Today will be the kind of day that would drive Thoreau indoors. Instead of being sunny and nice and generally warm enough to increase everyone's yearnings to get out of this god-forsaken town, it'll be chilly and cloudy. By the time you hit the sack tonight it should be raining. Welcome to pork country.

One-a-month

The Cooperative has adopted an option recommended by the Student Judicial Court to name one of its members as student body president each month.

The court ruled last week that the Coop did not fill the office of vice-president and would have to make some move to fill that position, even if on a temporary basis.

Effective April 18, Michael J. Pill will serve as temporary vice-president for four weeks, the Coop announced Tuesday.

Will testify

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential assistant Peter M. Flanigan offered Tuesday to give limited testimony to the Senate Judiciary Committee in its ITT inquiry, apparently removing a roadblock to confirmation of Richard G. Kleindienst as attorney general.

Flanigan said he would testify only in limited fashion on what he knows about the out-of-court settlement last summer of three antitrust suits filed by the government against ITT.

Democrats on the committee said they would question Flanigan on a broad range of Nixon administration antitrust policies, including some not connected with ITT.

Reds strike

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — Communist-controlled unions began a two-day general strike Tuesday while the party buried seven of its members killed in a battle with police.

A gun fight at a Communist party district headquarters broke out Monday when the government claimed Tupamaro guerrillas, on whom it is waging war, took refuge in the building.

The Communists, who oppose the terrorist tactics of the Tupamaro urban guerrillas, denied any had taken refuge inside. A government communiqué then backed off from its claim that the Tupamaros were inside the building. The Communist party is legal in Uruguay.

Join us?

Members of an anti-war group asked City Councilmen Tuesday night to join in today's protest vigil against the bombing of North Vietnam.

The councilmen each received a white armband to wear in mourning "for lives that continue to be lost as a result of America's war policies."

Jamie Bourland, a member of the anti-war group, told the council that "white is the symbol of mourning in the Far East. We mourn all those who have died and the lives that continue to be lost."

The vigil will be held between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. today and organizers hope to line the Clinton Street side of the Pentacrest with a human chain in protest of the renewed escalation of the war.

The council was also invited to attend other anti-war activities planned for this week. Councilmen accepted the armbands, but did not indicate whether they would participate in the vigil.

Also at the Tuesday council meeting, the Free Angela Davis Committee asked the council to grant a permit to use City Park for a rally slated for May 13.

Acting City Manager Ralph E. Speer, Jr., refused the permit because he said the group had failed to guarantee the necessary insurance coverage for the event.

Valerie J. Sutton, 5622 Kate Daum, a member of the committee, explained, "We have been unable to find an insurance company that has a policy for a one day event, much less one that will sell us the coverage."

The council waived a requirement that liability insurance be acquired 30 days in advance of an event, to give the group more time to get the insurance.

Mayor C. L. Brandt said he would take under consideration a request by Ms. Sutton that May 8-14 be declared Free Angela Davis Week in Iowa City.

U.S. decreases air strikes in Vietnam

SAIGON (AP) — Despite perfect weather and a multitude of prime military targets, the United States has sharply curtailed its bombing of North Vietnam and put the Hanoi-Haiphong heartland off limits to aerial raiders, U.S. military sources said Tuesday.

The sources emphasized, however, that President Nixon likely would resume widespread bombing in the North if there is no positive signal from Hanoi that it would end the current general offensive in South Vietnam.

One source noted that strikes now are running at less than a dozen a day following the huge raids Sunday that included strikes in the Hanoi and Haiphong areas.

The curtailment, "to feel Hanoi out," as one informant said, came as Hanoi's delegation to the Paris peace talks said Monday if the bombing stopped, it was ready to start secret negotiations on ending the war.

Perhaps only coincidentally, war communiques showed the ground war in the South to have dwindled dramatically. There were no reported major battles.

Military sources here said bombing now was restricted by the President to targets below the 20th parallel of latitude, 60 miles south of Hanoi and Haiphong.

Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said in Washington there was "no substance" to the report of bombing restrictions. A White House spokesman said this was the authorized official position.

However, told of Laird's remark, informants here said they stuck to the position that Nixon had laid down the bombing restrictions.

Later in the day, Laird declined to say specifically whether raids are continuing at Haiphong and in Hanoi's vicinity.

It appeared possible that Washington's public position might, as it often has in the past, mask behind-the-scenes moves. One possibility was that without a naked public threat to resume full-scale bombing unless Hanoi calls off its offensive, the North Vietnamese could do so without losing face.

The U.S. Command officially declined to comment on the report of sharply curtailed bombing in the North.

While action was curtailed in the North, U.S. bombers stepped up their attacks against North Vietnamese positions in South Vietnam, logging more than 1,000 strikes Monday and Tuesday in the heaviest raids since the peak days of the air war from 1965 to 1968.

The U.S. Command announced the loss of three aircraft in the South.

Four American crewmen and two South Korean soldiers were killed when an Army helicopter crashed on the central coast while supporting Korean forces.

A four-engine C130 transport plane was hit by enemy fire while trying to resupply the embattled provincial capital of An Loc, 60 miles north of Saigon. It crashed 25 miles from Saigon. All six crewmen were rescued, two of them injured.

An Army helicopter was shot down 32 miles southwest of Da Nang, but both crewmen escaped uninjured.

By far the most dramatic ground action in Indochina was centered around the temple ruins of Angkor Wat in Cambodia's northwest.

North Vietnamese troops swarmed toward a Cambodian relief column trying to reach a 1,000-man government force trapped near the temples.

There were indications the relief column now was surrounded, too. The imperiled government soldiers are part of a drive to encircle the Angkor Wat complex which has been in North Vietnamese hands for two years.

In Vietnam, a senior U.S. adviser said that although there is an overall lull in fighting below the demilitarized zone on the northern front, North Vietnamese troops are believed still under orders to press their offensive.

"They are continuing to push in supplies and equipment," the adviser said.

On the southern front, Lt. Gen. Nguyen Van Minh, commander of South Vietnamese forces in the Saigon region, said the first critical phase of fighting around the provincial capital of An Loc had passed.

But he said he anticipated a second round of attacks along the corridor north of Saigon as the North Vietnamese seek to capture An Loc and set up a capital there for the Viet Cong's provisional revolutionary government.

Minh said his troops were in control of most of An Loc, 60 miles north of Saigon, after a week of heavy fighting.

U.S. fleet suffers two deaths in new Vietnam offensive

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. 7th Fleet destroyers have suffered their first fatalities of the three-week North Vietnamese offensive.

The U.S. Command, after nearly 24 hours' delay, announced Tuesday that two Americans were killed and 16 injured in incidents Sunday and Monday involving the guided missile frigate Worden in the Tonkin Gulf and the guided missile destroyer Buchanan off North Vietnam.

The command said one sailor was killed and seven were injured aboard the Buchanan by a shell from an enemy shore battery. The ship suffered damage to its superstructure.

The other incident was an "explosion" aboard the Worden which killed one sailor and wounded nine.

The U.S. Command, pressed with queries from newsmen, was reported to have put pressure on Adm. Bernard A. Clarey, commander of the Pacific Fleet, to give it a report on the Worden incident. A command statement later gave scant details, saying only: "The exact cause of the explosion has not been determined. Preliminary reports indicate the Worden was beyond range of enemy shore batteries. We do not know whether fire from enemy vessels may have been involved. We have no further details at this time."

While sources at the Pentagon in Washington said the Worden apparently was attacked by a high-speed North Vietnamese patrol boat, there was speculation in Saigon it may have been hit by a missile or shell fired from another 7th Fleet ship or from an American jet fighter-bomber.

Students set strikes Friday

By BILL ROEMERMAN
Daily Iowan Staff Writer

A call has gone out nation-wide, and from other Iowa colleges, for a student strike Friday to protest the escalation of the bombing in North Vietnam.

Kristine S. Thieker of the Cooperative said she received calls Tuesday from students in Ames and Grinnell calling for a state-wide student strike on Friday to protest the war.

The University of Iowa student body executive and the Student Senate recommended Tuesday night that UI students follow their own consciences in deciding whether or not to participate in the strike.

In addition, a nation-wide strike has been called by national student anti-war leaders.

Local anti-war activities planned this week include a peace vigil today on the east side of the Pentacrest; an anti-war poetry reading and teach-in on the Pentacrest Saturday; and an ecumenical peace service on Sunday.

Student Senate endorsed all of these activities Tuesday night.

Use of the Pentacrest for Saturday and Sunday's anti-war activities will probably be approved by the administration, Frances P. Leone, member of a local planning group, said Tuesday night.

Leone said approval of the administration was not needed for today's "peace vigil," and that after speaking with Richard E. Gibson, UI Director of Facilities, he saw no problem in getting permission to use the Pentacrest Saturday and Sunday.

Leone said that city council members Tuesday night were invited to today's vigil and were given white headbands and armbands to be worn in protest. The whole community is invited to participate, he said, and all are urged to wear white head and arm bands.

"Something's got to be done about this," Leone said, referring to increased bombings of the war. "We hope other groups will follow our lead."

Bruce R. Johnson, member of Students for a Democratic Society (SDS), said that although he knew little of the plans, he thought the action would be ineffective.

All of North Vietnam is subject to attack: Laird

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird said Tuesday he would not rule out mining Haiphong harbor or establishing a naval blockade of North Vietnam to blunt the Communist invasion of the South.

Laird responded with a terse, "Yes," when asked by Sen. J. W. Fulbright if any thought was being given to these possibilities. Laird was testifying before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee chaired by the Arkansas Democrat, a longtime critic of policy in Vietnam.

