Cool... here

A fleet of American bombers will be moving in over Hanoi tonight from the south, along with slight breezes, assorted shrapnel and scattered napalm. Temperatures in North Vietnam will hover near the 100-degree mark, except those areas which will be engulfed in flames where temperatures will kill every living thing around. Iowa City, having accepted the American traditions which those slanty-eyed Gooks won't, can expect fair skies and cooler temperatures. It may rain here tonight, but it'll be water, not shells.

James Gang

The last rock concert of the season at the University of Iowa is scheduled for Saturday, April 29, and features "The James Gang." The Commission for University Entertainment (CUE) has slated "If" for the backup band; "If" played at the Laura Nyro concert here a year ago. Tickets for the concert will go on sale no later than Wednesday, according to CUE member Bev Horton. Tickets for the concert, which will begin at 8:00 p.m. in the field house, are $3.50 in advance and $4.50 at the door. Ms. Horton added that CUE is currently accepting applications for membership in the organization next year.

Weed signs

Johnson County residents who don't want ditches adjoining their property to be sprayed with weed-killer can now obtain "DO NOT SPRAY" signs from the Board of Supervisors office, County Weed Commissioner David K. Loney announced Monday. Loney said most of the country's weed control will be accomplished with mowing instead of spraying, but areas which should not be sprayed should be marked by June 1. Residents who post such signs must then destroy the weeds in the ditches, he said. All residents are also required by law to destroy all noxious weeds on their own land, he said. If the weeds are not destroyed the weed commissioner does the job and charges the landowner for the work, Loney added.

Recall

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. announced today it is recalling nearly 400,000 Ford Torinos and Mercury Montegos—virtually the entire 1972 model run of the popular intermediate-size cars—to correct a defect which could allow rear wheels to come off the car. Gordon H. Robertson, service engineering manager of Ford's Customer Service Division, said the company has received reports of rear axle bearing deterioration caused by a variety of factors. In extreme cases, Robertson said, the condition could lead to an axle shaft coming detached. A Ford spokesman said there have been five reported cases where Torinos or Montegos lost rear wheels while driving, causing damage to the cars.

To Poland

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has added a two-day stop in Poland on the way home from a week-long summit visit to Moscow in May, the White House announced Monday. Word of the May 31-June 1 Warsaw visit came as a 25-member advance team was winging its way to Salzburg, Austria, Moscow, and Tehran, to make plans for the Nixon-Soviet trip. Despite escalating bombings in North Vietnam, with reports of Soviet ships hit in Haiphong harbor, deputy press secretary Gerald L. Warren said plans for Nixon's Soviet trip are proceeding on schedule.

Nine dead

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — An army captain and eight men believed to be Tupamaro guerrillas and Communist party members were killed today in a gun battle that raged around a Communist district headquarters. The deaths brought to 21 the number of persons slain since Friday in the declared "war" between leftist Tupamaros and security forces. Residents said the latest battle erupted about 4 a.m. when army patrols intercepted a car full of guerrillas about five miles from the center of the city.

Nixon will 'thwart Vietnam invasion'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A White House spokesman declared Monday that President Nixon will "take whatever action is necessary to thwart this invasion" of South Vietnam by North Vietnamese forces.

Press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler had this word for newsmen a few hours after Secretary of State William P. Rogers had told senators bombing of the Haiphong and Hanoi areas was essential to protection of American troops and to Nixon's over-all Vietnamization program.

At his afternoon briefing, Ziegler referred reporters to Rogers' remarks and said the secretary was speaking for the President.

Ziegler would not discuss the Moscow claim that four Soviet ships were damaged in the Haiphong bombing raid.

"We have received the Soviet note, we are studying it and we will be replying," Ziegler said in response to a question.

Dispatches from Moscow said a reply had been delivered to the Kremlin and an American spokesman in the Soviet capital said it was "not an apology."

Rogers, the first high administration official to comment publicly on the weekend bombings of the two areas, told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee the President had three purposes in mind in sending the bombers north:

—To protect American troops in South Vietnam and protect the lives of those troops while the withdrawal program continues.

—To continue the U.S. withdrawal program.

—To insure that the South Vietnamese will be able to defend themselves.

The secretary told the committee the United States has "no intention of permitting North Vietnam to take over South Vietnam by force."

In this line, he said, "I'm not going to make any announcement about what we're not going to do," adding two exceptions:

There will be no reintroduction of U.S. ground combat troops and there will be no use of nuclear weapons in Vietnam.

Otherwise, the President will take whatever action necessary to meet the three conditions that brought about the weekend bombing, Rogers said.

The air raids, the secretary went on, represented no change of policy and followed the pattern Nixon has constantly set out: to take necessary action to protect American troops.

In the face of hostile questions by committee chairman Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., and Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, the secretary said the air raids were confined to military targets.

He added that conditions now indicate the current air war could succeed even though past bombings did not inhibit Hanoi's determination to keep fighting.

This was determined, Rogers declared, by what he called the all-out commitment Hanoi has made to a conventional invasion of the South.

With 12 of their 13 divisions out of North Vietnam, Hanoi's leaders have made such targets as oil supply dumps much more important than in the past, he contended.

In declaring it vital to turn back the current drive, Rogers said also the successful defense of the South could lead to better prospects for settlement.

"We have reason to think," Rogers said, that if the North Vietnamese are convinced the United States won't allow their offensives to succeed they "may decide it's not worth it to continue fighting."

At the Pentagon, spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim said there was one report of an enemy ship firing at "a couple of ships" in the Gulf of Tonkin but that it had not been confirmed.

Regarding prisoners of war, Friedheim said the United States has some ideas about where they are being held and that these areas were not targeted for American bombing.

Rogers was called to testify originally on the administration's fiscal 1973 $2.1-billion foreign-security aid bill.

He said that the troop-withdrawal program will continue at least until the current May 1 schedule of a 69,000-manpower ceiling is reached.

The President will make an announcement before the end of the month, Rogers said.

As to a resumption of the Paris peace talks, the secretary said the United States is willing to talk but only when the other side shows a sincere willingness to negotiate.

Meanwhile, the State Department replied to Moscow's claim that four Soviet ships were damaged in the Haiphong bombing raid.

The note, delivered to Soviet authorities, did not concede that ships had been hit, but said if they were "it was inadvertent and regrettable."

The State Department, noting Soviet arms aid to Hanoi, said, "Countries which supply offensive equipment to the North Vietnamese and enable them to mount an invasion of South Vietnam share responsibility."

Expect more bombing of Hanoi U.S. says offensive must end

SAIGON (AP) — An official U.S. source expressed belief Monday there will be renewed bombing of North Vietnam's heartland, including Hanoi and Haiphong, unless the Communist-led forces call off their 19-day-old general offensive in South Vietnam.

Moscow said Sunday's raids on the Haiphong dock area damaged four Soviet ships. A protest was lodged with the U.S. ambassador.

In the ground war U.S. officers in An Loc said the enemy still held 15 per cent of the provincial capital 60 miles north of Saigon and had set up a quasi-government in the part they control.

A government division sent to relieve the encircled town was diverted to meet elements of a North Vietnamese division on the march apparently for attacks nearer Saigon.

Elsewhere in Indochina, a 1,000-man Cambodian force was reported cut off in fighting near the ruins of Angkor Wat. In two days of fighting, government forces had lost 75 killed and wounded, the high command reported. No enemy casualties were given.

U.S. military sources said the thrust of Monday's air strikes had shifted back to enemy troop concentrations and base areas in South Vietnam.

One such concentration was said to be a North Vietnamese division south of Da Nang which was hit Sunday, killing an estimated 200 to 300 enemy troops. Intelligence sources said it was unclear whether the division was newly infiltrated or put together from formerly independent units to wield them into a single more powerful striking force.

After Sunday's bombing, U.S. officials refused to say whether the Haiphong docks had been hit. Radio Hanoi said they had and reported one Soviet seaman was wounded. In its diplomatic protest, Moscow said four ships in port were hit. The note said: "Numerous holes were caused, particularly in the living quarters of the crews."

"There were dead and wounded among the workers of the port who were performing unloading operations aboard the Soviet vessels."

A lull was reported at An Loc Monday, with both sides burying their dead. A U.S. general who flew over the area said there was no danger the town would fall now despite the continued North Vietnamese pressure.

Two major enemy tank and infantry thrusts into the town have failed to overrun the 9,000 defenders who have been encircled for more than a week. Two more battalions of paratroopers and a ranger unit were helicoptered into An Loc over the weekend.

The Communist command had identified An Loc as one of the provincial capitals it planned to seize and place under the rule of the Viet Cong. American reports that the enemy was

North Viets willing to hold secret talks

PARIS (AP) — North Vietnam held out the possibility Monday of high-level secret talks to end the Vietnam war if the United States halts air attacks on North Vietnam.

A second and linked condition was that the United States agree to go back to the once-a-week peace talks which the U.S.-South Vietnamese side broke off last month.

If these demands are met, it was announced, North Vietnamese Politburo member Le Duc Tho will come to Paris to take part in the talks, presumably at the secret level.

Tho had met several times last year with President Nixon's national security adviser, Henry A. Kissinger, in secret Paris exchanges which failed to produce a settlement. Washington said Hanoi broke off the talks with Kissinger, claiming Tho was ill.

The U.S. delegation to the Vietnam conference withheld comment on the North Vietnamese proposal pending consultations with Washington.

The North Vietnamese package deal came out at a news conference held by Minister of State Xuan Thuy, who has headed the Hanoi delegation in Paris since the talks began in January 1969.

