

IN THE NEWS briefly

Finally

IT'S HERE!!! The forecast on this, the last day of finals, is for mostly crowded skies at local taverns, some precipitation as the last exams are B-S'ed through, and thundering herds of happy scholars.

Outside, indications are that it will be damp, with thunderstorms on tap for this afternoon and evening. It will be generally cooler, with highs in the mid-70s to low 80s. Lows tonight will nosedive into the 50s.

McCarney

U.S. District Atty. Allen Donielson still plans to decide this week whether to prosecute former Iowa City Police Chief Patrick J. McCarney for alleged prisoner abuse.

Donielson said Tuesday night that he has discussed a Federal Bureau of Investigation report of its investigation into charges against McCarney with officials in the Justice Department. Donielson expects to receive added information from the Justice Department today to aid in his decision on whether to prosecute.

The FBI investigation of charges against McCarney was one of three probes last December into charges that the ex-chief allegedly abused prisoners in police custody here.

McGovern

Sen. George McGovern rolled to landslide victories in the Oregon and Rhode Island presidential primaries Tuesday night. He hoped the triumphs a continent apart would fuel his campaign for the crucial California contest two weeks away.

With the double win, McGovern added 56 presidential nominating votes to the national lead he already held.

In Oregon, with 36 per cent of the precincts counted, this was the situation:

McGovern 42,879 votes or 50 per cent.
Wallace 17,168 votes or 20 per cent.
Humphrey 11,111 votes or 13 per cent.

In Rhode Island, with 100 per cent of the precincts counted, the vote stood this way:

McGovern 15,484 or 41 per cent.
Muskie 7,799 or 21 per cent.
Humphrey 7,655 or 20 per cent.
Wallace 5,794 or 15 per cent.

Airport bonds

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa (AP) — Voters at Cedar Rapids Tuesday narrowly turned down a $5 million bond issue to upgrade the Cedar Rapids airport.

The issue received 12,576 votes for and 9,103 votes against. This was a total of 58.1 per cent favoring the issue. However, 60 per cent—or 431 more votes in favor—was needed for passage.

Proponents of the measure said earlier Cedar Rapids could lose its jet service by next year if the bond issue were defeated.

The bond issue also would have provided $2.65 million for purchase of 1,450 acres of land adjoining the airport. Officials said federal regulations require the land purchases for safety and environmental control.

Pieta

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Work toward repairing Michelangelo's vandalized Pieta began Tuesday and Vatican art experts were confident that a satisfactory, if not complete, restoration of the marble masterpiece is possible within a few months.

"The work won't take long," said Francesco Vacchini, chief Vatican engineer. "Maybe just a few months."

"Pieta will be restored in all its parts," Vacchini insisted. "It is not only a work of art, but also an object of worship. Everybody wants to see it regain its former look."

MIGs

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Air Force and Navy fighters escorting bombers on raids against the northeast rail line linking Hanoi with China shot down four Soviet-built MIG interceptors in a dogfight Tuesday deep inside North Vietnam, U.S. military sources said.

The MIGs were downed after they rose from the KEP air base, 35 miles northeast of Hanoi, to challenge the U.S. bombers, the sources said Wednesday.

Radio Hanoi claimed eight U.S. planes were shot down while attacking "many populated areas" in five North Vietnamese provinces.

There was no comment from the U.S. Command.

Civil rights

WASHINGTON (AP) — A coalition of six civil rights organizations Tuesday urged a federal fund cutoff for Southern schools it says are using expulsion and suspension of black pupils to thwart meaningful desegregation.

The recommendation was made in a 130-page report "It's Not Over in the South," based on a survey early this year of 43 urban school systems in 11 Southern states.

Tamper-free fire alarm designed . . .

By STEVE MOORE
Daily Iowan Staff Writer

A dormitory fire alarm that doesn't turn in false alarms? That's what a new invention by four University of Iowa engineering students should do.

The device is a delay circuit that could drastically reduce the incidence of false alarms in dormitories, Howard W. McCauley, professor of civil engineering and project supervisor for the students, said Tuesday.

The students who designed the device which is called "Prophet Systems," are Bill P. Esslinger, 304 Rienow II, Raymond C. Kapschull, 308 Rienow II; Robert D. Parker, North Liberty, and Gary M. Sassman, E14 Hillcrest. The project was designed for the annual engineering design contest here.

The circuit is designed so that a person turning in an alarm in a dormitory would have to hold the alarm in for a set period of time (15 to 30 seconds) to get off all of the fire alarms in the building and at the fire station, McCauley said.

If the alarm is not held in for the specified time, then only the alarm above his head goes off, while alarms in all other areas of the building and at the fire station will not be activated according to McCauley.

If the alarm is a false one and the buzzing attracts other persons to the scene, causing the culprit to release the alarm and flee before the specified time, no general alarm is set off, he said.

The freshmen estimated the cost of installing the alarm system in Rienow II at $1,500, but McCauley said he thinks it would cost more like $3,000.

McCauley said Iowa City Fire Chief Dean Bebee was impressed with the system.

Director of Maintenance for UI dormitory and Dining Service Frederick W. Moore said Tuesday that there are no plans to implement such a system in the UI dormitories at the present time. "I've heard nothing of the plan and without a full knowledge of the system I can't make a judgment on it," he said.

According to McCauley, the time delay is case of a real fire would not be crucial, and in terms of the number of false alarms and useless trips it could save, the system has promise.

In Chicago, where 80 per cent of the alarms turned in by the street fire alarm boxes are false alarms, such a device could be worthwhile, he added.

Sign ecology, health accords

MOSCOW (AP) — President Nixon and Soviet leaders reached their first modest agreements of the Moscow summit Tuesday and moved on with talks ranging over such issues as arms limitations and Vietnam.

The President had private sessions with Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev before and after ceremonies for the signing of bilateral agreements on environmental protection and health.

They were the second and third sessions Nixon has had with Brezhnev since he became on Monday the first American president to set foot in Moscow.

Informants said the evening session focused almost exclusively on the proposed strategic arms limitation agreement which Nixon hopes to sign while in Moscow. Work on the agreement is being done in U.S.-Soviet talks at Helsinki, Finland. Sources there said Tuesday some remaining problems need to be worked out.

Nixon and Brezhnev were joined in the evening session by White House adviser Henry A. Kissinger and Kremlin aide Andrei M. Aleksander-Agentov. Nixon dined in his suite at the Kremlin Grand Palace after the meeting, which lasted nearly three hours until 10 p.m.

In the gilded splendor of a vaulted Kremlin hall, Nixon signed with President Nikolai V. Podgorny an agreement pledging a cooperative effort on water and air pollution.

This was followed with the signing by Secretary of State William P. Rogers and the Soviet health minister of an agreement for joint efforts in conquering heart ailments, cancer and other diseases.

The five-year agreement, which established U.S.-Soviet coordinating committees to meet regularly, had essentially been wrapped up before Nixon arrived here.

Sources indicated another agreement for a cooperative space exploration program also was ready for signing, aiming for a joint orbital flight in 1975.

The atmosphere of the talks was described as businesslike but cordial. There was no concrete indication of progress on the key issues of Vietnam, the strategic arms limitation accord and trade. But it was understood Nixon and Brezhnev had moved into these areas in a two-hour session before the signing ceremonies and another meeting afterward.

