Wrath

It was like the Inquisition revisited in The DI weather forecasting station Tuesday. A gentleman dressed in red robes, who said he was sent from god, strolled into the room and excommunicated the entire staff for making false and irresponsible statements concerning god's weather.

The staff writer, who came close but got no cigar for yesterday's weather, was drawn and quartered in the halls of the J-School and his entrails were placed upon the southern part of Old Capitol's gold dome.

The spokesman from god said it will be cloudy today, with a slight chance of showers in the morning and sunny and hangings in the afternoon. The high will be about 50.

Medical veep

A University of Iowa professor was elected second vice president of the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists at its annual business meeting in Chicago Tuesday.

Dr. William C. Keettel, head of the College of Medicine's Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology, was elected to a one-year term.

Dr. Sprague H. Gardiner of the Indiana University School of Medicine was elected president of the group.

Jackson

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington said Tuesday night he will not campaign in any more presidential primaries, but will remain a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Jackson, running fourth and far behind the leaders in the Ohio primary, told newsmen "I will continue the campaign" for nomination, but not in the primaries.

Essentially, his position appeared the same as that taken last week by Sen. Edmund S. Muskie.

Demo delegates

A challenge has been sent to state Democratic headquarters by seven Johnson County residents who claim that half of the delegates to the party's state presidential convention May 20 should be women.

Some 3,600 delegates are expected at the convention here.

The challenge asks that county delegations to the state convention substitute women alternates into delegate positions to balance the delegations with equal numbers of men and women.

The challenge claims that 51 per cent of Iowa's population is female, and that the balanced delegations should be formed in accord with certain reform procedures being tested within the party.

About one-third of the delegates to the state convention are women.

Police graft

NEW YORK (AP)—Twenty-three Brooklyn plain-clothes men and one policewoman were accused Tuesday of dividing $1 million in protection money from gamblers, in the biggest potential scandal within the force in more than 20 years.

The highest ranking of them all, Lt. Fletcher Hueston, escaped indictment only because he shot himself to death Monday, said Brooklyn Dist. Atty. Eugene Gold.

Their individual take was said to run from $10,000 to $20,000 per year, as some 40 gamblers made regular payoffs to insure impunity in Brooklyn's 13th Division, composed of some of the city's worst black and Puerto Rican slums.

Mine fire

KELLOGG, Idaho (AP) — Fire swept through the nation's deepest and richest silver mine Tuesday, killing at least five miners and leaving 77 unaccounted for in the rugged hills of northern Idaho.

Officials said an electrical failure may have been the cause of the fire.

Beer bill

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—A drive to lower the beer and wine drinking age to 18 fizzled Tuesday in the Illinois Senate.

Amid warnings the bill would let high school students "take their books down to the tavern for a noon beer," the senators refused 28-23 to release it from a committee which has bottled it up for six months.

Even though the measure was backed by Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie, a number of Republicans opposed it.

Anti-war

A local anti-war petition has been signed by more than 4,500 people, according to a member of the Iowa City Anti-War Coalition.

Peter Benner, a coalition member, said the canvassing drive for the petition will continue through Saturday and Sunday, with a cutoff date of May 15.

"We are very pleased with the response so far," Benner said, adding that tables with the petitions are still being manned in dormitories.

HHH leads in balloting

By The Associated Press
Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, who campaigned as the "people's Democrat", captured Tuesday's Indiana Democratic presidential primary, but Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace made his strongest showing yet in a northern state.

Humphrey termed Wallace's showing "a protest."

With more than two-thirds of the vote in, Humphrey had 46 per cent to 42 per cent for Wallace. Sen Edmund S. Muskie, who did not campaign in the state, had 12 per cent.

It appeared Humphrey would have 49 of Indiana's 76 first-ballot delegates at the Democratic national convention to 27 for Wallace.

The Minnesota senator led in next-door Ohio, too, holding the early edge over Sen. George S. McGovern in a contest for delegates.

But the count there was slow and the returns inconclusive as none of the ballots from Cleveland, the state's biggest city, had been tallied.

The already complex Ohio delegate contest was completed further by voting machine foulups in sections of Cleveland. As a result, a federal judge ordered the polls in Cuyahoga County kept open for 5½ hours after the rest of the state finished voting.

The extra voting hours meant that the outcome of statewide competition for 38 national convention delegates wouldn't be known until some time Wednesday.

The balance of the 153-vote delegation was apportioned among Ohio congressional districts and that count was proceeding slowly.

The Ohio tally, for the at-large delegates, with 1,339 of the state's 12,648 precincts counted, stood Humphrey 38,842, McGovern 35,029. The rest of the field trailed far behind.
In Indiana, with 67 per cent of the precincts counted, it was: Humphrey 225,235 or 46 per cent.
Wallace 203,149 or 42 per cent.
Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, who dropped out of the campaign there even before he quit active primary competition nationally, had 58,124 votes, or 12 per cent.

Wallace appeared to have been buoyed by Republican crossover votes and by a busing controversy in Indianapolis.

Humphrey led for 49 Indiana national convention votes, Wallace for 27. Nineteen of them went to the statewide winner, the others were awarded on a district basis.

In Wallace's Alabama, the fragmentary returns gave the governor the lead in competition for convention delegates against his home state foes.

The voting extension came in a suit filed on behalf of Humphrey, who said he was "damned mad" about the trouble at the polls.

McGovern then sought to have announcement of the primary results from the entire state withheld until the Cleveland polls closed, and asked that the Cuyahoga County ballots be impounded. A State Supreme Court justice denied those requests, opening the way for the long, slow count of ballots elsewhere in the state.

Senate oks student fee proposal

A report which would permit University of Iowa students to decide which campus organizations would receive a portion of their student activity fee was endorsed by Student Senate Tuesday night.

The senate did not reach a decision, however, on a recommendation to stop financing The Daily Iowan with money from the student fee.

The committee report which was approved by the senate, except for the section on The DI, would permit individual students to determine which campus organizations would receive part of their $6.50 student fee.

In addition, the report calls for the creation of a new commission which would oversee the allocation as determined by each student and which would allocate a certain portion of the fee to insure the stability of student organizations.

