

The Daily Iowan

IN THE NEWS briefly

By request...

In response to hundreds of requests that have poured into the offices of The Daily Iowan, we are reprinting below some of the best forecasts of the past school year.

Hundreds of requests? Well, would you believe 35? How about 14? Okay, so it was only the editor's wife who asked.

We have dispensed with forecasting today's weather; there is a variety of forecasts below, so pick out one you like and live it up.

Half day

Due to the severity of the weather expected here in River City today, University Pres. Willard L. Boyd has announced that only one-half day of school will be held this morning. He added that the other half will be held this afternoon. Expected increasing cloudiness here today with temperatures only in the upper 50s. Chance of showers and cooler Wednesday. Batten down the hatches and swab the poop, there's a nor'easter blowing up.

HE called

God called us last night and apologized for ruining the weekend with rain and cold and general ugliness. But he said it was for our own good and promised better things today. "Blessed are the wet and cold, for they shall be ready for winter," he said. "Warmness and sunlight shall blanket the earth, with highs near 70. But be thou appreciative of the goodness I shed unto thee, as the same old lousy weather will be back Tuesday. Amen."

Doomsday

The United States Weather Bureau has announced that today will be cloudy, windy, and no warmer than 65. But don't bother to bundle up. The United States Astronomical Laboratory at Greenwich, Conn., has announced that Hailey's Comet will nosedive into a soybean field near Strawberry Point and destroy the earth at exactly 10:27 a.m.

The results

The DI weather predicting team, agreeing with the latter half of Abbie Hoffman's new doctrine that haircuts and ballots are part of the wave of the future, took a vote on today's weather. The results were: 42 for a blinding blizzard; 31 asleep with little to no comment; 6 for anyone but Nixon; 269 for sending the little m-----r who scribbled Monday's weather to a South Sioux City leper colony; and 1 for cloudy and highs near 70, with lows tonight in the mid-40s. (The last vote came from the black box in the corner we caressingly dub AP.)

Puddles

Rumor has it that four persons melted Thursday due to the high humidity, and if the weather people at Associated Press can be trusted, more can be expected to drop today. Watch where you step. That little red line should make it past 90. People who dig lightning and thunder should enjoy Saturday. Sunday's earthquake warning has been cancelled.

Polar bear

Iowa weather this time of year is like Esmerelda Grunch, that 14-year-old sexpot from Mineral City you used to take out once in a while. Just when she was getting all warm and exciting and you were beginning to think of the nice things ahead, she suddenly turned polar bear and leaped from the backseat of your '49 Ford.

Snow or rain in forecast for today with temperatures dropping to the 20s. Cloudiness should decrease Thursday with highs in the low 20s.

Frisbee

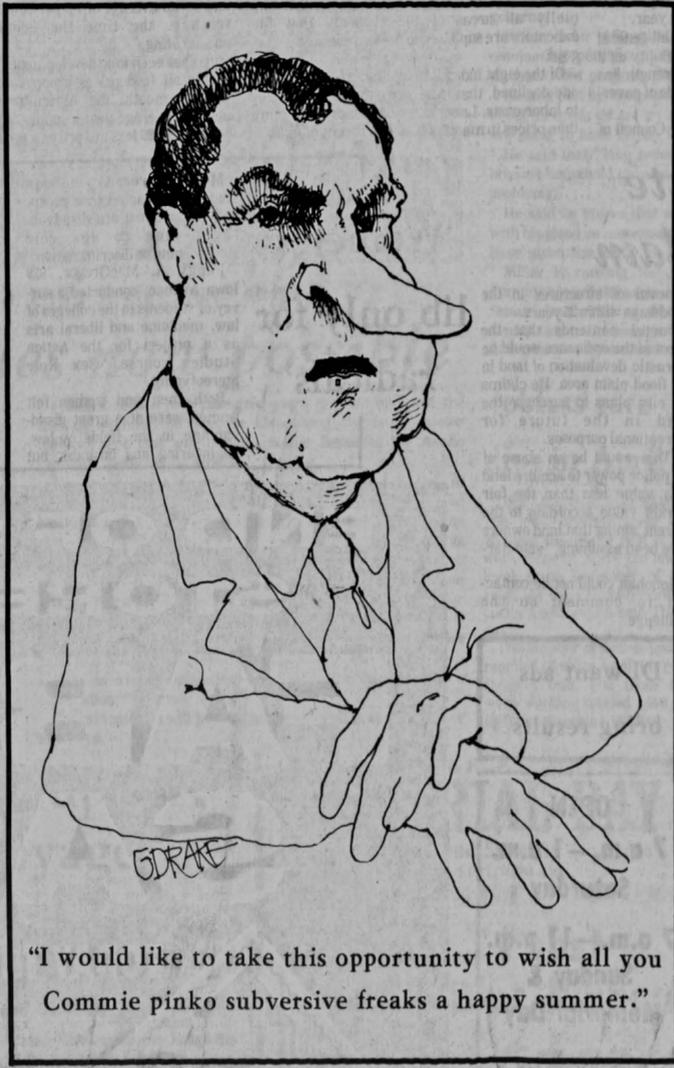

Rumor has it that because today is the last day of classes (alleluia) our benevolent leaders have decided to allow students to walk (actually place their feet upon) the Pentacrest.

More scattered rumors say that some conversation will be allowed to occur as well as frisbee tossing, shade tree studying, and maybe some kissing and hugging.

The rumor that IDs will be stamped on students' foreheads before they are allowed on the Pentacrest is allegedly unfounded. Also, because it is the last day of classes, the weather is supposed to be nice, mostly sunny and highs in about 70.

Fraud

A massive tidal wave wiped out portions of Iowa, Nebraska and extreme southeastern Tibet, Tuesday. The Daily Iowan weather prognosticator said Wednesday. He was arraigned in Iowa City Police Court on charges of fraud and his bond has been set at four cats-eyes, two steelies and a reefer. Actually we didn't receive a weather report last night so your guess is as good as ours. Happy turkey, and remember, dark meat causes twins.

"I would like to take this opportunity to wish all you Commie pinko subversive freaks a happy summer."

Talks snagged on trade pacts, arms limits

MOSCOW (AP) — President Nixon's summit talks snagged Thursday on difficult trade negotiations, and an apparent hitch developed in the drive to sign a historic accord to curb the nuclear arms race.

The President took a night off to go to the ballet, where he heard a woman shout in Italian, "Via dal Vietnam"—Get out of Vietnam. The protest against Nixon's war policy sounded through the Bolshoi Theater between acts as he sat with Soviet President Nikolai V. Podgorny and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin for a performance of "Swan Lake."

An eyewitness said the protester was removed from the theater by Soviet security agents. Later reports said the woman was released after denying any part in the incident.

The summit talks produced a fifth prearranged agreement—this one to prevent incidents involving the two nations' warships on the high seas.

Before going through a rainy spring night to the ballet, the American chief executive held his seventh session with Soviet leaders. They talked for two hours about complex trade issues, and sources said economic differences may not be fully resolved during the week-long summit.

There were signs also that hopes were dashed for a Friday signing of the two-step accord to limit strategic weapon stockpiles.