His proposals were made public to culminate a flurry of secret exchanges through "a private channel" between the United States and North Vietnam. The United States was believed to be pressing for further secret talks, either separately or in connection with the regular sessions.

The exchanges were aimed at getting the talks going again after Nixon had indefinitely suspended them March 23 to break what he called a 3½-year "filibuster" by the North Vietnamese.

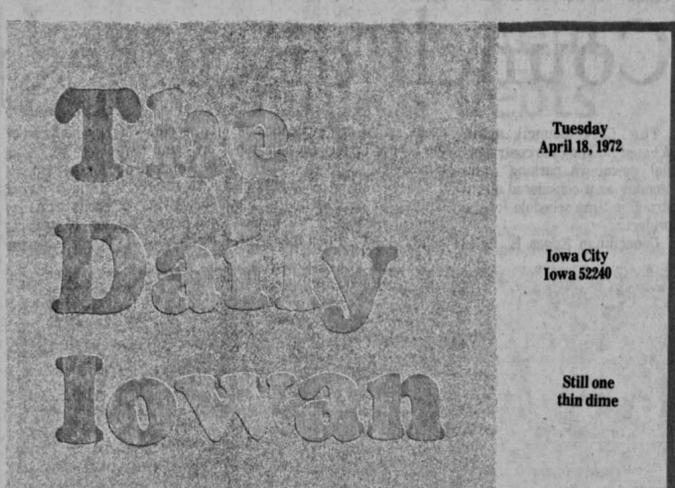

U.S. Ambassador William J. Porter reported last Thursday that the United States wanted the talks resumed that day, but that this was rejected. North Vietnam countered by saying it had proposed talks every Thursday since the conference was suspended, but that the United States said "no." Neither side reported conditions it was laying down.

Xuan Thuy in answer to questions Monday revealed what Hanoi had in mind.

Asked about the possibility of new secret talks, Thuy said, "If the Paris conference on Vietnam does not resume its work and on the other hand if the United States does not stop its escalation of the war and destruction against the Democratic Republic of Vietnam, then there is no basis for private meetings."

Pressed as to whether this meant that if the United States agrees to hold regular sessions of the talks and stops the bombing of North Vietnam, secret negotiations can then resume, Thuy responded: "That is correct."

The United States has argued that nothing valid was coming out of the regular sessions. The United States has called these talks "propaganda circuses," and has pressed for restricted or private talks away from the glare of publicity.

Senate committee acts to end Vietnam war

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee voted Monday afternoon to cut off all money for all U.S. forces fighting in Indochina on Dec. 31, if Hanoi returns all American prisoners.

The vote on the amendment of Sens. Clifford Case, R-N.J., and Frank Church, D-Idaho, was 9 to 1, said Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., the committee chairman. He added that Senate action on the proposal is expected next week.

The committee acted after hearing Secretary of State William P. Rogers describe the bombing of North Vietnam as essential to the protection of American troops.

"The way to end the bombing, to end the horrors of the war, is to end the war," Case told newsmen after the committee vote.

"It is a question of whether to do this now or ten years from now. This is the only way to see if Vietnamization will succeed, the only chance I see to bring the war to close that is within our power," Case said.

Church said the amendment to the State Department funding bill "really implements the policy of the Mansfield amendment," passed last year by the Senate and which called for U.S. withdrawal as a matter of policy. "The President has been disregarding that," Church said.

"We are utilizing the power of the purse to bring about an orderly completion of the withdrawal of all forces from Indochina," Church said.

Supplies and money would still be available to the South Vietnamese, Case said, but not a residual force as he sees it.

The key wording of the amendment is that no money "may be expended or obligated after Dec. 31, 1972, for the purpose of engaging U.S. forces, land, sea, or air, in hostilities in Indochina, subject to an agreement for the release of all prisoners of war held by the government of North Vietnam."

Case and Fulbright were optimistic about chances of passage in the Senate.

The lone committee vote against was Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., who commented, "I voted against accepting North Vietnamese terms. All they would have to do is back up behind the DMZ again."

Democrats react to 'Nixon' air war

By the Associated Press

The stepped-up air war over North Vietnam dominated the presidential campaign Monday as three leading Democratic contenders renewed their denunciations of the bombing.

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine introduced a resolution in the Senate calling for an immediate halt to all American military action against North Vietnam.

The resolution calls also for the continued withdrawal of American troops from Indochina and resumption of peace talks. If approved, the resolution would merely express the sense of the Senate and would have no legal force.

Muskie pledged Monday night that if elected he would carry out the terms of that resolution "within 60 days of my inauguration."

Campaigning in Springfield, Mass., Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota said, "It's almost beyond my comprehension that the President would take this course."

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey was campaigning in Pennsylvania Monday but issued a statement through his Washington office calling for an immediate bombing halt.

Humphrey called the attacks "a giant step backward" and asserted, "The bombing will not break the will of the North Vietnamese; it will not bring them to the negotiating table on our terms; it will not halt the supply lines and it is inhuman."

Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington voiced a more favorable reaction, although he said he doesn't understand why Nixon chooses this particular time for the air strikes near North Vietnam's capital and its major port city.

He said he supports Nixon in any necessary bombing to halt enemy supply troops and recalled that he advocated closing the port of Haiphong in 1966. The new bombing, he said, "has come six years too late."

Hughes condemns U.S. escalation

The U.S. bombing of Haiphong and the escalation of the air war over North Vietnam is bringing the United States to the brink of World War III, U.S. Sen. Harold Hughes, D-Iowa, said Monday.

In a statement released by Hughes' office here, the senator said the "most critical need is for the American people to awaken to the extreme danger to the entire world" as a result of the bombing of Haiphong and the "unprecedented escalation of the air war."

One apparent purpose of the current attacks, he said, is to send a message to Moscow to reduce its aid to North Vietnam.

He said the Soviet Union in its formal protest of the bombing declared expansion of the air war could aggravate not only the situation in Indochina but the international situation as a whole.

Hughes said reports indicate four Soviet vessels were hit in the attack on Haiphong and added the Nixon administration "seems willing to put on the blocks our chances of lasting peace with the Soviet superpower in order to save the Thieu regime in South Vietnam."

"The game is now nuclear roulette," Hughes warned. "It brings us to the brink of World War III."

"Instead of taking risks for peace, the president is risking the most horrible kind of military confrontation. By breaking off the peace talks and escalating the bombing he is sentencing the American people to an endless war."

Council debates riot ordinance

The City Council discussed Monday an ordinance that would give the mayor broad restrictive powers during civil disorders.

The proposed ordinance says that "whenever the mayor or council determines that there has been either an act of violence or resistance to lawful exercise of public authority presenting a clear and present danger of a riot or other general public disorder" a state of emergency can be declared and restrictions imposed.

Under the ordinance, if a state of emergency were declared, the mayor would have the power to close all taverns, public parks, streets and public areas in the area affected by the disorder. It also would give the authority to prohibit the sale of liquor, firearms and flammable materials, including gasoline.

The proposed law would also make the gathering of three or more persons in a public building, street, park or any private open area a misdemeanor, if a state of emergency had been declared.

The law would also give the mayor power to prohibit any other action he deemed hazardous to maintenance of the public safety.

Temporary use of public property and facilities for the detention of prisoners would also be granted by the ordinance.

City Atty. Jay H. Honohan offered the council this example of the public area use clause: "If the police had a number of offenders they wanted held temporarily out at City Park, they could put them in the swimming pool area for a while."

Violations of restrictions under the ordinance would be misdeamors, punishable by a $100 fine and 30 days in jail.

The measure was discussed favorably by councilmen and is slated for final consideration at the formal council meeting April 25.

Mayor C.L. Brandt said, "Hopefully we'll never have to use this thing, but if the need arises, we'll have something to work with."

The emergency period would last for 48 hours from the time it was declared by the mayor, but could be extended indefinitely, according to the ordinance.

Council discusses parking ramp, gas rates

The City Council again debated building the controversial downtown parking ramp Monday as it considered a construction time schedule for the project.

Councilman Edgar R. Czarnecki said more evaluation of the 570-car College Street ramp is needed.

"There may be possible alternatives to construction of the ramp," he said. "We passed policy to get cars off the street, but because of the added cost of the ramp the meters will have to remain to pay for the ramp."

He referred to the necessity of selling revenue bonds to finance the ramp instead of general obligation (G.O.) bonds as the council had planned. Voters rejected financing by $2 million in G.O. bonds last Tuesday. Interest on the revenue bonds will be $1 million more than on G.O. bonds.

Mayor C. L. Brandt agreed that there is cause for reconsideration of the ramp project, but said the council will have time to review its action before issuing revenue bonds June 6.

Warren Paris, spokesman for People Against the Ramp, a citizens group that has consistently fought the ramp and contended that rejection of the referendum was rejection of the ramp project, presented a letter at the meeting Monday reaffirming the groups opposition to the project.

Brandt told Paris, "Do me a favor, we are in work session. This is not a public hearing on the ramp and I do not expect to hear the pros and cons of the ramp at this session."

The mayor told Paris he could present the letter to the council at the formal council meeting tonight. A public hearing on plans and specifications for the ramp is slated for May 16.

The council also took action Monday to join with Davenport and Fort Dodge in fighting utility rate increases proposed by Iowa-Illinois Gas and Electric Company (IIG&E).

IIG&E is asking for a 10 per cent increase in its natural gas rates and a 13 per cent increase for its electricity. The proposed increases are currently being collected but will be refunded to consumers if the Iowa Commerce Commission refuses to grant the rate hikes.

City Atty. Jay H. Honohan told the council that the new rates would cost consumers in the Iowa City area $1,175,000 annually.