The Defense secretary said there are many contingency plans and noted that these two possibilities had been discussed by the previous administration. But when pressed by Fulbright if they were merely old contingency plans, Laird said: "I would not rule it out."

In a four-and-a-half-hour appearance before the committee, Laird said that "any area of North Vietnam, as long as the invasion continues, is subject to attack."

But he declined to state specifically whether the aerial bombing of the Hanoi-Haiphong area was continuing.

"I am not going to outline target areas," he said, adding that U.S. air power is being used in the North, in the South and within the demilitarized zone dividing the two Vietnams.

Prior to the committee session, Laird told newsmen there was no substance to reports that President Nixon has suspended the bombing of North Vietnam's heartland to see if Hanoi backed off from its offensive in the south. The reports were attributed to official U.S. military sources in Saigon who continued to insist that this was the policy.

At the White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler was asked by newsmen about the reports of a bombing suspension and Laird's denial.

"I'd go along with the Secretary of Defense and not a secondary source in Saigon," Ziegler said.

The Secretary of State said the President would take whatever steps were necessary—short of reintroducing ground troops or using nuclear weapons—to thwart the North Vietnamese offensive.

City sues to clean up local 'dog' house

By PAUL DAVIES
Daily Iowan Staff Writer

Iowa City is suing a local homeowner to get his house cleaned up.

The house, at 1127 Franklin Street, was declared "to be detrimental to life and health" by a city health officer who also declared it to be a nuisance and ordered that it be corrected.

"Said nuisance consists of an accumulation of dog and rat fecal matter to a depth of several inches inside the said house; also several rats and the body of a puppy which had been partially consumed by rats were found inside said house," the suit says.

"Many insects drawn by the fecal material, garbage and filth were in evidence. Said nuisance, if allowed to continue during the warm weather months, may have a deleterious effect on the community at large," the city's suit states.

The house belongs to Edgar H. Rushfeldt, 77, who is now living in the Iowa City Care Center.

The city became involved in the case March 13 when neighbors complained about the house to the city housing department.

The neighbors also pressed for action March 16, when they presented a petition to the city council requesting "immediate and permanent condemnation and removal by destruction of the building." The petition was signed by 16 area residents, and another neighbor asked for action in a call from Georgia where he was vacationing.

Omer Letts, a housing inspector, visited the home March 13 and returned the next day with a city animal shelter employee. They removed 21 dogs from the house, he said.

The animal shelter still had 17 of the dogs Tuesday. One puppy had died and one dog was injured so badly by the others that it was destroyed, as was one sick dog. Another dog was taken from the shelter by Rushfeldt's nephew.

Letts placarded the house as being unfit for human occupancy March 14. The following day he sent a letter to Rushfeldt ordering him to remove the fecal matter and begin exterminating rodents and insects in the house by March 27.

Rushfeldt was then in Mercy Hospital, where he had been taken March 4 after a mailman found him lying on the floor in his house, suffering from malnutrition.

The city's suit, filed Monday, says Rushfeldt has not complied with the order and asks the Johnson County District Court to require abatement of the health nuisance and prohibit occupancy of the house until that is done.

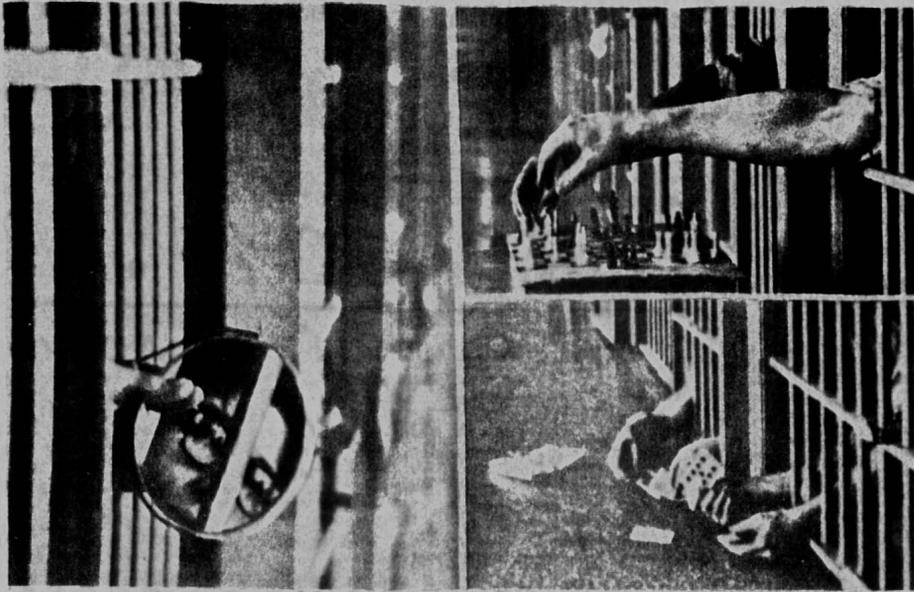

The city also wants the court to fine Rushfeldt under an Iowa law which allows a $50 fine for failure to abate such a nuisance.

Letts said Tuesday that Rushfeldt's relatives are planning to clean the house, but said it is "not getting cleaned up fast enough."

"I just think it's an endless cause," he said.

He warned that as weather gets warmer, "the smell gets more hideous than ever."

Student Senate backs war vigil

$7 campus bus fee recommended

The University of Iowa Student Senate Tuesday night endorsed a two hour peace vigil today in response to escalation of the Viet Nam war, along with other local anti-war activities scheduled this week.

Students should wear white headbands or armbands today, according to Cooperative member Michael J. Pill.

"The white band is the Vietnamese symbol for mourning," he said.

Other events the senate endorsed included the opening of the Indochina Mobile Education Project at the Mall Shopping Center Thursday; a Vietnamese dinner Friday night at the Congregational Church; a teach-in and anti-war poetry reading on the Pentacrest at noon Saturday; and a Sunday morning Ecumenical Peace Service, also on the Pentacrest.

In other business, senate recommended adoption of a mandatory $7 student fee to partially finance the campus shuttle bus system next year.

Total cost to run the bus system will be over $507,000, according to Cooperative member Susan M. Ross.

Money to continue the shuttle service would come from a university interest free loan, to be paid back by student fees over a period of ten years, Ms. Ross said.

She added that faculty members would pay a $10 fee to ride the campus shuttle.

A petition drive in support of the financing proposal will be started within two weeks to obtain 8,000 to 10,000 student signatures for presentation to the Board of Regents at their June meeting.

The plan endorsed by the senate includes purchasing 12 buses and provides for service after Iowa City buses have stopped running.

Student protests surface

Call for campus strikes Friday

By The Associated Press
Protests against U.S. bombing in North Vietnam surfaced at a number of college campuses Tuesday, with demonstrators setting a fire in a Harvard center and confronting police at the University of Maryland. Elsewhere, there were calls for student strikes on Friday.

About 100 riot-equipped Maryland state policemen, using tear gas and dogs, moved along U.S. Route 1 to break up a demonstration by about 500 students who blocked the highway after a rally on the University of Maryland campus.

Leaders of the nationwide antiwar movement said they planned demonstrations, boycotts and other manifestations for Thursday and Friday.

Ivy League newspapers printed editorials calling for a moratorium and student strikes Friday.

At Cambridge, Mass., antiwar protesters stoned the Harvard Center for International Studies, then entered the building, set a fire and vandalized parts of the three-story structure.

"There's glass, books and files strewn all over the place," a newsman reported. He said "Avenge Hanoi" and "NLF Wins" were written on walls in red paint.

Firemen extinguished the blaze they said was started in a pile of papers on an office floor.

Some 200 demonstrators rushed the building, and some got inside but fled after about 10 minutes and, with onlookers, splintered into groups that moved off in different directions. The building housing the center is the site of some government research conducted by Harvard.

No arrests appeared to have been made immediately.

The center vandals were among 800 young persons who made a five-mile march to the school from Boston Common. Two hours earlier, 1,200 persons had gathered at the Common, several draft cards were burned and a sitdown was held in front of an Air Force recruiting office.

Work-study jobs available

He added that those students wishing employment during the summer must be accepted as a full-time student for the following fall semester. Students enrolled in summer school may only work part-time during the session. But those not registered for summer classes may work up to 40 hours a week.

"The great majority of jobs offered in the program come from university departments," Kundler said, "but some students are working for public and non-profit agencies."

The type of employment falls largely into three general areas of secretarial work, laboratory work, and research assistants. Employment is often, but not necessarily, related to a student's educational objective.

The program's pay scale is one of the top 10 in schools across the country and minimum wages begin at $1.70 per hour, Kundler said. A student's experience and background for the particular job are used as criteria in setting the exact hourly wage.

Late applications are still being accepted by the University of Iowa Work-Study program for summer and fall employment.

John A. Kundler, assistant director of the Financial Aid Office is asking that prospective employers in the program contact his office now.

Student eligibility for the work-study program is based upon financial need, which is determined by an evaluation of the parents and/or students financial situation, he said.

Priority for the work-study program is given to students from families whose parental gross income is $9,000 or less, but Kundler said between 75 and 80 per cent of all applicants in the past year have been placed in jobs.

Students applying for the program must be American citizens or residing in the United States on a permanent basis. They must also be registered for at least 12 semester hours if they are undergraduates and at least 8 semester hours if they are graduate or professional students.

Fall finals end early in '72

The State Board of Regents last week approved the University of Iowa's official calendar for the academic years 1972-73 and 1973-74, with the first semesters of each ending before Christmas rather than in mid-January.

The 1972-73 calendar goes into effect in June with summer session, which begins June 5 and ends July 28. The fall semester opens August 31, which is 13 days earlier than in 1971, and examination week ends Dec. 22.