The student activity fee, then, would be allocated partially by each student to the organizations of his choice, and partially by a commission which would give funds directly to campus organizations.

Senate could not decide whether The DI should continue to receive $2 per semester from each student to finance its publication.

The question centered on whether The DI could continue to operate without the guaranteed revenue from the student fee and whether students should be obligated to pay for The DI.

"If students don't want a DI I don't see any reason why we should have it," committee member Thomas H. Brock said.

Cooperative member Kristine S. Theiker said that senate will decide next week on implementation of the committee report along with the question of financing The DI.

The report would allow each student to decide among how many organizations he wished to distribute his $6.50.

"If a student checks off five organizations his money will be divided equally five ways between the organizations," Brock explained.

Student organizations would have to submit their budgets to the new commission one year in advance to be considered for funding by the student fee.

Senator calls for probe of J-school

State Sen. Francis L. Messerly, R-Cedar Falls, told The Daily Iowan Tuesday that he "wants to get the University of Iowa School of Journalism back on the course it should be," and will discuss the matter next week with UI Pres. Willard L. Boyd.

The school was refused accreditation this week by the American Council on Education for Journalism.

Messerly said, "I certainly have intentions of contacting Pres. Boyd as to what steps will be taken...so the people of Iowa will be able to get the kind of jobs in the journalism field they should."

He said he will ask the Iowa Legislature if there can be a legislative investigation "to get the program back on course."

"I certainly intend to carry on an investigation of my own if I can't get the approval of the legislature," Messerly said.

Boyd said that while Messerly hasn't contacted him yet, he "would be glad to talk to Messerly anytime about the university."

Will reprimand teacher who made 'racial slur'

Acting Supt. of the Iowa City School District William C. Bleeker, Tuesday reprimanded a Southeast Junior High School instructor who was accused of making a racial slur to a student.

Bleeker's findings, announced after a week of meetings with parents and teachers, concluded that the remark had been made in jest to one student, but that it had been overheard by others and spread through the school.

The instructor involved, Al Jagnow, a ninth grade science teacher, issued an apology and will be reprimanded for his conduct by school administrators. Bleeker did not disclose the nature of the reprimand, stating only that Jagnow "would not do it (make racial remarks) again." Jagnow could not be reached for comment.

The incident, which reportedly occurred April 24, prompted several petitions to be circulated demanding that action be taken to resolve the dispute.

"Concerned Citizens," a group of parents who requested an inquiry into the incident, charged that school officials, parents, and students had helped create an atmosphere in which the teacher felt comfortable in making a racist remark.

Simon Walker, a spokesman for the group, declined immediate comment on the possibility of other racial turmoil at Southeast. He said Concerned Citizens would meet to review Bleeker's statement and to discuss any further action.

Despite numerous inquiries by school administrators into the incident, several Southeast students reported no tension over the dispute, indicating that many pupils had limited knowledge of the controversy.

Bleeker said no restrictive measures have been instituted in response to the squabble.

He said the incident was isolated and that he was not aware of other racial trouble at the school.

Of Southeast's 860 students, 10 are black.

Naming Hoover's successor a touchy task for Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — The death of J. Edgar Hoover has given President Nixon the touchy task of choosing the second director of the FBI in an election year in which one of his nominations already has caused a political uproar.

The White House announced that Nixon will name an acting director Wednesday.

Clyde A. Tolson, Hoover's longtime friend and deputy, automatically became temporary acting director at Hoover's death. But Tolson apparently is out of the running for the job; he will be 72 on May 22 and is in poor health.

Regardless of the choice, Senate Democrats and Republicans seem likely to clash in debate as they have over his selections for the Supreme Court and attorney general—the latter still not confirmed after two months of hearings.

It will be the first time that the Senate has had the opportunity to confirm a presidential nominee to be FBI director.

The Senate did not obtain the right to pass on directorship nominations until 1968 when Republicans thinking the Democrats might regain the presidency and thus have the opportunity to make the FBI appointment, successfully backed a move to require Senate confirmation and give them a voice on the choice.

Ironically, this GOP strategy now means that Republican Nixon will have to put his nominee through a Democratic Senate.

Hoover often said he hoped his successor would come from the bureau, and last September he may have indicated his personal choice when he elevated W. Mark Felt, 58, from a virtually unknown job—system director in charge of the Inspection Division—to be the No. 3 man in the bureau hierarchy.

Nixon, however, is believed by some to have been grooming Myles W. Ambrose, 45-year-old former head of the Customs Bureau and now a special assistant to the attorney general to be head of the FBI.

Another possible contender for the $42,500-a-year job is Robert C. Mardian, 48, who resigned last week as head of the Justice Department's Internal Security Division to join a former attorney general, John Mitchell, in Nixon's re-election campaign.

Others about whom there has been speculation include:

John E. Ingersoll, 42, director of the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs since 1968.

Jerris Leonard, 41, director of the U.S. Law Enforcement Assistance Administration who served two years as the assistant attorney general in charge of civil rights.

Byron R. "Whizzer" White, 54, an associate justice on the Supreme Court, who was a deputy attorney general before his judicial appointment.

Peter J. Pritchess, 60, now in his fourth nonpartisan term as Los Angeles County sheriff.

He is an attorney and former FBI agent.

Thomas Reddin, 54, former Los Angeles police chief who resigned three years ago to become a television news commentator.

Evelle J. Younger, 53, California's attorney general who began his career with the FBI.

Dark horses include the Washington, D.C., police chief Jerry Wilson; Eugene T. Rossides, assistant secretary of the Treasury in charge of enforcement; Mayor Frank Rizzo of Philadelphia who formerly headed the city's police department; and Joseph Woods, former sheriff of Cook County, Illinois, whose sister is Rosemary Woods, President Nixon's longtime personal secretary.

Nixon to deliver eulogy at Hoover's funeral

Tolson named acting director

WASHINGTON (AP) — J. Edgar Hoover, legendary head of the FBI for 48 years is dead at 77. President Nixon led the nation in mourning and will deliver the funeral eulogy on Thursday.

Death came unexpectedly for the bachelor Hoover sometime Monday night or early Tuesday morning at his home where he lived with a housekeeper in the northwest section of this, his native city. He had not been ailing recently.

His body was found by a maid, Annie Fields, at about 7:30 a.m. on the floor near his bed.