The council decided to fight the increase after receiving a letter from Davenport Mayor Katherine Kirschbaum, who asked for the city's cooperation in fighting the raise.

Honohan estimated that it will cost $10,000 to hire a consulting firm to investigate IIG&E's request and gather evidence to present to the Commerce Commission when it rules on the request. The cost will be shared by the three cities involved.

IIG&E representative Donald

G. Findlay told the council, "The State Commerce Commission's job is to look into these things and they do a thorough job. There is no reason for the city to get involved. If you're going to do this to us why not to Northwestern Bell?"

Mayor Brandt advised the city's staff to study a proposed telephone company rate increase and at the same time it investigates IIG&E's request.

1,000 ISU students protest Viet bombing

AMES, Iowa (AP)—About 1,000 people staged a protest rally at Iowa State University Monday at which one of the speakers was Stanford University Chemistry Professor Linus Pauling.

Pauling won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1962 and the Nobel Prize in Chemistry in 1954.

Some students at the rally indicated plans for a carload of students to leave Ames Tuesday morning for a protest march in front of the federal building in Des Moines.

At the noon rally Monday, the protesters burned in effigy a symbolic victim of recent bombings in Southeast Asia.

Pauling told the rally audience that the United States is the most immoral country in the world and said the war is benefiting the rich and contributing to all the problems in the country now.

"I want to see the U.S. be a moral country," Pauling said.

"It's hard to find out what's going on in this country," he said. Pauling called President Nixon "a liar" and "a tool of the military industrial complex. We need to save the country from these liars and need to stop militarism in order to stop the war."

Ms. Sheafor said the committee questions the rationale behind four other questions on the form dealing with sex, place of birth, use of another name, and the record of one's previous criminal convictions.

The committee will ask the Provost why these four questions need to be on university applications she said.

Procedure check on Greek system

Provost Phillip G. Hubbard has offered to report to the University of Iowa Human Rights Committee twice a year on the procedures used by UI fraternities and sororities during formal and informal rush.

Marion L. Sheafor, chairwoman of the committee, said Monday that Hubbard's offer is in response to a letter the committee sent to him outlining five guidelines that should be followed by the UI greek system in gaining new members.

Those guidelines include: —Fraternities and sororities can not solicit for outside recommendations concerning a prospective house member.

—The system should guarantee membership to anyone who wishes to join a fraternity or sorority.

—There should be two reports a year on Greek membership policies (which Hubbard has agreed to take care of.)

—The only qualifications to join any university supported organization should be the student's ability to function within the organization, service to the university and a sincere commitment to membership in the organization.

—The guidelines should be put into effect by autumn, 1972.

The UI administration is studying these guidelines, but has not yet accepted them, she said.

Ms. Sheafor also said that Hubbard suggested a meeting with committee members, the Greek system and the Student Development Center, to discuss the guidelines.

In other action, the committee, discussed Monday the revised university job application form, which was drawn up by members of an Action Studies group, Discrimination Against Women in the University Community.

The new form does not have questions about marital status and number of children.

Plan anti-war reading, teach-in for Saturday

An anti-war poetry reading and teach-in is tentatively scheduled for the Pentacrest Saturday as part of a series of activities planned as a "response" to U.S. escalation of the war in Indochina.

The event was scheduled for noon by a group of 30 persons, most of them University of Iowa students, who met Monday night to discuss "a response to the heavy bombing of North Vietnam that will hopefully affect change."

Frank Leone, 12 Princeton Court, who set up the meeting called it "a bull session out of which we can get some ideas for concrete action."

Ideas discussed at the meeting ranged from carrying umbrellas as a symbol of the "bombs raining down on North Vietnam" to "burning a model B52—pilot and all."

The group unanimously agreed that any events would be planned "to assure that violence does not occur" but several of those attending reminded others of recent years' demonstrations that broke into violence.

Leone said, "Something has got to be done to register the public outrage against this bombing. We should try damned hard to avoid violence, but the fact that violence may occur shouldn't deter us."

Helen E. Herrick, who was named chairwoman of the meeting, said that "feelings will be high in any kind of demonstrations this year." She said the group must consider events other than the escalation of the war, such as local urban renewal and housing problems, when gauging possible trouble.

One person attending the meeting said, "We can't have the same old type of demonstrations as in the past. We need new means, we have to struggle to find new means to register our response to the escalation."

Events planned include a mass vigil Wednesday along the Clinton Street side of the Pentacrest. Those meeting Monday hope to line at least that part of the Pentacrest from 11 a.m. until 1 p.m. They hope to impress on passer-bys that one bomb dropped from a B52 leaves a crater the size of the Pentacrest.

The rally on the Pentacrest Saturday will include anti-war poetry readings by UI students and a talk by Don Luce and Jacqueline Chagnon.

Luce and Ms. Chagnon will be in Iowa City, traveling with the Indochina Mobile Education Project, an exhibit which depicts life in Vietnam.

They will discuss the culture and people of Indochina and the effect of the war.

The final planned response will be an ecumenical peace service that will be held at the Pentacrest Sunday at noon.

Economy helped by no UI pay hikes

By JOHN McCLEARY Daily Iowan Staff Writer

A member of Pres. Nixon's Pay Board said Monday night that since University of Iowa faculty members will not receive pay raises next year they will be helping to stabilize the economy.

Arnold R. Weber, who is in Iowa City for the Daykin lecture series of the Iowa Center for Labor and Management (CLM), told newsmen that "any program to stabilize the economy ultimately depends upon the consent and support of the people."

He pointed out that 75 per cent of the American public supported Nixon's freeze when it was announced last August, but did not say how many people support the administration's economic policy now.

Weber said that any broad economic policy must have exceptions and cited the coal industry as an example.

The coal industry employs 110,000 people who received their requested 17 per cent raise because part of it went for a pension plan that affects 550,000 people, he said.

Weber also said that meat prices are clearly coming down and that it would be quite a trick to be able to raise farm income and lower food prices at the same time.

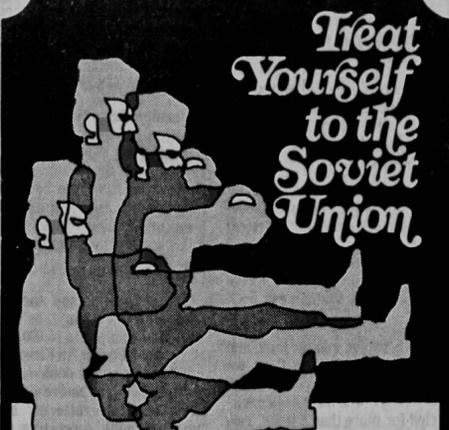

The pay board member commented on labor's withdrawal from the board by saying that A.F.L.-C.I.O. Pres. George Meany's walkout was "a manifest withdrawal from the fabric of consensus necessary to make this thing go."

Despite Meany's withdrawal from the board, Weber said that he expects that labor will continue to adhere to pay board restrictions.

Weber cited the board's 54 major policy decisions as evidence of the consensus needed to stabilize the economy and implement the president's policies.

Before the pay board broke up, labor voted on 36 of the decisions, and 28 of those were unanimous, Weber said.

Today Weber will highlight the "Management Briefing Conference — The Changing Employment Relationship," which will be held in the Union and is sponsored by CLM.

More VD reported at UI

By RON ELLYSON
Daily Iowan Staff Writer
Editor's note: This is the first of two articles THE DAILY IOWAN is running on venereal disease in Iowa City.

The 74 gonorrhea cases that have been reported to the University of Iowa Student Health Service since September represented more than a 25 per cent increase over last year's number.

But, according to Dr. Robert A. Wilcox, director of Student Health, the increase is due to a similar jump in the total number of students who have used the health service.

"On an absolute basis we've probably had no increase in the proven cases of gonorrhea, but it appears that way because of the increase in the number of students we've seen," Wilcox said.

This year's number of cases of non-specific urethritis, an undefined disease caused by sexual activity, also rose from last year's total, according to Wilcox.

But he said that "our position in this clinic is that gonorrhea is preventable and we shouldn't be seeing any students, period. So statistics are relatively meaningless."

The reason for the "rise" in the number of cases, according to Wilcox, is that "people are more aware of the possibility of VD and are coming in to be checked."

The VD problem is not confined to the university, however. Wilcox said that the spread of the disease is "not a question of student population, it's a question of Johnson county and the surrounding counties."

He said that besides being a university town, Iowa City is a "junction point" for the surrounding area.

"It's where people come for all kinds of activities: recreation in the Lake Macbride area, football and basketball games, and concerts—and I don't mean just the rock concerts either. And when that happens you have all kinds of diseases increasing in the population."

To say that Iowa City has a high venereal disease count because of the University of Iowa is just a bunch of baloney," Wilcox said. "There's nothing that stamps on a student's forehead that he is more susceptible to VD or that he has more sexual activity than anyone else."

Figures that were reported in an Oct. 1971, article in The Daily Iowan put the proportion of venereal disease cases in the student population at one in 15.

But Wilcox said the ratio was calculated by the State Bacteriological Laboratory and takes into account the supposed number of cases that are not reported.

"What they're really saying is that for every case that is reported there are x number of cases that aren't. That is good when you're running a public health service and you need money," he said.

Wilcox said it would be more accurate to say there are one out of 15 people in Johnson County that have venereal disease.

The results of a UI medical student committee on VD in the Iowa City high schools indicated that one of every 59 high school students said that they had contacted gonorrhea.

"It's a low number, compared to the ratio for Johnson County," Wilcox said. "It doesn't jibe at all."

