another car through the University of Iowa Credit Union or less apprehensive about voting for a downtown parking ramp.

We were going to say that any Patriotic American with any degree of intelligence is able to recognize the grip that the predatory automobile has on this country.

Unfortunately we can't make that blanket statement because you "Civic-minded" boys at the DI provided a blatant exception.

RALLYING FOR REDS

The Communist-planned "Peace Rallies" in New York and Los Angeles on April 22 have two functions in the strategy book of World Communism: (1) to once again use tens of thousands of American non-Communists to propagandize for U. S. surrender in Vietnam on Communist terms, and (2) as a Pilot-plant operation and stimulator for the still bigger anti-Nixon invasion of San Diego when the Republican National Convention convenes on August 23.

In spite of the overwhelming evidence of Communist plotting for the New York and Washington "demonstrations," the revolutionary press claims that the propaganda affairs are to be supported by prominent members of Congress and some Presidential candidates. The Militant, a Trotskyite publication, reports that Mayor John Lindsay and former Senator Eugene McCarthy are supporting the "rallies." The National Peace Action Coalition (NPAC) reports that Senator Hubert H. Humphrey, Senator Vance Hartke, and Nick Johnson, a "Youth Co-ordinator for Senator Edmund Muskie," have endorsed the rallies. In a series of columns last February, we warned of the true nature of these forthcoming "Rallies."

Totally Red Controlled

So that there would be no misunderstanding by the American public about the true origin, planning and objective of these two "rallies," Chairman Richard Ichord of the House Committee on Internal Security stated publicly: "The NPAC is totally controlled, in its every pulse beat, by the Trotskyite Communist Socialist Workers Party (SWP) and its youth arm, the Young Socialist Alliance. The Presence of the key officials of the Communist Party USA on the National Steering Committee of the Peoples Coalition for Peace and Justice (PCPJ) evidences the commitment of the Communist Party USA to the program and direction of PCPJ."

The NPAC and PCPJ are the two major agitation-propaganda (agitprop) organizations involved (under their present new names or under a number of previous identities) in mobilizing all the big "Peace Rallies" of the last five years. Congressional security committees have had their leaders under surveillance all along. Chairman Ichord's Internal Security Committee tracked the leaders to Versailles, France, where they met with Communists from all over the world in "The World Assembly for Peace and Independence of the Peoples of Indochina."

World Communist Plans

Chairman Ichord says: "The proposed peace offensive (rallies in New York and Los Angeles) was completely developed after lengthy deliberations by the World Assembly at Versailles (Feb. 11-13). Every single item on the agenda of demonstrations planned for the United States was debated, discussed and approved — not by a group of Americans alone — but by 1,200 delegates from 84 nations, including most of the countries controlled by Communist governments. There were also delegations representing the underground Communist guerrilla forces in South Vietnam, Cambodia, and Laos. The American delegation numbered between 140 and 150."

Key members of both the NPAC and PCPJ led the American delegation. Resolutions were passed unanimously condemning the United States and backing North Vietnamese and Viet Cong "peace" demands (equivalent to surrender by the U. S. A.). According to the House Internal Security Committee a spokesman of the U. S. delegation was PCPJ official Professor Sidney Peck, cited by Congressional committees as a former member of the Wisconsin State Committee of the Communist Party. Also taking leading roles in the Assembly and the planning for the "peace" demonstrations on April 22, were David Dellinger, PCPJ official and a self-admitted Communist; Gil Green, national functionary of the U. S. Communist Party; Michael Zagarell, identified by the Committee as National Youth Director of the American Communist Party; Fred Halstead, a leader in the Trotskyite Socialist Workers Party and NPAC spokesman and planner.

Parade of Dupes

If the U. S. Presidential candidates continue to be associated with the "rallies" and lend their names and presence to them, World Communism will have struck another telling blow for Communist victory in Vietnam. And the international conspiracy which has never relented in its drive to conquer the world will have been given another big boost. This isn't to say that all the people marching in the April "peace parades" are Communists or Communist sympathizers. Most will simply be dupes. It is important that the American public, while reading about and seeing the "demonstrations" be made aware of the true power behind them, and the contribution they are making to the success of World Communism, which aims ultimately to take over America, too.

Come to the trial

To the editor:

It appears that the university administration, in its frantic search for a scapegoat for the recent action against racist Harvard Professor Richard Herrnstein, has settled upon little known technicalities in the General Codes of Conduct in an attempt to permanently rid itself of SDS and intimidate one individual, namey me.

The charges pertain to obtaining use of University facilities for SDS (during the ban) under the name WSAAG. A hearing in this regard is now scheduled for this Thursday morning at 10:00 a.m. in the Johnson County Court House. In ADDITION to this, the administration has seen fit to also bring civil charges against me under the heading of "criminal trespass" (new law) with reference to: "posting stick on posters on University property."

The facts of the case are that the University from the campus cops to Boyd have known all year that SDS was still on campus. Interestingly enough, they have chosen to come down on SDS now after the near-confrontation with Professor Herrnstein, rather than last May (when WSAAG was formed).

Another interesting point is that, within the past few months, SDS has been banned on several campuses across the country. In many cases these can be traced directly to struggles against racism led by SDS.

All these struggles, including the one here, have now established SDS as an international multiracial organization. The University of Iowa Administration sees this; therefore they are coming down hard. We will, however, not quit. WE WILL BUST THE BAN. BAN RACISM, NOT SDS.