Although sources said the missile agreement would be signed before the summit ended, chief U.S. negotiator Gerard Smith delayed his flight from Helsinki to Moscow. Arms conference sources in Helsinki indicated the delay was due to "some little sticky last-minute problem."

The top Kremlin leader, Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev, did not participate in Thursday talks with Nixon on trade, nor did he go to the ballet where the Vietnam protest was shouted by an unidentified female.

The shout, in the semidarkened theater before the final act, was the first public incident during the President's visit reflecting disapproval of his policies. Some English members of the audience mistook the Italian phrase for the English words, "Freedom for Vietnam."

The President's box was floodlit after the shout and the audience applauded. Podgorny whispered something to Nixon, perhaps an apology, and the President nodded, smiled and shrugged.

Asked about Brezhnev's absence from the ballet, a Soviet spokesman said under current protocol only President Podgorny should accompany Nixon to the theater. This was the case when French President Georges Pompidou was on a state visit here in 1970. The spokesman offered no explanation for Brezhnev's absence from the trade talks, but Kosygin is considered the Kremlin's chief trade expert.

Nixon talked trade behind the Kremlin's red brick walls with Kosygin and Podgorny, as economic experts from both sides sat in. The atmosphere was described as "businesslike and constructive."

Thursday was the target date for announcement of trade agreements, but negotiators were unable to resolve their differences.

The Russians are seeking a multimillion-dollar grain deal, as well as U.S. credits for industrial expansion to meet the rising demands for consumer goods in this country.

But U.S. negotiators are reported to have argued that there should be some settlement of the Soviet World War II lend-lease debt before any favorable economic deals are reached.

Probe terrorist attacks on U.S. installations

HEIDELBERG, Germany (AP) — Bombings in France and West Germany prompted authorities to begin investigating Thursday whether the attacks on American buildings and installations were part of a coordinated terrorist campaign against U.S. war policies in Vietnam.

Explosions damaged the U.S. consulate and American Legion headquarters in Paris early Thursday, about eight hours after two huge bombs went off at the U.S. Army's European headquarters in Heidelberg.

No casualties were reported in Paris, but the Heidelberg blasts killed three American soldiers and injured five other persons.

Strict security regulations were ordered tightened still further at U.S. and West German facilities amid indications that more terrorist acts were in the offing.

A Frankfurt daily newspaper, Frankfurter Rundschau, reported it received an anonymous letter threatening further undefined action against "U.S. imperialism" on June 2.

The letter, signed by the "Red Army Faction," said those who support the revolution in Indochina must begin the class struggle in their own land. It did not, however, claim responsibility for the Heidelberg blasts.

The Paris bombings were clearly defined as an antiwar protest by a group calling itself the "Committee of Coordination" which claimed responsibility for the blasts.

Paris police found a third bomb in the offices of Pan American World Airways on the Avenue des Champs Elysees. The bomb was defused by explosives specialist. Another American airline, TWA, also received a bomb threat. Police evacuated the building but found no bomb.

The timed explosives in the consulate and the American Legion post had been placed in toilets and caused extensive damage to the immediate area.

The bombs in Heidelberg had been planted in cars parked 150 yards apart near a data processing building and an officers' club.

The rash of bombings began after President Nixon announced the mining of North Vietnamese harbors. The toll from the six explosions in Germany stands at four Americans dead and at least 37 persons injured, 18 of them Americans.

Rescue 'captive' school official

WATERLOO, Iowa, (AP) — Police rescued Waterloo School Supt. George Diestelmeier shortly after 7 p.m. Thursday from a group of blacks who were holding him in the school's administration building.

A group of 150 to 200 blacks had occupied the building and 35 to 50 had taken over Diestelmeier's office and refused to let him leave.

The blacks had been attempting to force the school system to fire veteran teacher Alice Hayes and West Junior High Principal Joseph Doyle. Blacks were objecting to what they termed derogatory material used in Ms. Hayes' speech classes at West Junior High.

After the blacks failed to heed a time limit given by law officials to release the superintendent, the door to Diestelmeier's office was broken down.

Blacks inside the office used a side door and temporarily barricaded themselves in an adjacent secretary's office before leaving the building.

No immediate arrests were made.

Expect all-out assault on Viet provincial capital

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese troops slipped inside Kontum for the first time Thursday, and enemy gunners launched an intense artillery attack, possibly signaling an all-out assault on the provincial capital in the central highlands.

Informed sources said the handful of civilian American advisers still in Kontum were flown out in late afternoon. Advisers to South Vietnamese military units in the city apparently stayed behind.

At the same time, South Vietnamese marines repulsed an attack on the northern front above the old imperial city of Hue as other marines returning from a raid into enemy-held Quang Tri Province brought out about 1,800 refugees.

On the southern front, where the government appeared on the verge of a major victory a week ago, a relief column trying to reach the beleaguered provincial capital of An Loc battled enemy forces throughout the day. Delayed reports said the government troops had suffered as many as 200 casualties since their planned final push to break the 49-day-old siege bogged down along Highway 13.

Associated Press correspondent David J. Paine reported from the highlands that a well-placed American source said it appeared the North Vietnamese were about to launch a full-scale attack on Kontum. Allied officers have said repeatedly that the city of more than 25,000 is a key target of the eightweek-old North Vietnamese offensive.

The outer defense lines around Kontum have been probed daily for a week, but Thursday was the first time that enemy troops had penetrated the city.

On the northern front, Associated Press correspondent Mort Rosenblum reported that South Vietnamese marines drove back enemy attackers who got to within 300 yards of a command post in a Roman Catholic church in the village of My Chanh. The village is on the south side of the My Chanh River, which marks the government's northernmost defense line, 20 miles above Hue.

A marine raid into Quang Tri Province, which fell to the North Vietnamese May 1, fell short of its objective of clearing a North Vietnamese regiment from the "Street Without Joy" but demonstrated the marines' offensive capability, said one senior American military adviser.

Two marine battalions that landed by helicopter and amphibious landing craft four or five miles behind enemy lines Wednesday returned to government-held territory Thursday, bringing about 1,800 refugees with them. A third battalion that was to sweep north to meet the other two was reported still fighting the enemy on the coastal end of the defense line.

The adviser told Rosenblum the two battalions had to sweep down the beach instead of coming down the inland Route 555, named the Street Without Joy by French forces who suffered heavy casualties there 20 years ago.

On the southern front, field reports said up to 4,000 civilians, mostly old people, women and children, got out of An Loc Thursday and walked to a government-held village nine miles south of the besieged town. The refugees had tried to escape the fighting several times but were forced back each time, the report said.

Many were killed or wounded.

Says Mafia has 'protection'

ROME (AP) — A government commission which investigated the Sicilian underworld for nearly a decade told parliament Thursday the Mafia could never be wiped out until its high political protection is broken.

The commission said it had compiled master files of thousands of politicians, party officials and authorities who are suspected of connection with the crime syndicate.

It said its investigation was hampered by lack of cooperation by officials while the Mafia spread steadily to new rackets and onto the mainland.

The Mafia was once confined to intimidation, revenge and patronage in rural Sicily.

It has branched out into control of construction, public markets, employment, political patronage, clandestine emigration, smuggling and international narcotics traffic.