When asked about the prevention of gonorrhea, Wilcox said that "without a doubt, the best preventive measure you can use is a properly packaged tested condom. Of course it isn't 100 per cent effective, but nothing is 100 per cent effective."

And according to him, "The business of the condom is just as much the responsibility of the woman as it is of the man. If he doesn't have one, she should."

To date, no antibiotic drugs have been developed that are guaranteed to prevent gonorrhea, Wilcox said.

Wilcox said he hoped that condoms will soon be available in supervised vending machines.

"Then there would be no excuse for anyone to get VD, except stupidity," he said. "All we can do is to make condoms available, and after that they're just like seat belts."

Insurance settlement reduces Hulk's debts

A $3,500 business interruption insurance settlement has substantially reduced The Hulk's debts and put the student bar back on its feet financially.

Robert P. Sommers, 22, 120 East Harrison Street, Hulk manager, said late last week that $3,466 of the $3,500 asked for by Iowa Student Agencies Inc. (ISA), which owns the Hulk, was awarded by the Travelers' Insurance Company of Des Moines.

"I'm very pleased with the settlement. It's unfortunate that it took a long time, but we're entirely satisfied with the results," Sommers said.

"The important thing about this settlement is that it puts The Hulk in a financial position where we can really compete and do business without worry," he said. "There's now no question about our existence: we are a serious competitor of the down-town bars."

In March, The Hulk reported "operational gains" of over $500. Sommers explained that this figure covers receipts and debts incurred only during the month of March.

ISA—a student-managed, non-profit corporation—opened the bar, located at 532 North Dodge Street, last September. On Nov. 12, a fire gutted the interior, and the bar did not reopen for business until Jan. 3.

Sommers, who is a former president of the ISA Board of Directors, became Hulk Manager Mar. 1.

The Hulk will be open this summer to serve students and Sommers says he expects even more student customers after the 19-year-old drinking law goes into effect July 1.

Protest war tax

A noon-hour protest against the use of taxes for war drew about 20 people to the front of the post office here Monday, the deadline for filing federal income tax forms.

The protest was sponsored by the local War Tax Resistance Group as "a response to the bombing and also to continuance of American intervention in Vietnam," said group member Paul D. Fate, 20, 910 Iowa Avenue.

A half-dozen of the demonstrators held posters and most of the others sat on the sidewalk.

Several protestors distributed a leaflet informing readers that "YOU are responsible for the killing in Viet Nam," and "61 per cent of your tax dollars are used to pay for war."

Fate said the group wants people to quit paying federal telephone and income taxes which are used for war.

He said about five members of the group are not paying income taxes to protest the war, while members who don't earn enough to owe income tax to the government are withholding the tax on telephone service. The withheld tax money will be given to some "organization doing something for life rather than death," Fate said.

"I haven't noticed too much negative or positive response" to the protest, he added.

Iowa peace advocate balks on income tax

MOUNT VERNON, Iowa (AP)—One of Iowa's more outspoken peace advocates informed President Nixon by letter Monday he refuses to file a 1971 income tax report or pay any tax in protest against what he called "inhumane warfare" in Vietnam.

Walter Gormly of Mount Vernon informed the President, "I do not care to support a government that will go down in history as being so cruel to the inhabitants of a small nation who won't accept the government imposed on them."

Gormly several times in the past has either refused to pay his federal income taxes at all or has attempted to withhold the portion he estimated would go to the armed forces.

In his letter to Nixon, Gormly specifically protested the use of fragmentation grenades in the Vietnam war and the bombing of Haiphong.

"Dumdum bullets, which spread out when striking a body and tear great holes in a man, were outlawed in the 1899 Hague Declaration governing inhumane warfare and weapons," Gormly said. "Reports that dumdum bullets were used in World War I aroused a great deal of anger."

"In Vietnam the United States, under your direction, is using fragmentation grenades fired by guns or grenade launchers, that tumble in flight and tear great holes in anyone they hit and nearly always kill."

"Some victims are completely shredded by the flechettes. They (fragmentation grenades) are far more devastating than dumdum bullets."

Of the bombing of Haiphong, Gormly told the president:

"You knew the world would be outraged by the bombing, so you announced it just before the astronauts were to leave for the moon, so that the news media would not give your action as much coverage as it would otherwise be given."

OPINIONS

Cutting costs

Purdue professor James Stegenga has a solution to President Boyd's financial problem. Boyd was quoted Friday as saying he has the dubious honor of informing the faculty that they would not receive raises. There is a way around the problem, but it is one that Boyd it not likely to take.

Stegenga, in an article "What Is a University Not?", recommends that universities be strictly educational institutions. Their tasks should be scholarship and teaching and service. The service is defined as doing a good job of the first two tasks. So how does this save money, or more accurately enable the administration to give the faculty raises?

The answer to this is, according to Stegenga, get rid of the non-educational parts of the university. Sell the Iowa House to a hotel chain. Get rid of the golf course. Is this a center of higher learning or a country club? And heresy of heresies, "Intercollegiate athletics have no persuasive academic basis and should not be an official university activity."

To get some idea of the effect that this would have on the university think of what stories have made the front page of this paper recently. For instance, the activity fee. If the university got out of the entertainment business students wouldn't have to pay on the bonds that built the Union, Rec Building and are building Hancher auditorium. SPI Board could disband leaving the DI as a learning tool in the School of Journalism, if they wanted it.

If the university got out of the socializing business they could convert the Women's Center, Afro-American Culture Center, the International House and other such buildings into educational space. The Greek system could go its own way and the university would save the cost of hiring the system's two advisers. Also, the hassle about discriminatory rushing practices would be all over. Separated from the university, the Greeks could do as they please as long as it was within the law.

By selling the excess facilities it owns, the university would not only gain income immediately but would save money in future through the lessened need for maintenance persons, security guards, utilities and so fourth. Excess in the preceding sentence means non-educational.

Excess personnel could be fired or transferred, when possible, to academic pursuits. The public relations people the university employs would be out of work as would the men and women in the Placement Office. With the money saved through eliminating excess programs, personnel and facilities the faculty could get its raises and probably so could the remaining non-academic personnel such as admissions clerks and professors' secretaries.

But besides the monetary advantages, Stegenga sees some educational ones.

"Maybe more students would take the learning experience seriously if they were no longer almost compelled to hold the university's entertainment spectaculars uppermost; they might even become serious young adults earlier if the university stopped promoting the indefinite extension of adolescence."

Someone will suggest that it is impossible to sell the non-educational facilities. Maybe the Hilton chain would buy the Union, but who would buy a stadium or the Rec Building? It's true, but Stegenga's article might be a clue to budgeting priorities around the university. Give raises to people involved in academic pursuits. If maintenance must slide, let it slide in the non-academic buildings. If programs are to be cut, cut ones that serve no academic purpose.

Remember the Maine

At the same time that Apollo 16 was speeding towards the moon, Angela Davis was standing trial, new rioting was breaking out in Belfast, and Richard Nixon was attempting to bomb the whole of North Vietnam into the Pacific Ocean. And yet, we have spent billions of dollars to let a few astronauts go rock-hunting. I ask you, where are our priorities?

Joe Slamony, philosopher and gas station attendant, has noted, "We should put dat money where it belongs. There's no reason why in a country as rich as ours, dere has to be a baseball strike. Dey say dat we've got all kinds of useful stuff from the space program. What I want to know is, couldn't we have invented 'Tang' right here on earth?"

The astronomical sums of money we've poured into the Apollo program; do you realize how many tons of napalm we could have bought with that money? Why, we could have burned the arms and legs off every man, woman, and child, not only in Vietnam, but in all of Indochina as well. With the kind of money we've wasted in outer space, we could have taken care of the entire gook problem here on our own planet.

And look at the countless thousands of dollars the government is spending in order to convict Angela Davis. That's peanuts compared to the space program! With the money from the space program, not only could we have Angela Davis convicted, but we could put every commiehippiepervert behind bars.

We could afford to build enough highrises to cover up every slum in every city in America. We would never have to look at them again, not if we spent our money wisely.

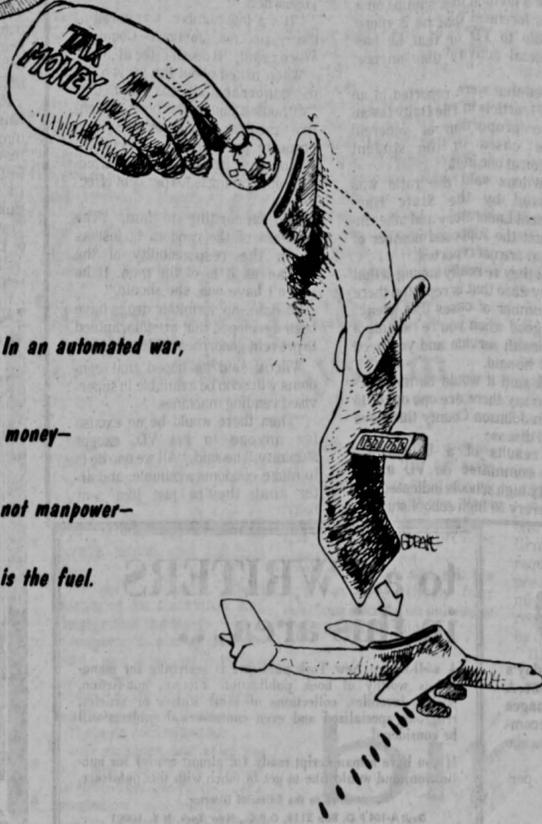

With the money we've burned in space we would have been able to supply Pakistan not only with guns, but with all the bombs they needed as well. A properly proportioned budget would have made certain that there was not a single person alive in Bangladesh.