The period between the close of first-semester examinations and the beginning of second-semester registration on Jan. 11 will be open for students to pursue independent study with instructors. The second semester final examinations next year end May 16.

The first semester of the 1973-74 academic year begins Aug. 30 and the final day of exams is Dec. 21. Second semester will open Jan. 14 with the last day of finals being May 15, 1974. The 1973 summer session will be June 5-July 27.

Mother's Day for UI is set

Preparations are under way for the 44th consecutive Mother's Day Weekend to be held May 5-7 at the University of Iowa.

The weekend is sponsored by Mortar Board, senior college women's honorary.

The UI Mother of the Year will be presented at the Mother's Day Luncheon in the Union Main Lounge May 6 at noon. Prof. George Forrell of the School of Religion will be the guest speaker.

Synchronized swimming shows, tours of the campus and the Museum of Art, music and dance concerts and an art sale will be among the weekend features. Also included will be intercollegiate tennis matches, a sailing regatta and ceremonies honoring outstanding UI students.

Other events open to mothers of students and to their guests include performances by several UI music groups such as the "Swing into Spring" concert by the Old Gold Singers and the Percussion Ensemble May 5 at 8 p.m. in the Main Lounge. The Scottish Highlanders will perform in Macbride Auditorium May 6 at 1:45 p.m.

Concluding the weekend's festivities will be a UI Dance Theatre concert, "Vivachi!" at 2:30 p.m. May 7 in University Theatre.

Football programs in ISA future?

Iowa Student Agencies, Inc., (ISA), the student managed corporation that runs The Hulk bar and sells lecture notes, might get into the selling-end of the football program business next year.

The University of Iowa Athletic Dept. has taken over publication, sale of advertising and stadium sale of the programs from Student Publications, Inc. (SPI) and is considering giving ISA a cut of the action.

Last season, Iowa ranked last in the Big Ten for sales of programs (as well as in football), with income of $19,000 at 50 cents per program, according to George Wine, Sports Information Director.

Former student body Pres. Ted P. Politis told ISA Board of Directors Monday that he had been asked by the athletic department if ISA would be interested in selling the programs.

Politis said that 30 student jobs could be created through ISA if an arrangement was worked out.

Wine said that in past years non-scholarship athletes and some other students handled the sale of the programs and made up to $30 on a game afternoon. The athletic department has decided not to continue this method or turn the sales over to ISA, Wine said.

SPI Board publisher Frank R. Hash said Tuesday that SPI gave up the publication of the program because it has become difficult to break even at 50 cents per program.

"Low gate receipts reflect low program sales," Hash said, referring to last football season. "I question whether a program can be sold at 50 cents for a profit."

UI pays $.25 million to local government

Nearly a quarter of a million dollars is paid to local governmental units each year by the University of Iowa, according to a report presented to the State Board of Regents by R. Wayne Richey, Regents executive secretary.

In 1970-71, UI paid $243,101.25 to Iowa City, Johnson County and the Iowa City Community School District for purposes ranging from fire protection to tuition payments.

The report shows UI paying in 1970-71 for such services as fire hydrant rental ($1986.33), sewage treatment ($8,721.29), fire protection ($98,796.82), and sanitary land fill ($6,047.90).

Another $114,948.91 went to the Iowa City school district as tuition for married students' children living on University property and attending local schools.

The Johnson County Regional Planning Commission received a $2,600 contribution from the university for the commission's on-going environmental studies.

The Regents' institutions—the state's three universities and two special schools—paid $947,958 in 1970-71 to the communities in which they are situated, including payments for electricity and water in some cases, the report shows.

Claims nuisance laws are unconstitutional

A rural Johnson County man is seeking an injunction to stop the county Health Department from requiring him to remove some old cars from his land.

Robert J. Walker, R. R. 4, received a Health Department notice March 14 that he must remove "all cars and trucks that are not licensed or operable" from his land by May 1.

Walker says in his court petition that he, his wife, and their 15 children "would suffer irreparable harm" if he must remove the vehicles.

He contends that two health board regulations are unconstitutional because they do not provide for advance notice and a hearing on whether he has actually created health nuisance.

Under the two regulations a person who creates a health nuisance or does not comply with an order to abate such a nuisance is guilty of a misdemeanor and liable to a $100 fine or a 30 day jail sentence. Each day of violating the regulation is considered a separate offense. The health department can also correct the nuisance and bill the property owner if he does not do so.

Walker is asking for temporary and permanent injunc-

Simply cured if detected

By RON ELLYSON
Daily Iowan Staff Writer

Editor's Note: This is the second of two articles on venereal disease in Johnson County and what is being done about it.

If you've been to the University of Iowa Student Health Service or the Iowa City Free Medical Clinic recently with a case of venereal disease (VD), you probably found that medical personnel didn't bat an eyelid at hearing your problem and that treatment was about as simple as getting a shot in your rear end.

According to Cheryl Yackshaw, director of the Free Clinic, the increased number of patients that the clinic has seen within the past two months is due in part to their assurance that all information on treatments there is confidential.

Records for cases of gonorrhea in Johnson County show that the disease in this area is being held at bay, according to Koontz. "My opinion is that there has been somewhat of a decrease in VD, at least statistically," he said, "but I don't know if it has decreased. I think it has and I hope it has."

Some of the apparent decrease may be because many clinics no longer report "epidemiological" treatments, where a person who has had sexual contact with a known carrier of the disease is treated although he may not have contracted himself.

Koontz said that physicians turn in all cases of VD to an investigator for the State Health Department to facilitate this kind of treatment.

"All of this is done confidentially, so that the only ones who are involved are the physician and the investigator," he said.

According to Koontz, the investigator meets with the person who has VD and tries to find out who he has had sexual contact with in the recent past.

"Also, more people come here because there's no charge, and so young people don't have to ask their parents for money," she said. But despite the fact that more people are seeking treatment now than before, cases of gonorrhea and syphilis appears to be on the increase.

"The epidemic has grown by leaps and bounds," according to Dr. Franklin P. Koontz, assistant director of the State Bacteriological Laboratory. "Some of the 'increase' may be due to better reporting, but there's more gonorrhea, no doubt about it."

He then talks with each of those people individually, saying only that their name has been given as a possible contact.

"A person who is being treated should remember that there is always another person involved," Koontz said. "If he knows who his contacts were, he should tell the physician."

One difficulty in finding cases of gonorrhea is that the female shows no outward symptoms of the disease.

For gonorrhea to be detected in a female, a culture must be taken from the inner lining of her cervix, and the culture takes two to five days to develop, according to Koontz.

For the male, venereal bacteria can be easily detected by making a Gram stain on a smear of exudate or "pus" from his penis and looking at the substance under a microscope.

"Thus the best diagnostic tool we have for female gonorrhea is the male penis," Koontz said.

These tests are not necessary, of course, before someone can be treated for gonorrhea. According to Ms. Yackshaw of the Free Medical Clinic, "If someone says he has had contact with VD, we immediately treat him."

Most VD patients who come to the Free Clinic are given antibiotics, usually in the form of penicillin, which Koontz agreed is the general cure-all for gonorrhea or syphilis.

With treatment, a culture is made, and, if the results are positive, the patient is reported to the State Health Department, Ms. Yackshaw said. No record is kept of negative tests.

The signs that might suggest to a male that he has VD were described by one UI student who said he contracted gonorrhea about a year ago.

Richard M., 22, said that a burning sensation when he urinated and a chancre sore (resembling a fever blister) around the orifice of his penis made him realize he had VD.

"I just went to a doctor and got a lot of penicillin," he said. "He got some bacteria from the end of my penis with a cotton swab, looked at it under a microscope, and told me what I had."

Richard said the symptoms occurred about three days after he had been exposed to the disease.

"About a week after I'd gotten the shots I had to go back for the same test and some more shots because I'd drunk some alcohol, and I wasn't supposed to do that."

By the time he went back to the clinic, Richard said the sore and the burning sensation had both gone away, but he was still diagnosed as having gonorrhea.

Although it is a simple matter to cure gonorrhea in its early stages, the possible consequences of the disease are grim, especially for women.

Koontz said that females run the risk of having the gonorrhea organisms cross her cervical barrier and pass through her uterus into her fallopian tubes.

"There they may produce infection and scarring," Koontz said, "and this will cause one of two problems: her eggs may get caught inside those scarred tubes, where sperm cells can zap them and cause a tubular pregnancy; or the tubes and ovaries may become infected to a point that is referred to as pelvic inflammatory disease, which may require a hysterectomy."

No raises no surprise

By CAROL LONGMAN
Daily Iowan Staff Writer

The announcement that they will not receive any pay raises next year came as no surprise to University of Iowa faculty and academic staff personnel.

However, George Chambers, UI vice-provost, said the abscence of salary increases for the 1972-73 fiscal year "weakens our position to retain and recruit professors."

Concern over loss of faculty members was also shown by UI President Willard L. Boyd in a statement to the State Board of Regents. He said that UI has already suffered losses of faculty to schools which are paying higher salaries.

Although the university salary budget was increased by two and one-half per cent last year, there will be no general salary increase for faculty and academic staff members for the 1972-73 fiscal year.

Chambers said this is a difficult encounter for the university because "our competitors are moving forward while we are standing still."

He said the university of Northern Iowa has indicated an increase of three per cent for salaries and Iowa State university is increasing faculty salaries by about four per cent.

However, Chambers pointed out that UI elected to go with an increase last year while the other schools (UNI and ISU) did not.

He said because of this UI professors received more money over a two year period than they would have by deferring the salary increase.

Dean of Business Administration, B.L. Barnes said the news of no pay raise came as no surprise to faculty members.