Lawmakers tell regents of $ 'credibility gap'

AMES, Iowa (AP) — Members of the Iowa Legislature told the state Board of Regents it must cooperate better with lawmakers in developing university budgets if a "credibility gap" between the regents and legislature is to be erased.

The regents were trying to sound out legislative opinions about money before they met Thursday in Council Bluffs with representatives of the three state universities and other regents institutions to draw up preliminary figures for the next biennium's budget.

The legislators aired their feelings that the regents perennially ask too much money for higher education, often are less than candid with the legislature in their budget askings and sometimes tend to ignore legislative intent.

"I hope the asking of the regents will not be as high as it was last year," said Rep. Richard Radl, D-Lisbon. "I hope we can get the rock bottom figure first."

The regents' last asking was $229 million for the current biennium, which the legislature trimmed to $205 million.

Regents President Stanley Redeker of Boone said he doesn't think it is possible to arrive at a "rock bottom" figure.

"We're talking about the quality of education and the quality of people," he explained.

But Rep. Willard Hansen, R-Cedar Falls, declared that "I would be less than candid if I did not acknowledge that the image of education has been at a low ebb for some time," in the legislature.

Hansen advanced a six-point program he said would help improve the image of higher education in Iowa. His recommendations were:

—Adjust of appropriations among the three state universities on the basis of actual enrollment instead of on estimates. "It's almost as though a game were being played with estimates," he said.

—Conducting open discussions on the distribution of funds.

—Forming subcommittees to "get a better grasp on spending matters."

—Determining the policy of the regents concerning the legislature in open meetings.

—Making the regents more of a "resource center" than a policy programming department.

Holding more meetings with legislators to discuss items of common concern.

Hansen said Iowa State University and the University of Iowa received $12 million in excessive appropriations over the last 10 years by underestimating undergraduate enrollment and overestimating the number of students in graduate courses.

He pointed out education at the graduate level is more expensive than in the first four college years.

One item that generated considerable debate was the regents' decision last year to shift $1 million from the University of Northern Iowa to the University of Iowa and Iowa State University.

Sen. Francis Messerly, R-Cedar Falls, said an "adversary attitude" has developed in recent years between the legislature and the regents.

"There is a credibility gap. The general assembly through the years has attempted to allocate the funds for higher education in the area they think will provide the finest educational opportunity for the people of this state.

"It is time the board of regents is willing to sit down with the legislature, with the appropriations committee, and work out the budgets together, and when we have completed that budget, to stick with it and quit shifting the funds around out of areas that we did not intend for these funds to be used in."

Teacher job prospects dismal

By CHUCK HICKMAN
Daily Iowan Staff Writer

Nearly 450 local elementary and secondary student teachers will face a diminishing job market when they graduate next month, according to Judith H. Hendershot, acting director of educational placement at the University of Iowa.

Only 10 per cent of prospective graduates have been placed for next year, she said. Ms. Hendershot does expect wide-spread hiring of teachers until June or July, when school administrators are sure of budgets for the coming year.

Despite the dropping job market for teachers, Stuart Gray, assistant dean of the College of Education forecasts no drop in enrollment in the teacher training program.

However next year's practice teachers will be effected by several moves designed to cut costs in the student teaching process.

One cut will eliminate free daily transportation of teachers to their classroom assignment. Next fall, the UI students will live in the town they are assigned to teach in, or will be forced to provide their own transportation. Gray said the change will bring the UI program in line with those of other schools and will save the university $65,000 per year.

Gray estimated that there are currently 285 UI student teachers in area secondary schools and 165 in elementary schools. Approximately 75 of these are in the Iowa City School District. The rest are assigned to one of 16 school districts within a 55 mile radius of Iowa City.

Bicycle sales, ripoffs setting new records

By MIRIAM MELVOLD
Daily Iowan Staff Writer

Bicycle sales are soaring this spring and Iowa City is beginning to look like a mini-Amsterdam, where there are more bicycles than people.

Bicycle thefts are soaring too, making Iowa City a mini-New York City for bicycle owners.

Ten-speed bikes go the fastest, both in sales and theft, according to Iowa City sales and security persons.

William R. Ingles, co-owner of The Bicycle Shop, has sold 80 bicycles in the past six weeks, and says he can keep up with the demand for bicycles with the constant shipments his shop is getting.

However, Leland Novotny, manager of Novotny's Cycle Center, said his sales are "considerably higher than last year, and we are having a hard time keeping up with all the orders."

Novotny said the bike manufacturers that supply his store already have their entire production sold and rationed out for the remainder of the year.

The local store can receive only as many bicycles as it is rationed, he said.

Novotny agreed that ten-speeds sell the fastest, especially yellow models.

Along with soaring bike sales, Novotny said his sale of locks and chains is "going stronger and stronger each year, because of rising bike thefts."

William L. Binney, University of Iowa Security Department director, said 19 bicycles were reported stolen on campus in March. In 1971 about 200 bicycles were reported stolen on campus, Binney said.

Iowa City Acting Police Chief Emmett Evans said 98 bicycles have been reported stolen since January. He said his department recovers some of the bikes, but he suspects that some are taken out of Iowa City and sold.

Binney says the bicycle owner can do much to lessen the chances of his having his bike stolen and being unable to recover it. First, Binney recommends registering it with the City of Iowa City.