The report was made public as Italy's newly elected parliament met for the first time. The report recommended that a new commission be formed by the Senate to continue the investigations.

The report did not make public the names of the politicians linked to the Mafia. The commission, it said, had planned to prepare a sample list of prominent figures when parliament was dissolved a year ahead of schedule, last February. This forced the anti-Mafia commission to interrupt its work.

Its master files, the commission said, included "officials in the state administration and in the parties and politicians in general."

It compiled these files with information taken from police records on Mafia figures, from private citizens and from witnesses questioned, the commission went on. Witnesses included hundreds of party officials, police officers, newsmen and professional people.

Indicators point to economic jump

WASHINGTON (AP) — The direction of the nation's economy is strongly upward, the government's leading economic indicators signaled Thursday.

The Commerce Department's monthly composite index of indicators gained 1.4 per cent in April on top of an upward-revised 1.9 per cent in March. The March increase, earlier reported to be 0.9 per cent, proved the biggest in a year.

The indicators are designed to foretell general economic movements, but their reliability as a precise measure of the economy's strength has been questioned both within and outside of government.

A spokesman for President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers said the report supplied new evidence that the economy is expanding strongly.

"We think it probably will become even stronger," the spokesman said.

The Commerce Department said the April increase was broadly based, meaning that virtually all areas of the economy that the indicators are supposed to measure looked good.

Of the eight indicators available for April, only one declined, that measuring the ratio of prices to labor costs. Labor costs have increased more than prices in manufacturing in recent months.

Otherwise, indicators were up for average work week, claims for unemployment insurance, durable goods orders, contracts and orders for plant and equipment, building permits, industrial materials prices, and stock prices.

The index climbed to 140.2 per cent of the 1967 average. It has risen in 17 of the last 18 months and by an average of 1.3 per cent since last September, the time the economy started accelerating.

In other economic developments Thursday:

—Retail food prices dropped for the second straight month, the Agriculture Department said. An average year's supply of groceries cost consumers $9 less in April as a result of a $6 price cutback among middlemen and a $3 reduction for farmers.

—George P. Shultz told the Senate Finance Committee the upturn in the economy brings with it a need to start curtailing federal spending. Without opposition, the committee approved Shultz' nomination to be secretary of the Treasury.

Another Commerce Department report showed that while the economy is going up, so is the debt owed by people, businesses and governments at all levels.

The net public and private debt increased to almost $2 trillion at the end of 1971. The debt increased $152.5 billion in 1971 compared with $120.7 billion in 1970.

Seeks debate on flood plain

Sharon Township Constable Richard Bartel Thursday challenged City Atty. Jay H. Honohan to a public debate on the pending Iowa City flood plain ordinance.

Bartel, a candidate for the Johnson County Board of Supervisors, wants the City Council to be at the debate and has suggested it be held during the council meeting June 5.

The proposed flood plain ordinance would allow the city to establish flood plains for the city waterways in order to restrict land use and force removal of structures in the floodways within 25 years.

Bartel contends that the effect of the ordinance would be a drastic devaluation of land in the flood plain area. He claims the city plans to purchase the land in the future for recreational purposes.

"This would be an abuse of the police power to acquire land at a value less than the fair market value according to the current zoning that land owners have been assuming," said Bartel.

Honohan could not be contacted to comment on the challenge.

'Women's lib only for radicals'

Most University of Iowa students contacted in a recent poll feel women are disadvantaged due to sex role stereotyping or discrimination. Peggy A. MacGregor, 929 Iowa Avenue, conducted a survey of students in the colleges of law, medicine and liberal arts as a project for the Action Studies course "Sex Role Stereotyping."

Both men and women felt women were at a great disadvantage in the fields of law, engineering and business, but had few disadvantages in the field of education.

The women's liberation movement was described as "only for radicals" by both men and women, but was credited for arousing interest in women's rights. One male said that "women's lib was legitimate at first, but has been taken over by women suffering from penis-envy."

While most of the women polled did not want to "actively agitate for change" in women's roles, they felt changes were needed in primary and secondary education to remove sex-role stereotyping.

One woman said children's books should be altered to give more leadership roles to women. "Sally shouldn't grow up just to be a mommy. Johnny will be a daddy—but a fireman, too."

Most of the students agreed that women should work outside of the home at least part of the time.

Woolley accepts S.C. job

A frequent critic of the University of Iowa School of Journalism's new undergraduate program has said he will accept a position at the University of South Carolina.

Asst. Prof. Donald K. Woolley said Thursday that despite a review now underway of his pending promotion in the journalism school, he has accepted the South Carolina job.

With what he termed a "yes-man syndrome" in the school at the present, Woolley said he did not feel he could receive a fair review from faculty members.

Woolley was notified last summer that his UI teaching contract would not be renewed following the completion of the current semester. He appealed his dismissal to the Faculty Welfare Committee which recommended that a new review of his promotion be made.

He said he was announcing acceptance of the South Carolina position before receiving notification of the outcome of the review of his case in order to give the UI adequate time to find a replacement.

He joins the faculty of the College of Journalism at Columbia, S.C. in August.

"I welcome the opportunity to join a staff of professionals, with professional working experience, who want me to join them," Woolley said. "It will be nice to be associated with an accredited school once again."

The UI School of Journalism has recently been denied accreditation.

Nixon aides see no tax increases

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon is against increasing federal taxes "in the foreseeable future," except as a substitute for the local property tax, White House aide John Ehrlichman said Thursday.

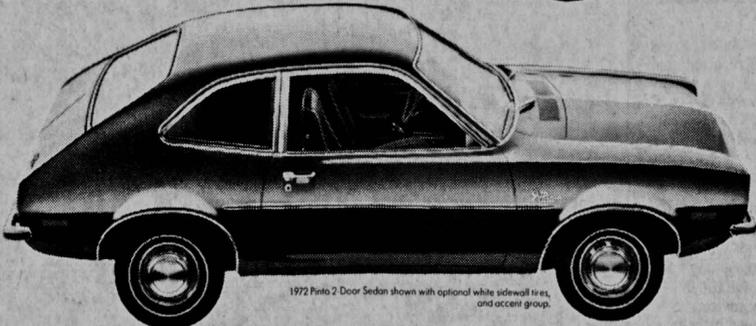

Two other administration officials spoke of cutting government spending before talking about higher taxes.

"Before we have anything to say about the possibility of higher taxes, we must do everything we can to bring outlays under control," Budget Director George P. Shultz said at a congressional hearing on his nomination to be secretary of the Treasury.

We've invented the small sensible solid American car all over again.

1930 Model A Deluxe Coupe.

1972 Pinto 2 Door Sedan shown with optional white sidewall tires, and accent group.

When people shop for a small car, they look for some very simple basic values. Dependability. Economy of money and style. Good mileage and long life.

Those basics are our birthplace. The Model T, the Model A, the first mass produced station wagon — name a basic idea, and chances are Ford built it.

Now to Ford Pinto.

Pinto is as simple and solid a small car as there is in the world. And it's priced lower than the three leading imports, lower than its major U.S. competitor. Yet it has every basic modern necessity.

A gutsy little engine that gets the same economical kind of gas mileage as the little imports.

A solid-as-a-rock four speed transmission. Sports car steering. A welded steel body with six coats of paint.