The summit talks, which follow by three months Nixon's mission to Peking, continue on Wednesday after Nixon lays a wreath at the tomb of Russia's unknown soldier.

The Soviets made it clear they join the United States in expecting the week-long summit to lead to an easing of East-West tensions.

The Kremlin's chief spokesman, Tass general director Leonid Zamyatin, emphasized in a news conference that "Soviet leaders attach great significance to the talks . . . realizing that these meetings and negotiations are going on in a complicated international situation."

Will investigate police harassment

Iowa City will conduct a "full scale investigation" into complaints of alleged police harassment here.

City Manager Ray S. Wells said Tuesday that the city will investigate incidents discussed at a Monday night meeting of the Iowa City Social Concerns Committee.

At that meeting, Joseph C. Breno, 1521 Prairie du Chien Road, said he and his family have been harassed by several Iowa City policemen during the past four years.

He also claimed that one of his sons had been abused by officers who had stopped him for running a red light. Breno said the harassment included threats from police to put his sons in prison and police visits to Breno's place of work.

Breno claimed at the Social Concerns meeting that lawmen had stopped members of his family several times "for no reason at all."

The other incident of alleged harassment to be investigated involves a charge that a city policeman jumped over a restaurant counter to arrest Harold W. Simmons.

Simmons, owner of Harold's Drive-In and Dairy Sweet, was arrested for unpaid parking tickets and complained shortly after his arrest that an officer had unnecessarily climbed over the counter in order to serve him with a warrant for his arrest.

Wells has defended the police action in the Simmons case but said Tuesday that both Simmons' and Breno's cases will now be investigated.

Air war: New bomb targets: N. Viet's factories

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon disclosed Tuesday U.S. planes will attack North Vietnamese industrial plants, as well as military targets, marking a new turn in the American bombing campaign.

Pentagon spokesman Jerry Friedheim said he "would not rule out any sort of industrial target" that supports the enemy's war effort.

Since Hanoi opened its offensive against the South seven weeks ago, U.S. planes have hit hard at military targets in the North, blasting petroleum storage depots, anti-aircraft sites, bridges, railroads and highways.

Friedheim said these attacks will continue on a major scale but added that U.S. planes also "will be hitting some of the other targets such as power plants and some of the industrial facilities which support the military effort . . ."

As part of the intensified bombing campaign, U.S. commanders in the field have greater flexibility to choose the targets.

"By the nature of the rather substantial effort going on at this time," Friedheim said, "military commanders probably have more flexibility in their targeting than was exercised in the 1967-68 period" when target selection was done largely in Washington.

About the only targets ruled out by President Nixon are the dikes in the Red River valley for controlling floods and irrigating North Vietnam's ricegrowing areas.

Apart from raising havoc with the North's economic development, the broadening of the bombing campaign to include industrial facilities is not likely to have a decisive effect on the war itself, at least in short run. Such attacks may well increase civilian casualties.

The North Vietnamese economy is 90 per cent agricultural, leaving Hanoi to rely on imports for most of its manufactured goods and war supplies. Two weeks ago the United States sealed the North's harbors with mines and has been bombing her transportation network.

Friedheim reported that all of the 25 ships bound for North Vietnam when the mines were seeded now have changed course and are headed elsewhere.

Okay expansion of girls' athletics in I.C. schools

Expansion of girls athletic programs in local junior and senior high schools was approved Tuesday by the Iowa City School Board.

The board voted to establish interscholastic programs in track and summer softball for senior high girls for the 1972-73 school year.

An intra-city program of girls basketball will also be initiated next year. Two senior high squads and three ninth grade teams will form an Iowa City girls league.

Board members said expansion of the program to the interscholastic level will hinge on success of the local program and the availability of outside competition.

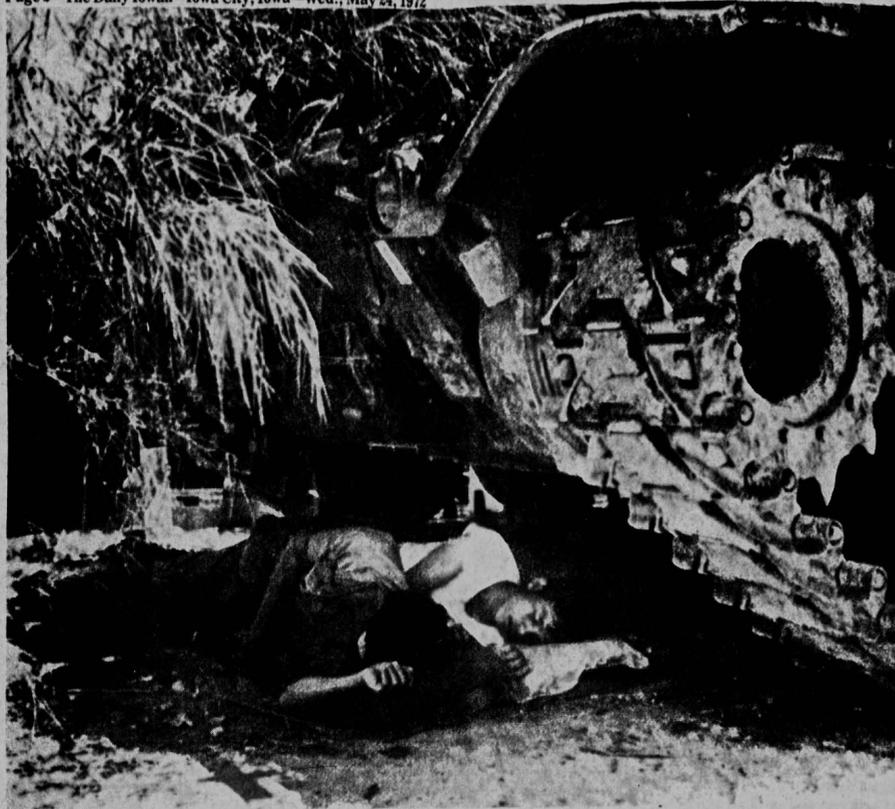

Intra-district programs for junior high girls were approved in basketball, track, softball and volleyball. Each junior high will have three teams, one for each grade in each sport.

Funds for the expansion will come from the school system's general fund and from athletic funds. Total cost of the project will be $17,106.

Board action came after a spokesman for the American Civil Liberties Union had raised the possibility of a court suit at an earlier meeting. The ACLU had called for more equal distribution of expenditures between boys and girls sports in Iowa City schools.

Board member Philip Leff warned that funds for all athletic programs will face cuts in the near future. He said pressing budget priorities might force the board to cut boys sports to current girls levels, rather than expansion of the girls program.

Cancel Washington trip plans, 'Caravan' raising bail funds

The local Caravan for Peace is gathering bail funds now rather than raising money for a planned trip to Washington, D.C. The Caravan had planned to join the current demonstrations against the Vietnam war in the capital.

According to a local organizer, Kristine S. Thieker, three-fourths of the Iowa City group which had planned to go are either in jail, involved in court, or are witnesses for the court cases stemming from early May disorders here.

The group is now raising bail money instead of trip funds. However, she said all money contributed to support the trip is being, or has been, returned to the donors.

A few people from Iowa City left for Washington in private cars or by hitch hiking and a few others are planning to leave soon. The Washington demonstrations are planned for the remainder of this week, she said.