"Also, keep a record of the description of your bicycle, including its color, license number, model, manufacturer and frame number. This number is very important," Binney emphasizes.

Ingles, of The Bicycle Shop, made several suggestions for keeping a bike safe from thieves.

"First of all, don't trust any chain that hasn't been proven to be bolt cutter-proof. After that get a lock with a hardened shackle," Ingles said. He recommends locking the bike through the rear wheel first.

then frame, and finally through the front wheel if the chain is long enough.

Evans recommends "chaining and locking your bicycle to something solid and secure, not parking meters."

But the UI Office of Traffic and Parking warned Wednesday that bicycles on campus chained to "stairway banisters, shrubs, pedestrian walkways, fire escapes" and other places that could create safety hazards may be impounded.

Impounded bicycles are taken to the Union Ramp Office and held until claimed by the owner, the statement said.

The Traffic Office urged bike owners to use the racks supplied by the university.

"If your bicycle is stolen on campus, report it to Campus Security, and if stolen any place else in Iowa City, report it to city police," Chief Evans said. He stressed the importance of giving a complete description of the stolen bicycle.

City cop suspended

An Iowa City policeman has been suspended from the force for five days as the result of a misconduct charge against him.

Patrolman James F. Linn, 29, was suspended without pay Tuesday and the disciplinary action will be in effect through Saturday, according to Acting Police Chief Emmett E. Evans. Linn was charged with misconduct April 6, Evans said.

The chief said he cannot reveal what the misconduct charge involved unless Linn appeals the suspension to the Civil Service Commission.

Linn declined to comment when asked if he would appeal. He has been on the local force for one year.

IRS predicts major jump in withholding

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) disclosed Wednesday that Iowans will have $40 million more withheld from this year's pay checks than in 1971, if the present rate of withholding continues.

In 1971 millions of Americans didn't have enough money withheld to cover their federal taxes, and so the IRS raised withholding schedules for 1972.

But some rates were set too high, and as a result many single persons and married persons whose spouses don't work are having too much withheld this year.

IRS officials said that while thousands of Iowans didn't have enough withheld last year, others had about $125 million overwithheld.

Nationally, eight billion dollars more will be withheld this year at present rates than in 1971, IRS officials estimated.

How to be Happy, Secure, and Inundated with Sound, and still have some money left over: Buy our Advent, Sony, Garrard, Shure system for $450 complete.

If you have begun to look around for a good home music system that won't set your bank account back by more than four hundred dollars, you may have become confused by the vast selection of components now on the market.

If you have tried to educate yourself by reading up in some audio magazines, you have probably become further confused by hard to believe and perplexing advertising claims.

You figure that of all the products available, some might sound Wonderful, some Mediocre, and some Terrible. Some will prove to be Ultimately Reliable, and others will more or less quickly Disintegrate.

Clearly you want a music system which will be both Wonderful (so you will be Happy,) and Ultimately Reliable (so you and your investment will be Secure.)

We can help you; please read on.

We describe a $450 component system which represents more value and reliability than has previously been available. (A year ago it would have been necessary to spend at least six hundred dollars to bring home this amount of performance.) Two new products make this system possible: the new Smaller Advent Loudspeakers and the new Sony STR-6045 AM/FM stereo receiver.

The Smaller Advent Loudspeakers are just like the original Advent Loudspeakers in every quantifiable and audible respect, except that they are smaller, less expensive and won't play as loud. This means that on most kinds of musical material, and under most listening conditions likely to apply in most homes, the Smaller Advent Loudspeaker is the equal of any loudspeaker system available.

The Smaller Advent is the only speaker under one hundred dollars which can reproduce the lowest tones of a pipe organ (if they are on the record!), and which maintains a satisfying octave-to-octave musical balance on almost all source material.

"Sounds unbelievable," you say. "How can they do it?"

The Smaller Advent Loudspeaker is miraculous, but it is not a mystery. It is based on proven, albeit creative, acoustical engineering. To build a loudspeaker with full low bass capabilities Advent had to give up a small amount of efficiency.

The Sony 6045 that we are recommending provides more than enough power to satisfy both you and the Advents: it delivers forty-four watts RMS into four ohms, across the entire audio range, at less than 0.5% total distortion. (RMS is the most demanding of the various power-rating systems, and is the one used by engineers rather than by advertising men.)

Because the Sony 6045 and the Smaller Advent speakers are of such high quality, they will together clearly produce any distortion, rumble, wow, or flutter that is contributed by a less than excellent turntable/cartridge combination. We therefore recommended the Garrard SL40B automatic turntable with a Shure

M44E cartridge. The 40B has a good heavy platter, a smooth and gentle changing mechanism, and a convenient cueing control. The Shure cartridge reproduces high frequencies with exceptional clarity; it therefore complements the high frequency capabilities of the Sony receiver and the Advent loudspeakers.

The system price is $449.95. All components are guaranteed for two years, parts and labor. There are no little options to surprise you. Only good sound and sheer product value for your dollars.

So you can sit back and be inundated.

1. "Efficiency" is used to describe a speaker's acoustic output (how loud it will play) relative to a given electrical input from an amplifier. However, it's rarely mentioned that the usable acoustic output must extend over the entire audible frequency band. This acoustic output of a speaker is strictly governed by how efficient it is at the lowest and highest frequency it will accurately reproduce.