Ball-joint front suspension, and a wide stable stance on the road. Pinto is one small car that doesn't have to fear a superhighway.

And finally, Pinto gives you comfortable interior leg and shoulder room — yet it's only 1½ inches longer than the leading little import.

See the Pinto at your Ford dealer's. It's 40 years newer than the Model A — but it's still the same basic idea.

When you get back to basics, you get back to Ford.

Dr. James Fletcher with U.S., Soviet space ships

Says space rescues now possible

WASHINGTON (AP)—The new U.S.—Soviet agreement signed in Moscow Wednesday by Premier Alexie Kosygin and President Nixon will provide mankind with the first capability of rescuing men in distress in space.

The rendezvous and docking in 1975 of a Soviet Soyuz spacecraft carrying two cosmonauts, and an American Apollo spacecraft with two or perhaps three astronauts, will test rescue techniques that would be called upon in any future space emergency, officials told newsmen here Wednesday.

Furthermore, the newly designated "international rendezvous and docking mission" will give the U.S. aerospace industry a $250-million shot in the arm—much of the money going to the major Apollo contractor, North American Rockwell Space Division, Downey, Calif.

Dr. James C. Fletcher, administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said contractor employment for the new docking mission should rise from 200 currently, to a peak of about 4,400 by the end of 1974.

Fletcher said it will take two years to build and test the docking module—the separate 10-foot-long, five-foot-diameter compartment that will link the Soviet Soyuz to the Apollo command-and-service module.

The astronauts and cosmonauts will spend two-hour periods in the docking module to make the adjustment between the low-pressure, 5 pounds per square inch, pure oxygen of the Apollo craft and the almost natural mixed atmosphere of Soyuz at 15 pounds per square inch.

Fletcher said the Moscow agreement on the joint mission assures retention of the highly experienced Apollo team for work on the Space Shuttle and other future programs.

"It is our hope that this first mission is the precursor of future joint manned and unmanned efforts which will enable both nations to avoid duplication and reduce the costs of space exploration," Fletcher said.

The 1975 mission will join the two spacecraft in earth orbit for two days.

Pioneer, bound for Jupiter, facing hazardous voyage

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pioneer 10, the cereal-bowl-shaped spacecraft bound for Jupiter, opened a new era Thursday in man's exploration of space. It passes beyond the orbit of Mars to become the first spacecraft to push into the trackless reaches of the outer solar system.

Ahead lies a months-long passage through the hazardous asteroid belt, a region of space debris where an object weighing only a millionth of an ounce could wreck the $80-million spacecraft.

In December, 1973, it is to reach massive, puzzling Jupiter where titanic radiation storms in the planet's atmosphere might tear the space probe apart as it sweeps by taking measurements with a battery of instruments.

"It's a big, important step—this first push beyond Mars," said Charles F. Hall, Pioneer 10 project manager at Ames Research Center in Mountain View, Calif.

"But it's just one more step down a path that we hope eventually will take us to all the planets."

Coincidentally, Pioneer 10's milestone came one day after President Nixon and Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin signed in Moscow a treaty for cooperative ventures in space. One will put U.S. and Soviet astronauts into earth orbit together by 1975.

Since its launch from Cape Kennedy, Fla., March 2, Pioneer 10 has been streaking away from earth at about 75,000 miles per hour—the fastest a man-made object ever has flown.

It remains perfectly on course, Ames controllers report, and only a few minor problems, such as trouble with a star-sighting device that keeps the spacecraft oriented properly, have bothered engineers.

After passing Juniter, Pioneer will be hurled onward by the planet's powerful gravity, making it, several years from now, the first man-made object to leave the solar system.

Attached to Pioneer is a drawing of a man and woman and scientific symbols which scientists hope might tell beings in other worlds where the object came from and when.

Sen. Miller files for Iowa primary

DES MOINES (AP) — Sen. Jack Miller, R-Iowa, filed nomination papers for the Aug. 1 primary election Thursday and formally announced he will seek re-election to a third six-year term.

Miller was one of several politicians who filed nomination papers Thursday with Secretary of State Melvin Synhorst. Others included former Rep. William Gannon of Mingo for lieutenant governor and Sen. John Tapscott, D-Des Moines, for governor.

Miller, who submitted some 30,000 signatures on his nominating petitions, said his record "has been one of progress—but progress that is responsible progress."

He said that by "responsible" he meant "that I not only think about the goals we are trying to achieve, but the taxpayers who are going to have to pay the bill."

He said that "long before tax reform and pollution control became household phrases, I was doing something about those problems."

He said he knows that some people haven't always agreed with his stand on some issues, but "I have worked very hard and have given this great job the best I know how."

Miller is ranking Republican on the Senate Agriculture Committee and the second ranking Republican on the Special Senate Committee on Problems of the Aging and the Joint Senate-House Economics Committee.

Hargrave enters race for House

Saying that if elected he would "truly represent all the people rather than special interest groups," William J. Hargrave announced Thursday his candidacy for State Representative for the 74th District.

That district includes east Iowa City, Newport and Pleasant Valley townships and the town of Hills.

Hargrave, 41, is a Johnson County deputy sheriff and father of five. He has been active in Iowa City and Johnson County youth programs and has taken part in various police-community relations programs.

A retired Army sergeant, the candidate said he has observed several foreign governments. "However," he said Thursday, "I am still firmly convinced that democracy is the best form of government. I also strongly believe that democracy can function properly only when as many citizens as possible take a positive interest and play an active role in governmental affairs."

He said he does not think the "people of District 74 have been fully represented and added that if elected he will "vote the wishes of the people rather than my personal views."

Jobless rate dips in April

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — The Iowa unemployment rate dropped to 3.9 per cent of the work force in April, the lowest level since December of last year, the Iowa Employment Security Commission said Thursday.

The number of jobless Iowans reached 48,900 in April, the commission said, and those who were working totaled 1,208,900, up from March's 1,183,300.

WANTED: Hard-nosed reporters and assorted special writers.

Do you like to pry into other people's affairs? Won't you take no for an answer? Do you like to drink? Would you enjoy having a press pass that would get you into city council meetings and behind police lines?

Well, all that's only incidental and insignificant.

The plain facts are this:

The Daily Iowan is in need of some good, hard-nosed reporters and special writers. And if you've got a decent head on your shoulders, you're a likely candidate.

That's right...no experience necessary.

You might be eligible for academic credit working for us, too. Many articles are provided for us through the course "journalism practicum," which might be the 1, 2 or 3 hour afternoon course you could use this summer. As a beginner or as an advanced writer.

Or we might be able to arrange special project credit for "speciality writing" through political science, business or other likely departments.

On top of that, there's going to be a monthly pool of bonus money that you, as a DI staffer, would be eligible for. And a little extra of that never hurt.

We're going to be trying to do a little more this summer. In depth series and reporter teams to dig up the University, Iowa City, and Iowa scenes. Increased entertainment and fine arts. Major league baseball and recreational sports. What there is to do around Corn City. And "magazine" pieces about a whole range of things.

Even if you only want to volunteer or freelance, come up and see us sometime. We can give you more particulars about the paper.