Barnes said "I think it is regrettable that we are not able to recognize the contributions of our faculty by raising salaries, but I can appreciate the fact that the administration had no other alternatives, under the circumstances."

He added, "I hope the legislature recognizes that a superior university has been created here and failure to support it financially will cause it to deteriorate."

In the past two years, Barnes has lost three of his professors to higher paying schools, and he said he knows of other professors who have received better offers.

Faculty council retains committee on UI future

The University of Iowa Faculty Council voted Tuesday to retain the Committee on the Future of the University, but decided to propose that membership on the committee should be cut from nine to seven persons.

Fred C. Leone, chairman of the committee, reported there have been problems in structuring the group and also in getting members to attend.

Another problem is that "the charge of the committee is so vague as to be virtually meaningless," according to Eleanor M. Birch, co-chairwoman of the committee.

Leone suggested the subcommittees should be formed in order to deal more specifically with issues such as budgetary planning and department evaluations.

In other business, the names of faculty members who have been elected to three-year terms on the UI Faculty Senate were announced.

In a letter to J. Richard Wilmet, chairman of the Senate, Elections Committee Chairman Jack Bagford reported that the following were elected to the Faculty Senate effective July 1.

From the College of Liberal Arts, Laird D. Addis, Jr., philosophy; Richard V. Bovbjerg, zoology; Dorothy L. Fowles, home economics; Lawrence E. Gelfand, history; John C. Gerber, English; John

C. Huntley, English; Dee W. Norton, psychology; Arnold Small, Jr., speech pathology; Eugene Spaziani, zoology; and Richard W. Tock, chemical engineering.

Those who were elected to fill unexpired terms are Milton E. Rosenbaum, psychology, for two years; and James F. McCue, religion, and Harold Bechtoldt, psychology, for one year each.

From the College of Medicine, David A. Barrett II, pathology; Michael J. Brody, pharmacology; Richard Degowin, internal medicine; Richard W. Fincham, neurology; George Kalnitsky, biochemistry; Paul E. Leaverton, preventive medicine and environmental health; John Paul Long, pharmacology; and Robin D. Powell, internal medicine.

In the College of Dentistry, John J. Bergquist, periodontology, and Carl Frederic Erbe, director of clinics, were named to three-year terms. Clayton L. Shalla, oral pathology, was elected to fill an unexpired term of one year.

Eleanor M. Birch of the College of Business Administration; James G. Andrews of the College of Engineering; and George J. Norwood of the College of Pharmacy were elected to three-year terms.

The Faculty Senate will hold its last meeting of the 1972-73 academic year on May 9.

Tenant sues landlord after apartment theft

A tenant Tuesday sued her landlords because they failed to protect her against a burglar who had stolen her key.

Dorothy Merrill, 625 Emerald Street, filed suit in Johnson County District Court against Town and Campus of Iowa City and Muscatine Development Company, owners of the Country Club Apartments. Also named in the suit is Harvey Wyjack, the apartment manager.

Ms. Merrill's suit says that her apartment key was stolen from her purse last June 14. She then asked that the lock be changed, the suit says.

Someone entered the apartment July 4 and stole a $100 ring, the suit says. After that theft she asked four times that the lock be changed, according to the suit.

Again on Dec. 23 someone entered her apartment, this time taking $904 worth of personal property, according to the suit.

Ms. Merrill's lease says she is not allowed to "alter any lock or install a new or additional lock" and so the landlord had "a duty of due care...to employ reasonable measures to protect" her.

She contends that failure to replace the lock was the "proximate cause" of the theft, and asks the court to award her $1,004, with six per cent annual interest beginning Dec. 25.

The Protective Association for Tenants is providing legal services for Ms. Merrill's suit.

Court upholds loyalty oaths

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court led by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger has approved a Massachusetts loyalty oath that requires public employees to pledge to oppose the overthrow of the government.

"We are not charged with correcting grammar but with enforcing a Constitution," Burger said Tuesday in delivering a 4-3 decision that the oath is not too vague to remain on the books.

The decision reverses a panel of three federal judges in Boston who took what Burger called "a highly literalistic approach" and declared the oath invalid in 1969.

Justices William O. Douglas, William J. Brennan Jr. and Thurgood Marshall found the oath in conflict with the free-speech guarantees of the First Amendment and dissented. Douglas recalled the observation of another recently departed colleague, Justice John M. Harlan, that "almost any word or phrase may be rendered vague and ambiguous by dissection with a semantic scalpel."

Justice Harry A. Blackmun, not unexpectedly, sided with

Burger in Tuesday's decision. What made the difference was that they were joined by Justices Potter Stewart and Byron R. White, the court's "middle men."

Justices Lewis F. Powell Jr., and William H. Rehnquist, recent appointments of President Nixon, did not participate because the case was argued before they joined the court.

The Massachusetts oath was challenged by Mrs. Lucretia F. Richardson. She was fired from her job as a sociologist at a Boston mental hospital in 1968 because she refused to take the oath. It reads as follows:

"I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will uphold and defend the Constitution of the United States of America and the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and that I will oppose the overthrow of the government of the United States of America or of this commonwealth by force, violence, or by any illegal or unconstitutional method."

All public employees in the state are automatically discharged if they refuse to take the oath.

Never fear

"Harley Budd died a little Wednesday. He finally lost his battle to save the Tap Root Pub."

That's how Sun-Times Columnist Tom Fitzpatrick started his story on another of the long list of screw jobs foisted on little people, in this case a bar owner, in the name of urban renewal. The Tap Root was the last building standing on a block that had been condemned by the city in order that a private developer could put in a string of townhouses and a shopping center. The pub survived the Chicago Fire. It couldn't survive urban renewal especially when the particular in this case was the local precinct captain.

Budd, the owner, tried to bar his door against a contingent of Balboa Drive heroes. He asked for due process, he got a rap on the knuckles by a cop.

Now the liberal answer to the man's problem would be for him to open a restaurant in the shopping center that will go up nearby. Wrong!

Precinct captain Donald LeBold has been awarded a corner on the bar and restaurant market in the area. Capitalism only applies to big capitalist. Budd's only claim to a right to do business is the nearly 200,000 people who signed petitions asking that the Tap Root be allowed to stay.

The eviction last Wednesday followed a lengthy harassment of Budd. First the city took away his liquor license. People kept on coming, bringing their own bottles. Next, the city revoked his restaurant license. That didn't stop Budd. He quickly found that all you need for a restaurant is food, a kitchen.

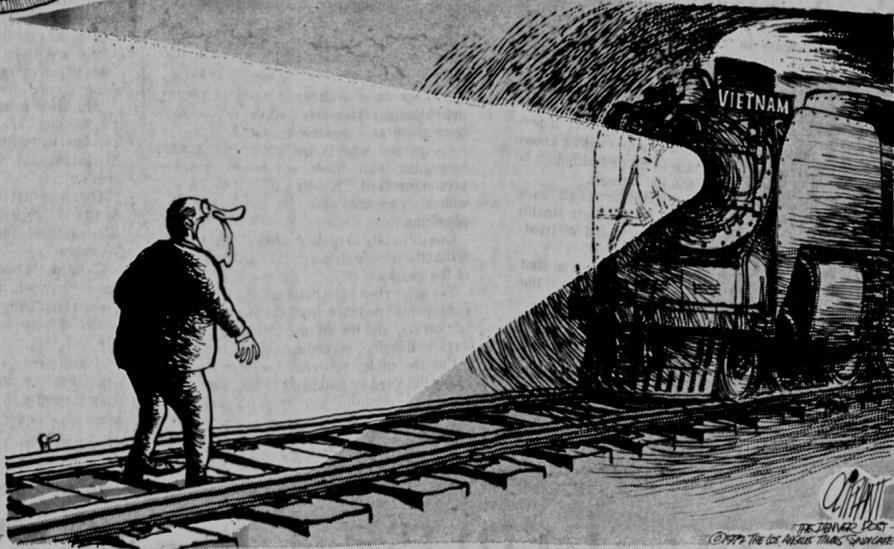

"Budd's eviction was made possible Wednesday because the city acquired the property through condemnation proceedings and sold it to a private developer. The private developer is the precinct's Democratic captain, LeBold," according to Fitzpatrick.

After they dug Budd out, and then the restaurant fixtures, and then his private belongings from his apartment above, the heavies moved in.

"As the workers carried out Budd's belongings, other workmen were moving a bulldozer into place close to the wood frame walls. As soon as the Tap Root Pub was empty they had instructions to crush it.

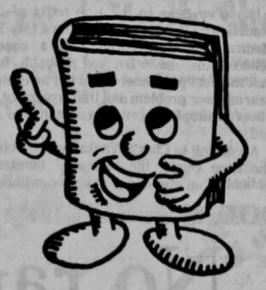

"And crush it they did."

This, of course, is how urban renewal works in Chicago. Since there is no Democratic machine in Iowa City it can't happen here.

To the editor:

President Nixon honestly does not see this nation's error. He is blind to the failure, stupidity, and ugliness of a war designed to keep one people disunited. He cannot announce total withdrawal, saving thousands of lives right now. He bombs, believing the cause is just, yet increasing the misery of Vietnam and increasing the danger of even more terrible wars. His bombing is insane. His eyes must be opened or he must be replaced.

Everyone who sees the insanity of Vietnam must do something to stop the whole mess. Student riots play right into Nixon's hand, splitting up the displeased-with-Nixon millions, and giving him a good boost to re-election. Student power can be used much more effectively, uniting the pleas of students within and among campuses, and even spreading beyond, uniting all concerned people. A common bond of sorrow over the war, of hate for the war, of love for the world affected by the war can exert such great power, that everyone will hear.