After the word had gone out quietly to FBI offices throughout the country, the news was announced a few hours later by Richard G. Kleindienst, the acting attorney general.

Dr. James L. Luke, District of Columbia coroner, attributed the death to "hypertensive cardiovascular disease", an ailment associated with high blood pressure. He said a heart attack might have been the direct cause but this could be determined only by an autopsy and this was not needed because the death was due to natural causes.

The body will lie in state in the Capitol Rotunda from Wednesday morning until 9:30 Thursday morning, and a memorial service will be held there at 11 a.m. Wednesday.

The funeral service will be at the National Presbyterian Church at 11 a.m. Thursday and the President will deliver the eulogy there. He does not plan to attend the Wednesday memorial service.

After the church service, burial will be in Congressional Cemetery in Washington.

Through most of his life, Hoover stirred the patriotism and even devotion of virtually all Americans. But toward the end he attracted the heat of dis-sidence and, occasionally, criticism from presidential candidates.

As the jut-jawed director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation since 1924, Hoover built a unique anticrime force noted for its pinpoint discipline and freedom from corruption.

"They can't be bought," the proud FBI chief often said of his men.

Ironically, the lifelong foe of communism, whose organization pursued "Reds" and helped prosecute them, probably died on May Day, universally a special day for Communists and Socialists.

President Nixon called Hoover a "truly remarkable man," who served eight presidents with "unparalleled devotion to duty and dedication." And he ordered flags at all public buildings and installations lowered to half staff.

Clyde A. Tolson, No. 2 man at the FBI and Hoover's closest friend, automatically became temporary acting director. But the White House announced Nixon will name an acting director Wednesday.

Like Hoover, who was kept on by a string of presidents, Tolson is past the usual retirement age of 70 for government employees. He will be 72 on May 22 and his health is poor.

A onetime Presbyterian choir-boy and library messenger who studied law at night, Hoover's first big job with the Justice Department was in World War I when he handled deportation proceedings against "alien agitators." He was named assistant director of the FBI in 1921 and acting director three years later, when he was 29.

Guaranteed by Atty. Gen. Harlan F. Stone that there would be "no politics, no outside interference," Hoover overhauled the bureau, adopted a policy of employing lawyers and accountants as special agents, established a central fingerprint bureau and rose to fixed national prominence after Congress broadened the FBI's role in 1932 by making kidnapping a federal crime.

But in the last decade of his life, the FBI chief was an increasingly controversial figure. The FBI was alleged to have "bugged" civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr.

Ramsey Clark, a former attorney general, accused Hoover of a "self-centered concern for his own reputation." Hoover responded that Clark was a "jellyfish."

Calls for fund audit

Paul Franzenburg, seeking the Democratic nomination for error, suggested Tuesday that all Republican and Democratic gubernatorial candidates choose an independent auditor to go over all their campaign contribution reports.

Franzenburg told a news conference here that the auditor could help all candidates with full disclosure of their campaign contributions.

He said he has sent a letter to his two Democratic opponents, Sen. John Tapscoff of Des Moines and James Lynch of Redfield, and to Republican Gov. Robert Ray and Lt. Gov. Roger Jepsen asking them to join him in this procedure.

"Our charge to this auditor, I suggest, would be to fully scrutinize the amounts and sources of campaign contributions, dollars and other, and to report to us for release to news media on June 1, July 1 and two days before the Aug. 1 primary election," the letter said.

7 Days left until The Liberal Arts Student Association Elections.

Will discuss parking ramp alternatives

The City Council will discuss alternatives to the proposed downtown parking ramp during a Citizens for a Better Iowa City meeting tonight.

The 8 p.m. public meeting will be held at Trinity Episcopal Church, 320 East College Street. The gathering will be the first time the council has met to discuss the ramp since a referendum to finance the proposed 570-car facility was defeated at the polls April 11.

Seventy per cent of those voting refused to allow the council to sell $2 million of tax-backed general obligation bonds for the College Street structure.

A majority of the council said before the election that if the referendum was turned down, more expensive revenue bonds would be sold to finance the ramp. But since that time, the council has agreed to consider alternatives to the project.

N. Viets drive toward Hue; defenders retreat

SAIGON (AP) — The last government stronghold in northern Binh Dinh Province fell to the Communists Wednesday, giving them control of 200,000 people, a giant rice harvest to feed their troops and a springboard for new drives in the 35-day-old offensive.

Several hundred South Vietnamese abandoned Landing Zone English, a regimental command post in the central coastal lowlands that had been under heavy attack and surrounded by strong North Vietnamese forces for two days. The defenders had suffered substantial losses.

Field reports said the South Vietnamese soldiers and their families made their way, beginning about midnight, to the coast where they were picked up by landing ships.

Earlier in the North Vietnamese offensive, three district towns to the north and south of English had fallen to the North Vietnamese. Many of the fleeing South Vietnamese had pulled back into the big base camp, once the headquarters of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division.

and later the 103rd Airborne Brigade.

It was not known immediately how many South Vietnamese were in the camp, but one unconfirmed report placed the number as high as 2,500.

The fall of English gives the Communists a base for their drive either to the north toward Quang Ngai Province or to the south toward Qui Nhon, South Vietnam's fourth-largest city.

Elsewhere, battered South Vietnamese troops were forming a new line north of Hue on Tuesday in an effort to defend the old imperial capital. Communist pressure on the new defense positions was relatively light, a U.S. officer said.

Field reports said a total of 20 Communist tanks were knocked out Tuesday in action that flared at scattered points south of Quang Tri City. U.S. and South Vietnamese aircraft and Vietnamese ground troops were said to have destroyed the tanks.

An Loc, the embattled provincial capital 60 miles north of Saigon, came in for another pounding of nearly 800 rounds of rockets and artillery. Spokesmen said there was only sporadic ground fighting there.

Council draws new precincts

The City Council set up 25 new city voting precincts Tuesday night.

New voting districts were adopted by the council last December, but that plan was invalidated when the Iowa Supreme Court drew up new boundary lines for the state's legislative districts. The court had given cities and towns until May 10 to redistrict local precincts in accordance with the new reapportionment.

The new plan abolishes the ward system and adds five precincts to the city.