Just remember—if you can write for a mass audience—no matter what discipline, college or background you're from—it's a feather in your cap. Many times, a very convincing one.

Learn how this summer or this fall. You know, it's a way to beat the heat, folks.

FOR INFORMATION ON DI WRITING: Call 353-6210 for Dave Helland or any summer staff member.

FOR INFORMATION ON JOURNALISM PRACTICUM, be sure to see the course instructor at summer registration.

Shades of Herrnstein—another free speech hassle

*Nobel winner
shouted down
for 'racist' views*

Prof says incident was 'symptom of a national illness'

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—A dispute over the limits of free speech has polarized a college campus in the California Capital in the wake of black militants' refusal to allow a Nobel Prize winner to speak on his controversial racial theories.

The student and academic communities are split over whether Stanford University physicist William Shockley should have been invited to lecture at the 7,000-student Sacramento State College, and whether free speech should extend to his theories that blacks may be racially inferior to whites.

A band of militants took over the podium when Shockley appeared last Nov. 22 and refused to let him talk on his theories, which have been rejected by many geneticists.

Shockley, who admittedly has no training in genetics, bases his theories on statistical studies using IQ tests scores from identical twins.

The controversy extends also to Carol Barnes, the associate professor of sociology who invited Shockley to lecture her class.

After the incident, members of the college's administration, faculty and Commission on Racial Discrimination condemned the invitation to Shockley as racist. They urged college President Bernard Hyink to rebuke those associated with the event and to assign Mrs. Barnes to another course.

They also urged that no discipline be meted out to those who disrupted the lecture by Shockley, who shared a Nobel Prize in 1956 for development of the transistor.

Hyink refused to reassign Mrs. Barnes and further angered the militants by sending Shockley an apology.

The controversy at Sacramento State is not the first involving Shockley. He has been the target of demonstrations at schools in various parts of the country during the past few years, including Dartmouth, Wright College in Chicago and Stanford itself, where several of his classes have been disrupted and he has been burned in effigy.

At the University of California Davis campus Shockley told the student audience a week after he was prevented from speaking at Sacramento that the disruption was "a symptom of a serious national illness."

"The disruption was an expression of distrust in one of the most valuable tools invented by humanity—freedom of speech," Shockley said. The incident split campus liberals into those who favored letting Shockley speak, and those who considered the invitation an affront to the black community.

John Poswall, a Sacramento attorney who looked into the case for the American Civil Liberties Union, says the incident puts the campus liberals into a quandary.

"They had a choice between the First Amendment and being called racists," Poswall said.

"They can be very liberal in talking about why Stokely Carmichael should be allowed to speak, but when it comes to why Shockley should be allowed to speak, they completely failed."

"The merits of a person's views have never been a test of someone's right to speak," he added. "We let a lot of liars speak."

"I think there's a move in the academic world toward the suppression of ideas, which is very, very bad," commented Mrs. Barnes, a 36-year-old Missouri native who describes herself as "pretty liberal."

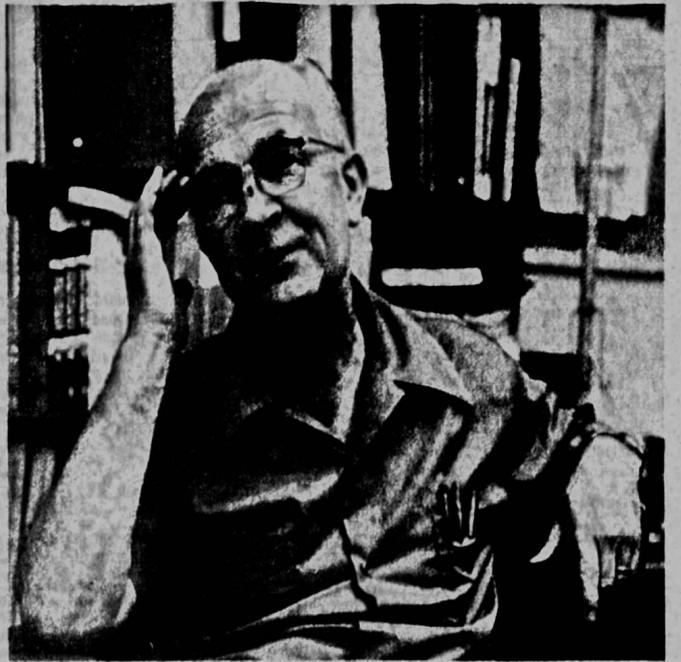

But others on the campus said Shockley's right to speak did not involve any question of academic freedom—that he had no right to speak, at least not on genetics and race.

Among them were the vice president for academic affairs, the dean of the school of arts and sciences, the Pan African Student Union and the Commission on Racial Discrimination.

A number of scientists and educators have argued against Shockley's views, including Stanford Profs. Paul Erlich, a population biologist; Lee Cronbach, an educator, and L. L. Cavalli-Sforza, a geneticist.

On Jan. 3, the American Physical Society meeting in San Francisco tentatively voted to disavow support for Shockley's theories and called them racist. The resolution called on APS to disavow publicly "any professional support for William Shockley in the promulgation of his racist theories." To become official policy, the resolution has to be approved by the society's governing board.

"No freedom of speech for racists, Nobel Prize winners or otherwise," said the Pan African Student Union in a statement issued after nine or 10 PASU members seized the Sacramento State podium from Shockley.

Harassed

Stanford University physicist William Shockley shook up the campus at Sacramento State College recently with his controversial race theories. He was prevented from speaking at a lecture last November.

Sees employment protection for 'gays'

A University of Iowa professor says that homosexuals may be the next minority in America to receive employment protection under state fair employment laws.

Present labor laws and employment practices, in both the public and private sectors, show that public policy is geared to the elimination of all forms of employment discrimination, according to Irving Kovarsky, professor of business administration.

Although it is now against the law for an employer to discriminate on the basis of age, race, creed, color, national origin or sex, Kovarsky says homosexuals are not yet accorded the same protection and employment rights as other minorities.

Eventually, Kovarsky continues, due to changes in attitudes of the general public and action by the courts and

Congress, "even a person with a sexual preference different from the majority will be granted employment protection."

"Gay" groups in various parts of the country, like New York and Los Angeles, are becoming more open and aggressive in stating their objections to job discrimination, Kovarsky says. Homosexuals are organizing, like minorities and women have done, Kovarsky adds.

As an example of signs of change, Kovarsky cites the attempts of the New York City Council, the New York State Assembly and Senate who debated last year, but eventually defeated, legislation granting job protection to homosexuals.

Recent court decisions have protected homosexuals from job discrimination by guaranteeing them

"procedural due process" rights, such as fair hearings, Kovarsky says. However, no court has ruled on the substantive right of a homosexual to employment, he adds.

The military may discharge known or suspected homosexuals under other than honorable circumstances, Kovarsky says. Such action—usually uncontested by the soldier fearful of publicity—follows the person and can cause life-long employment difficulties.

Kovarsky says that the best—and quickest—way to protect the homosexual from job discrimination would be the passage "of a federal fair employment bill to protect the convicted homosexual." Congress has such power, Kovarsky says, under the interstate commerce clause of the constitution.