Thursday in the Union, 1000 white armbands will be given away in an attempt to make this common bond against the war seen and felt. If you get one, have one, or make one, wear it as often as you can until this nation admits its mistake and gets out of Vietnam. Or if you think of a better symbol to give life to the union against the war, get to work and spread it out. This silent protest can grow and become deafening.

Come down to the Union and pick up an armband.

I've been a Greek here at Iowa for three years now and all along I've asked myself and others why Greeks are slandered, discriminated against, and put down. I'm tired of seeing and hearing of a lot of really decent people being put down because they are Greek.

Somehow it has been misconstrued that fraternity guys are drunk, cheating on tests from test files, or beating pledges 99 per cent of their waking time. And sorority girls are stuck up Miss Prissies who find themselves too good to lower themselves to talk to other people. You're wrong if you believe this.

I don't think most of you people know what a fraternity or a sorority really is. Instead of putting us Greeks down by using second and third hand remarks from a person who once knew a Greek, find out for yourself what you're condemning. If you want, come over to my fraternity at 222 North Clinton and look inside. Anytime.

Apparently no one has told the majority of the student body or the citizens of Iowa City that fraternity guys and sorority girls are real people. We study, we bitch, we laugh, we go broke, we party, we talk, we get serious. Can you imagine all that?

The university is sucking you dry! Do you own a car? If you do—let me follow you around watching you drop nickles and dimes; let me see you run back and forth sweating and late. Let me hear you holler when the meter maid stands behind your car writing you a ticket for five or ten dollars. Let me smell your burn and feel your stomach churn as you think about how you've just been ripped off.

Then get in and ride off thinking how pissed you are—do the same nothing—but think about it alot.

Be sure to shake your fist at one of the little women in the little gremlins who come from the meter colony. If you're bold go scream at the calloused secretaries in the Old Dental Building—threaten them with attorney, it's only a bluff anyway.

To the editor:

Pertaining to Craig Karsen's letter in The Daily Iowan dated April 18, we would like to correct a few points concerning ARH and the elected representatives. The organization is composed of 16 (rather than the incorrect figure of 18) representatives from the dormitories. The number of representatives from a dormitory is logically based on each dormitory's population.

Mr. Karsen was correct in that ARH's role is to represent dormitory resident's concern in areas of vending and dining services, housing policy (24 hr. visitation, etc.) regulation of the dormitory judicial board, and KICR radio. It also represents the dormitories on the campus shuttle bus committee and acts in all other areas concerning the dormitories. "All other areas" includes implementing new ideas within the dormitory system (e.g. living-learning dorms, painting rooms, international halls and roommates, language houses and requested upper-class people roommates, just to name a few.) Also studies concerning past ARH procedures will aid in the installation of programs to increase the efficiency of ARH.

Whatever "political arena" may mean, ARH is a service organization intent on serving the residents.

A noted fallacy of Mr. Karsen's letter deals with his contention that "residents are no longer informed of the actions of the organization and issues that the residents are concerned about are not acted upon." This implies that ARH is a disorganized organization. If this is true, than how can, as Mr. Karsen states, ARH be "as one of the strongest political machines on campus"??? Its goals as a service organization eliminates so called "political gain."

It is true that ARH voted to make the positions of president, vice president, secretary and treasurer salaried positions. To be exact, the president would receive $200, while the remaining positions would be paid $100 each. After much debate, this resolution passed with the consensus that in actuality these thankless jobs deserved a lot more.

Concerning last Wednesday's postponed elections, let it be pointed out that it received advertisement on KICR and in the Lighteater, both governed by ARH. Also, it is not true that four of the five candidates running are active members of ARH. Only two candidates running for president and vice president were active members in ARH. Karsen's statement that "the same people who voted to make these positions paid" is true as far as it goes. The decision to run for president and vice president was made before the resolution had ever been mentioned. Karsen implies from his remarks that being an active member of ARH is detrimental. Experience can hardly be detrimental.

As active members of ARH, we feel that we are safe in saying that no one is trying to undermine you, Kraig Karsen, in the elections for the executive position. The lack of quorum was due to a badly timed meeting; unfortunately it happened to be elections. This has not been the case in the past year.

We also extend the invitation to all dormitory residents to attend this Wed. April 19 ARH elections.

The Crisis Center Cares But who cares about the Crisis Center?

By BARB YOST
Daily Iowan Staff Writer

The Crisis Center is having a crisis. Money is needed to support the growing project that links with a telephone line a volunteer to someone in need of help.

"We have been supporting ourselves since last July," said Kathy Beller, director of the center. "We've been raising about $1500 a month. We need to keep doing that to stay open." Until July, support had come from a government grant.

Money is needed for rent, advertisements, supplies, and three staff members' salaries. Their phone bill alone averages $80 a month, not including long distance calls.

"We need to make a lot of long distance calls," she said. "We have to find out information, sometimes about drugs, poison control information, and possibilities of grants from Des Moines or Washington."

Although funds may be going down, the popularity of the service is definitely on the rise, Ms. Beller said.

"Calls are going up. We're receiving 350 calls a month," she said. "A year ago our average was 225 a month."

Anyone who has worked for a charity organization knows the hassles that come with trying to raise needed funds. Probably no one knows better than Kathy Beller how many ways there are to go about doing that.

"We're asking for money, selling balloons. We're going to be in front of Iowa Book and Supply as soon as we have some more nice days. We write letters to organizations and go around speaking to any group that wants to hear us, and ask them for money. The funding goes on constantly. Every month we raise next month's salaries and phone bill. We've written grant applications. We try everything we can think of," she said.

At first it was hard to convince people that a program of this type was needed, she said. Now she feels that the center has proven itself with statistics and examples, and the community is more willing to donate time and money.

"People—when we start talking about statistics and the kind of experiences we've had—believe in it. The facts show this: the community has supported us since July, and a lot of it has been small donations, some large ones, like $2,000 from the city council, $500 from dormitories.

"But a lot of people just send them in—five, ten, two dollar checks. A good example is when we go out on the street and sell balloons. We do that a lot to raise money. A lot of people make the volunteers feel really good, 'cause people come up and say, 'it's really neat that you're there and the crisis center cares. It's nice somebody does.' It's really refreshing sometimes."

Is it worth all the problems and effort to raise money? Is the Crisis Center needed?

"The fact that 350 people are calling every month, with a wide range of problems, questions—the fact that we have 50 volunteers working at the center. Their level of communication is tremendous. Our basic philosophy is 'human response for human need.' Every time we do that, we justify our existence."

The Crisis Center is run on a 50-50 basis; half of the volunteers come from the community, and half from the university. The same ratio exists regarding the callers.

"Most people think that we are all students talking to other students. That's simply not true. The callers range in age from 5 to 85. As far as we can tell statistically, it's 49 per cent students," Ms. Beller said.

Volunteers are given an extensive 40-hour training session, said Ms. Beller. Staff members are selected twice a year, and cannot work at the center until their training is completed.

"We have three parts (to the training)," she said. "We have speakers come in who have an expertise in a certain area. A doctor from the psych department comes in and talks about suicide. John Jones from counseling education talks about helping relationships. We have a doctor come in who talks about VD and birth control information, general medical things."

"Then we break into small groups, and the second part is role-playing. We actually take phone calls. Someone will volunteer to have a problem, and the other person will listen and we'll go through a call. When the call is over, they'll sit and give feedback and talk about what they were feeling and what happened."

"The third part involves coming down to the center and actually sitting in and listening to other volunteers. They never listen in on the phones. They get accustomed to how things actually happen. That is 40 hours of training."

Ms. Beller explained that all those working behind the telephone lines are there strictly as volunteers, only in their capacity as human beings.

"No professionals work in the center, in their professional capacity. They work as volunteers.

Sometimes, for instance, they may have a medical question and there's a nurse who just happens to be working. Or maybe a volunteer just went through the dental clinic and can talk about what happened. We have one doctor on call. Generally we can call him for information to help us out. He'll say 'I'll meet you at the emergency room.' We also have a board of directors with people from the community who we rely on for help sometimes."

Since the existence of the Crisis Center, workers have received few complaints from the community. One area, however, causes minor conflict.

"One of the basic problems is suing non-professionals, called para-professional people, people we give only a small amount of training to for this work. I think sometimes that's difficult for professionals to accept."

All calls are kept completely confidential. Ms. Beller stressed the care that is taken to insure the caller anonymity. Center volunteers use their first names, and callers do only if they want to. Other than that, help is given out to a nameless voice. No records are kept regarding the incoming calls, except to keep track of the type and frequency of certain categories of calls.

"We just don't keep records," said Ms. Beller. "We keep a statistical sheet with some very basic information on the type of problem. When people give names, we don't write them down. We don't show our files to anybody outside of the center. We carry the confidential so far that when somebody works at the center, they don't bring their spouses, friends, roommates, or whatever down to the center to work. There's no listening in on the phones."

Help does not always stop at the end of the call. Those in need of further help are encouraged to call back if things don't work out, or to call again later for more information. The center keeps a book of 60 pages of references for more professional assistance."

In the year and a half that the center has been in existence, the message in the calls has changed little, said Ms. Beller.

"We're probably getting more drug calls. We're getting more people who just want to talk," she said.

Problems are not limited to death wishes and matters of national crisis, explained Ms. Beller. "The title 'crisis' frightens some people away. 'Crisis' is defined as when someone just can't deal with the present situation, when all his coping mechanisms are inadequate. Whether that means that he or she doesn't know how to cook pork chops or it means that it's a serious suicide—the whole range in between there. If that person calls, it means that he wants something. Crisis doesn't mean that you have to be at the point of dying, or hysterical. It just means that you need some kind of information or help, or just an ear, someone who will listen."