Each of the precincts has an average of 1,874 persons, the largest with 1,905, the smallest, 1,841.

The plan has been approved by the Johnson County Democratic party, according to Dennis Kraft, city community development director.

Kraft said the Republican party was in favor of the plan, but objected to the large areas encompassed by two of the precincts, claiming that it would be difficult for a precinct worker to canvass such a large area.

The new precincts will first be used in the August primary elections.

In other action, the council authorized proceedings for issuance of $2,000,000 worth of revenue bonds to build the controversial College Street parking ramp.

A public hearing was set for May 16 on plans and specifications for construction of the facility.

Edgar R. Czarniecki was the only councilman voting against the action. The council will review alternatives to the ramp with Citizens for a Better Iowa City at a meeting at 8 p.m. tonight at Trinity Episcopal Church, 320 East College Street. (See related story on page 3.)

Appeals decision in Prybil case

The state is appealing to the Iowa Supreme Court to overrule a judge's acquittal of a Johnson County supervisor of allegedly accepting gifts intended to influence his votes on county purchases.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Bennett Cullison Jr., filed notice of the appeal in Johnson County District Court Tuesday. The notice said the state is appealing "the findings, rulings, order and judgment" of Judge John L. Hyland.

Supervisor Ralph G. Prybil was found innocent of the gifts charge April 7 by Hyland. Hyland agreed in his ruling with a U.S. Court of Claims decision which says the state law under which Prybil was charged "is aimed at bounties paid in connection with a particular transaction." Hyland said there was no such evidence shown in the three day trial.

Prybil and seven other men were indicted last December by a Johnson County Grand Jury which accused them of violating the Iowa law which prohibits gifts to public officials from persons seeking to influence public purchases.

Cullison said after Prybil's acquittal that Hyland's opinion "nullifies any action" against the seven other men. The state's appeal seeks to overrule that opinion so the others can be prosecuted.

'Oatmeal' gives away more meals

"Operation Oatmeal" surfaced again Tuesday morning as 21 local children received breakfasts in University of Iowa dormitories.

Larry T. Zamora, S417 Currier, said that the children received breakfasts from UI students as Currier and Burge Halls. Zamora is one of the project organizers.

He said that although "we've been trying to go through the channels" and get an exception to the university rule which prohibits giving away dormitory meals, the university continues to charge students in the program 90 cents for each breakfast they give to local children.

"Operation Oatmeal" is now operating on a fairly regular basis, Zamora said, feeding children on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Nonviolence:

Dr. King's doctrine still viable in 70s, rights leaders say

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Does the doctrine of nonviolence as practiced by the late Dr. Martin Luther King have a place in the '70s? Civil rights leaders insist it does. Revolutionary violence, they say, has no place in the movement to wipe out lingering racism in education, politics and the economy.

Their views are included in a booklet published by the Martin Luther King Jr. Institute for Non-violent Social Change, in Atlanta. The 40-page publication grew out of a series of conferences held by the center to examine the future of the nonviolent movement in America.

The text consists of lectures on the subject given by a diverse group of educators, civil rights leaders, ministers and others. The theme of the lectures was struck by the Rev. James Lawson of Memphis, Tenn., where King was assassinated in 1968. "Violence cannot build justice," he said. "It cannot build a new community. It cannot heal the savage spirit of America. It can only mold and multiply that spirit." "Violent ideologies, tactics or structures cannot heal a violent land." Marian Wright Edelman, veteran civil rights activist and director of the Washington Research Project, suggested that the establishment of a black lobby in the nation's capital would be one nonviolent means of achieving black gains. Such a lobby would be responsive to the interests of minority groups and the poor at administrative and legislative levels. The Rev. Jesse Jackson, Chicago civil rights leader, spoke of the economic problem for blacks in the '70s, urging a separation of the white businessman from the ghetto. "There is no black business in America today in the white community," said Jackson adding "The only time America looks like America is in the ghetto when you have a black shopper and a white owner." Jackson sees the white community as separate and independent, while the black community is separate and dependent upon the whites in an economic sense. "Now if we move not towards separation but move to an independence, to control what is ours, it moves us into a position where we have something the white community wants and they have something we want," said Jackson. "That is the logical basis for some ultimate kind of integration." Jackson called his theory the economics of nonviolence.

Med school wins grant to develop computer part

The National Institutes of Health have announced the awarding of a $42,000 grant to the bio-engineering research facility of the University of Iowa College of Medicine. The award will be used to support the development of a new type of computer display terminal for use in hospitals. The project is an extension of work which the facility has undertaken in the past few years. Prof. Harold W. Shipton, director of the research facility, will be the principal investigator. Shipton said the aim of the study is to produce small TV-like computer terminals which can be remotely controlled by VHF radio and which will be smaller, lighter and easier to use than present-day models. One factor which has slowed the wide use of computers in medicine is the high cost and inflexibility of currently available terminals, he said.

New ISA directors take office

The 1972-73 Board of Directors of Iowa Student Agencies, Inc. (ISA) took office at a meeting Monday night in the Union.

ISA is the student-managed, non-profit corporation that runs The Hulk bar, lecture notes and the student book exchange.

The new board named Rex O. Nichols, 21, 444 Rienvo I, a hold-over director, as the new chairman of ISA's seven-member board. Nichols replaced C. Douglas Couto, 22, 905 East Burlington Street.

The outgoing board appointed four new directors: Jayne L. Seby, 19, 3502 Burge, and Robert L. Day, 23, E312 Currier, to two-year terms; Deborah J. Ginger, 20, 1214 Burge, and Marc D. Snyder, 25, 160 Stadium Park, to one-year terms.

Harriet A. M. Chesney, 19, 234 Carrie Stanley, was named to replace James D. Smittkamp, 20, 524 Iowa Avenue, as the Student Senate representative on the board.

Hold-over directors are Susan M. Ross, 19, 706 Carrie Stanley, who becomes the University of Iowa Student Association executive's representative, and Nichols.

Outgoing directors are Dave Moore, 20, 1321 Marcy Street, Couto and Smittkamp.

The new ISA general manager, Richard D. Chard, 21, 816 North Dubuque Street, replaces Calvin S. Stowell, 21, 2036 9th Street, Coralville.