Information on places to stay, food and medical centers is available at the Student Senate office in the Union.

The efforts by the local anti-war groups will now turn to getting interested students to organize opposition to the war in their home towns over the summer, according to Ms. Thieker.

Drop charges in camper fire case

Arson charges were dropped Tuesday against a University of Iowa student who confessed in a Daily Iowan story that he set fire to a pick-up's wooden camper during anti-war protests here May 9.

The charge against John E. Schroeder, 11½ East Washington Street, was dismissed by Police Court Judge Joseph Thornton because authorities "offered no evidence in my court as to who owned it (the camper)."

Thornton said County Atty. Carl J. Goetz presented two witnesses, both Iowa City policemen, at Schroeder's preliminary hearing Tuesday. The judge said both lawmen testified that Schroeder had set fire to the camper in the Burlington Street-Riverside Drive intersection. But neither knew who owned the camper that was destroyed in the blaze.

Thornton explained that "the (arson) law says it (the property burned) has to be the property of another and I don't know who it belongs to, so I dismissed the case."

Schroeder admitted in a DI story May 16 that he set the camper on fire after pulling it from a pick-up that drove into the intersection during an anti-war protest.

In that story, Schroeder said he burned the camper with the owner's consent, but did not name the owner.

Schroeder said he committed the "horrendous 'crime' against society" without "any assistance whatsoever."

However, before Schroeder's printed confession, police had arrested another UI student, Mark D. Peters, and charged him with arson in connection with the fire.

Thornton said Tuesday that the arson charge is still pending against Peters whose case was indefinitely continued Tuesday because his attorney could not be present in court.

Although Thornton has dismissed the charge against Schroeder, the judge said Goetz could file a similar charge against Schroeder in district court if the identity of the camper's owner is determined.

Expect Senate ok of busing proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Tuesday rejected an attempt to send the $21.3-billion higher-education bill back to Senate-House conferees with instructions to accept stringent House anti-busing provisions.

The lopsided vote against the move by Sen. Robert P. Griffin, D-Mich., indicated that the Senate will pass the compromise version of the legislation when it votes at 2:00 p.m. CDT today. The House has not yet voted.

Griffin, the Republican whip, noted that the conferees had accepted only one of the tough House riders aimed at school-busing orders and had watered down the other two.

Griffin, supported by Southern senators, said he wanted the Senate conferees to capitulate and take all three of the House provisions.

However, Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I. declared that Griffin's move could kill the entire higher-education package. He moved to table and thus kill Griffin's motion, and this was adopted on a 44-26 vote.

The bill contains a new system of student assistance designed to assure every needy high school graduate in the nation a chance at a college education.

In addition, it would establish for the first time a program of general federal grants to aid all of the U.S. public and private colleges and universities.

When the conference finished last week, members estimated the total cost of the measure at $18.5 billion over four years. But the official report, filed Tuesday, showed the total to be $21.3 billion.

The anti-busing House rider would prevent any court busing orders from taking effect over the next 19 months until all appeals had been exhausted.

The other two riders which were softened would have barred use of any federal funds for busing to desegregate a school and would have directed federal officials not to require or induce a school district to use state or local funds for that purpose.

Indict Bremer in Wallace assault

BALTIMORE (AP) — Arthur Herman Bremer was indicted Tuesday by federal and state grand juries on assault charges stemming from the shooting of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace and three other persons at a political rally May 15.

See background feature on Arthur Bremer on page 5 of today's Daily Iowan.

The 21-year-old Bremer, being held at the Baltimore County Jail in suburban Towson, is scheduled to appear for federal arraignment at 10 a.m. today.

The four-count federal indictment charges Bremer with violating federal civil rights and firearms statutes.

The stocky, blond Milwaukee man is accused of using a .38-caliber revolver to wilfully injure a presidential candidate and to assault Nicholas J. Zarvos, a Secret Service agent guarding Wallace.

The federal indictment also charges Bremer with bringing the gun from Wisconsin to Maryland and with using the weapon to commit a felony.

Each of the first three counts carries a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine; the fourth count bears a maximum penalty of 10 years in jail.

The federal indictment was returned about two hours after a grand jury in Prince Georges County—where the shootings occurred—handed down four identical six-count indictments carrying potentially more serious penalties.

The state charges accuse Bremer with two common law offenses, attempted murder and assault and battery; two felonies, assault with intent to murder and assault with intent to maim; and two violations of Maryland's recently enacted handgun control law.

The common law crimes carry no fixed penalties and can result, upon conviction, in death in the gas chamber, according to Arthur Marshall, the state's attorney who made the presentation to the jury in Upper Marlboro.

Marshall said, however, that the death penalty has never been imposed in a case where the victim survived.

Listed in the state indictments as victims were Wallace; Zarvos, Capt. E.C. Dothard, an Alabama state trooper accompanying Wallace; and Dora Thompson, a campaign worker from Alabama.

Zarvos, the only person remaining hospitalized besides Wallace, 52, was reported resting comfortably at Leland Memorial Hospital in Riverdale, Md., where he underwent surgery for a throat wound.

No date has been set for Bremer's arraignment on the state charges.

Authorities also must decide who will try Bremer first.

Seek slight hike for school budget

The smallest budget increase in 15 years was submitted to the Iowa City School Board Tuesday night, as the board began work on next year's spending proposals.

The preliminary budget calls for expenditures of $10,809,600, an increase of $103,000 over current spending levels. School Board Business Manager John Gillespie said the increase is entirely due to increased enrollments, and per pupil spending will remain at the 1971-1972 rate of $1,126.

The school budget is essentially frozen, Gillespie said, noting that Iowa law prohibits Iowa City from raising its expenditures more than 10 per cent above the state average. The local budget is already at the maximum level. Any cut in expenditures would not reduce property taxes, but only shrink state aid to the school district, he said.

The board will discuss the budget at meetings June 13 and 27. A public hearing on the budget is scheduled June 27.

Don't see quality of justice hurt by ruling

By the Associated Press

Jurists and other legal experts in several states said Monday that they did not think the quality of justice would be affected by the U.S. Supreme Court ruling allowing conviction of defendants on trial in state courts for noncapital crimes by a less-than-unanimous jury. The American Civil Liberties Union, however, called the decision "unfortunate since it illustrates the Supreme Court's new posture, which reflects a lack of sympathy for the rights of criminal defendants."

Some spokesmen pointed out that only four states—Louisiana, Oregon, Oklahoma and Montana—now have laws permitting conviction by less than a unanimous vote. They said they did not think it likely that the ruling would spur a rush for change.

Arizona's attorney general, Gary Nelson, said he did not think there would be any change in his state's constitution which requires unanimous convictions. He added, however, "It seems to me there are a lot of cases hung up on 10-2 and 11-1 decisions. I don't believe the quality of justice or its accuracy will be affected by the decision."

In California, state Assemblyman Robert Beverly, chairman of the Assembly Criminal Justice Committee, said the ruling "won't have any effect whatsoever in California, now or any time in the foreseeable future."

A spokesman for the state chapter of the ACLU in Washington said, however, that he expected a move in his area for a law permitting convictions by less than the whole jury. "Prosecutors will exert strong pressure for this," he said.