Homecoming gets name, emphasis change It's Old Capitol Week now

Plans for the 1972 University of Iowa Homecoming are underway, with several innovations aimed at making the celebration a community involvement.

Co-chairmen Michael D. Lawler and Guy H. Wendler have changed the traditional homecoming day festivities into a full week of varied activities under the name of Old Capitol Week. Lawler said that in the past too much emphasis has been placed on Homecoming Day and "that has been its falling."

According to Lawler, the name Old Capitol Week was selected to represent the community as a whole and to show that Homecoming activities are planned for more than only a small portion of the university community.

Wendler said that things are still in the planning stages, but activities will be scheduled all over the campus. He added that other campus organizations will also sponsor activities throughout the week in a joint effort to involve as many interest groups as possible.

Old Capitol Week will begin on the Sunday preceding homecoming with a Peace Day. Wendler said that the committee would like to contract a United Nations representative and a National Parks figure to speak on the day's "peace with the individual and nature" theme.

The committee would also like to plant a tree in commemoration of the first Old Capitol Week.

The next two days would be East Side and West Side days.

The east side of the campus would sponsor activities Monday, including seminars and films, and on Tuesday the west side would sponsor similar events.

Lawler said that activities for Wednesday's Student Day would center around student exhibits and a Thieves Market or "whatever we feel like putting on."

Thursday's "Doris and Dennis Day" would be a just-for-fun day. Lawler said that the committee would like to sponsor an auction where original poems from the Writers Workshop or a dinner with President Boyd could be bartered for very limited fees. Working with the business community, Lawler added, they might arrange some discounts with local stores for that day.

Friday's Spirit Day will feature three types of activities: School spirit with a dance, parade and pep rally; drinking spirits with a wine tasting contest; and possibly an astrology workshop covering the supernatural spirits.

Homecoming Day will close the week with the traditional football game and activities.

Lawler said that sometime during the week he would like to have an International Banquet where foreign students attending the university could prepare dishes from their native country. He added that Union Board is trying to contract with a Broadway road show to come to Iowa City for the week.

The committee wants to change the traditional homecoming badge into seven smaller badges representing each day of the week.

Lawler said that the week is being planned with more student involvement in mind, and activities that the student can afford.

Plans for the week are not final and the committee is open to suggestions. Lawler added that more people are needed to work on the committee.

Europe flight deadline Friday

Travel experts hear readers

If you'd like to fly to Europe with Union Board, you'd better get your wings in gear.

According to Union Board President Doug Martin, deadline to make the $50 deposit to reserve a space on the group's summer European flights is tomorrow.

Martin—along with two other local travel authorities—answered reader queries on DIRECT CONTACT, a SURVIVAL LINE service, Monday.

Also taking calls were Mary Kasper of Red Carpet Travel Service and Steve Arum, director of the new Office of International Education and Services (OIES).

Currently, Arum and the OIES have a weekly column "Passport Abroad" in The Daily Iowan.

"We get a wide variety of questions at our office," Arum said. "One time we spent ten minutes talking about the international student ID card. Then he asked us where to get it, not realizing you can get it at our place."

Arum says the OIES was formed last fall "to combine the former Foreign Student Office and the Center for International Studies with a whole bunch of others."

"Actually, it was just about anything with an international flavor," he said. "Universities around the country are pulling

Union Board's name changed

The University of Iowa Union Board is now known as University Programming Services (UPS), which reflects its new function, according to Doug J. Martin, 21, 1030 Muscatine Street, president of UPS.

"In the past the role of Union Board has been to initiate student programming. Next year University Programming Services will serve mainly to be a facilitator of programs, in addition to its role as an initiator. In this way we hope to better reflect student interests and needs."

UPS will select directors Wednesday, April 19. The deadline for applications is this Friday.

their international commitments together so our office is one place where all program information is."

Martin told callers that three departure dates (May 31-June 1 and 5) are available from New York and three return dates (August 7, 14 and 24) from Luxembourg on the $211 (including tax) charter flight.

Here's some of the queries the travel people received:

DIRECT CONTACT

change (777 United Nations Plaza, New York City 10017). They've got information on a wide, wide variety of overseas flights and charters."

I'd like to travel by steamship or freighter toward the Philippines this summer. How can I get some information about possibilities?—W.B.

"We have a book in our office called Ford's Freightier Travel Guide. You can consult that, or you might write the

"We reserve the flights because we have an affinity group of students, faculty, staff and alumni of the University of Iowa. Blood relatives are included, too," Martin said. "Since you're not a member of that group, I'm afraid you aren't entitled to our special group fare. Try to contact a travel agent about low rates...maybe check with Icelandic Airlines."

I'd like to rent some sort of transportation once I get over in Europe this summer, and a motorcycle would be ideal.—R.Y.

"According to our sources, the market's pretty slim. Auto-Europe at 1270 Second Avenue, New York City 10021 or Dot Motorcycles, Ltd., 512 West 56th Street, New York City 10019 might be able to help you out, according to the Whole World Handbook," Arum said. "By the way, that book and Harvard Student Agencies Let's Go Europe are good references, and we've got them in our office."

"We've also got many books to glance through, like step-by-step guides for job seeking and things like that."

I'd like to split over to Europe for four weeks or so this summer, but most of the charter flight plans seem longer than that.—R.E.