Outgoing chairman Couto said "ISA has grown tremendously in its three-year history and I feel confident it will continue to do so in the future."

"The new board seems to have the talent needed to keep ISA growing and expanding toward its goal of serving students," Couto said.

New British foe: Ulster 'Tartans'

BELFAST (AP) — Gangs of teen-age Protestants calling themselves Tartans have become a new force on the streets of Northern Ireland. But their elders in the militant Ulster Vanguard Movement are telling them to cool it.

Last weekend, Tartans turned out by the hundreds to challenge police and British troops in rampages through the Roman Catholic Short Strand district of East Belfast. They shattered windows, wrecked pubs and homes and started fights with Catholics.

But the Vanguard movement, an organization claiming 100,000 members and headed by former Cabinet minister William Craig, announced Tuesday it had ordered the Tartans to halt their rampages and to meet with police authorities.

The Tartan gangs are a growing symptom of Protestant dislike of what they consider an overconciliatory attitude by the British government to the Catholic minority.

They say the British, who took all control in Northern Ireland six weeks ago, are soft on the gunmen of the Irish Republican Army, and they fear Britain eventually will force Northern Ireland's Protestant majority into union with the Irish republic.

The immediate cause of last weekend's rioting was the shooting of two young Protestants on the Shankill Road, Belfast's Protestant heartland.

Tartans claim the gunmen were Roman Catholics.

The Tartans' uniform is faded jeans and denim jacket, heavy boots—useful in a fight—and tartan scarf. The Tartan is a symbol of the Scottish strain in the ancestry of most northern Protestants.

Their role in Northern Ireland's current troubles is counterpart to that of the Catholic youngsters who for the past three years have been the spearhead of rioting in Belfast and Londonderry.

Catholic youngsters, skilled with brick and bottle, now are part of the IRA. Their job is to draw troops and police onto the streets where IRA snipers can pick them off.

Funeral services set for former prof

Kirk H. Porter, a pioneer in the development of the academic study of politics during 40 years at the University of Iowa, died Tuesday at a West Branch nursing home. He was 81.

'Driver, follow that bicycle'

RUPERT, Idaho (AP) — When you're planning an escape, almost any means of transportation will do, an Iowa man demonstrated here Monday.

Richard R. Schaffer, 19, of Treynor, Iowa, slipped from authorities at the Minidoka County courthouse and sped off on a bicycle, police said. Police said he stole a 10-speed bicycle just as the father of the bike owner was passing by in a gasoline truck he drives.

Schaffer eluded the father by veering off down a canal bank. Schaffer later threw the bike into the canal and scampered off on foot.

He has not been found. Police said they believe Schaffer is also AWOL from the Marine Corps.

Funeral services for Porter will be at 1:30 p.m. Thursday at the Gay Funeral Home in Iowa City with burial in Oakland Cemetery.

Porter came to the UI in 1919 after one year at Kansas State Teachers College, Emporia, and remained here until retirement in 1959 after 41 years as a teacher, 31 of them as head of the Department of Political Science.

Married in 1923 to Irene Gray Porter, they had two daughters, Carolyn and Majorie. Porter is survived by his daughters, four grandchildren and a sister, Marjorie Porter of Waukegan, Ill. Porter's wife died in 1966.

Porter wrote several books, among them History of Suffrage in the United States and County and Township Government in the U.S.

At his retirement, Porter said he had always sought to get students interested in politics on the national, state and local levels. "I've loved teaching, every minute of it," he said, "and it has delighted me no end that the kids have seemed to want my courses."

Crisis Center's human relations lab will 'try to make well persons better'

Iowa Citizens have an opportunity this weekend to increase their self-understanding and keep the Crisis Center open, according to John E. Jones, associate professor of counselor education.

Jones, a member of the Crisis Center's Board of Directors, will conduct a human relations laboratory Friday, Saturday and Sunday to raise funds for the center. Up to 40 people are expected to participate in the lab and will contribute $25 to the Crisis Center for the experience.

Applications for the lab, which will be held at the Union, must be in by 5 p.m. today, according to Jones. More information may be obtained at the Activities Center in the Union, Jones' office (W144 East Hall), or the Crisis Center.

The weekend activities will include training groups, (T-groups), meetings about nonverbal communication—and exercises in giving and receiving feedback about one's behavior, Jones said.

"T-groups are situations in which there is a leadership vacuum," Jones said, "and so peoples' actions are more likely to come out." He said that the human relations laboratory is not a substitute for psychotherapy. "We are trying to make well people better."

The entire lab earnings will go to the Crisis Center. Jones and 10 other "facilitators," advanced graduate students in counselor education conduct the lab.

The minimum contribution of $25 per person is very inexpensive, Jones said. "Most weekend lab's would cost between $70 and $100. Rather than 'live in' at this lab, we will break up each night to minimize the expense to participants and to eliminate overhead."

The primary goal of the human relations lab is to raise money, Jones said. "If people can't come to the lab, they should still send money to the Crisis Center at box 894."

Kathy S. Beller, director of the center, said the possible $1,000 profit from the laboratory will be used to help the center stay open in June.

OPINIONS

Gladness is...

Now that J. Edgar Hoover is dead we will be subjected to praise that will end only when the body is buried but undoubtedly revived during law-and-order campaign speeches, the dedication of FBI headquarters to his memory and the issuing of a commemorative postage stamp in his honor.

Depending on what you consider to be the job of a federal police department and how well you think he did the job you'll be turned on or off by the references to "America's foremost crime fighter," "The man who struck fear into the hearts of law breakers," and on and on. I think I'm going to be sick.

The exposes of Hoover's running of the FBI are legion. His turning the Bureau into a personality cult; the farcical arrest he once made of a criminal who had been disarmed, searched and leaning with his hands against a wall for five minutes before Hoover arrived on the scene; his constant cries of "communist conspiracy" when budget time came to Capitol Hill; the sex expose service that was run for Pres. Johnson, and his inability to cope with organized crime are all matters of public record.

Hoover's record as a crime fighter has been less than adequate due to the fact that he seemed more concerned with morality, radical politics and the private lives of those around him. Remember, during Hoover's administration the Mafia has been able to exercise great economic, legal and political power. This was at the same time that Hoover was running around checking on who was intercouring whom.