Florida Atty. Gen. Robert Shevin, noting that the idea of less-than-unanimous decisions "grabs me pretty well," said he probably would recommend that the state Supreme Court change its rule requiring unanimous verdicts.

Lee Johnson, the attorney general of Oregon, one of two states directly involved in the high court ruling, said the decision "has reiterated Chief Justice John Marshall's belief that the Constitution is a living document which permits the experimentation and flexibility to meet the problems of our age."

Oregon permits conviction by a 10-2 verdict except in first-degree murder convictions; Louisiana, the other state involved in Monday's ruling, allows a 9-3 conviction except in capital cases.

Tennessee Criminal Appeals Court Judge Charles Galbreath said of the decision: "I doubt if it would seriously affect many trials. In about 1 per cent of the cases, you have hung juries where one person holds out. This would relieve that situation and save a lot of time and money."

Students to Calif. to assist McGovern

Volunteers from the University of Iowa will be leaving for California by bus Monday to work on Sen. George McGovern's presidential campaign.

The volunteers, who will board the bus at Des Moines will campaign for a McGovern victory in the June 6 California primary.

According to Mike Meloy, local coordinator for the group, "California will be the important one. If he can get those delegates he'll have the nomination."

The cost of the trip will be $67 for transportation, and volunteers will be housed in private homes with meals provided.

"The volunteers will be canvassing, talking to people and generally doing anything they're willing to do," Meloy said.

The return date is flexible, but will be some time soon after the primary.

Expand infirmary's visiting hours

Visiting hours at the University of Iowa Student Infirmary have been expanded to 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily for the summer and next year, Director of Student Health Dr. Robert A. Wilcox said Tuesday.

Wilcox said he decided that the former hours were too rigid, although complaints about the hours had not been received.

"We'd like to have more people using our infirmary, because it costs a lot to run and it's a good place to be if you're sick," Wilcox said.

Wilcox said he welcomes suggestions on how to improve the facilities and operation of Student Health. "We want to make it more attractive for the students to use," he said.

An attempt to improve the food served patients is a matter Wilcox said he is concerned with at the present, and he welcomes suggestions on that matter, too.

The expanded hours in no way affect the hours that Student Health doctors will be available, Wilcox said. Students still have to report to the emergency room of University Hospitals after hours, he said.

Hoover estate to close friend

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover willed the bulk of his $551,500 estate to his closest friend, Clyde A. Tolson, the Washington Post reported in Tuesday's editions.

The 72-year-old Tolson was associate director of the FBI when Hoover died May 2, but resigned almost immediately. The two were close friends since their first association in the 1920s.

Terms of a will filed last Wednesday in U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia listed Tolson as chief beneficiary and executor of Hoover's estate.

Tolson has moved into Hoover's $100,000 home in Washington, Post columnist Maxine Cheshire reported.

Women holding more Demo delegate seats, but total is behind goal

WASHINGTON (AP) — More and more women are being named delegates to the national presidential nominating conventions and if present trends hold they will make up a third of the Democratic delegates and a fourth of the Republican.

Women's showing in the Democratic selection process is running well behind the goal of 50 per cent set by party reformers—but the female contingent seems certain to more than double that of 1968 when only 13 per cent of the delegates were women.

Republicans are bound by no reform rules this year but nevertheless are electing more women delegates. There were 17 per cent women at the 1968 GOP convention.

In the 11 states where Republicans have elected delegates so far 24 per cent are women.

Democrats have chosen convention delegates in 26 states so far and 32 per cent of them are women.

Ten states still have to select at-large delegates, however, and the National Women's Political Caucus is putting pressure on candidates to have women named to these slots to bring up the female ratio.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota was criticized by the caucus a week ago for having only 24 per cent women delegates on slates committed to him, compared to 45 per cent on slates for Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota.

Tuesday the caucus released a letter Humphrey wrote last week to his delegates in Pennsylvania asking that women be chosen for the at-large delegates to ward off challenges.

Humphrey said he'd encouraged the naming of delegates from all segments of the population.

"For the sake of the implementation of the (reform rules), for the safety of the elected and selected Humphrey delegates, and for the advancement of my candidacy," Humphrey said, "it is incumbent that most, if not all, of the additional delegates be women. Some of these delegates, as many as possible, should be between the ages of 18 to 30 years."

The caucus Tuesday commended Humphrey's efforts to bring more women into his camp.