We could send the Marines into Northern Ireland. If they don't like being a British colony, hell, let's make them an American colony! With the billions of dollars it took to plant an American flag on the moon, we could have planted American flags on three-fourths of the earth.

Even if we only cut the budget for the space program in half, we would still have enough money to send the commies back to Russia, the niggers back to Africa, the kikes back to Germany, the fags back to jail, the broads back to the kitchen, and still have plenty left to beat the shit out of anybody who tried to resist progress in this great nation of ours. Let them complain! Without the space program we could afford to bribe every judge in the nation and censor all the newspapers as well.

When there is so much yet to be done, I beseech you fellow Americans, to take a closer look at our priorities. Don't let your government fritter away your tax money in outer space when it could be put to good use here at home.

LETTERS

To the editor:

ARH is the representative student organization of the dormitory system. It is composed of 18 representatives from all the dorms. Its role is to represent the dormitory residents concern in areas of dining and vending services, housing policy (24 hour visitation etc.), regulation of the dormitory judicial board, KICR radio, it represents the dormitories on the campus shuttle bus committee, and acts in all other areas concerning the dorms.

Many of the ARH reps are concerned about representing the residents of their dorms, but most have turned ARH into their own tightly knit political arena. Residents are no longer informed of the actions of the organization and issues that the residents are concerned about are not acted upon. In its present state ARH acts as one of the strongest political machines on campus.

Last week ARH voted to make the positions of President, V President, Treasurer and Secretary salaried positions. Last Wednesday night ARH was to the elections for these position, and election that is decided by the 18 representatives of the dorms. As is usual with ARH actions, nobody knew this election was being held.

Four of the five candidates running were active members of ARH, the same people who voted to make these positions paid. Only the office of president was being contested.

Members of ARH have deliberately tried to undermine my candidacy for that office, the only contested position. I was informed at 6:15 Wednesday night that the election was to be held at 7:00 over at the union and at that time I could talk to those who would decide the election. A typical example of ARH in action.

This blatant farce of an election was postponed due to a lack of a quorum (a typical ARH meeting) and is rescheduled for 7:00 next Wednesday night in the Rim Room at the Union. Three offices still remain uncontested, you can change that by entering the race. If you don't have the time or the desire to hold a position in ARH, but are one of those people being forced to live in the dorms next year I urge you to attend this meeting to hear the candidates and voice your opinions of our dorm system. Your life in the dorms next year is about to be handed over once again to the ARH machine, just once don't let it happen.

Constable's Corner

Anatomy of contempt

Richard Bartel is currently a candidate for local public office. Other candidates are invited to submit their views.

How does one go about being cited for contempt in a court? I had visions of being bound and gagged in order for the court to proceed with its business or call the judge a son-of-a-bitch as grounds for contempt of court.

However, I find it is much easier than that. In fact, one might not even have to be aware of contemptuous or insolent conduct to be cited.

Having been recently ordered to show cause why I am not in contempt of the Iowa City Police Court, I would like to present the anatomy of such a charge without the editorial comment which I will reserve for the defense arguments.

It all began last summer when I decided to challenge Iowa City's unconstitutional and discriminatory (as determined in their own studies) parking regulation policies. One vocal objective I've had is attempting to restrict the City's parking revenue in order to limit funds available for such projects as the new proposed parking ramp.

In a succession of charges by the City against my wife (who was arrested at her place of employment twice for parking tickets I received) and myself, we have paid a total of $10 in fines after several appeals in the district court.

It was established that the parking summonses used by the City last year were illegal and the City was forced to change them. Also, the City could not fine a person for a number of parking violations with one trial on an individual charge. In practice, the rulings have had little effect on the city's procedures in such matters which may require some future civil action. A number of people were still fined by improper charges and procedures by the police court and the City staff.

After the last victory over the City, I reached a gentlemen's agreement with the Asst. City Attorney, James Hess, to have a friendly contest on various other arguments at the convenience of the City and my attorney, Preston Penny, on remaining charges that were not permitted to be paid by the district court ruling.

However, out of the clear blue sky, a "Denver Boot" was placed on my wife's car. I posted a AAA bond card to cover a $184 bond required by the police as I always had done before which had been accepted as bond even to the district court on appeal without any difficulty.

I had to make an appearance in police court without my attorney who was on vacation. I asked for a continuance to allow my attorney to represent me but Police Judge, Joseph Thornton, forced me to enter a plea and rejected my AAA bond while he raised the bond from $184 for both my wife and I to $330 for me alone. He then refused to allow me to post a bond for my wife threatening to have her arrested if she didn't appear by the next morning. (Again for tickets I received.)

Not usually carrying $330 dollars in cash and not having that amount in the bank on that date (April 4th), I wrote and presented a pre-dated check for the trial date (April 12th) in the presence of the court to the court clerk.

The City then attempted to place a hold on my bank account which was refused by the bank because the check was pre-dated. The check came to the bank and was returned to the City before the trial date.

When my attorney returned from his vacation, his schedule would not permit him to represent me on the 12th so he attempted to obtain a continuance. After he was refused by Judge Thornton, I obtained other council merely to prevent me from having to do business directly with court in order to avoid a contempt charge.

After I was convicted after presenting what I considered a good defense to the criminal charges (22 of them), Thornton placed the appeal bond at $330 at which time he made no mention of the pre-dated check.

Not wanting to restrict the use of my own money, I contracted with a bail bondsman to post my bond and stopped payment on the $330 check.

The bondsman, Dean Oakes of the A A Bonding Co., and I attempted to present a surety bond to the police court clerk which was refused because the Iowa City Police Court refuses surety bonds on misdemeanor charges for some strange reason. I will have to challenge such a policy in the future.

The bondsman and my attorney attempted one more time after the trial to post the surety bond without any luck. The bondsman then presented $330 cash to the court clerk who refused to give him a receipt for it stating that I already had a receipt (perhaps in an attempt to discourage the bondsman). Any such receipt given to the bondsman could have made note of substitution.

Had the court clerk refused the cash, I would have been forced to lift the stop payment order on the pre-dated check.

The next day the City filed the contempt charges in police court and released the information to the press the following day even before I was served with the papers.

The coverage given to the incident in the news media indicated that I paid $330 in fines and then stopped payment on the check.

It is going to get interesting.

National environment campaign begins today

Push seeks legislative opposition

NEW YORK (AP) — A coalition of environmental groups will kick off a nationwide campaign Tuesday to mobilize public opposition to proposed legislation it claims would undermine the National Environmental Policy Act.

Some 2,500 information packets are to be mailed to national and local environmental groups, labor, church, voter, peace and other organizations calling for "widespread and immediate citizen response ... to save NEPA from congressional hatchets," according to a packet made available here.

The save NEPA campaign was organized 10 days ago by leaders of the Sierra Club, Environmental Action, Friends of the Earth and the Environmental Policy Center. The timing of the campaign's kickoff during Earth Week was coincidental.

NEPA, an acronym for the act, has been used in the courts by environmentalists to halt and stall scores of federal projects, including the Alaska pipeline and the Cross-Florida barge canal.

The act requires federal agencies to consider fully all environmental and social costs of proposed projects, explore feasible alternatives and guarantee citizen participation in decision making.

It was signed into law by President Nixon New Year's Day, 1970.

Richard Lahn, a Washington lobbyist for the Sierra Club, said "Federal agencies, Interior, the Atomic Energy Commission, EPA (Environmental Protection Administration), tried to ignore and get around the act and that resulted in the horrendous court decisions." He added, "What the courts said to the agencies is: 'You weren't even in the ballpark as far as compliance is concerned. You didn't even read the act.'"

Referring to eight bills currently in the House of Representatives to amend NEPA itself or other laws to circumvent compliance with NEPA, Lahn said, "The attempts by Congress to chip away at NEPA is sort of like saying, 'Now we can ignore the environment.'"

The campaign kits states: "Painfully aware that the public would not tolerate an overt effort to kill NEPA outright, an alliance of vested interests, federal bureaucrats, and congressmen devised a program to kill it a little at a time by amending it to death behind closed doors."

Sam Love, coordinator for Environmental Action, said that if one of the bills passes, "it will be a green light for all of the other interests, the highway, the dam, other interests to rush into Congress and seek exemption for their projects. We'll be left with a completely gutted National Environmental Policy act."

Love said the first of the bills went to the House floor Monday.

Wandering Erroll meets Iowa law

By PAUL DAVIES
Daily Iowan Staff Writer

Erroll McCarthy wants to get out of jail.

Somewhat of a wanderer, he arrived in Iowa City on a Monday. The following Friday he was taken to the Johnson County Jail.

Earlier that Friday, March 31, he had pleaded guilty to contributing to the delinquency of a minor. Police Court Judge Joseph Thornton fined McCarthy $100 and $5.00 court costs.

McCarthy didn't have that much money so he asked for time in which to find a job and pay the fine. Thornton instead sentenced him to 30 days in jail in lieu of the fine.

Monday his lawyer won partial freedom for McCarthy. Attorney Edward Berkin of the Hawkeye Legal Aid Society first filed a lawsuit against Judge Thornton, asking the Johnson County District Court to review Thornton's actions, and release McCarthy with credit for time served and a chance to pay the portion of the fine remaining.

The suit contends that Thornton's action violates a 1971 U.S. Supreme Court ruling which holds it unconstitutional to jail a person for not paying a fine which that person cannot afford to pay.