"Most of our flights and the ones I know are for two or three months," Martin said. "It's pretty difficult to get people to go for just one month. I don't think there's many group flights available."

Arum added, "You might want to contact the Council on International Educational Ex-Council on International Educational Exchange for more information. It's kind of a clearing house for that sort of thing."

I saw a flight to Italy advertised for $199. We're not sure what day we want to go, but that seems pretty reasonable. Is that correct and how can we get tickets?—L.M.

"We can find out that information for you," Ms. Kasper said. "Just stop by, and we can verify the rate for you. You might want to bring along the clipping where you saw the ad. We won't charge you anymore than the airline would."

Does Union Board have any flights scheduled for the Virgin Islands in August, after Europe?—W.J.

"We've heard of nothing specific at that time so I'd talk to a travel agency," Martin suggested. "Maybe we'll get near there next Christmas."

Persuasions, Cooke score with new LPs

A new album by the Persuasions called "Street Corner Symphony" is a unique experience in soul and harmony. The album contains no instruments other than the human voice.

Five black men, led by lead singer Jerry Lawson, do nothing but "get down" and sing from the first to the last note on a collection of old songs.

The first song, "Buffalo Soldier," sets the pace for the whole album. It is a tribute to the black men, products of slavery and prison camps, who fought with the calvary in the 1800's. The hatred and the hurt they felt made them want to desert, but they didn't so we could be free. And now, "When will they call you a man?"

Next is Sam Cooke's "Good Times," mellow and harmonious.

The album starts moving with "I Could Never Love Another." Jimmy Hayes starts booming out a bass that surpasses anything possible on a bass guitar.

After the song, Lawson says, "I think we've got the feel," and the group goes right into a three song run by the Temptations, "Don't Look Back," "Runaway

DI record review

Child, Running Wild" and "Cloud Nine." At this point you're up jumpin' and jammin' right along with the group.

Side one is concluded by the Persuasions version of Curtis Mayfield's "People Get Ready."

The high spots of side two are "Christians Automobile" with a nice beat and good harmony and a medley of "He Ain't Heavy, He's My Brother," and "You've Got a Friend."

The album is different from anything you've ever heard. At times it has so much feeling that it sends a chill up your spine. Try it.

SURVIVAL LINE

SURVIVAL LINE answers your questions, cuts red tape, investigates your tips and all sorts of good things like that each morning in The Daily Iowan. Phone 353-6210 between 7 and 8 p.m. Monday through Thursday or write Survival Line, the Daily Iowan, 201 Communications Center, Iowa City. Sorry, telephone calls at other times cannot be accepted.

I am planning a bike trip from Iowa City through Chicago and as far East as Northern Massachusetts. I wonder if you could hook me up with a book or an organization that could give me the best safest routes?—J.M.

Contact American Youth Hostels, 20 West 17th Street, New York City, a non-profit organization of your kindred spirits. They'll gladly supply the information you need.

I bounced two checks in the Union Rec Center. The two checks came to only six dollars, but now they're charging me an extra two dollars for each check. They never bothered to reposit the checks, so I feel that I'm being ripped-off for the extra four dollars. To top it off, they put the charge on my U-bill, so if I don't pay, I can get kicked out of school. Now I'll pay some service charge, but two dollars a check is ridiculous.

SURVIVAL LINE contacted Don Miller in the Accounting Office in the Union and he says it's the University's policy to put a $2 service charge on every bad check in order to cover the costs of re-processing the check. The checks are not reposit but will be returned to you when the amount of the checks plus the service charge is paid. Miller says they generally wait one or two months before putting the charge on the person's U-bill and this is used only as a last resort.

I think I am being ripped-off. I have been a subscriber to a newsletter called Moneysworth since 1970. On September 4, 1971, I sent them a check to renew my subscription and receive a bonus book, The Best of Eros. My subscription was extended, but four issues and the bonus book have not arrived. I moved from Chicago in the meantime, but the post office had instructions to forward "anything of obvious value." I wrote Moneysworth in November and have not received a reply. Would you please try to get my books and back issues?—M.P.

Funny things happen when "consumer advocates" go into business and become "capitalists" as well. SURVIVAL LINE spoke with one of Ralph Ginzburg's elves at Moneysworth (who declined, perhaps characteristically, to give her name). They claim that you didn't give adequate notice of your moving to River City from Daleyville-on-Lake Michigan and thus justify the missing copies. They will replace these copies on receipt of fifty cents per copy. About the book bonus, they agreed to expediate shipment and, we understand, you now have your "Best of Eros."

How do I empty the water from my waterbed? And how do I conquer the algae problem? Is adding chlorine enough?—A.Q.

After searching the waterbed's surface carefully for leftover lovers, borrow an elephant from a friendly local circus—your waterbed will be empty in snortin' quick time. Should the circus not be in town, however, your best bet is to siphon the water out using the "gas tank method" you learned in your adolescent era. There are small pumps made for the purpose, but the siphon method just requires a piece of garden hose.

Algae congregate in stagnant waters. You can keep them unsettled by increasing the frequency and zeal in using the waterbed, but most people find that the addition of some bleach (chlorine), does the job beautifully.

Speaking of beauty, ever wonder how those bright red waterbeds get their color? Simple: make it to a supermarket, buy some liquid food coloring, and pour it into the waterbed.