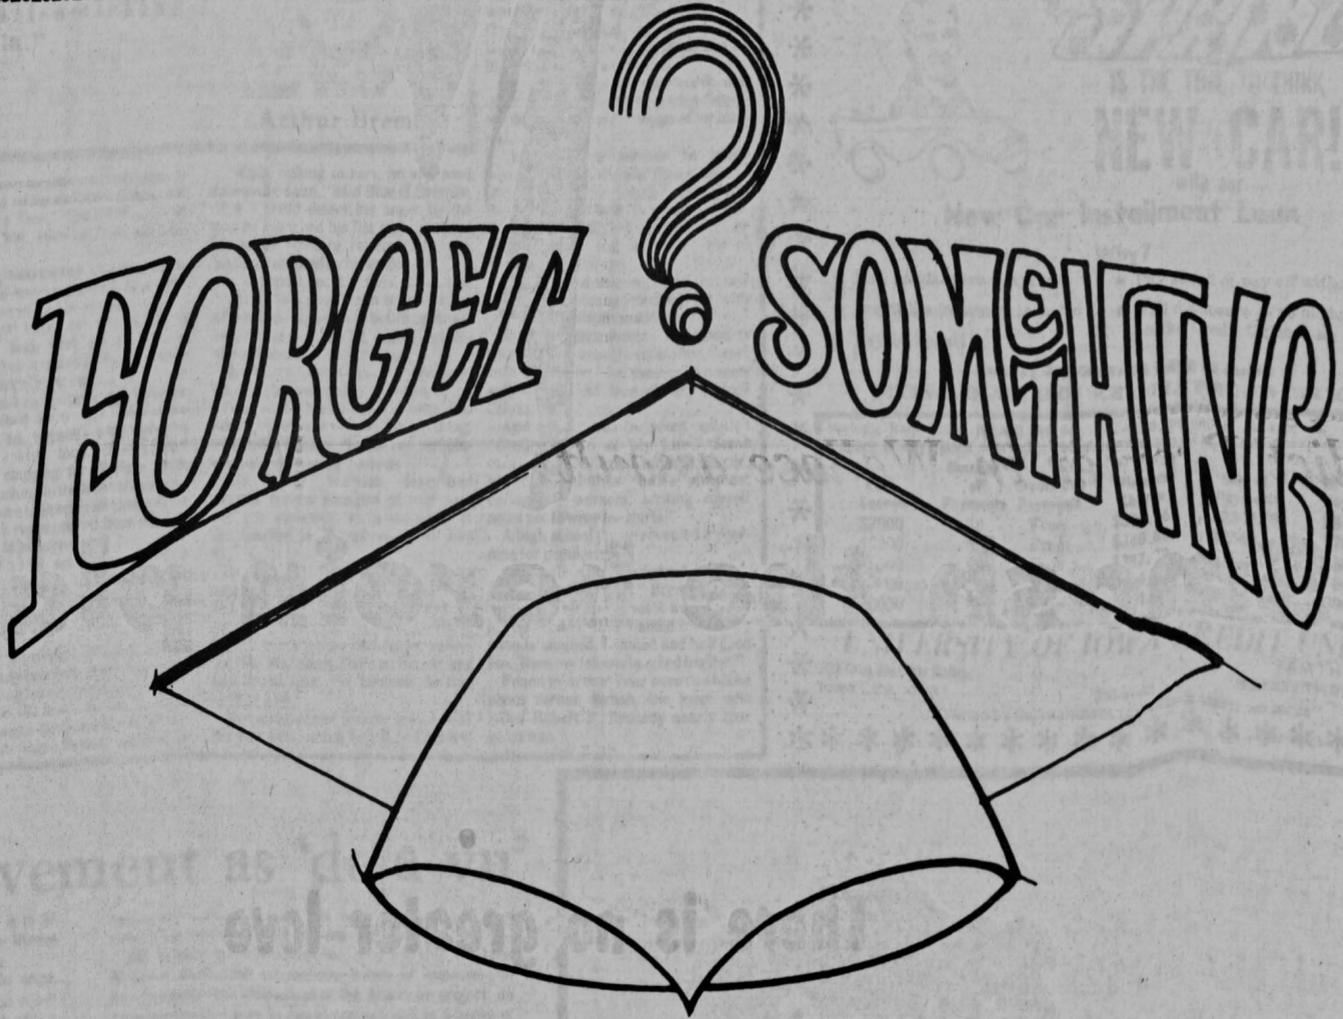

The caucus said the states with the best records in sending women to the convention include Florida, Tennessee, Minnesota, Massachusetts and Wisconsin.

Those viewed by the caucus as the worst are West Virginia, Illinois, Alabama, Pennsylvania, and South Carolina.

West Virginia's Democratic delegation includes only 3 per cent women, the caucus reported. The state's Republican delegates haven't been chosen.

Pennsylvania chose only 10 per cent women among its Republican delegates but 26 per cent Democratic ones.

An even 50 per cent of the Tennessee Republicans bound for the convention are women and so are 40 per cent of the Democratic delegates.

There is no greater love

Now you remember Susie, meanest 'Ho' alive,
Niggers on the corner is still slappin' five;
Brothers would stare, quick glances would cast,
Measured approval of her mean little ass;

When Junior dug Sue, his nose opened so wide
She was in danger of fallin' inside
Junior fall in with the best of his lines and thought to himself: 'this broad's got to be mine'

Rollable Junior wasted no time the shit that he told her was almost a crime
When Junior had said about all he could say she jumped in his Fleetwood and they drove away.

As soon as they got where he wanted to go
He reached in his slide and pulled out some snow
But before he could take his first one-and-one
She reached in her purse and pulled out her gun.

We just stood on that corner, jus' suckin', our teeth that Junior had pulled her was beyond our belief,
But those big diamond rings and clothes that he had made the ugliest nigger look Super-Bad

Junior had taken one little blow
And Susie had flashed her now forty-fo
Then she said "Junior you've cracked yo' last sack Death to the nigger that sells brothers smack."

Susie came back and rapped it on down
'a dope-pusher' nigger's a white devil's clown'
After we'd learned of pig-Junior's fate
She told us his rap was pure paperweight.

Junior could prove that she didn't talk shit
Big holes were left where the bullets had hit Dope Dealin' Junior had seen his last day cause sweet sister Susie just blew him away.

Arthur Bremer: Assassin or boy-next-door?

Editor's note: Arthur Bremer changed in a few months from withdrawn loner to cheering extrovert at George Wallace rallies. The following report from the AP Special Assignment Team examines this change in the man accused of shooting Wallace.

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Hammered late last year by a succession of emotional jolts, Arthur Herman Bremer embarked on a young man's journey in search of himself. At trail's end, he found George Corley Wallace.

"Mamma, I'm going out and make my way," Bremer is quoted as saying last October.

Last Monday, he found his way to a Laurel, Md., shopping center. There, according to state and federal charges, he crippled the Alabama governor with a burst of bullets from a .38-caliber revolver.

The furious gunfire at an election eve rally for the Democratic presidential contender was the climax of seven traumatic months for Bremer—quiet, lonely and withdrawn to his family, neighbors and hometown Milwaukee acquaintances; cheering, clapping and colorfully dressed to those who recall him turning up at Wallace campaign stops.

The emotional blows and his reactions were in rapid sequence:

—October: Bremer, 21, broke with his family, moving to a midtown apartment a scant two and one-half blocks from the motel where Wallace later would establish his Wisconsin primary headquarters.

—November: Bremer was arrested for the first time, charged with carrying a revolver concealed in his coat. He was fined $38.50 for disorderly conduct. The gun was taken away.

—December: Joan Pemrich, then 15, Bremer's first and only girl friend, brushed him off after Christmas, saying she didn't like him and didn't want to see him again. Downcast, he shaved his blond head, hoping to regain her attention with act of contrition, or so he told a fellow worker. She only laughed. He quit technical college.

—January: Without a word of explanation, he walked away from his part-time job as a school janitor.

—February: After accusing his employer of discrimination, he quit another part-time job, busboy at the Milwaukee Athletic Club.

For a while, he became a virtual recluse in his apartment, scribbling doggerel and thought fragments in an apparent effort at self analysis.

One jotting found in his apartment: "Happiness is hearing George Wallace sing the national anthem, or having him arrested for a hit and run accident."

When his mother visited the apartment building, Bremer turned her away at the door with angry shouts.

Then, in March, he appeared at Wallace headquarters, first apparent stop on intermittent travels along the governor's campaign trail.

With Bremer eventually would be the $80 revolver he bought at Casanova's gun shop, advertising the "largest selection of guns in Wisconsin." He obtained the revolver Jan. 13, the day Wallace announced his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Wallace campaign workers recall seeing Bremer loitering around headquarters at the Holiday Inn, at an organizing meeting for Wisconsin volunteers March 2, at a $25-a-plate testimonial dinner for the governor in Milwaukee March 20 and finally at an election night celebration April 4.

After the shooting, Bremer was recalled as being at other locations. April 7, for example, at New York's Waldorf Astoria Hotel. Or April 15, arrested for speeding near Binghamton, N.Y.

May 11, spotted at a Wallace rally in Landover, Md., like Laurel a suburb of Washington. May 13, Kalamazoo, Mich., where police picked him up briefly for loitering near a site where a Wallace rally was planned.

a busboy. His idiosyncrasies, including marching in time and whistling in tune with the music that was played in the dining room, disturbed them.

In Milwaukee, people said Bremer rarely returned their hellos. But Mrs. Janet Petrone, a Wallace volunteer in Maryland, said he greeted her airily at their second meeting this way: "Hi, babe. How are things going?"

Mrs. Alfred J. Pemrich, Joan's mother, said Bremer's habits were odd at year's end:

"He would walk up behind you and make strange noises, dance with a mop or carry on a conversation with himself. I think he was trying to let everyone know he was there."

Fred E. Blue Jr., a minister-conciliator for the Milwaukee Commission on Community Relations, said Bremer had feelings of persecution in November after he was transferred from one dining room to another in his job as busboy. Blue interviewed him twice after he filed a complaint of discrimination with the commission.

grossed at most $100 a week. His 1971 income was $1611, according to a tax form found in his apartment.