Bugged

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Someone smuggled a Volkswagen into Burke High School here and placed it on a landing near the library sometime Wednesday night or early Thursday. The car was painted with obscene words and with messages referring to teachers or students. A brassiere and beer cans were inside. A year ago, near the end of the term, a pig was brought into the school and this year's senior class was warned "in writing that this wasn't to happen," Principal Robert Brown said. Brown said he'd find out who brought the car in and they would be punished.

'Countdown' on WSUI

National Public Radio member station WSUI will broadcast a one-hour special program on the primaries, "Countdown to California," at 9:00 p.m. on Sunday, May 28. The special will summarize the progress of the 1972 Presidential campaigns and primaries to date and give an in-depth analysis of the standings of contenders as the focus of political observers turns to the California primary.

Included in the program will be reports from NPR member stations in areas of concentrated campaigning, and analyses by the National Public Radio news staff of the issues, parties and special interests involved.

"Countdown to California" will be a perspective of this critical election year, analyzing the surprising voting patterns that have emerged as we accelerate towards the crucial California primary and the showdown in Miami Beach," says NPR's Josh Darsa, producer of "Countdown to California."

Coffee, tea or Geritol?

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The world's oldest airline stewardess is eyeing the sky wistfully after her mandatory retirement from flying—a career spanning 35 years and 10 million air miles.

"I'm in good health and I'd fly until 65 if they'd let me," Ida Staggers said Wednesday after her last flight for Trans World Airlines.

The airline explained that its contract with the Airline Stewards and Stewardesses Association compelled retirement at 60.

Her last flight was from Honolulu to Travis Air Force Base, 45 miles north of San Francisco, on a charter assignment for the Military Airlift Command.

When she arrived back at San Francisco International Airport there were popping champagne corks, hugs, kisses and congratulations from pilots, fellow stewardesses, ground-workers and TWA officials.

Miss Staggers isn't stopping completely, however. TWA is keeping her on as a women's department consultant. She will work with fledgling stewardesses at Breech Academy, TWA's hostess training center at Kansas City, Mo.

Miss Staggers, who observed her 60th birthday May 9, started with TWA in July 1936 when the line was flying small, 14-passenger planes.

'Environment was to blame,' Florida judge frees robber

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—When Joseph Armstrong pleaded guilty to armed robbery last month, Criminal Court Judge Al Sepe called it an "environmentally motivated crime." The same judge found him a job and freed him from jail when he discovered Armstrong's family living in a rat-infested house.

Armstrong, a Vietnam veteran, had been out of work for two months when he was arrested for robbing a liquor store of $205 at knife-point Feb. 29. The clerk recalled the robber saying, "I need the money. My family is starving."

Sepe ordered Armstrong released Tuesday from the Dade County Stockade. Today he starts a job as a student X-ray Technician at North Miami General Hospital, a job Sepe helped obtain.

In releasing Armstrong, Sepe warned: "I'm going to be watching you carefully, and so will the rest of the community."

"Society has accepted some of the responsibility for the crime you committed, but it will not do that again," the judge said. "I would say you have been treated better than a person who has never violated the law."

"That's a peculiarity of the system—the government has moved mountains to demonstrate a willingness to help you," he said.

Armstrong, who celebrated his 20th birthday behind bars, said, "It's the greatest thing. I learned a great lesson in jail: You can't do wrong and get away with it. Now I'm going to repay the community for what it's doing for me...."

The father of 2-year-old and 8-month-old daughters, Armstrong said he and his wife Patricia will save their money to buy the family a home after he finished X-ray classes. "But right now," he said as he strolled from Sepe's courtroom, "I'm going home to play with my kids and look at the sky."

Another runaway problem, but this one is 100 years old

LONDON, (AP) — Old Tom Yardley has been a wanderer all his life and he doesn't plan to put his feet up now—even though he is 100 years old today.

Authorities had to haul him back Wednesday to the old folks' home near Manchester in northern England, after he'd gone on a spree in London. Maverick Tom couldn't understand what all the fuss was about. He'd only been gone a week.

Tom, who hobbles around with his battered hat, greatcoat and walking stick, has run away from the home half a dozen times since he went there three months ago.

Anxious social services officials tracked him Wednesday to a Salvation Army hostel in London after a nationwide hunt. He explained he'd made the 275-mile trip to see a movie.

The only trouble was when Tom got to the big city he couldn't remember which movie it was. So he went to see "one of those all-the-way-round things with those naked women," a wide-screen skin flick. But, he confessed with a yawn, "it wasn't much good. It was just a bit rude. I got fed up with it and left."

That was after he'd been in the theater for three hours and seen the French film twice. As he left, Tom told the queue of patrons outside "go home, it's not worth seeing."

Still spotty

Test proves mail service is, frankly, short of great

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two nationwide tests over 15 months disclose some improvement in mail service within cities, little change over long distances and continued spotty deliveries—some prompt, some tardy.

Test mailings of nearly 800 letters by six Associated Press bureaus within the past month indicated that paying the extra three cents for an airmail stamp guarantees earlier delivery than first-class mail less than half the time.

The survey showed also that adding the zip code doesn't assure faster delivery.

These results almost parallel those produced in a similar test mailing in early 1971.

There was some improvement in the delivery of local letters—one of the prime goals of the U.S. Postal Service.

A 72-letter test of local service turned up three cities, St. Louis, Los Angeles and Houston, in which local letters were delivered in an average of one day or less. In the 1971 mailing, only Houston met that goal. Last month the average time in St. Louis was 20½ hours; in Washington the average was 33 hours.

There were other bright spots, some of them seemingly haphazard. Because it is the start of the weekend, Friday is often the poorest time to mail letters. But of 22 mailed on a Friday morning to Chicago, 20 were delivered on Saturday morning, the other two on Monday morning.

On the other hand, wide variations turned up between the same cities. Airmail letters from Los Angeles to Washington were delivered in an average time of 34 hours, while those from Washington to Los Angeles required 59 hours and those from New York to Los Angeles took an average of 53 hours.

Joseph F. Jones, director of the Postal Service's Office of Logistics, conceded in an interview that there remain many areas where service is lax because of personnel and other problems.

He said the service has launched within the past month a new program designed to tackle problem areas one by one, sending specialists from Washington to analyze the difficulties and correct them.

More reliable airmail service is one of the post office's goals, but it faces problems over which it has little control.

Jones noted, for example, that the number of usable commercial flights available for mail hauling between 8 p.m. and 6 a.m. has decreased by about 25 per cent between August 1969 and the present.

He said the zip code never was intended primarily to speed the mail, although this may have been a popular impression. He said it is designed to speed processing, to make it possible to hire persons who are less skilled and to pave the way for a shift to optical sorting machines, not many of which are in use now.

Hawk bats quiet, lose NCAA test 7-2

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio — "Pressure," says Iowa center-fielder Fred Mims, "is what we like."

And that's exactly what the Hawkeyes have when they face Northern Illinois this morning (9 a.m.) in the losers bracket of the NCAA district 4 baseball tournament.

The Hawkeyes have their backs to the wall after losing to Central Michigan 7-2 in the tournament's first game Thursday.

To remain in contention for a spot in the NCAA "World Series" Iowa must beat Northern Illinois and then whip the loser of today's second game later this afternoon.