You'll hear much about Hoover's victories over crime. Victories mainly over individual criminals, poor criminals, small time criminals. In short, against the weak criminals. His record against big time criminals; the mafia types, the labor racketeers, the corporate price fixers, the heroin importers won't be mentioned because, for the most part, they do not exist.

A lot of people are glad that Hoover died; I'm simply glad he is no longer director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Maybe now we'll get a war on hard crime instead of sparring with radical phantoms, the capture of one-shot bank robbers, and the harassment of those who oppose Hoover.

In case you missed it, the papers recently carried a heart warming story about Mrs. Irene McCabe, an average American housewife who walked 620 miles from her home in Pontiac, Mich. to the steps of the White House to dramatize her protest over school busing to achieve racial balance in public schools.

Mrs. McCabe, a Caucasian, was joined by hundreds of supporters of the proposed constitutional ban on busing school children for purposes of desegregation. Signs carried by some of the demonstrators read: "We want prayer and Bible reading back in schools;" "Mass. Senators Teddy and Eddy are against neighborhood schools;" and "Quit busing our children like cattle; we will stop this Communist conspiracy."

It's gratifying to know that there are still mothers who care enough about the welfare of their children that they are willing to make personal sacrifices to keep their children from going to school with niggers.

"Oh, what an awful thing to say!" I was told by Mrs. Lily White, of the Citizens for God and Country. "We haven't got anything against nigger-colored people. It's just that I don't see why my kid has to ride for an hour on a bus to get to school when there's a much better, cleaner school right in our own neighborhood."

From there, I went out to the back yard to interview Mary Ann White, 8½, who was playing on the swing-set. "Oh, it's O.K., I guess," she said. "At first I din' wanna go to a new school, but now I made a lotta new friends. An' ridin' on the bus is kinda fun."

"What the hell does she know; she's only in third grade!" her mother replied.

I am also in favor of neighborhood schools as opposed to the ridiculous contrivance of forced busing. The logical solution would be integrated neighborhoods, since the anti-busing people really have nothing against black people. So since the anti-busing movement would not want to be accused of ignoring the long-range solutions, it seems to me that they should also be out fighting for low-income housing and a guaranteed annual income so that black people could afford to move into their neighborhoods and achieve a more effective racial balance in the schools.

Therefore, I was surprised to find that Lily White and most of her neighbors were also members of the anti-open-housing, anti-welfare organization, The Let-Them-Eat-Cake Coalition. And these are the same people who want prayers in public schools. How do they expect to conduct proper religion classes without the descendants of Cain in the classroom? How are they going to be able to teach those little nigger kids that it's God's Plan for them to be barefoot and hungry? How are they going to act out in Inquisition in class without some little darkies to be volunteered for the roles of torture victims?

Those lazy, shiftless, stupid, genetically inferior niggers are always at the root of our problems. If only we had a bus that could ride on water, we could send them all back to Africa or Russia or wherever they belong.

LETTERS

Listen, landlords!

To the Editors in hopes that the landlords are listening:

As are most apartment dwellers in Iowa City, I am content with a roof over my head, but semi-happy with my living conditions. Things could always be better, I imagine... hence, the annual spring search for the super-deal of deals.

After five years of annual searches, I have finally reached my saturation point for what I consider false advertising. I do not think an unventilated kitchen in the living room is a luxury. I do not think American Legion Road is close to campus. I do not think a chamber pot is a modern convenience. I do not think cockroaches are quaint.

One of the most outstanding cases of false advertising I have found to date, involves a free apartment in return for certain custodial duties. The "free apartment" is, in fact, the second bedroom of a mobile home. When asked if this could honestly be called an apartment, the leasor retorted, "Well, there would be kitchen privileges."

Landlords, please!! Why not print the truth? More than likely, there is someone who really wants a whole apartment in one room, or a 4' x 4' bedroom with cooking privileges, or a cave with an out-house. The truth would certainly save a lot of time and frustration for all concerned... "you won't find a better deal anywhere"...

While you are making up your minds, I'll give my landlord (miserable as he is sometimes) a medal and sign up for another year. If anything goes wrong, at least I have Protective Association for Tenants to turn to!! Yeay for the P.A.T.

What bulge?

Just the other day in Washington, D.C., I was visiting an old friend of mine, Sy, who was working in a law office. At first I thought he had sold out to the Establishment, but when he told me that they sue the government on a regular basis I figured it was okay. Anyway we had a jolly time and I even got to see President Nixon's helicopter.

After that moving experience Sy took me to the law library; one of those big, impressive, white structures. There are so many big, impressive white structures in Washington that you're never sure if you're entering a president's crypt or a MacDonald's franchise. This one was a library, I could tell because the shelves all had books on them, with various inspired legal students thumbing through such light reading as Charlston Canning Company vs. Jones and Henry Neagle: 135 U.S. 1 (1890).

As I pushed my Perry Mason paperback deeper into my pocket I chanced to overhear two prospective law grads discuss what they wanted to be when they grew up.

"I want to be THE lawyer of the political dissidents."
"Funny, I want to take the government's side in political cases."

"Well look out! I've been reading up on guerrilla theater. My first case will be open quietly with some hired waitresses from Howard Johnsons serving the court roast pig. This is symbolic of U.S. genocidal policies abroad and police oppression at home. Joan Baez will play the recorder and sing "Zippity Do Dah." The affair will be, of course, ala carte."

"Do that and I'll hit you with an indictment of conspiracy to subvert an American pig while crossing state lines for the purpose of inciting to tip as covered under the Federal Food and Drug Administration Act. For a witness, we'll pressure some unreliable yokel farmer into confessing that notes had been passed through his soy bean feed."

"Then I'll just have my defendants shout intelligent and relevant rhetoric while shooting moons at the ladies in the jury. And if you refuse to bind and gag us we'll do it ourselves.

After all your political-judicial system is just a mockery!"
"The honor and integrity of the United States must be preserved!"

"Let's not worry about it. We radicals will get some contempt citations and you government people will save face."

"Then everyone can write a book and make a mint."
"I'm sure to be serialized in 'Ramparts' and I know you'll be the 'Book of the Month' selection for 'Reader's Digest.'"