Berkin said the rule is followed in Des Moines courts, but is not familiar with practices here because the Office of Economic Opportunity does not allow the legal aid society to handle criminal cases.

Judge Robert Osmundson issued a writ of certiorari, which is an order to review the actions of a lower court, but did not release McCarthy.

Berkin then filed a new lawsuit asking that McCarthy be allowed to leave the jail "at necessary and reasonable hours for the purpose of seeking employment." Judge Osmundson ordered that McCarthy be released between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. to look for work, and also that he be freed as necessary to travel to and from work once he finds a job.

Berkin will still try to have McCarthy permanently released, but it will take time—Thornton has to be served with official notice of the suit.

Thornton is now on vacation until Monday and has left town.

So Erroll Harrison McCarthy, 37, is a resident of the Johnson County Jail because he hitchhiked here with 17-year-old Margie Boley of Cocoa, Fla.

McCarthy says girls can legally leave home at age 17 in Florida. Iowa law is different, and, since Ms. Boley is under 18, McCarthy was charged with encouraging her to commit an act of delinquency. He pleaded guilty, "which I shouldn't have done, but did anyway," he said.

Sitting in a low-ceilinged room in the jail, McCarthy guessed that apparently word of Margie's presence reached her parents in Florida after he had had a conversation in the university's Main Library with one of his friends, Ms. Boley's parents flew here, and the police asked the couple to go to the police station.

McCarthy hasn't seen Margie since that day. Instead, he's been seeing what sights there are to see in the rear of the courthouse.

A carpenter and cabinetmaker, McCarthy started his search for a job Monday after Judge Osmundson gave him the partial release.

Supreme Court to rule on state pollution laws

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court agreed Monday to decide whether the states may go beyond federal authorities in guarding their waters against pollution.

Next term the justices will hear an appeal by Florida designed to save a state law that imposed full liability on shippers for oil spills. The federal law on the same subject is not that tough.

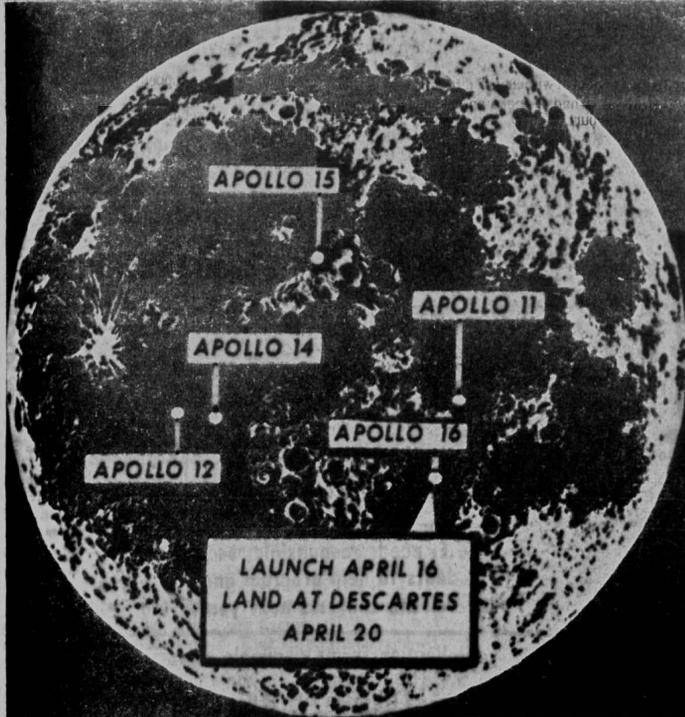

Two weeks ago the court ruled 7 to 2 that states may not restrict nuclear power plant emissions since Congress gave that job to the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission.

By agreeing Monday to hear the Florida case, the court indicated it may decide states are not compelled to defer to federal authorities in all pollution matters.

The Florida law, enacted in 1970, requires shippers to pay clean-up costs regardless of whether the oil spill was their fault. Under the federal Water Quality Improvements Act of the same year a shipper must pay only in cases of willful negligence or willful misconduct.

Last December, a three-judge federal court in Jacksonville struck down the Florida law and said the states may not enact laws affecting maritime commerce. Florida's appeal was backed by Connecticut, New York, Georgia, North Carolina and Virginia.

Apollo 16 target

Apollo 16 will land in the Descartes Highlands on Thursday, with the main goal being a search for evidence that volcanoes were once active on the moon.

Peeling spacecraft 'A-OK'

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Engineers said Monday the substance peeling off the Apollo 16 lunar lander appeared to be bad paint. But they said it was unneeded for this mission and the astronauts sped on toward their landing Thursday in the highlands of the moon.

Astronauts John W. Young and Charles M. Duke Jr. were directed to make general inspection of their moon machine, Orion, Monday night to make certain it remained fit and Thomas K. Mattingly II was ordered by the flight plan to stay aboard the command ship, Casper.

Capsule communicator Tony England told the astronauts to keep a watch on Orion's flaking surface, but assured them it was no problem.

A spokesman for Grumman Corp., which built Orion, said the .0001-inch thick coating of white silicone paint was designed to protect the moon machine from the heat of the sun during its three days on the moon.

The paint was needed, he said, only if the launch of Apollo 16 had been delayed a day, causing the sun to be higher and hotter at the mountain plateau landing site when Orion touched down. But the launch was right on schedule.

The paint, said a Grumman spokesman, was applied and baked for a half-hour at 400 degrees. He said the same process was used on the Apollo 15 lunar module and no problems were encountered.

"The problem may have been in the application or in the batch of paint that was used," said the spokesman. "We're very concerned about finding out why this has happened."

The astronauts had noticed the paint just after the spacecraft had rocketed out of earth orbit Sunday.

Young and Duke made an unscheduled inspection visit to the lunar module once Mission Control determined the matter could be of concern. The astronauts found everything on the inside of the craft all right.

Apollo 16 passed the midway point of its voyage to the moon at 2:14 p.m. Monday. The spacecraft was then 120,377 miles from both the earth and the moon.

The men of Apollo 16 said they slept well their first night in space.

Young and Duke will guide Orion to a landing in the lunar high country at 3:41 p.m. on Thursday. They will touch down on a mountain plateau to begin man's first exploration of the moon's highlands, an area thought to have been created billions of years ago by lava bubbling up from the interior of a young moon.

Young and Duke will spend a record 73 hours on the moon's surface. They will make three excursions using an electric car to visit craters and climb about 700 feet up the side of a mountain.

Urban Renewal project brings mixed blessings

By MARY JO DEUSCHER
Daily Iowan Staff Writer

An elderly gentleman sits in the modern kitchen of the house where he has lived for the past 24 years. The building is well-kept; no cracked ceilings; bright walls, well-painted and wall-papered; floors sturdy; certainly not the type of property you think of when you hear "urban renewal."

Boxes containing the possessions that a young man and his wife will transport to a new residence at the end of the week sit in the kitchen of their apartment. The owners stare at them with depressed expressions. Theirs, too, is an attractive place to live with no signs of deterioration.

These are just three of the approximate 450 persons who are being relocated by the Iowa City Urban Renewal Office from their homes, many of which are in good condition. The project's relocation staff assists these people in finding a replacement dwelling appealing to them and suited to their needs. There are also financial compensation benefits available to everyone who is forced to move because of the Urban Renewal Plan and who meets some basic eligibility requirements.

It is perhaps because of these benefits that many of the people displaced from a well-kept home do not have totally negative views about the project.

"They (Department of Urban Renewal) treated me okay," he said. "My house is in good shape; there are no cracked walls or anything, so they gave me a good price for it." Although he regrets leaving the place where he has lived for nearly a quarter of a century, the man was able to find another home.

The young couple has lived in their home one year, and they are unhappy about moving. "We really hate to move," said the husband. "We haven't started a family yet, so, of course, sooner or later we'd have to get a bigger place. But we did like living here. It's only five minutes from my job. But the city does what it wants."

They, too, will receive some financial compensation from the Department of Urban Renewal, and have been fortunate enough to find another apartment which suits their needs.

Some are not so lucky. Another lady, a resident of 18 years in her home, is having a difficult time locating an apartment in Iowa City that is attractive, reasonably priced and close to the downtown area, a necessity since she has no car.

Her apartment is small, but an ideal size for one person. She has decorated her home herself, coordinating the wallpaper, curtains, carpet and furniture to radiate a cozy cheerfulness through all the rooms. She is not happy about leaving them. "I have to find a decent place that is close to my work, and that I'll feel safe in," said the 60ish lady. "My landlord is really nice, and I was very satisfied and comfortable here. It will be a great problem finding a place equal to this."

She added that relocating people for urban renewal projects isn't fair to those who have lived in their homes for years, especially old people.

"What can you do with people who have arthritis or are in a wheelchair? it's too upsetting for them; they want a place where they can stay and feel like they're going to stay there for a while. But they're worried because they don't know where Urban Renewal will tear down next," she said.

"Older homes are much nicer than what they're building now. So many people are out of work and don't have enough to eat—it's a poor time to spend money on what you already have," she said. "It's a mixed-up mess, and has been that way for the last 12-15 years."

University of Iowa students look at the problem of relocation in varied ways. A sophomore coed, is "very grateful" for the urban renewal project; she does not plan to be here this summer, but her lease extends through August. Now it will not be necessary to pay the summer rent, or advertise for summer subleasees.

But there are other reasons why she has positive views about Urban Renewal. The off-grey walls of her apartment are chipped paint, the ceilings are cracked and the panes of glass do not fit the windows, so that it is necessary to place pieces of cardboard over the open areas. The floor slowly slants downward as one walks to the center of the apartment, and it seems the house is sagging in the middle. The banister to the stairway in the hall is too shakey for support. The porch is coming apart from the house, the sidewalk is cracked, the driveway is rutted. A crooked fence about to collapse borders the building.