Mrs. Bremer recalls Arthur as a quiet, obedient boy, never in trouble, who spent much of his time alone in his room doing homework.

But Arthur's youngest brother, Roger, recalls strife between mother and son: "He (Arthur) hated my Ma. She'd get on him for not going out. He'd walk out of the room if she talked."

Father and son were closer, said Roger, but they too would fight: "Over little things—like he'd take something that belonged to me and my father would try to stop him. He'd push my father."

And the two brothers fought: "He always beat up on me," said Roger. "We wouldn't say much. He wanted to be left alone. I can understand that. But he'd leave the room if somebody noticed him. He'd start a fight for strange reasons."

At school, Arthur was a conscientious, average but withdrawn student who finished in the upper half of his high school class.

Bremer's one known school friend, Thomas Neuman, killed himself last spring playing Russian roulette with a pistol, police said.

After high school, Arthur attended Milwaukee Area Technical College sporadically, concentrating toward the end on photography.

He left the family's modest flat in a working class neighborhood last October, slamming the door behind him. "He said he was going out and be himself," his father recalled.

He found both the apartment and Joan to whom he pined for his family troubles and talked of his quest for himself.

"He said he wanted to learn psychology so he could figure out the problems of the world," said Miss Pemrich. "And he'd try to analyze me. He said he analyzed himself, that he knew himself, and he wanted me to know myself."

From all indications, part of that self analysis was the notebooks filled with jottings found in his apartment.

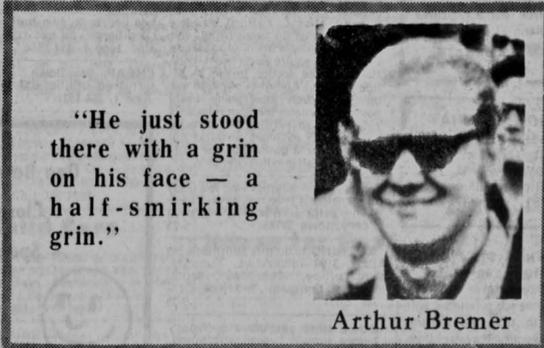

Some of these read: "My blood is black... My country tiz of thee, sweet land of bigotry... A thunder of hooves and out of the western sky comes Colored Man."

And there was a poem entitled "Cretique (sic) of My Life." Some excerpts: "Trying to impress people, bicycles, clothes, hair, pimples, college, co-workers, writing myself notes not to wear tee shirts."

A high school theme revealed a yearning for popularity.

"Once all my friends fed me dog food, and I did not know it," Bremer wrote. "When I found out what it was, I ate it all up because they wanted me to. My friends laughed. I smiled and had good fun. Then my friends laughed harder."

Found in Arthur's car were two books about Sirhan Sirhan, the loner who killed Robert F. Kennedy nearly four years ago.

Arthur Bremer

"He just stood there with a grin on his face — a half-smirking grin."

Mostly, he was remembered because he wore red, white and blue clothes. But "it was his face," Gerald Foulke of Annapolis, Md., recalled from the Landover rally.

"He just stood there with a grin on his face—a half-smirking grin," said Mrs. John Bleeker of the Kalamazoo rally.

Two days later, he was back in Maryland, seen first at a rally in Wheaton, then arrested in the afternoon after the Laurel shooting.

At all these campaign stops, Bremer was described as a man who drew attention to himself—with colorful clothing, with loud cheers and prolonged clapping for Wallace, with constant pushing to the front of crowds.

This picture of Bremer as extrovert is not the man remembered from most of his days in Milwaukee.

Grade and high school teachers had difficulty recalling him because, they said, he was so nondescript. Students mentioned only his occasional mumbled to himself.

Bremer's overt eccentricities emerged only late last year—apparently paralleling his emotional upheavals.

There was the head-shaving incident and complaints from members of the athletic club where Bremer worked as

"While talking to him, he appeared outwardly calm," said Blue of Bremer. "But I could detect his anger by the way he clenched his fist and tightened his mouth when he reiterated he was being persecuted by his employers."

In a report for his files, Blue said Bremer "is a young man who is rather withdrawn—appears to bottle up anger and will sometimes let it go—I assess him as bordering on paranoia." Questions about Bremer remain. Why his interest in George Wallace?

Bremer is described as a man who talked little to anyone about anything, especially politics. No one can remember him mentioning Wallace.

His father, William, described Arthur, second youngest of four sons and one daughter, as a supporter of Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey. "Just like me."

Nonetheless, whether from sincere support or mockingly, Bremer surrounded himself with Wallace memorabilia sometime after he left home. There were the campaign buttons he collected, the Wallace stickers on his car and apartment door, the Confederate flag used as a rug.

How did Bremer finance his travels? His two jobs, which he left in January,

The eco movement as 'deja vu'

The times have begun in which to be "relevant" is to be "revolutionary", and increasing numbers of the liberal constituency have bought into the revolution game.

Such popularizing empties any content from the word, leaving it only a jingle upon the lips. This suspicion is felt when self-proclaimed radicals appear on the stage with a "new message".

Such is the case upon picking up Neuhaus' book (Richard Neuhaus' In Defense of People, Macmillan, New York, 1971 $6.95). As a New York theologian, he proclaims that the ecology movement is diametrically opposed to "the People" as a whole, that it is a sinister, fascist-leaning movement. He is observant in realizing that there are different strains in the eco movement, that some are truly radical. But the intention of the underlying organizers who spawned the movement, contends Neuhaus, is to further consolidate their elitist power, at the expense of the masses.

Neuhaus is almost too quick to identify corporate capitalists as the instigators of the eco movement. Not only is it another profit-making venture for them in cleaning up their own pollution, but also through use of the myth of survival, they are enabled to re-unite the American people behind them.

In Neuhaus' analysis, the myth of survival replaces the previous myth of the Cold War in unification of the American people. Both breed and feed on fear, and through the necessity of immediate action to contain the crisis, the road is cleared for totalitarian measures.

In relating the deleterious effects that ensue from basing policy on fear, however, Neuhaus comes close to that in his analysis. He discerns parallels between the spirit of the eco movement and pre-Nazi Germany. Disgust with technology and the cities and a desire to return to the realm of Mother Nature prepared the way for Hitler's vegetarianism and policy of superior race. Likewise, Neuhaus fears greatly that unless things are readjusted in the eco movement, (e.g., Paul Erlich's proposed imposition of ZPG upon Third World nations), we are ripe for another demagogue of Hitler's caliber.

In identifying various elitist and anti-populace currents of the eco movement, Neuhaus is illuminating. In general, he finds that any self-determination of peoples, including the poor, in ghetto cities or in the Third World, are to be sacrificed in the interest of preserving the natural world. This analysis, though sometimes bogged down in obsession, is interesting from a correctional viewpoint if nothing else; but after wading through the verbiage, the mask of radicalism reveals the face of neo-liberalism.

The solution to this deplorable situation that Neuhaus proposes shows the nationalistic colors of experimental Americanism. The uniqueness of the American project, an America founded both in moral concern and in a sense of historical destiny, provides the hope for tomorrow and a brighter future outlook.