The championship will be resolved Saturday in this double-elimination event.

"The guys were nervous against Central Michigan," said Mims by phone last night. "You could see the tightness in our hitting. We got just three hits and two of those were scratch infield singles."

"I still think we're the best team here. Central Michigan is good but they can't handle us when we're playing well," Mims continued.

"Now the pressure is on," Fred said, "and that's when we've been coming through all year."

"Fred's right," Hawkeye Coach Duane Banks said of Mims' comment about nervousness. "This is our first time ever in a tournament like this and we have a good reason to be tight."

"But that was today's game. Now we've got to loosen up. We've gotta swing the bat or we're not going to beat anybody."

"Northern Illinois (which lost 2-0 to Bowling Green Thursday) is a pretty good ball club," explained Banks. "They had a lot of good opportunities but just couldn't cash in Thursday. Twice they had the bases full, nobody out and couldn't score."

The Hawkeye bats, which were booming during an 11 game win streak that carried them to the Big Ten championship, were silenced by Central Michigan's sophomore lefthander Cap Pohlman.

It wasn't until Larry Schutzius managed an infield hit in the fifth inning that the Hawks were able to touch Pohlman.

Freshman thirdbaseman Brad Trickey was the only Hawk to manage a hit of the non-infield variety. Trickey slammed a line drive to right for his hit. Ray Smith got Iowa's only other hit.

Big 10 award to Daily Iowan sports editor

Daily Iowan sports editor Keith Gillett was named co-recipient of the Big Ten's first annual William R. Reed Award.

Also named to receive the award is Rick Gosselin, sports editor of the Michigan State News.

The award includes $1,000 and will be presented today at opening ceremonies of the Big Ten track meet in Champaign, Ill.

The award is presented to the Big Ten student sports editor or sports writer for a campus publication "who best exemplifies the spirit, ideals, and dedication to the Big Ten and inter-collegiate athletics which marked the life of Bill Reed."

The award winners were selected from a panel of midwest sports writers and wire service bureau chiefs, Big Ten Commissioner Wayne Duke and Michael D. McClure, director of the Big Ten Service Bureau.

Rally tips ABA stars

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — The National Basketball Association, sparked by John Havlicek and Bob Lanier, rallied for a 19-point deficit and beat the American Basketball Association 106-104 Thursday night at the Nassau Coliseum in the second All-Star game between the leagues.

It was the NBA's second victory against the ABA. Last year, the NBA won 125-120 at the Houston Astrodome.

This time, the ABA, led by Donnie Freeman of Dallas, Artis Gilmore of Kentucky and Julius Erving of Virginia, bolted to a 49-30 lead midway through the second quarter.

The NBA then stormed back and scored 15 consecutive points, cutting the deficit to 49-45.

Kinnick Stadium?

Athletic board approves name

By KEITH GILLETT
Daily Iowan Sports Editor

The drive to rename Iowa Stadium for Iowa football great Nile Kinnick cleared an important first hurdle. The Iowa Board in Control of Athletics in its monthly meeting earlier this week voted approval of the name change.

The vote of approval by the Iowa Board marked the end of several months of consideration of the proposal. Turned down at an earlier board meeting this year, support for the name change gained momentum statewide, with nearly every newspaper in eastern Iowa endorsing the proposal.

Earlier this year a Lake City lawyer, Les Swanson, began a drive to have the stadium's name changed to honor Kinnick, Iowa's only Heisman trophy winner, who died when his plane crashed into the sea during a World War II training maneuver.

Although approval by the Iowa Athletic Board is considered an important step, the proposal still must pass through several committees before the name can officially be changed.

University of Iowa President Willard Boyd said Thursday night that he will be receiving the letter of recommendation soon and will review the board's decision which will be sent along with his comments to the University ad hoc committee on building names.

Chairman of that committee is Loren Hickerson. After the committee on names makes its decision, it is referred back to the President for his final recommendation. Eventual ok of the change of the stadium name must come from the Iowa Board of Regents.

Asked what kind of impact the Athletic Board's vote will have on the proposal, Boyd said, "Obviously since they are close to the situation, so their recommendation would be given great consideration."

Hickerson said that the last name approved by his committee was for the Pharmacy Building auditorium which will be named for retiring pharmacy Dean Louis C. Zopf. The name for the auditorium came from student and faculty suggestions.

As to how soon his committee will be able to meet to decide on the Kinnick Stadium proposal, Hickerson said he hoped it would be soon.

"With summer coming and less campus involvement, I would guess that we will deal with it promptly."

Goal of the Kinnick Stadium backers is to have the name become official in time for the dedication of the Stadium's new artificial turf.

University officials declined comment as to how long the name approval process would take.

However, without the aid of any hitting, the Hawkeyes took a 2-0 lead in the first inning. An error, three walks and an infield hit brought home the runs.

Ralph Darin was the big gun for Central Michigan, getting two RBIs and collecting a single and a home run in the three-run eighth inning.

Big 10 names 7 to black study

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Seven former Big Ten black football stars were named Thursday to a special commission to counsel the conference on "black athletic matters."

At the league's spring business meeting, Commissioner Wayne Duke said several more blacks with athletic backgrounds would be added to the continuing commission, which he described as the first of its kind in the country.

Duke said the commission resulted from recommendations made at the conference's March meeting in Chicago by a black professor at Michigan State University as well as from an outgrowth of racial problems.

Duke also pointed out the conference is increasing black representation on its football and basketball officiating staffs.

The special commission members, all of whom have achieved success in post graduate pursuits, include Buddy Young of Illinois, Ernie Cook and Judge A. Dickson of Minnesota.

LeRoy Bolden of Michigan State, Willie D. Jones of Purdue, Robert Dorsey of Ohio State and Dr. George Taliferro of Indiana.

Representing the conference on the panel will be Frank Remington, Wisconsin faculty representative; Chalmers "Bump" Elliott, Iowa athletic director, and Duke.

Duke said additional appointees from a list of some 40 nominees would include a black high-school basketball coach and another black Big Ten former athlete.

"I am most pleased with the acceptance by these former black athletes to provide the Big Ten with leadership in an area of growing concern," said Duke.

"The commission will serve on a continuing basis and counsel the conference on problems of the black athlete on the campus, also touching on employment and officiating."

Duke conceded formation of the commission stemmed in part from a formal citation of Big Ten inequities for black athletes made at the March conference meeting by Dr. Robert L. Green, MSU director of urban affairs.

Also a factor, Duke said, was last winter's Minnesota-Ohio State basketball brawl which resulted in suspension of two black Minnesota players.

Duke said an organizational meeting of the commission will be held within a few weeks, with the group making a preliminary report at the Big Ten's summer meeting at Gaylord, Mich., Aug. 6-8.

Frazier pounds Stander's face into a 'bloody mass'

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Relentless Joe Frazier pounded Ron Stander's face into a bloody mask Thursday night and retained his world heavyweight championship when the fight was stopped between the fourth and fifth rounds with Stander writhing in agony on his stool.

Dr. Jack Lewis climbed into the ring after the fourth round, took one look at Stander's bloody face and signalled referee Zack Clayton to stop what had become a one-sided fight.