"Urban Renewal in this case is good," the girl said. "I like old buildings if they're kept up, but give this building another year and it will sink into the basement."

A male graduate student in business is also enthusiastic about Urban Renewal, but not because his residence is deteriorated. His apartment, one of six in a building, is old, but well preserved. The high walls and ceilings are brightly painted and clean, the floors and stairs sturdy and neat. The landlord is, according to this tenant, "very pleasant" and "extremely cooperative." He also repairs any deficiencies in the building promptly, lets the tenants decorate their apartment in any way they desire, and allows pets, the student said.

So why is this tenant in favor of Urban Renewal when he plans to live in Iowa City indefinitely, and thus must be relocated from such comfortable surroundings?

"I don't foresee a problem in finding another place to live," he said. "The relocation office is helpful and always available to assist if I have difficulty."

"The whole concept of Urban Renewal is fine for Iowa City, good for the community as a whole. It's something that's been needed here for a long time; it's only too bad that it didn't come about earlier. There are a few substantial old buildings in Iowa City, and it would be nice to preserve them, but it wouldn't be practical in a thorough Urban Renewal situation."

The only criticism the student had of Urban Renewal was the problem finding enough low-rent housing for all those who are being relocated. "But Urban Renewal provides $4000 for a downpayment on a house to many people who otherwise would not have the opportunity to purchase their own home," he added.

A UI instructor has a different concept of Urban Renewal. "The structure of the new contemporary buildings doesn't mean anything to me. The whole idea of Urban Renewal really freaks me out," he said.

"I don't know about Urban Renewal for Iowa City. I don't plan to make Iowa City a life-long place, so I really don't care that much about it."

This instructor had moved into his apartment only last January, and lives across the hall from the graduate student quoted. The instructor's place, too, is in excellent condition.

"I don't want to think about moving out," he said. "I just got the furniture arranged so that I'd be comfortable; I've just reached the point where I'm used to living here."

"The idea of being forced to move hasn't hit me yet the way it probably will," he added. "I won't be able to face the reality of the situation until they say I've got to go."

Supreme Court upholds church school aid ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today unanimously upheld the Missouri Constitution's ban on state aid to church-related schools.

The provision had been attacked by a group of families from the St. Louis area who said "secular humanism and 'irreligion' are being established in the public schools by eliminating references to God and religion.

The parents suggested that Missouri adopt a "tuition voucher" plan under which the state would provide assistance to the parents of children attending accredited private schools.

Turning down the appeal, the court affirmed a decision by a three-judge federal court in St. Louis approving the ban on state aid.

The St. Louis family had contended Missouri was inhibiting the right of children in church schools to exercise their freedom of religion.

"Under the present situation, those who choose nonpublic school education are in fact subsidizing those who choose public schools," the appeal said.

"They contribute to the support of the public schools through the taxes they pay, thereby decreasing the burden on those choosing public schools."

I heard that Groucho Marx is coming to Ames on April 29. Where can I get tickets?—J.T.

Groucho Marx, noted for—or rather, notorious for—such inspired mayhem as Night at the Opera, Day at the Races, and Duck Soup, will play Stevens Auditorium in Ames on April 29 at 8 p.m.

Send your ticket order to Stevens Auditorium, Iowa State University, Ames Iowa, enclosing $2.50, $3.00, or $3.50 in the form of a check or money order payable to same.

Where can I get a free pregnancy test. I'm not a student but my husband is.—D.S.

The Free Medical Clinic is probably your best source, since the clinic on campus charges a $7 fee.

A representative from the clinic told us that they give these tests Monday through Thursday from 7 to 10 p.m.

They suggest that you get there early since they handle many patients. The clinic is located in Wesley House, 120 North Dubuque Street.

find a place where we can store furniture for little or no rent?—M.E.

SURVIVAL LINE contacted a number of sources only to find out that local transfer and storage businesses are your only source in Iowa City.

Only those married students presently living in married student housing can store furniture through the student housing office. Dorm residents can store only one piece of furniture.

Rates for summer storage would average approximately $30. This of course would depend on how much you have.

Most storage businesses charge 85 cents per 100 lbs. with a $10 minimum fee regardless of the amount. In addition, some storage places charge a $10 fee for handling.

We would suggest finding an understanding friend who wouldn't mind a few extra things around for the summer or ask the person you buy your furniture from if they would keep it until next August.

I got a warning ticket last Sunday for hitchhiking on Interstate 80 in Illinois. What happens if I get another one and how long do they stay on file in Illinois? If I have to go to court how much will I be fined? Please hurry because I have to go back in two weeks and I want to know what I'm up against.—B.A.

You mean you're going to try, try again? According to the state police in Illinois, you were just lucky the last time.

A representative of the Command Office in Springfield tells SURVIVAL LINE that the officer who ticketed you didn't have to be so nice. He could have arrested you the first time instead of giving you a warning.

However, if you do try it again and get arrested, the fine will be determined by the judge who tries you. The officer says the fine would probably be $15 but could go as high as $100.

According to a person in the Driver's Division of the Motor Vehicle Dept., violation would not be recorded because it is not a moving violation.

'Illegitimate' kids: Film stars' fad?

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"That's true: Movie stars lead the way," David Carradine remarked sardonically.

He was commenting on a San Francisco County adoption supervisor's recent statement that one reason more unwed mothers are keeping their children is because so many actresses bear children out of wedlock.

"There are other factors, like abortion and a declining birth rate," said Dorothy Murphy, explaining the decline of babies for adoption. "But most of it has to do with the movie star publicity."

Among film stars who have had children out of wedlock are Mia Farrow, who later married the father of her twin sons, musician Andre Previn; Vanessa Redgrave, who has not wed actor Franco Nero, the father of her third child; and Juliet Prowse, who said in February that she has no plan to marry dancer John McCook, father of the child she is expecting.

David Carradine and Barbara Hershey are stars of a new film, "Boxcar Bertha." They are expecting their first baby in late summer. They also are not married.

Do they expect to marry? "No—never," said Miss Hershey. "I don't believe in marriage. If a relationship isn't right, you should be able to end it at any time."

"I was married once," said Carradine. "It was when I was in the Army. The Army is a rotten place to be when you're single but it's okay when you're married. It seemed like the thing to do, so I did it."

The father of a daughter, he is now divorced.

Their life style is far removed from that of movie stars of the past—in every way. They talked with complete openness about their life together.

"We met in the traditional Hollywood manner—on a movie location," Carradine recalled. "We were both appearing in 'Heaven with a Gun,' and the reaction was immediate."

They have been living together for three years, and during that time their careers have thrived. Star of television's "The Monroes," Miss Hershey has scored impressively in "Last Summer" and "The Baby Maker."

Carradine, whose father, John, is the famed character actor, has appeared in "The Violent Ones" and other features, starred as TV's

"Shane" and next season will appear in further episodes of a television feature, "King Fu."

Baseball awards the 'Bowie'-- And now, the envelope please

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball's first weekend is history and that's all the time it took to award the first annual "Bowies" for excellence in various areas of the sport.

And now, the envelopes please. The Jack Armstrong "Bowie" for staying in shape during the players' strike goes to Chicago's Burt Hooton, who owns the season's first no-hitter. Do you think the layoff bothered him? He didn't give a hoot about it.

The Marvin Miller "Bowie" for remaining on strike after the settlement goes to the Chicago White Sox, who lost all three games they played. That'll teach management to let them work out while everybody else is picketing.

The Hank Aguirre-Sandy Koufax "Bowie" for batting excellence by a pitcher goes to Rick Wise of the St. Louis Cardinals, who had a single and double in his first start for his new team.

The Butterfingers "Bowie" for fielding clumsiness goes to two players—Moe Drabowsky of the Cardinals and Jose Cardenal of the Cubs. Both made ninth inning errors to help snatch defeat from the jaws of victory.

The Frank Merriwell "Bowie" for ninth inning heroism also goes to two players—Bobby Darwin of Minnesota and Bob Oliver of Kansas City. Both tagged two-out ninth inning homers to tie up ball games.

The Dick Allen "Bowie" for player promptness goes to Kansas City's Amos Otis, who drove from his home in Virginia after the player strike ended and arrived in Kansas City in time for the fifth inning of Saturday's opener.

The Golden Bat "Bowie" for new sluggers goes to Detroit's Ed Brinkman, whose homer won the Tigers' opener. It matched his total number of homers for each of the last two seasons and gave him six in the last six years.

The Raincoat "Bowie" for weather goes to the Baltimore Orioles, who were rained out 14 times at home last season and put an umbrella on the cover of their press-radio guide. The Birds had two more washouts over the weekend and the one game they did manage to play lasted just six innings before it was stopped because of rain.

The Babe Ruth "Bowie" for pitchers who'd rather switch than fight goes to Bobby Darwin of the Twins, who was a washout as a hurler but hit homers in his first two games as an outfielder.

The First Pitch "Bowie" for excellence in officially opening the season goes to Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, who threw out the first ball in New York after spending two weeks suffering through the first strike.

All in the game

By KEITH GILLET
Daily Iowan Sports Editor

National letter day is rapidly approaching for Iowa Head Football Coach Frank Lauterbur and the rest of his staff and no doubt they have spent some sleepless nights this past week.

(That's saying quite a bit when you figure all the 6 a.m. football practices the past two weeks.)

The recruiting has been intense this past year, and it looks as if it has paid off. There will be players on the roster from all parts of the country and it looks like Lauterbur got the best of the picks in Iowa.