The Hawkeye is dead

The University of Iowa yearbook, The Hawkeye, died April 10 following a short illness. The final issue will be at the end of this school year.

Born in 1890, The Hawkeye is survived by The Daily Iowan and was predeceased by such campus publications as The Iowa Literary Magazine, Journal of Business and Frivol. All were under the direction of Student Publications Inc. (SPI).

Robert E. Engel, assistant to the president, sent a letter to the SPI board April 3 cancelling the university subscription to The Hawkeye which financed a free copy to every graduating senior. SPI then voted April 10 to discontinue publication of the annual after this year.

Visitation for The Hawkeye will be in the library any time persons wish to read over past issues. Services will be held in May whenever the final copies come off the presses.

For him, Vietnam war began in '59

NEVADA, Iowa (AP)—One of the most interested and pleased veterans observing the steady decline in American casualties in the unwinding Vietnam war lives in this Story County seat of 4,500.

He is Howard B. Boston, 50, who was seriously wounded July 8, 1959, in the Viet Cong terrorist attack which took the lives of the first American servicemen in Vietnam.

Killed when seven Vietminh terrorists fired automatic weapons through the open windows of an old French sawmill at Bien Hao, 20 miles northeast of Saigon, were Major Dale R. Buis of Imperial Beach, Calif., and M. Sgt. Chester M. Ovnand of Copperas Cove, Texas.

Since their deaths, more than 46,500 U.S. servicemen have died in Vietnam, and over 300,000 have been wounded by enemy action.

Buis, Ovnand and Boston were in one of the first U.S. Military Assistance Advisory Groups to go to Vietnam. Their function was to serve as advisors to South Vietnamese Army artillery units at Bien Hoa and they had been on duty less than two months when the attack occurred.

"We had a combination mess hall-rec room in this old abandoned sawmill and watched movies there two or three nights a week," Boston recalls. "On this particular night, six of us were watching the movie with Sgt. Ovnand operating the projector."

"After one reel had been run off in the darkened room, Sgt. Ovnand switched on the lights in order to change reels. Then, all hell broke loose—there was firing which seemed to come from all directions."

Capt. Boston was hit in one of the early fusillades, as were both Ovnand and Buis. The other three hit the floor, feigning death as firing from the three windows continued.

Boston, wounded in the head, crawled into an adjacent room and took cover under a heavy poker table.

Capt. Victor Gorlinski, now retired from the service and living in Alexandria, Va., came to the assistance of Boston and saw that he had been hit in the right ear, the bullet protruding from his left nostril.

Ovnand died as he moved up the stairway, apparently headed for the master electrical switch. Buis lived only a short time after he was hit.

Boston was taken to a nearby Vietnamese dispensary, then flown to Clark Field in the Philippines. At his own request, Boston was returned to his former unit in Bien Hoa in October 1969, after treatment there and at Walter Reed Hospital in Washington.

International attention came to Capt. Boston because the attack caused the first American casualties in Vietnam. He received letters and personal calls from the U.S. ambassador, Eldridge Durbrow, and from high South Vietnamese officials.

The Iowan was a key witness along with Capt. Gorlinski when the seven terrorists came to trial in Bien Hoa not long after his return. Three of the seven were sentenced to death and four were imprisoned. It was learned that the seven had used French-made weapons in the July attack.

Boston, who grew up on a farm in the Webster City-Williams area, was also wounded during World War II, taking a sniper's bullet in the face during the Battle of Bastogne Dec. 23, 1944. He remained in the Army after the war and had a tour of duty in Korea and Germany before retiring as a major on July 31, 1964.

"I think others without my income (about $550 a month in disability benefits) need work more than I do, so I'm not really looking," he said in a recent interview.

Publish student's book

"Philippine Mass Communications: Before 1811. After 1866," by John A. Lent, University of Iowa graduate student, will be released in the Philippines this month.

Published by the Philippine Press Institute, Manila, the book is being distributed in the U.S. by the Drake University School of Journalism, Des Moines. The book includes chapters on Philippine newspapers, magazines, radio, television, films, advertising, journalism education, freedom of the press and book publishing.

A doctoral student in mass communications in the UI School of Journalism, Lent gathered data for the book and wrote it while on a Fulbright scholarship in the Philippines.

Another book he edited, "The Asian Newspapers' Reluctant Revolution," is being translated into Japanese and is scheduled to be published in September.

Published last spring by the Iowa State University Press, "Reluctant Revolution" is a collection of chapters on various newspaper systems in Asia.

Lent will accept a lectureship at the University of Penang, Malaysia, in June.

SURVIVAL LINE

353-6210

SURVIVAL LINE answers your questions, cuts red tape, investigates your tips and all sorts of good things like that each morning in The Daily Iowan. Phone 353-6210 between 7 and 8 p.m. Monday through Thursday or write survival line, the Daily Iowan, 201 Communications Center, Iowa City. Sorry, telephone calls at other times cannot be accepted.

Is there any way to get season tickets before the opening of Hancher Auditorium? We would like to buy tickets this spring or as early as possible for performances next school year. —K.F.

You can but you can't. SURVIVAL LINE spoke to Nancy English, secretary to James H. Wockenfuss, director of Hancher Auditorium, who had this to say about the ticket situation. Tickets will not be available until mid-August or September, but it will soon be possible to file requests for season tickets and individual concert tickets.

In early May there will be information printed in the Daily Iowan and local papers regarding scheduled concerts, tickets information, and prices. After this information appears, you will be able to reserve tickets for specific concerts or place an order for season tickets.

Since the printed tickets will not arrive at the Office of Cultural Affairs until mid-August, Hancher Auditorium can't send your tickets until late August or September. However, Ms. English assured us that a ticket request made in May for a specific seat at a single performance or at each concert covered by the season ticket will guarantee you that seat when the tickets arrive. "You're committed to buy them, and we're committed to reserve them," Ms. English said.

These advance ticket requests apply to all concerts, with the exception of those designated as "special concerts" (for example, the Van Cliburn concert in October.) Tickets for these concerts will go on sale at least two weeks before the performances. They will be sold to UI students first, at a reduced price.

Where will graduation ceremonies be held and where do you get announcements?

If you've served your time you make it official starting at 9:30 a.m. May 26 at the fieldhouse. A letter with specific information will be sent to you the first or second week of May. However the Alumni Association tells Survival Line that each announcement will cost 18 cents, no matter what quantity you buy.

Who recorded the song, "No Milk Today?" I think it was Herman's Hermits, but my friend says it was the Beatles or the Raiders. —P.N.

Chalk one up for your side. A check into station KICR's archive of oldies but goodies revealed that "No Milk Today" was indeed the creation of Herman's Hermits.

The song was a real chartbuster in its day, rising to Top of the Pops in April 1967.

Who fixes record players cheapest here in I.C.? I have a ten year old RCA solid-state HiFi that is slowly dying on me. Nothing works but the speaker and the needle. I took it apart, but couldn't fix it. Help! My radio doesn't work either, and the silence is killing me. —A.K.

Survival Line contacted Hagen's TV and Appliance, Woodburn Sound Service, and West Music Co. and they all stated that they could fix your RCA solid-state HiFi.

As to which of these companies could fix it at the lowest cost to you, they all said that it depends upon how much work needs to be done.

Perhaps you could take it into one of these companies and get an estimate on how much it will cost you, that is if the HiFi isn't too large and the parts aren't scattered far and wide.

Daily Iowan Record Review

Sidewinders—old mold

I picked up a new album by a group called Sidewinders the other day. I brought it home, turned up my stereo to about half volume so I'd get the best sound and sat back to listen.

The album is strange. I listened, but couldn't quite decide what it was. The album had good guitar, but the amplification was really weak. You know, like a Melody guitar for learners.

I think this album would have really been something back in '65. The first cut, "Bad Dreams," sounds like Freddie and the Dreamers. The second, "Superhit," has lyrics that start like this: "Did I see her at the movie show? Maybe even at my junior high." The third sounds like Herman's Hermits. The fourth, "The Bumble Bee," the Ventures playing the theme song for the "Munsters". Etc.

I listened to the Beach Boy's in "Rendezvous". Then turned the album over to "O Miss Mary". All of the songs had good beats, good guitar and corny lyrics. It sounded like a good album for AM radio stations to pick up on.

Then I cracked up. I looked out the window and here is twelve year old neighbor kid dancing away like there's no tomorrow. He saw me looking, said "Hey man, I like your music", and took off on the run.

So, if you're looking for nostalgia, something to make friends out of the neighborhood kids who are putting rocks in your gas tank, an album for your little brother, here is an album for you. The Sidewinders.

Not settled

The schedule of activities for the Angela Davis Week, May 8-14, is not yet definite according to Valrie J. Sutton, chairwoman of the committee in charge of the activities.

Ms. Sutton said the purpose of the activities would be to heighten awareness of the Angela Davis trial and to raise funds for her defense.

Directory with a philosophy

By CINDY CARR

Daily Iowan Staff Writer

Compost is a directory with a philosophy. And in that way it's like "The Whole Earth Catalog"—a catalog that the Compost people call "our daddy."

"The first step to sharing our lives is sharing our information," says page one. "We know a lot more together than we do by ourselves."

Putting together this guide to everything from Awareness to Crafts to Legal Service became an act of sharing in itself, according to Tony Manna, who does not like to be called its editor.

"Everybody became the editor. We were like a little community getting together in order to help a bigger community to get together."

Their office in the Jefferson Building began filling with boxes of file cards back in October.