Nearly three-quarters of college students responding to a recent survey believe that a person should be allowed to die without medical aid if in the opinion of his doctor there is little hope for recovery and there is consent of the patient.

The poll conducted by the Iowa Opinion Research Bureau (IORB)—a University of Iowa based polling organization—interviewed 6,000 students on 17 college campuses in 15 states.

Seventy one per cent of the students responding to the question believe that a patient should be allowed to die if there is mutual consent and little hope for recovery. Twenty one per cent of the collegians disagree with the idea of allowing such patients the choice of dying. Eight per cent of the questioned students hold no opinion on the issue.

For information on hiring Vets call your local State Employment Service office. Contact the V.A. for training information.

Batter up! It's baseball season, so here's a query about just that. Roger Maris blasted 61 home runs in 1961, topping baseball's most renowned record (although it took Maris some extra games.) Well, what American Leaguer copped the loop's batting average crown that "year of the hitter"?

100 students chosen for workshop

One hundred University of Iowa students have been chosen at random to participate in a workshop on education at the university. The workshop, sponsored by the Committee on Undergraduate and Professional Education and scheduled for Saturday, April 22, will seek the participants' ideas on education and their suggestions on programs that could be utilized in a "university college." Lowell A. Schoer, professor of education who has been charged with creating a firm proposal for the university college, said that the purpose of the workshop will be to obtain ideas and suggestions from the student body which can be implemented in the university college proposal.

Hy-Vee helpful hints..
from JOYCE ANN

There are many ways to perk up vegetables to keep the family interested - here are a couple of tips you might try. When cooking carrots use beef consomme instead of water - real tasty. Cauliflower tends to lose its whiteness when cooked. By adding a little milk or a strip of lemon peel the bright white color can be retained. Raw cauliflower will make a big hit when accompanied by the favorite family dip - a simple one to make is with mayonnaise, a bit of celery seed, pepper and chili sauce. We welcome any questions or suggestions you would like to share with us and hope you will send them to me at our Hy-Vee office in Chariton. All in the game

It's getting crowded

By KEITH GILLET
Daily Iowan Sports Editor

From the way things have been this past week, one would almost think that Iowa was having a convention of past lettermen. Although that's not quite the case, it sure seems like it with John Niland of the Dallas Cowboys here until Friday and Kansas City's Ed Podolak at Washington for a high school banquet later this week.

With Ed so close to "home" I wouldn't be surprised to see him pay a quick visit to the Iowa athletic staff.

In fact, a Iowa lettermen's reunion is in the works, according to Bud Suter for sometime in early June.

After talking to Niland Tuesday afternoon it's easy to see why he has become so popular as a lineman, a spot that doesn't usually get attention from the public or the press.

He is articulate, and has a good grasp on events currently involving professional athletics.

He's still a Hawkeye booster and says he hopes to win back this fall some of the money he lost on the Hawks.

John says he has been following the program here since Frank Lauterbur took over as head coach and says he will do anything he can to help Iowa get back on its feet.

Helping may even mean pitching in with some of the coaching chores, which is exactly what Niland did early Wednesday.

Of course he's happy to be a part of a championship team and feels that the bridesmaid image of the Cowboys is finally gone.

"I think we have erased that feeling now. Ironically we've been criticized for winning too easily in the Super Bowl."

John laid his hands on the table and his huge blue runnerup ring for the 1971 Super Bowl seemed a bit large even for a big lineman's hand.

"Yeah, it sure looks nice. We haven't gotten our Super Bowl rings for this year yet, but I would imagine that it will cover two fingers. In Texas we do things in a big way."

Although many more players receive attention, particularly running backs, Niland says he's not bothered by the lack of attention.

"If Adolph Hitler wanted to come back to America and not be noticed, he'd be an offensive lineman."

With six years behind him in the pros, Niland says he plans to remain "unnoticed" for about four more years then go in to business on his own.

Backs out

Earlier we reported that Dave Schick of Bettendorf was leaning towards Iowa after signing his Big Ten letter to play for the Hawkeyes. Apparently he has switched allegiance just prior to the date for the national letters which go out next week.

It looks like Schick will be a Cyclone next season.

But I'm sure the Iowa staff is not too worried. From all indications, the coaches have worked hard and it looks like the Hawks will have a very fine batch of recruits. By this time next week, I'm certain some will even be calling it Iowa's best group of recruits in a long time.

Player draft

The Iowa spring football game may be a bit different this year in all respects. As you know the game will be played at Kingston Stadium in Cedar Rapids because of the installation of astro turf in Kinnick Stadium.

Now I understand that another new wrinkle will be tossed in. Lauterbur plans to have the players decide the lineups with their own "draft," which will be held Sunday. I wonder if they'll get to choose their coaches, too.

Coaching job to Tommie Smith

WASHINGTON (AP) — Olympic champion Tommie Smith, who stunned America with his raised fist salute during the playing of the Star Spangled Banner in Mexico City four years ago, has been named assistant athletic director and head track coach at Oberlin College in Ohio, the Washington Star said Wednesday.

"You know, ever since 1968 I've been looking for a position where I've been needed, not just on my name," Smith told the Star. "But there weren't a lot of offers. In fact, there were no offers. None at all."

Smith set 11 world records, more than any runner in history, and graduated from San Jose State in 1968. He and teammate John Carlos stunned the world when they ascended the victory stand, then raised black-gloved fists during the national anthem in a symbolic black-power gesture.

sition before now is appalling," Scott said. "It's a symbol of much of the racism in American athletics."