Late Monday afternoon, Iowa assistant coaches were getting ready to leave for various parts of the country so that they can personally sign in a number of the most heavily recruited players, on Wednesday.

One thing that has helped is the freshmen eligibility. A number of prospects see Iowa as a "down" school in football that could pick up in a hurry with their presence. Lauterbur has stated that he only wants to sign players that indicate they can play as freshmen, and expects several in the group of 30 recruits to be in the lineup sometime during the year.

Probably overlooked in this wild scramble for talent is Iowa Head Basketball Coach Dick Schultz who has spent a lot of time scouring the country for talent, along with assistants Joe Roberts and Dick Kuchen. Plans are to sign six frosh prospects along with one junior college guard.

The staff has a line on three or four junior college prospects right now and will be deciding on them within the next few days. The staff expects to have five basketball players signed by the end of the week.

One thing that would add a realistic air to the carnival atmosphere of all this activity the past three months would be to have the coach sign the kid while someone plays Joe Tex' smash song "I've Got You." It might sound funny, but it probably would be right.

Even though it's all over now, the baseball strike was important from the standpoint that baseball finally organized itself into a bargaining unit. Too often in the past, greedy team owners have taken advantage of the players while pocketing the profits that come in.

A lot of people think that the players have a good deal going for them.

You're right, they do.

But how many of us would want to live Spartan lives for the next ten years, risk injury and permanent disability just to please 50,000 crazy people?

These guys aren't just overgrown kids still playing sports. They're in it because there's money but the money lasts only as long as you are able to stay ahead of some wild eyed rookie.

So the players have set up a pension. A rich lucrative one to pay them back for the long hours and the best years of their lives that they have missed.

As you can understand, I was quite happy to see the players get the increase in their pension. Most felt that the loss of a few thousand dollars of salary this year was worth the extra that they'll get when they retire.

Probably the most surprising outcome of the strike was that it even happened in the first place. Now that the baseball players have stood firm and won, look for football players to do likewise next season.

It's our first taste of "Jock Power," and it probably won't be our last.

If you count on your car for lots of good times, why not give it the best care you can? One way is using Standard gasolines.

Standard's Lead-Free Amoco, the new car gasoline, not only helps cut down on air pollution, but tests prove it can double the life of your muffler and tail pipe compared to fully leaded gasolines. Makes your spark plugs last longer, too.

It's a fact—more drivers in the Midwest care for their cars with Standard gasolines than any other brand. And they keep coming back. Isn't that the truest test of quality?

You've got a lot of money in your car. And you count on it for lots of good times. So take good care of it... with Standard.

You expect more from Standard and you get it.™

Baseball's sour note

Fans booed, threw oranges but players see game's survival

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

Fans booed. Oranges flew from the stands in Cincinnati. At Oakland, a manager wanted to kill the umpire. In some places, it rained. In most, crowds were smaller than usual.

There were no trumpets and fanfare. In the nation's capital, the President didn't throw out the first ball. Even if he had, there wouldn't have been anybody to catch it—the team had fled to Texas.

The strike-delayed 1972 baseball season got off on a negative note over the weekend, but players and officials alike shrugged it off Monday and predicted better days.

"We must keep our heads up and not show any hostility to the fans," said Don Gullett, lefthanded pitcher of the Cincinnati Reds who will start Tuesday night's game against Houston. "I think the fans will come back and enjoy the games."

"It's inevitable that some fans will get on us for striking," added Terry Harmon, infielder and player representative of the Philadelphia

Phillies, "but a lot have been through it themselves and probably will understand."

The player representative of the Atlanta Braves, relief pitcher Cecil Upshaw, said the strike overall was bad for baseball, but he added: "I hope if one thing comes out of this, it will be that baseball will restructure itself so we can handle these problems without bringing them into the public eye, without coming to the strike."

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, who had said only the day before that the players took the brunt of the fans' distaste over the strike and should really be the "good guys" of the public, was booed when he threw out the first ball of the New York Mets' opener Saturday against the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates.

Some of the loudest boos were heard in Cincinnati where fans jeered Johnny Bench, Pete Rose and Jim Merritt, all heroes of the Reds' 1970 pennant drive.

They even tossed oranges at Rose in left field. "They had as bad arms as I do," Rose said. "They missed."

Brooks Robinson, the Orioles' All-Star with the golden glove who was his team's representative in the strike vote, drew abuse at Baltimore where the American League champions won a rain-curtailed game 3-1 over the New York Yankees Sunday.

"I really didn't notice them," Robinson said benignly. "I thought the fans overall were just great."

Showing no favoritism, fans booed Royals' owner Ewing Kauffman at Kansas City and cheered delightedly when Nick Mileti, the new owner of the Indians, lost his balance and fell on the wire barrier after delivering the first ball at Cleveland.

The game produced natural and touching aspects elsewhere. Manager Dick Williams of the Oakland Athletics blamed plate umpire Marty Springstead for the A's 3-2 loss to the Minnesota Twins, contending Springstead blew three calls. At Shea Stadium in New York, the fans were reverent during ceremonies retiring the No. 14 uniform of Manager Gil Hodges who died of a heart attack April 2.

"I don't feel he's gone," said shortstop Bud Harrelson of the Mets.

There were varying opinions on how much edge had been lost by the players during the two weeks' strike, but almost all were of a mind that the pitchers are off to a better start than the hitters—a situation many regard as normal.

"They talk about the effect of the strike layoff on pitchers and their rhythms," said Manager Ted Williams of the Texas Rangers, "but, hell, it's harder on the hitters."

"The hitters have a problem in regaining timing and I would guess the layoff has meant 25 per cent difference to them to get back their timing and concentration at the plate."

The opening games were largely pitchers' games, highlighted by the no-hitter Sunday by the Chicago Cubs' young Burt Hooten against Philadelphia.

Don Mincher, the Rangers' first baseman, said, "I notice I'm a little bit over on one pitch or too late on another."

"Two weeks wasn't long enough to get fat," said the Braves' Upshaw,

"but you can lose your edge."

Baltimore's Robinson said he didn't feel that the layoff hurt at all. "This was the first time I'd fielded a ground ball in over two weeks," he said, "but I felt like I'd never been away."

Teammate Mark Belanger said, "I think because of the layoff everybody went out and bowed his neck just a little more to make up for it. I think it showed—nobody had a really bad day."

"We had a meeting before our game," said the Reds' Gullett, "and someone mentioned the fans were almost sure to get on us if someone makes a boo-boo or an error."

"As far as the ball players are concerned, the strike is forgotten."

The Phils' Harmon said: "I think we players and owners gained some respect for each other."

The Phils' manager, Frank Lucchesi may have spoken for everybody when he said: "I can understand how the players feel. I told them in the club house. 'Look this thing is over, let's play baseball.'"

Finnish student wins marathon

BOSTON (AP) — Finland's Olavi Suomalainen, a 25-year-old engineering student making his marathon debut, charged in to the lead with less than five miles to go and won the 76th Boston Athletic Association classic Monday by a small margin over Victor Manuel Mora of Colombia.

Suomalainen wore down Mexico's Jacinto Sabinal at Heartbreak Hill and covered the sun-bathed 26-mile, 385-yard course from Hopkinton to Boston in 2 hours, 15 minutes, 39 seconds to return the BAA laurel wreath to Finland for the first time in 10 years.

Mora closed like a sprinter and finished slightly more than 100 yards behind the flying Finn. The Colombian hit the finish in 2:15.57, just missing a bid to duplicate countryman Alvaro Mejia's victory in 1971.

Orioles rout Yankees, 4-0

BALTIMORE (AP) — Brooks Robinson and winning pitcher Dave McNally rapped run-scoring doubles in the seventh inning as the Baltimore Orioles blanked the New York Yankees 4-0 Monday night.

McNally, a 20-game winner in each of the past four seasons, rode home on a single by Don Buford as the three-run rally snapped a scoreless tie. The left-hander finished with a four-hitter.

Paul Blair opened the inning with a single, the first hit off loser Fritz Peterson since the second, and scored on the double by Robinson.

After Robinson was cut down trying for third on an infield grounder, McNally's double scored Mark Belanger and Buford followed with the fourth hit of the inning.

The Orioles closed out the scoring with a run in the eighth against Jack Aker on Merv Rettenmund's double and a single by Boog Powell.

The victory was the 13th straight in regular season play for Baltimore, one short of the club record. The Orioles closed out the 1971 season with 11 straight victories en route to their third consecutive pennant.

Not strike breakers

OAKLAND (AP)—The Oakland Athletics, who were on strike with other major league baseball players until last weekend, declined to cross picket lines on the University of California campus Monday.

An exhibition game between the A's and California Bears, scheduled to be played on the Berkeley Campus, was moved to the Oakland Coliseum.

The A's requested the switch because of the strike by building trades union members, who began picketing on the campus Monday.

And, like East and West, never the twain shall meet as far as we're concerned.

While many of our more-than-a-million members sometimes refer to us as their "insurance", nothing could be further from the actual truth.

Blue Cross and Blue Shield were born to provide health care protection to Iowans without profit. We have money coming in. We have money going out for our members' care. We have money in reserves for future care of our members. And we have remarkably small operating costs to get all of this done. That's it! No profit, no dividends to stockholders, no pay to board members.

The money that's left after that goes into better benefits and broader coverages to stay in step with medical science and your health care needs. Today's Blue Cross and Blue Shield protection is much better than it was just four or five years ago. It will keep getting better thanks to the fact that we don't need to cut down on care in order to make a profit.