Conscientious Objection. The New Theater Company. Re-cycled Paper. Free Clothing Store. Wesley Youth Hostel. How To Fix a Bicycle Flat.

"Plum Grove has millions of plums every year which just fall to the ground. Nuts, and also, wild rose hips, after the frost. (The fruit of wild rose bushes—one cup of the right type of hip has more vitamin C than 12 dozen oranges.)"

Skills Courses for Women. Parapsychology. Geode Hunting.

"I myself use it all the time," says Manna.

When Manna arrived from Cambridge, Massachusetts, last fall, Action Studies was looking for someone to edit an Iowa City "Whole Earth Catalog."

"In Cambridge the Whole Earth Catalog was the thing to have. And they also had a 'People's Yellow Pages' there. To me this is the only kind of thing that can bring people together."

"We decided to call Compost a directory because the term 'Whole Earth Catalog' might not be understood by everybody and we wanted this to be for the people in general, not students in particular."

The editors checked out every resource listed in the directory. "If it was a rip-off, we didn't include it."

And they sandwiched quotes from Al Capone, Jerry Rubin, Helen Keller and dozens more into the lay-out.

"This is a stylized goat on the cover," said Manna. "My wife Ruthie and I got a whole set of these wood blocks when we were living in Turkey. And the editors voted on which one to use."

Compost may get a supplement next year to update this issue.

But right now, says Manna, they just want to get this one circulated and the printer paid. It's available at Epstein's drug stores, the Union, and elsewhere for fifty cents. Any profit will be donated to community causes.

Compost, page six. "We got to get away from this day-to-day running around. Everybody knows this is nowhere." Neil Young.

Looking for a summer job? Good luck

The DIRECT CONTACT telephones kept ringing and ringing Monday night. And most of the questions were the same.

Where can you get summer work in Iowa City?

Providing some clues, some answers were John E. Moore, University of Iowa director of student financial aids and Pat Carretta, counselor at the UI Office of Career Counseling and Placement.

"Jobs are just real tough to come by," noted Moore, with Ms. Carretta agreeing, to readers who called our DIRECT CONTACT reader service.

"You can come to the financial aids office in Old Dental Building and fill out applications for part time jobs, but they are awfully scarce," Moore said. "Employers sometimes call and list the kind of openings they have."

Moore says, however, that "it's just a little early yet" for Iowa City area businesses to list what summer openings are left—if any.

Ms. Carretta told callers that "if you don't have specific skills, it's even more difficult to find work in a city the size and type of Iowa City."

"There's usually a lot of clerical staff jobs," she said. "Or you might try taking the federal qualifying exam... information on that is available at the post office."

Here's some of the questions Moore and Ms. Carretta received:

I'd like to go back to school, and my husband's already in grad school. We've already got quite a bit tied up in undergrad loans. What are some alternatives for financial aid?—E.T.

"Unless a graduate student receives a teaching fellowship or other kind of loan, the outlook can be bleak," Moore said. "You could check your department for money, or, of course, stop doing and see us."

You could also check work-study out, but most graduates are looking for grant-type money," he added. "Although work-study can be a lifesaver, it's not always the most lucrative thing, because of the required work hours, if someone's carrying a heavy academic load."

My wife has an English major and concentrations in history and French. What kind of full-time job might she qualify for?—R.K.

"Well, an English major opens up to writing, editing and advertising, if you write well," Ms. Carretta suggested.

Ms. Carretta said. "If it's just a summer job and doesn't require any special legal skills, most employers wouldn't care."

I'm a student here and what's this federal work-study program.—R.H.

"It's a federally-financed project, basically intended for students from families with incomes under $9,000 a year or self-supporting students," Moore said. "Come in now and see if you qualify for the aid. We can tell you if you're qualified. If you do and jobs open up, it's a matter of time before you're employed...for up to 15 hours a week in which she were receiving UI credits abroad."

How would a senior with an English degree and interest in writing or TV news go about getting a job?—U.D.

"You could approach it from the geographical angle, in which you would pick a location and go there, setting up interviews with all interesting firms in advance," Ms. Carretta said. "Or you could send out letters to certain firms you'd like to work for. We'll help make comments on your resumes and set up interviews if firms come here. Our office is on the second floor of the old Union, upstairs from the Main Ballroom."

My financial situation has drastically changed from a year ago, when I was rejected for work-study. Can I get things changed for the summer?—W.V.

"If the results from your last filing (on financial statements) are back, we'll use that in determining need," Moore said.

One time I was notified that I got a scholarship in March. Another time I was turned down in July. What gives?—T.N.

"You were a freshman the one year, right? They get notified around April 15, sometimes earlier. We always wait for second semester grades to come out before we process on-campus applications so that notification deadline isn't until August 15, although it's usually in July when everyone finds out," Moore said.

Can I still apply for financial aid?—D.H.

"Yes, but it'll be considered after we've processed all the others that beat the earlier deadline. We have a late file so if funds remain after the on-time applicants are done, we process them."

DIRECT CONTACT

a SURVIVAL LINE service

"Have a portfolio ready when you interview."

"You could also become a field representative—someone dealing with textbooks, manuscripts."

How do I get hold of a job in a specific department?—W.C.

"Your best bet is to go to the department and see what their needs are," Moore said. "Sometimes departments list vacancies in the financial aids office, if they aren't filled any other way. Then we go through a roster of qualified persons for that job or post the opening outside our office."

I'm a law student—will I be more in demand than other students this summer?—R.D.

"Not usually for summer-type employment, unless it's through the law school or a summer intern program."

I'm heading for Washington, D.C. this summer, and I would like a job there. Do you know the chances?—R.N.

"Well, we've got books in the Placement Office that list employers by state. They're an excellent source of information if you're limited geographically, and they do list whether firms hire for the summer or not in all the major cities," Ms. Carretta said.

A girl I know is not presently a student here. She will be next fall, and she wants to go to Europe this summer. Can she borrow money from financial aids to go on a trip like that since she won't have a summer job?—H.Y.

"Not from the university," Moore said. "It has to be for a direct educational cost, and, under our terms, such a trip wouldn't qualify unless it were some kind of exchange program

By DENNIS MAHR

It seems that every small college within 200 miles of Iowa City is having concerts within the next six weeks, if you have friends at these schools try to find out what they have booked. While every surrounding university seems to have 10 to 15 concerts a year, we're restricted to six at most; there ought to be some changes made. Write 221 Communications Center if you have or need information.

Nine HRs as Hawks split

Gopher balls were the thing of the day Tuesday afternoon as Iowa and the University of Northern Iowa split a baseball doubleheader at Iowa stadium. UNI cruised to an 8-1 victory in the opening game as five different players from the Cedar Falls school pelted pitches over the outfield fences.

Tom Hurn, Ray Smith and Jim Sunberg gave Iowa three homers to one UNI blast in the second game as the Hawkeys won 10-5.

Besides the nine home runs in the twin bill, five doubles were among the 31 total hits by both clubs. Iowa had 17 safeties and UNI 14.

The even break in the two games kept Iowa above the .500 mark for the year with a 10-9 record. The loss was UNI's second in 10 games.

The Hawkeys return to Big Ten action this weekend with four home games. Friday league leading Michigan State will be here for a doubleheader starting at 2 p.m. Saturday Michigan will play Iowa in another twin bill starting at 1 p.m.

Michigan State heads the Big Ten standings after the first weekend of action with a 2-0 record. Michigan is 1-1.

Iowa split twin bills at Ohio State and Indiana last week and is currently tied with the Buckeyes for third place with a 2-2 mark. Minnesota is second at 3-1.

The Hawkeys Larry Schutzius is the Big Ten's leading hitter after four Iowa games with a .500 average.

Freshman Tom Hilinski got the Hawkeys off on the right foot in the first game when he singled and later scored an unearned run on Schutzius' base hit.

However, that was all Iowa managed off UNI pitchers Duane Usher and Tom Jansen. Usher worked five innings and raised his record to 2-0.

Iowa starter Mark Ewell made it through the opening inning without much trouble. But things would have been better if he'd have stayed in the dugout for the second frame.

Before Ewell got anybody out he had issued walks to Bruce Dinneber and Kent Kvidera and Joe Wolf had cracked a three-run homer.

Once Don Joyce popped to Dave Blazin at third, Usher made the count 4-1 with another circuit blast.

Iowa Coach Duane Banks relieved Ewell with John Hartnett who stymied the Panthers for 2-2-3 innings.

Jim Wise took over for Hartnett in the fifth and lasted an inning before a home run by Dinneber started a three-run UNI sixth inning.

UNI finished the scoring in the final inning with solo homers by Joyce and Denny Schott.

Both clubs had eight hits in the game. Wolf, who hit the three run homer, had two for UNI. Schutzius had three of the Hawkeye hits, including a double. Hilinski had a double and single.

Hawkeye shortstop Ray Smith and firstbaseman Tom Hurn hit three-run homers and Jim Sunberg connected on a two-run shot to give Iowa the second game.

UNI bolted to a 2-0 lead in its half of the first inning of the nightcap as Iowa starter Daryl Henry walked home both runs.

Smith got a run back in the last of the frame when he walked, stole second, went to third on Sunberg's single and scored on a balk.

Hurn then connected with his fourth home run of the year in the second inning. Hurn's HR followed singles by Blazin and Dave Marshall.

UNI tied the game in the third when Tim Hachenmiller reached on an error and scored on Dinneber's home run.

Banks lifted Henry for a pinch-hitter in the fifth inning after the Hawks' built a 7-4 lead the previous frame. Ewell gave up an unearned run in the seventh as he finished off the pitching chores. Henry was credited with his first victory in three decisions.

Smith accounted for the fourth inning runs with his first homer of the year.