Husker defense shines

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Nebraska's top two defensive units, rattled in a football scrimmage last Saturday by the passing of quarterbacks David Humm and Steve Runty, retaliated during a contact session Wednesday.

"I guess the defense was a bit upset over what they'd been reading about last Saturday," said head Coach Bob Devaney. "They certainly were dominant today."

Tackles John Dutton and Monte Johnson batted down pass after pass as their defensive units limited the top offensive units to token gains.

Dutton led a No. 1 defensive platoon which completely dominated Runty's No. 2 offense. Things weren't much better for Humm's No. 1 offensive team against a No. 2 defense led by the 6-foot-6, 232-pound Johnson.

"Their size certainly poses a problem for quarterbacks," the coach said. "And our quarterbacks aren't as tall as they were last season, either."

Devaney said he was pleased by the progress shown by some of the younger players, notably I-back Jeff Moran.

Other rookies commended were defensive backs Terry Rodgers, Chuck Jones and Jim Seaton, and linebackers Tom Ruid and Bob Nelson.

Devaney said he hoped to have injured sophomore quarterback Terry Luck back in uniform by the end of next week.

He signed with the Cincinnati Bengals of the National Football League in 1969 but spent 2½ years on the taxi squad after breaking a shoulder.

"Trouble is that when anybody takes a strong position, liberal or otherwise, there is opposition. I just don't think a man should close his mind to another's ideas. Not if you expect improvement."

Smith was appointed by Jack Scott, chairman of Oberlin's department of physical education and athletic director. An author, Scott has been an outspoken critic of sports and the failure of the system to provide a dignified, meaningful experience for athletes.

"The fact that Tommie was never offered a meaningful position before now is appalling," Scott said. "It's a symbol of much of the racism in American athletics."

Middle linebacker Willie Lanier of the Kansas City Chiefs played at 240 pounds last season.

TRIVIA—White Roger Maris was busy slugging 'em out of the park. Norm Cash of the Detroit Tigers was down a little more concentrating on hitting. He batted .361, tops in the league, and still managed to knock out over 100 round-trippers. Nobody's compiled such a high average in the American League since Ted Williams swatted .369 in 1948. And only Rico Carty of Atlanta's National League club has topped Cash since, posting a .366 average in 1970.

Lady ump wins court battle, will officiate Class A ball

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Bolstered by determination and with help from the courts, Bernice Gera has emerged victorious from her fray with baseball officialdom clutching a contract to umpire in the Class A New York-Pennsylvania Baseball League.

Vince McNamara, league president, said Wednesday that the Long Island housewife's contract has been sent to Hank Peters, president of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues in Columbus, Ohio, for approval.

McNamara described the agreement as a "normal one-year pact" but declined to reveal details of the contract he said was signed a week ago.

Ms. Gera signed a similar contract with the league in 1969 only to have it rejected by the NAPBL, which controls minor league baseball. She carried her fight to the courts and the decision, favorable to her cause, bodes well for her chances this time around.

If finally approved to don the chest protector and mask in a profession that has been almost totally dominated by men, Ms. Gera will have succeeded in a campaign begun five years ago.

"I'll keep trying until I'm 80," the 40-year-old housewife insisted last year when she announced plans to initiate a $25 million damage suit against the game.

She said she was discriminated against because she was a woman.

She was supported by Congressman Mario Biaggi (D-N.Y.), who served as her attorney. Ms. Gera became interested in baseball umpiring when she officiated Little League and semi-pro games on Long Island. In 1966, she attended an umpires school in Florida, finishing with high honors.

Weather cuts into softball schedule

By BOB DENNEY
Daily Iowan Sports Writer
The weatherman has not cooperated, so the University's 150 intramural softball teams that began action this week, have had only three days to gain in the league standings.

In the fast pitch division, defending champion Res Ipsa Loquiter got off to a winning start with a 3-1 win over the GDI's. Last year's social fraternity champs, Sigma Chi, also were victorious in their debut as they whipped Psi Omega 4-1. Professional fraternity power Phi Delta Phi easily outscored Mulley's 9-1, and Rienow I—third floor whipped Rienow II—second floor in a slugfest, 12-4.

The slow-pitch leagues are always notorious for running up the scores, and the past three were no exception. The independent Statistics Department lived up to their namesake by bombing Mac's Marauders 26-1. This was just one example of batting talent, for later in the afternoon on Monday, Rienow II, 10th floor, ran past the scorekeeper in a shelling of Rienow I, fourth floor, 31-17.

All-University team leader in intramurals, Alpha Kappa Kappa whipped Kappa Psi 11-4, to keep its standings in the league at a top level.

Scores in the co-ed league were just as interesting. The Hot Pies won a double-header Sunday, 17-1 over 12th and Associates, and 13-7 over the Crew. The 12th and Associates came back in their second game to whip Sigma Phi Epsilon 11-9. Action will resume this week as the All-University competition begins to narrow down the final eight contenders in each league for the playoffs May 9.

PRIZE CATCH

Jerry Emler of 313 South Dodge, is the early leader in the second annual fishing derby, and it is doubtful that many will top his prize catch on Tuesday below the Coralville Dam.

Jerry used a jig lure and minnow to snare a five pound four ounce walleye. His catch is the biggest of the two seasons of the Fishing Derby. Emler is representing the Independent league.