But while it lasted, Nebraska's first title-fight in history was a bar-room brawl. Frazier, however, had just too many guns for the challenger and his speed sliced open Stander's face like it had been worked over with a bottle. At the end he was bleeding from a cut above his right eye and a ripped open nose that might have been broken.

Stander began to bleed from the nose in the second round and then the blood really flowed as Frazier took complete charge.

The champion landed at will with left hooks and short jabs and in the final minute shook the idol of Council Bluffs, Iowa with two hooks to the body, a right uppercut, and a short chopping right that left Stander dazed.

It was more of the same in the fourth round with Frazier pitching and Stander catching and there was no doubt as the round ended that Stander's bid for boxing's biggest prize had no chance of succeeding.

"There was no doubt about me stopping that one," said Dr. Lewis. "He was badly hurt. He couldn't see out of his right eye."

Stander was taken to a hospital for four different cuts.

Stander's finest moment in this fight marked by shirt-drenching heat in the Omaha Auditorium was in the first round when he battled Frazier on even terms and even backed the champion up with a short right hand to the jaw as his supporters in the crowd of 9,863 screamed "Go Big Ron."

Indiana rated 'team to beat' in Big 10 golf

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — A field of 60, headed by a pair of highly touted Indiana freshmen, begins play Friday morning in the 72-hole Big Ten golf championships at the University of Minnesota's par 71, 6,339-yard course.

There will be 36 holes Friday and another 36 Saturday.

Indiana frosh Kelly Roberts and Jerry Biddinger are considered among the top contenders for the individual title won last year by Minnesota's Dave Hablerle, who has turned professional.

Indiana and defending champion Purdue rank as team contenders, followed closely by Ohio State, Michigan State and Iowa. Minnesota ranks as the dark horse as does its No. 1 player, Rick Ehrmantraut, who fired a three-under par 139

Track field tough

Tefer, Eisenlauer carry Iowa hopes

By BOB DENNEY
Daily Iowan Sports Writer

One of the strongest fields ever will be on hand today as the 72nd Big Ten Outdoor track championships begin in Champaign, Ill.

Among those assaulting Big Ten track records will be Iowa's John Tefer, a senior pole vaulter from Cedar Rapids, and Dick Eisenlauer, a freshman sprinter from Des Moines.

Both men will try to help Iowa's track team to the championship, and qualify for the NCAA meet in Eugene, Ore.

This year has not been an easy one for the Hawks. Injuries to key personnel and poor spring weather have hampered the progress.

As for Tefer and Eisenlauer, preparing for the Big Ten meet has not been the easiest thing to do with finals and outside activities complicating the matter. Despite this fact both men should be in top shape this afternoon at 4:30 p.m. when the preliminary trials begin.

Tefer, a political science major, is the top pole vaulter on the Hawkeye squad, and stands a good chance of bettering former Iowa star Phil Wertman's conference record of 16' 1½ inches. Tefer's season has been 16 feet, 1 inch against Michigan State.

"This is the weekend that counts," said Tefer, "since this is an Olympic year, all qualifying meets, (the AAU Federation, the Big Ten, and the N.C.A.A. Regionals), are all being pushed up to this weekend."

"I know that I am capable of doing better than 16-1," he said, "you are not really as concerned about the competition as you are about competing with yourself."

Tefer's competition will come from Gordon Crail of Wisconsin, who has vaulted 16-1¼ this season.

"I believe that I can improve my record," he added, "and possibly shoot for the 16' 3 inches mark that would qualify me for the Nationals."

"I will be going all out for this one," Tefer added, "and if success breeding success means anything, I will be in good shape."

Tefer, who says that he will concentrate on the decathlon events after graduation, will also be a part of the 440-yard relay team for Iowa.

The emergency of Eisenlauer has boosted the Iowa track team past the disappointing injuries and given the team one individual who may qualify for the Nationals.

Eisenlauer holds the second best conference time in the 440 yard dash, with a 47.3 performance. His top competition will come from Bill Wallace of Indiana, who is tops with a 47.2 time, followed by Ben Dozier of Illinois, who is clocked at 47.5.

"The competition will be pretty tough," Eisenlauer said, "The Big Ten meet means everyone will be running real hard."

Iowa Coach Francis Cretzmeyer has praise for his freshman from East Des Moines.

"He runs tough, practices hard, and pushes all the time," Cretzmeyer said, "his only thought is getting across the finish line first."

"Dick has a good attitude, and ability, and will always push all out in a race," Cretzmeyer said. Eisenlauer will compete in the 100 yard dash and the 220 yard dash as well, and will be up against the tough competition from the favored powers of the conference, Michigan State, Indiana, Illinois, and Wisconsin.

Dick has been in the limelight for most of the season, and though there are big things expected out of him, he reacts well to the pressure.

"I'm not concerned about the fact that I am a freshman on the squad," he said, "I am only out to do my best."

Eisenlauer has a fine record from his high school in East Des Moines, where he captured state individual championships in the 100-yard dash, the 220-yard dash, and the 440-yard dash during the years 1969-71.

"My biggest thrill was winning the 100 at the Drake Relays (1971)," he said, "that is always the top meet of the season."

McLean Survives Two Obstacles

Singer Surmounts Irritated Crowd and a Bomb Scare
By DON HECKMAN
New York Times

A performer who can survive a bomb scare and an antagonistic audience must be something special. Singer-songwriter Don McLean came on stage at Columbia University's

Don McLean in Concert

Letter to the Editor
Buffalo Evening News

"... I am not a fan of Don McLean, or wasn't before Sunday. I liked "American Pie," but knew little of McLean or his work before then.

I sat in the balcony, quite physically alienated from the lone man on stage, with no particular expectations but curiosity, Wolman Auditorium Friday night was greeted by listeners who were justifiably angry about the garish, bright spotlights beaming down on them. "Some friends" were filming Mr. McLean, and their need for appropriate lighting apparently took precedence over the audience's comfort. Associated with a performer whose psychic antennas are usually highly sensitive to rudeness, it was a peculiarly thoughtless action.

As if that wasn't enough, half-way through the program Mr. McLean was interrupted by a man who unceremoniously asked everyone to look under their chairs for "strange or unusual looking packages." Wow. Only a truly magical performer could have kept me—and doubtless many others in the audience—in the hall after so many hassles. But Mr. McLean is magical. He sang his current hit, "American Pie" of course, but he also sang two particularly impressive older tunes, "Three Flights Up" and "Circus Song." He led his listeners through an enthusiastic interpretation of the old folk ringer "Babylon"; he played super guitar and banjo and he sang beautifully. His songs—almost all of which are written with the pen of a poet and the voice of a minstrel—are the centerpiece of his art, and they have as direct and pertinent a message for right-here-today young people as those of any contemporary songwriter I can think of.

The bomb scare and the distracting film lights faded quickly from my mind at the end of the program. But Don McLean's music hasn't; I expect to be hearing it for a long, long time.

until step by step his words, melodious voice, his attitude, sensitivity, candor, and sincerity brought my weary mind to a warm reception of McLean's words. Just as we discovered and respected the music of Bob Dylan, Simon and Garfunkel, Gordon Lightfoot, or Carole King, so has everything I saw of Don McLean seeped into and warmed my musical sense."