I pulled Sy out of the stacks and we went over to the Kennedy center to watch the tourists rip off anything weighing less than a ton. One fellow almost made off with the huge bust of Kennedy, all two hundred and eighty-eight cubic feet of bronze, but the guards were more than a little curious about the bulge in his jacket.

Gubernatorial candidate review which a return is expected after an election are not part of his campaign.

Within the next two weeks, he will fully disclose his contributors and the amount of their contributions—allowing the people of Iowa to decide for themselves whether or not he is devoid of ties to special interests, that, as governor, could work to the detriment of the public interest.

3. Paul Franzenburg has the intelligence of leadership to change his mind when he is wrong. Following release of the report of the National Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse—he changed his position to one in line with the commission's report, saying, "I will defer to the experts on this."

4. If Iowa is ever to make the social reforms needed, Iowa must first find the money to make them.

Paul Franzenburg has said that high income groups and large corporations should start paying their fair, and a greater share, of Iowa's tax revenues.

He is opposed to an increase in the state sales tax—a regressive tax which hits those most unable to pay it—the elderly and the small wage earner.

Money is power to change Iowa—power to bring about the reforms in our society that are so vitally needed.

It is worth considering that Paul Franzenburg's experience as state treasurer equips him well to lead Iowa in making the fiscal reforms needed to pay for social reforms, we need.

Finally, Paul Franzenburg recognizes that his election—or the election of anyone else—is not going to be a cure-all for all the ills facing Iowa. He does not believe that one man can wave some magic wand and all our problems will go away. He put it best when he said, "I believe we must extend real hope to Iowans—especially the disillusioned young, the disenfranchised poor, and the discarded elderly. We must end the false promises and give real hope—not a lot of the P.R. that is written in campaign speeches."

I hope I have not engaged in too much of the rhetoric in this commentary that we are tired of hearing from candidates and their supporters."

All I ask is your consideration of Paul Franzenburg for the governorship.

Swedish couples shun marriage

STOCKHOLM (AP)—With many young Swedes shunning marriage, nearly a fifth of Sweden's babies are arriving out of wedlock.

A "unique" decline in Swedish marriages is pinpointed by Erland Hofsten, head of the state statistical bureau. Nothing like it is happening elsewhere in Europe, he says.

From a high point of 61,101 marriages in 1966, the number tumbled to 39,000 last year—a 35 per cent nosedive within five years and the lowest figures in more than a century.

Hofsten says the decrease in weddings is most pronounced and significant at the ages when marriage normally is most usual—23-24 for women and 25-26 for men.

Illegitimacy rose from 10 per cent of all births in 1960 to 18 per cent in 1970, a record figure.

Why the decline in marriages? For lack of a clear-cut answer a lot of theories are put about.

In general, more and more couples are deciding simply to live together. "Our love is so strong there's no need for a ring or a marriage certificate," says one couple.

Hofsten opined that the change in social customs "could more easily win ground in Sweden because free associations and illegitimate children have always been accepted in a manner which isn't usual in other countries.

Ingrid Sundberg, a moderate party member of parliament active in family affairs, found the development disturbing. "Children need security," she observed.

Hofsten saw the fact that women's economic liberation has advanced farther in Sweden than many other countries as an element in the pattern.

A gradual weakening in Christian belief and religious devotion is being cited among church leaders.

A state commission has been working almost three years on proposals to change family laws—possibly by making marriage simply a form of registration and by easing divorce.

Now every third marriage breaks up within 10 years. Divorces rose from 8,958 in 1960 to 12,238 in 1969. The most common grounds are adultery, alcoholism, a criminal conviction and mental disease.

One suggestion under study: if the marriage partners agree an immediate divorce should be possible. If the couple has children, or if one partner objects, there would be a time for reflection—perhaps up to six months.

Under this thinking the guilty-party concept would end.

SURVIVAL LINE

SURVIVAL LINE answers your questions, cuts red tape, investigates your tips and all sorts of good things like that each morning in The Daily Iowan. Phone 353-6210 between 7 and 8 p.m. Monday through Thursday or write survival line, The Daily Iowan, 201 Communications Center, Iowa City. Sorry, telephone calls at other times cannot be accepted.

I ordered some beautician's uniforms from Alan Kent, Inc. in New Cassel, N.Y. last year. First they sent the wrong size, then in exchange they sent the wrong style, and I returned these. Since then I have written three letters and even have telephoned this firm, but cannot seem to get them to send me the right uniforms. Can the SURVIVAL LINE get help for us? —J.R.

Things should get pretty stylish for you shortly, SURVIVAL LINE's Consumerperson found Alan Kent, Inc. in a new location in Huntington Station, N.Y., and claiming to have no knowledge of your letters and telephone calls, "but I'm sure we'll find the order somewhere," to quote their complaint manager Joan Thomas.

And find it they did, eventually, after repeated prodding by us. Your two uniforms are on their way to you.

How can I find out the names of the owners of the and or landlords of various houses in Iowa City? —A.M.

Houses, houses everywhere, but not a one to rent. We found out that you can get your information at the County Tax Assessor's office in the Court House. The number there is 337-3768.

In the spring and summer we are bothered by spiders and cockroaches. What is a good way to kill them? —R.B.

Bugs got you on the run? The cockroaches carry off your dinner while you get your coffee? SURVIVAL LINE found some advice for you from General Pest and Termit Control. If you want to try to get rid of the pests yourself, try Black Flag or other commercially available pesticides. Or you pick up some spray that they have for $8.95.

There's a small problem with doing the work yourself—the cockroaches just move to another spot. Spiders are no problem, just spray them and they die.

UI Symphony tonight

The tragedy and desolation that results from the destruction of the earth will be dramatized musically tonight at a performance of Karel Husas "Apotheosis of this Earth" by the University of Iowa's Symphony Band in a concert at 8 p.m. in the Union Main Lounge.

Conducting the band will be Frank Pierson, UI director of bands, assisted by Thomas L. Davis, UI assistant director of bands.

Free tickets for the concert are now available at the Union Box Office, at the Band Office in the UI Music Building, or at Eble Music Company and West Music Company, both in downtown Iowa City.