"My only trouble was finding a chest protector to fit—they don't make them for women," she said, "and people said I talked too much to the players."

She has umpired in National Baseball Congress, a semi-pro circuit.

In June, 1969, after filing a series of complaints, she was invited by the New York-Pennsylvania League to apply for a job. She did and on Aug. 1 received notice that she had been accepted.

Before reporting for work, she was rejected again on a dictate by Phil Piton, then president of the NAPBL.

She then appealed to the New York Commission on Human Rights and filed her suit against baseball naming Commissioner Bowie Kuhn; McNamara and Piton as defendants.

In April, 1971, an Appellate Court in New York ruled that baseball was discriminatory in setting physical standards for umpires. In June, the Court of Appeals granted the NY-Penn League a temporary stay against rule changes pending an appeal in her case.

The New York State Court of Appeals ruled on Jan. 13 of this year that she should be given a chance to umpire in professional baseball.

Iowa drills going well

Iowa's Hawkeyes are now midway through the third week of their spring football practice and things appear to be going well.

"By this time I think everybody knows what has to be done. Right now it's just a matter of making progress, and there's little doubt that they're doing that," said Head Football Coach Frank Lauterbur.

"Our offensive line is coming along, especially with Muller back in there. This is the big thing, if we are to get any offense timed up to go, we're going to have to get consistency out of it."

Lauterbur is satisfied with progress that the squad has made in the past ten practice days.

"I feel we're where we should be after ten days...we've had three good workouts this week. We've had fine hustle on the part of the ballclub."

Practice will continue through next week. The annual spring game is scheduled for Cedar Rapids' Kingston Stadium, April 27.

New assistant?

Like everyone else on the Iowa football squad, John Niland, offensive standout for the world champion Dallas Cowboys, was up early Wednesday to see the Hawkeyes scrimmage.

Strike continues

... but seen closer to settlement

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball's player strike continued through a 12th day Wednesday but Marvin Miller, executive director of the striking players' association reported the parties were "closer to a settlement."

After two separate bargaining sessions with John Gaherin, representative of the club owners, Miller called a press conference to deny reports that the two sides had reached an agreement.

"Nothing could be more false," Miller said. "But we have worked out a new offer and we are closer to a settlement."

Tom Haller, player representative of the Detroit Tigers, said the strike could end soon, perhaps as soon as Thursday when the 24 owners meet in Chicago.

Haller said that Gaherin was carrying a new offer from the players over the issue of pay for any games postponed by the strike and made up later in the season.

Miller refused to disclose the nature of the new offer but Gaherin was on his way to Chicago to present it to the owners.

"We didn't resolve it," said Gaherin, shortly after emerging from his second meeting of the day with Miller. "We met twice—once with his full committee and once alone," said

Gaherin. "Now, I'm going to Chicago."

Gaherin said the only matter blocking settlement of the strike is pay for any games made up after the players go back to work.

"Everything else is in place," he said.

According to Gaherin, the current stalemate involves the players' association's demands that the athletes receive their full salaries if the owners decide to play the full schedule.

The owners, according to their negotiator, still are balking at paying the players for the full season. "The players chose not to make themselves available for 12 days and that has caused the owners to suffer financial losses. They don't have an obligation to pay the players for those days when they absorbed those losses," Gaherin said.

The players' argument, according to Gaherin, is that if the games cancelled so far are made up in any fashion, they should be paid their full salaries.

As the strike entered its 12th day Wednesday, there were rumors that settlement was close especially after the pension contribution issue was finally settled in Tuesday's marathon bargaining sessions. But the failure to settle the question of how the players would be paid for made up games Wednesday seemed to doom any hope that play could begin by the weekend.

Bob Reynolds, a sportscaster for WJR in Detroit, reported Wednesday that the strike had been settled and that official announcement would be made either late Wednesday night or Thursday morning after the owner's meeting in Chicago. But a spokesman in Miller's office denied the report.

Meanwhile, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn announced that the owners would meet in Chicago Thursday, presumably to move ahead in talks with the players if no settlement was reached Wednesday or to resolve the schedule differences between the AL and NL.

Settlement of the one remaining issue between the players and owners could lead to the opening of the season even if the AL and NL do not reach an immediate decision about the length of the season.

The owners and players reached agreement Tuesday night on a $500,000 contribution to the players' pension fund, on top of the $490,000 they already had agreed to contribute for health care benefits.

But they were unable to agree on the issue of pay for rescheduled games, proposals and counter-proposals being made and rejected in rapid-fire order.

Looking to a Friday start would mean each league would have to make up 38 games in order to play a full schedule. Best estimates are that the potential loss to the owners involved in not making up those games is more than $5 million.

To the average player making $22,500, it would mean a loss of about $1,250 and to a player like Hank Aaron, who is working on a $200,000 contract, it would mean $8,750.

Houston has had more games called off than any other team—nine including Thursday's game. Other NL totals are San Diego 8; Atlanta, Cincinnati and San Francisco 7; Chicago,

Los Angeles and Pittsburgh 6; Montreal, New York, Philadelphia and St. Louis 5.

In the American League, the totals are: Baltimore, Chicago, Kansas City, Minnesota, Texas 7; Boston, Cleveland, California Milwaukee, Oakland and New York 6, and Detroit 5.