What is necessary, Neuhaus asserts, is a new national myth, that of a "Covenant with the Poor", to realign and utilize America's present world power towards "multiplying and redistributing the bread, instead of diminishing the number of guests at the banquet of life". This new myth, making ample use of the average American's supposed "moral concern", would at best merely realign America's present power structure, though finally leaving the basic structure soundly intact. And ultimately it becomes just another liberal version of "deja vu". This is the hope that Neuhaus presents, a vision he terms "realistic", though others may contend it is only another in the continuing series of liberal compromises.

Credit card companies report fewer 'deadbeat' customers

NEW YORK (AP)—Credit card deadbeats are declining in number as a result of tightened operating procedures by card issuers and improving economic conditions, trade sources say.

Those who issue the bulk of the nation's 275 million credit cards—banks, retail stores, oil companies, and travel and entertainment concerns—agree that the percentage of accounts which are uncollectable has dropped in recent months. For competitive reasons, however, most refuse to disclose the percentage of sales represented by bad debts.

In addition to a slow but perceptible strengthening in the economy, reasons frequently cited for the improved collection pattern include better screening of applicants, growing use of "point-of-sale credit" authorization, earlier review of delinquent account and expanded collection staffs.

"We had a bad period for a couple of years, but collections now are as good as they have ever been," says Joseph Garcia, executive vice president of Diners Club, whose travel and entertainment card is the second-most widely used. Bad debts now are running close to the acceptable norm of 1½ per cent of sales for this type of card, he says.

American Express, which has the most widely used travel and entertainment card, asks applicants to furnish such information as how long they've worked in their present job and whether their income is less than $8,500.

"We don't expect to have a problem with bad debts because of the caliber of our clientele," a company spokesman says. Most American Express cardholders are either professional or executive people, he says.

Keith Halliday, vice president of credit for another travel and entertainment card, Carte Blanche, says the company's ratio of bad debt to sales, while still unacceptable, has been improving since late last year.

One reason for the improvement, he says, is a speed-up in the monitoring of delinquent accounts to the point where the company can review a credit card account the day a charge is made against it. Spokesmen for both major bank credit cards, Master Charge and BancAmericard, says that banks which issue one or the other of the cards have less of a bad debt problem today than they did two or three years ago.

The reason, they say, is federal legislation that went into effect in 1970 stipulating that all credit cards could be issued only at the request of the consumer.

In the late 1960s the banks sent out cards in mass mailings, and many cards fell into the hands of people who couldn't pay their bills.

Bad debt problems also are easing for issuers of retail store cards, says the National Retail Merchants Association. It links the improvement to the growing use by retailers of point-of-sale card authorization.

Under most of these authorization systems, at the time of purchase sales clerks feed a customer's credit card number into their store's computer, which then indicates the shopper's credit status.

DI doing 'good job,' opinion poll shows

Most University of Iowa students are fairly satisfied with The Daily Iowan, according to a recent survey conducted by the Iowa Opinion Research Bureau for The DI.

Samplings of 160 UI students, representing the entire university by college, grade and sex, indicated that 84 per cent think The DI is doing an average to good job in meeting their personal information needs. More than half the group said that this year's paper is better than last year's DI. Results of the survey are subject to a 5 per cent statistical error.

One question read, "If students were given a choice of where to allocate their student fees, would you allocate the same amount, more, or less to The Daily Iowan?" 58 per cent responded they would allocate the same amount, 27 per cent would give more and 14 per cent would give less to the DI.

Steve W. Baker, next year's DI editor, said, "We initiated the survey to find out whether we're meeting the needs of the students and to find what we can change to meet those needs even better."

The DI staff will try to run several similar surveys through next year, according to Baker.

59 per cent of students surveyed read The Daily Iowan every day, while 6 per cent seldom or never read the paper. Most students—almost eight out of 10—said that the DI's coverage of university news was just about right, the highest rating for that question.

While the majority think the DI contains the right amount of coverage for news, features, sports and entertainment, 45 per cent felt there is too little national news coverage, and 31 per cent would like to see more Iowa City news. Almost a third of the group felt that the DI contains too many editorials.

The five features students read most are News Briefly, the Weather, Survival Line, Gary Drake's political cartoons, and movie reviews, according to the survey.

A little over half the students would like to see a syndicated column in the paper, with 49 per cent indicating they would read Ralph Nader's column regularly. 44 per cent would like to see a crossword puzzle in The Daily Iowan.

Off for Europe again

A trip that has become a traditional pilgrimage to the homeland is planned by approximately 60 University of Iowa Scottish Highlanders May 28 to July 10. The Highlanders will tour Europe for the sixth time this summer, performing in England and Scotland. The trip has been made every four years since 1952.

Prior to leaving for the British Isles, the group will present three performances in Washington, D.C., on May 29—at noon near the Washington Monument, at 2:00 p.m. on the steps of the Capitol, and at 8:00 p.m. with the Saint Andrew's Society Pipe Band of Washington, D.C., at National Cathedral School. The group will then perform in the Scottish cities of Dunoon, Fort William, Elgin, Aberdeen, Dundee and Edinburgh and will close the performing part of the tour in London with a concert at Battersea Park.

The remaining month of the trip will include sightseeing tours of London and Amsterdam; Berlin, Hanover, Salzburg, Heidelberg and Munich, Germany; Vienna and Klagenfurt, Austria; Venice, Florence and Rome, Italy; Geneva, Lugano and Lucerne, Switzerland, and Paris, France, before the return trip is begun.

Accompanying the Highlanders will be percussion instructor Ben Miller, and pipe instructor Daniel MacRae. Highlander secretary Nadine Thornton is tour organizer and will accompany the group, as she has on each of the previous tours. Also accompanying the Highlanders will be Tige Andrews, Iowa City and James Walker, a former Highlander director, now of Chicago, Ill.

League batting title to Iowa's Schutzius

Iowa right fielder Larry Schutzius won the Big Ten batting championship, and pitcher Bill Heckroth had the best won-lost record in league play.

Final Big Ten statistics showed Schutzius hit .444 in 16 conference games to become only the third Hawkeye to win a Big Ten batting championship. Other Hawkeyes to win the batting title were Jim George in 1939 with a .452 average and Clarence Dunagan with a .395 in 1942.

Schutzius also was the league leader in hits (24) and total bases (41).

Heckroth, senior righthander from Dysart, was 5-0 against conference opponents and equaled a conference record by hurling three shutouts. His 1.06 earned-run-average was the second best in the Big 10.

The champion Hawkeyes led the league with their .976 fielding mark and were second in batting with .301.

The Hawks are busy making preparations for the NCAA District 4 baseball tournament at Bowling Green, Ohio.

Iowa plays Central Michigan at 1 p.m. The Chippewas will be trying to give Iowa catcher Jim Sundberg fits, since the team has stolen 139 bases this season. The figure is believed to be an NCAA record. Iowa's Hawkeyes have allowed only eight steals in 13 attempts.

Central Michigan is 27-9-1 for the year. Bowling Green is 22-10-2 and Northern Illinois is 24-6.

Iowa goes into the tournament with a 21-14

Larry Schutzius

record, including 11 straight wins in conference play.

After a slow start earlier in the season, Fred Mims has come on with the hottest bat in the lineup. Mims is batting an even .500 for the last 10 games, including two home runs in the final game against Northwestern that decided the Big Ten title.