Sundberg added two more tallies in the sixth with his third HR. The final Iowa run scored after a hit batsman and a two base error.

Smith Sundberg and Marshall each had to hits to pace the Hawks.

Williams and Cardenal trip Pirates at home

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Billy Williams drilled a three-run homer and Jose Cardenal added a two-run shot as the Chicago Cubs defeated Pittsburgh 6-4 Tuesday, spoiling the Pirates' home opener before a near-capacity crowd of 47,489.

Williams lined a two-out homer in the third inning after Randy Hundley singled and Milt Pappas was hit with a Bob Moose pitch.

The Pirates pulled to within one run in their third on Roberto Clemente's second single and a triple by Manny Sanguillen.

But Cardenal gave the Cubs breathing room with a two-run homer in the seventh inning after Hundley singled. Cardenal also drove in the Cubs' final run in the ninth inning—with a sacrifice fly.

The Pirates drove Pappas out of the game in the eighth when Richie Hebner got his first hit—a homer—and Manny Sanguillen doubled and scored on a single by Bob Robertson.

The attendance for the game was the largest in the majors so far this season.

the season by defeating Cleveland 4-2 Tuesday.

Siebert, whose five innings against Detroit March 31 represented his longest pre-season effort, allowed only five hits, including four singles in Cleveland's two-run second inning, before tiring in the seventh inning. Siebert gave way to Ked Tatum at that point.

New York jumped to a 1-0 lead off Montreal starter Steve Renko in the top of the first inning on a walk to Tommie Agee, a single by former Expo Rusty Staub and a run-scoring single by Cleon Jones.

But in the Expos' first Singleton, one of three players Montreal acquired from the Mets in a trade earlier this month that sent Staub to New York, lofted his triple over Agee's head to the fence in deep center, scoring Clyde Mashore and Bob Bailey. Mashore had drawn a two-out walk and moved to third on a double by Bailey.

The Expos added another run in the bottom of the third off losing pitcher Jerry Kosman when Ron Hunt doubled and scored on Bailey's single to right.

Clarke's run-scoring single in the third inning followed walks to Thurman Munson and Kline by Milwaukee starter Jim Slaton.

The Yanks added their second run in the fourth on Roy White's bad hop single, Ron Blomberg's pop fly double and a sacrifice fly by Johnny Callison.

hird baseman Rich McKinney, who hit into three double plays, saved Kline's shutout by knocking down Rick Auerbach's hot smash behind the bag in the third and tagging Ron Theobald trying to advance from second. The call by Umpire Larry Napp drew a loud protest from Coach Roy McMillan and Manager Dave Bristol of the Brewers.

St. Louis took a 1-0 lead in the second on a double by Joe Hage and rookie Ed Crosby's two-out single. They made it 2-0 in the third with the help of two passed balls by catcher Tim McCarver.

Ted Sizemore opened the third with a single, moved to second on a passed ball and scored as two walks loaded the bases and McCarver allowed another pitch to get by him.

The Phillies, blanked for five innings by Scipio Spinks, acquired by the Cards in a trade with Houston last Saturday, picked up three runs in the sixth.

Bowa started it with a single and scored on McCarver's double. Willie Montanez singled McCarver to third and Deron Johnson doubled in the second run. Montanez came home on a sacrifice fly.

Atlanta (AP) — Jim LeFebvre rapped a two-run single and Chris Cannizzaro cracked a solo home run Tuesday night as the Los Angeles Dodgers trimmed Atlanta 3-1 giving southpaw Tommy John a victory in his National League debut.

John, acquired in winter deal that sent Dick Allen to the Chicago White Sox, checked the Braves on only four hits. The nine-year American League veteran drew the starting assignment when Claude Osteen developed a muscle spasm in his left arm.

The Braves jumped in front 1-0 in the second when Rico Cartwright, making his first start since 1970, singled to center, reached second on a wild pitch and later scored on Darrell Evans' single to right.

BOSTON (AP) — Pitcher Sonny Siebert singled home two runs in a four-run, second-inning uprising that accounted for all the Boston scoring as the Red Sox won their first game of

Rangers subdue Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Rod Gilbert's second goal of the game, a tie-breaking shot at 12:36 of the final period, lifted the New York Rangers to a 5-3 National Hockey League victory over the Chicago Black Hawks Tuesday night and a 2-0 lead in their best-of-seven Stanley Cup semifinal series.

Having won two straight on Chicago ice, the Rangers are now strong favorites in the series, which swings to New York for the next two games Thursday and Sunday.

Gilbert, who hadn't scored a playoff goal in seven previous games, clicked on a power play at :54 of the third period to pull the Rangers into a 2-2 tie.

After Pat Stapleton gave Chicago a 3-2 lead on a powerplay goal at 6:17 of the period, Brad Park scored for New York to tie the game again before Gilbert slammed home the winning goal.

The Rangers clinched it when Pete Stemkowski fired into an open net at 19:51.

The Hawks led three times in the game but couldn't lock it up.

Dennis Hull gave Chicago a 1-0 lead at 9:46 of the first period weekend with matches at Purdue Friday and Illinois Saturday.

Celtics trail Knicks; play 'must test' tonight

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics, faced with a "must win" situation after losing the first two games of their National Basketball Association semifinal playoffs to the New York Knicks, resume their best-of-seven series Wednesday night at Boston Garden.

Boston coach Tom Heinsohn, looking for a winning combination, said he is considering some changes.

"Nothing drastic," Heinsohn said. "No one will be benched. But I'm considering several combinations in the front court and how I can best utilize them."

second.

"Naturally, I would have liked to win it," Heinsohn said. "But I'm pleased with the team's performance and what they accomplished in the contest. We did a lot of things well, especially on defense.

"Believe me, I'm more convinced now we can beat the Knicks, and we will," he added.

ANDERSON, Ind. (AP) — The Indiana Pacers, trailing 2-0 in their American Basketball Association Western Division playoffs, try to bounce back against the Utah Stars Wednesday night at the Anderson High School gymnasium.

The Indiana Fairgrounds Coliseum, usual home of the Pacers, is being used for a circus.

"It's unfortunate that we don't have the Coliseum to play in," Pacer Coach Bob Leonard said, "but we've always played well at Anderson. The home court is worth about eight points. Utah got the first two (games) but I don't feel they beat us badly."

Utah won 117-109 in the Salt Palace Monday night, with Willie Wise contributing 30 points and 14 rebounds.

Rookie George McGinnis of Indiana scored 28 points and took 20 rebounds.

Wise called McGinnis "tremendous" after the Monday night game but added, "I think they're allowing him to stay in the lane more than three seconds. You can't keep a man off the boards that way."

"We watched the films of the first game and they let him stay in the lane four or five seconds about four times."

Wise also noted that the Utah bench has been a big factor in the first two games. The statistics supported that in the Monday night contest. Indiana starters outscored the Utah starters 94-85.

The teams will travel again Saturday night for the fourth game, to Indiana University's new Assembly Hall at Bloomington.

ATLANTA (AP) — Jim LeFebvre rapped a two-run single and Chris Cannizzaro cracked a solo home run Tuesday night as the Los Angeles Dodgers trimmed Atlanta 3-1 giving southpaw Tommy John a victory in his National League debut.

John, acquired in winter deal that sent Dick Allen to the Chicago White Sox, checked the Braves on only four hits. The nine-year American League veteran drew the starting assignment when Claude Osteen developed a muscle spasm in his left arm.

The Braves jumped in front 1-0 in the second when Rico Cartwright, making his first start since 1970, singled to center, reached second on a wild pitch and later scored on Darrell Evans' single to right.

BOSTON (AP) — Pitcher Sonny Siebert singled home two runs in a four-run, second-inning uprising that accounted for all the Boston scoring as the Red Sox won their first game of the season by defeating Cleveland 4-2 Tuesday.

Siebert, whose five innings against Detroit March 31 represented his longest pre-season effort, allowed only five hits, including four singles in Cleveland's two-run second inning, before tiring in the seventh inning. Siebert gave way to Ked Tatum at that point.

NEW YORK (AP) — Horace Clarke backed Steve Kline's three-hit pitching with three singles and drove in the first run as the New York Yankees won the first home night opener in their history 2-0 from the Milwaukee Brewers Tuesday.

Clarke's run-scoring single in the third inning followed walks to Thurman Munson and Kline by Milwaukee starter Jim Slaton.

The Yanks added their second run in the fourth on Roy White's bad hop single, Ron Blomberg's pop fly double and a sacrifice fly by Johnny Callison.

hird baseman Rich McKinney, who hit into three double plays, saved Kline's shutout by knocking down Rick Auerbach's hot smash behind the bag in the third and tagging Ron Theobald trying to advance from second. The call by Umpire Larry Napp drew a loud protest from Coach Roy McMillan and Manager Dave Bristol of the Brewers.

St. Louis took a 1-0 lead in the second on a double by Joe Hage and rookie Ed Crosby's two-out single. They made it 2-0 in the third with the help of two passed balls by catcher Tim McCarver.

Ted Sizemore opened the third with a single, moved to second on a passed ball and scored as two walks loaded the bases and McCarver allowed another pitch to get by him.

The Phillies, blanked for five innings by Scipio Spinks, acquired by the Cards in a trade with Houston last Saturday, picked up three runs in the sixth.

Bowa started it with a single and scored on McCarver's double. Willie Montanez singled McCarver to third and Deron Johnson doubled in the second run. Montanez came home on a sacrifice fly.

MONTREAL (AP) — Ken Singleton, acquired from New York in a trade April 6, drove in three runs with a triple and a single Tuesday as the Montreal Expos defeated the Mets 7-2 in their National League home opener.