Pepitone stuns Chicago with 'I quit' statement

CHICAGO (AP) — Joe Pepitone, colorful and controversial most of his 10-season big league career, stunned the Chicago Cubs Tuesday by announcing he was quitting baseball.

First baseman Pepitone, 31, who seemingly found a home with the Cubs after unhappy partings with the New York Yankees and Houston Astros, requested to be placed on the voluntarily retired list as of Monday.

The action came as the Cubs were holding pre-game drills before a scheduled game with the Atlanta Braves and left teammates of the popular if unpredictable Pepitone astounded.

After announcing his decision to Vice President John Holland, Pepitone drafted a letter to be submitted to National League President Chub Feeney which said:

"I hereby request to be placed on the voluntarily retired list as of this date, as I am no longer interested in playing professional baseball."

Pepitone, who last season had his career batting high of .307, reportedly was chagrined about being benched recently but also had been suffering from gastritis the past week.

He told a crowd of reporters at Joe's Thing, his Near North Side tavern, after returning from Wrigley Field: "I just lost my interest in baseball. It wasn't a question of whether I was on the bench or playing. It was no longer fun playing baseball and it hasn't been. Actually, this has been on my mind for about six years."

Cubs sting Braves 12-1

CHICAGO (AP) — Home runs by Ron Santo, Jim Hickman and Glenn Beckert featured a 15-hit attack Tuesday which carried the Chicago Cubs to a 12-1 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

It marked the Cubs' biggest offensive explosion of the season and snapped Atlanta's three-game winning streak.

Pepitone, with a yearly salary of $60,000 said he regarded the Cubs as "the greatest team in baseball, even though they haven't been able to win a pennant."

The wig-wearing, flamboyant Pepi also praised Manager Leo Durocher, declaring, "Last year I told Leo the day after you might get fired, I'd quit. There is no other manager I'd play under."

"I just don't know what Joe's problem really is," said Durocher, who rescued Pepitone in the middle of the 1970 season when Pepi went AWOL from the Astros. "Something must be disturbing him. It's too bad this has to happen and we have to lose a guy like that."

"But there's not much you can do if he's disinterested and doesn't want to play."

Team captain Ron Santo said, "Joe had to be really upset to do a thing like that, but I don't think it's because of any one situation. Maybe he just has to be away from it for a while. Let's hope he comes back."

Even if Pepitone should want to return to the club, he would have to stay out of baseball for 60 days once his request to quit reaches the league office. Pepi's letter was mailed immediately to Feeney and was preceded by a telegram informing the league president of Pepi's decision.

Vida's back

Vida Blue, the Oakland A's young southpaw pitching sensation, was back with the A's working out Tuesday night in Boston. Blue got a whopping pay increase after pitching for $14,750 a year ago. Blue, the Cy Young award winner in his first year, will be getting $63,000 this season. He isn't expected to pitch for three to four weeks. Oakland's game at Boston was rained out last night.

DeBusschere improved but Jackson will start

NEW YORK (AP) — Dave DeBusschere, the New York Knicks' ailing forward, was significantly improved Tuesday but remained a question mark for the third game against the Los Angeles Lakers Wednesday night in the National Basketball Association's championship series.

"Phil Jackson will start," said the Knicks' coach, Red Holzman. "Whether DeBusschere plays—or how much he plays—will have to remain a game-to-game proposition."

The uncertain status of the 6-foot-6, 220-pound all-around forward, who suffered a strained muscle in his right side in the second period of the game last

BOSTON (AP) — Ken Hodge rammed home a goal with just over eight minutes to play Tuesday night, giving the Boston Bruins a 2-1 victory over the New York Rangers—their second straight in the National Hockey League's Stanley Cup Championship playoff.

Winnie to rest injured Hawks against Drake

By RICHARD DE JONG
Daily Iowan Sports Writer
The Iowa tennis team faces Drake today at 3:00 p.m. on the courts next to Nile Kinnick Stadium.

In this non-conference match, Iowa coach John Winnie decided to rest Rod Kubat, the No. 1 player, and Iowa's injured players, Bruce Nagel, Rob Griswold and Ian Phillips.

To defend Iowa's 11-6 overall record, Winnie plans on starting Lee Wright in the No. 1 spot, Steve Dickinson at No. 2, and using Paul Daniels, Steve Har-

Sunday, has made the Lakers a favorite in the best-of-seven game series.

With the series tied at one game each, the two divisional champions renew their rivalry at 8:40 p.m. EDT Wednesday at Madison Square Garden. The game will be televised nationally by ABC-TV.

With a phenomenal shooting exhibition, the Knicks won the opening game at Los Angeles last Friday 114-92 but, with DeBusschere hurt, the New Yorkers became easy victims of the Lakers Sunday 106-92.

DeBusschere, who was injured when Los Angeles' Jim McMillian rammed him on a rebound, worked out with the Knicks Tuesday morning, went to the doctor for an examination and then embarked on extensive ultra-sound and heat treatments for the ailing side.

"I felt much better," he said. "I'd like to take a shot at playing if there's no danger of more damage."

Dr. Andrew Patterson, the team physician, refused to offer the Knicks too much optimism.

Patterson said that DeBusschere might be able to perform with a pain-killing injection but such an injection would be of no value if the strain was widespread. Such an injection would aid only a localized condition.

It appeared that Holzman would call upon DeBusschere for spot and emergency service.

Women oppose move out of PE department

By BILL ROEMERMAN
Daily Iowan Sports Writer

A proposal to take the responsibility for women's recreation and intramural sports away from the department of Physical Education for Women was opposed by women at a meeting Tuesday in the Union.

The women met with University of Iowa President Willard L. Boyd, Vice Provost Philip G. Hubbard, and Charles H. Reed, chairman of the Recreational Advisory Committee to discuss proposed changes in the women's recreational and sports programs.

The Recreational advisory committee recommended earlier that control of women's recreation be given to the Division of Recreational Services. The women opposed this because they said, "it would put the control in the hands of a man."

The women said they might support the move if a woman was appointed co-director to serve in an equal capacity with Harry R. Ostrander, the current director of the division.

Under the proposal offered by the Recreational Advisory Committee, a coordinator of women's intramurals would be hired, but would be subordinate to Ostrander.