Larry Schutzius tops all Hawk hitters with .345 followed by Ray Smith (.317), Mims (.313) and Tom Hurn (.306).

Righthander Mark Tschopp will start for Iowa. Tschopp finished the season 7-2, the best record on the pitching staff.

Bill Heckroth, a senior righthander with a 7-3 record, will pitch Friday's game for Iowa. Jim Wise, Mark Ewell and Dan Dalziel, who all own 2-1 records, will be ready for relief duty.

Central Michigan is 1-3 against Big Ten competition this year. The Chippewas lost a pair to Michigan, then split with Michigan State. The Michigan State win was against star hurler Brad VanPelt.

Central has won 19 of its last 22 games and is playing for the first time in the university division of the college world series playoffs. Last year Central was runnerup in the NCAA college division.

In other action Thursday, Northern Illinois will meet Bowling Green. There will be three games on Friday, at 10 a.m., 1 p.m. and 4 p.m., and a sixth game Saturday if needed in the double elimination tournament.

Stander: Even chance to whip Frazier in fight

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Ron Stander said Tuesday he has a 50-50 chance of taking Joe Frazier's world heavyweight championship and proved he's already a champion of the put-on.

Stander engaged in some verbal give-and-take with sports writers before going through a light workout for his scheduled 15-rounder against Frazier Thursday night in Omaha Civic Auditorium.

About his nickname, "The Bluffs Butcher," Stander, who lives in neighboring Council Bluffs, Iowa, said, "They had to come up with something. It was probably a tossup between belter and butcher."

Commenting on the 241 pounds he weighed for his last fight, against Mike Boswell, Stander, a beer drinker of some note, said, "I had a really bad cold right before the Boswell fight and I had to drink a lot of tea."

On the matter of his purse, he said, "I'm getting 20 per cent of the live gate and I'm getting 50 per cent of the foreign television money or $100, whichever is greater."

Frazier, who concluded his serious training Monday, is getting $150,000; from television and 40 per cent of the live gate after taxes for the fight which is scheduled to start at 10:25 p.m., EDT.

The fight will be seen on home television, beginning at 10 p.m., on TVS Television Network hookup of more than 150 stations and will be beamed to other countries.

"I'm not going to make any excuses if I get beat," said Stander in a serious moment. "I'm still going to be proud because I consider Joe Frazier one of the greatest champions. But I still think I have a 50-50 chance of winning."

The 27-year-old Stander has 23 victories with 15 knockouts, one loss and one draw as a pro and has built a solid following in this area.

"There's a lot of them (some of the expected sellout crowd of 10,050) who'll be there to see me get beat, too," said Stander.

But Monday night a crowd of 3,000 turned up at Bayliss Park in Council Bluffs to get Stander's autograph.

Many wore T-shirts with the words, "Back The Butcher. Go Big Ron." Others wore shirts inscribed "The Butcher" and showing a picture of Stander hitting a chopping block with a meat cleaver in his gloved hand.

"This is Stander Country," read a banner spanning Broadway in Council Bluffs.

Frazier remained the 10-1 favorite to run his unbeaten pro record to 29-0. In his first 28 fights, he won 25 by knockout.

The only common opponent the two men fought was Manuel Ramos. Stander fought a 10-round draw with Ramos and scored a 10-round decision over him. Frazier knocked out the Mexican in two-rounds when Frazier was recognized as champion by only six states.

The Stander fight will be Frazier's third defense since he became champion by stopping Jimmy Ellis in five rounds in February, 1970. His other defenses were a two-round knockout of light heavyweight champion Bob Foster, a unanimous 15-round decision over Muhammad Ali and a four-round knockout of Terry Daniels.

The two judges for the fight are to be Jack Fidler, a Nebraska state racing steward, and Harry Farnham, chairman of the state racing commission, while the referee is to be Zack Clayton, head of the Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission.

Fine 'Skins, reprimand Allen

NEW YORK (AP) — The Washington Redskins were slapped with a $5,000 fine and Coach George Allen was verbally reprimanded by Commissioner Pete Rozelle in an executive session at the National Football League meetings Tuesday.

The fine tagged on the club was the maximum that could be assessed the team by Rozelle while the verbal reprimand of Allen represented the first time in Rozelle's 13-year reign as commissioner that a coach had been subjected to that embarrassment.

The penalties were meted out as a result of two of the 19 trades Allen made after he took over as coach of the Redskins prior to the 1971 season and began a series of transactions in which he acquired veteran players for draft choices.

In two cases, Allen acquired players—defensive backs Rich Petitbon from Los Angeles and Speedy Duncan from San Diego—for draft choices he previously had traded away. That violated league rules and brought on stiff penalties.

In calling Allen on the carpet, in executive session—at which only one executive of each club plus the commissioner is present, Rozelle said he stressed "the importance of adhering to league rules and policies."

"While the problem could have been unintentional in nature, such practices are cause for deep concern," Rozelle told Allen. "We wanted him to know that we can't have violations on rules that could affect the competitive aspect of the game."

Under league rules, $5,000 was the maximum fine Rozelle could assess without seeking further sanctions from the executive committee. Rozelle said he "did not recommend additional financial penalty."

Rozelle also said there were no additional penalties involved and that Allen was not on probation. Asked if he thought there might be any repetition of the problem, Rozelle said sharply: "No."

In the two cases in which Allen tripped over the draft choices, he acquired Duncan and Petitbon with draft choices he already had given to the New York Jets and the Buffalo Bills for defensive ends Verlon Biggs and Ron McDole, respectively.

Rozelle said full restitution of the missing draft choices had been made to the clubs involved by the Redskins.

Reached for comment, Allen said, "It's all over and its history, and that's all I have to say."

Dallenbach gets chance at Indy

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Wally Dallenbach, a 36-year-old veteran driver from East Brunswick, N. J., will get a chance to compete in the 56th running of the Indianapolis 500-mile race after all.

Dallenbach, who was bumped from his position among the 33 starters by ex-stock car ace Cale Yarborough in last gasp qualifying Sunday, was named Tuesday to replace the injured Art Pollard in Andy Granatelli's STP-Lola. The car will line up for Saturday's noon EDT start in 33rd position.

Two set world pole vault record

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — American Bob Seagren and Sweden's Kjell Isaksson each set a world pole vault record of 18 feet, 4 inches Tuesday at an AAU-sanctioned pole vault competition.

Seagren, vaulting for the Southern California Striders, first set an American record of 18-½ in his competition with Isaksson, who set the previous world record of 18-2 last month.

Seagren and Isaksson reached the world record height in their second attempts at 18-4.

Isaksson and Seagren both tried and missed three times at 18-6¼.

Big 10 approves tv pact

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Big Ten Commissioner Wayne Duke announced Tuesday that the conference has entered into a two-year contract with the Hughes Sports Network for televising Big Ten basketball next season.

Duke, speaking to newsmen during the Big Ten's spring meeting, said the format for the television coverage has yet to be determined but said he was hopeful of instituting several innovations.

Among them, he said, would be the televising of three wild card games at the end of the schedule and improved half-time shows. He disclosed no price for the deal.

Duke said that most of the meeting between Big Ten athletic directors was spent discussing various coaches' recommendations. None were acted upon, he added.

Part of the discussions, he said, centered around the possibility of having competition in eastern and western divisions in some sports to help lower travel costs.
