Emphasizes interaction, parents

Freshmen orientation expanded

By Mary White

R�ge school district parents, freshmen and students, overnight bags and dripping umbrellas assembled Tuesday on the University of Iowa campus for a two-day orientation program. The orientation program has been a new development this year, according to Helen Mathews, Orientation Coordinator. "It is important that we have a two-day program which would cover all of the University information and how to be a college student," she added.

"We are trying to give students a physical picture of the campus; where the libraries are, what buildings look like and help them realize they will be making their own decisions," Mathews said.

The first day’s program is comprised of a small group tour of the Stout Quadrangle area, the student center, the student union, and the library. All freshmen in the course have been ordered to take part in the tour. Those students who do not wish to participate can choose an "alternative program." It is important for freshmen to get to know the campus in a meaningful way of understanding of what it is like to live in Iowa City.

Goal is acceptance

"We felt the first goal is a freshmen’s mind is to feel accepted and to know his way around campus," she added. Students in the orientation program are divided into teams from their high schools, and each is headed by a student sponsor.

The student advisors were trained last spring in identifying potential problems and in group leadership, according to Mathews. About twenty students are in each small group.

"The student advisors are our most important assets of this orientation session," said Mathews. "We felt that the student advisors would lead freshmen in discussions of why are they at the university and how to assimilate themselves from now on.

"One of the best outcomes of these sessions is that freshmen do not lose in being apprehensive of a new society," said student advisor Greg Allen commented. "I feel the freshmen of this year are just as well adjusted as last year’s freshmen.

Sensitivity sessions

Along with conducting some sensitivity-type sessions with non-verbal communication exercises to help the students and anti-DVC movement, according to Robert Linn, coordinator of high school and college relations. The schedule planning and registration held in the Union, is assisted by the student advisors. Students remain in their small groups while filling their schedules. They may ask the student advisors for information and advice.

While students are in group discussions or registering, explained Mathews, the parents are given their own orientation at the same time. Parents go on campus and dorm tours with the students, and around the evening barbecue with them, but during the evening discount sessions, parents may go to briefly familiarize themselves with the different aspects of university life, Mathews said.

The university began the orientation sessions July 4. Each Monday session focuses on certain majors, but there is enough overlapping that students should attend any session, she said.

Parens in dorm

Students stay overnight in Barron or Sorensen dormitories with their mother and father, and Mathews. "We felt that parents get an idea of dorm life," she said and Minnis were interested in the dorm living situations.

The orientation sessions opened earlier, Barge told a nation of people and learning environment.

Panel debates career education

By DOUG PATTERSON

The college career center will be a college within the library of the new Ridgefield Secondary School.

One of five panels, Ballantyne was selected to present the material. Ballantyne said that career education must be an essential part of the educational process and that career education must be an essential part of the educational process.

There are a few main points to be covered in the presentation:

1. The importance of career education in today's society.
2. The benefits of career education for students.
3. The role of career education in preparing students for the workforce.

"Career education is crucial for the success of our students. It helps them develop skills and knowledge necessary for their future careers and empowers them to make informed decisions about their education and future careers."

discussion:

The presentation was well-received by the audience, who expressed their appreciation for the panelists' insights and their passion for career education. The panelists were also praised for their engaging presentation style and their ability to connect with the audience.

"I think the panel did a great job in making the topic of career education relevant and accessible to everyone," said one attendee. "I learned a lot from their presentation and I'm excited to see how career education will be integrated into our schools in the future."
Amtrak ambushed; alcohol seized

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Kansas and Oklahoma were declared the "long dry run" by Amtrak officials Wednesday after authorities in both states ambushed them for drinking and possession of alcohol aboard the train.

The robbery occurred Wednesday night in a remote part of Kansas and Oklahoma, where the train was headed to Oklahoma City. The train operator said he had not coordinated the incident with state or local law enforcement agencies.

The train was on its way to Oklahoma City when it stopped in a remote area near the Kansas-Oklahoma border. Authorities said they believed the train was targeted because of its position between the two states.

The conductor said the train was stopped for approximately 20 minutes, during which time the conductor and other employees were questioned by law enforcement officers.

The conductor said he was not aware of any prior incidents involving alcohol on the train. He added that the train normally has a security officer on board, but that officer was not present Wednesday night.

He said the train had been stopped for routine inspection, but he was not aware of any specific concerns about alcohol possession.

The conductor said he would resume service once he was satisfied with the inspection.

Stanley Shumkus was a labor delegate from Michigan.

Shumkus believed that America's future was at stake. The labor movement needed a leader who could unite workers across the country.

"If we don't have anything against blacks, but I'm tired of this crap from Washington, all of that. Wallace may have color problems, but he's speaking the truth."

Shumkus, who covers himself up in causes might be heard. They think that even Shumkus will they're a majority and they'll elect a president.

Leaders Minn. West. Paul Chase packed Muddy off to England-trapped it. The result is a good album but one that Muddy could have stayed in Chicago to make. The only British weapon are the War-wood in three cuts and Rock Groth. The rest of the backing is good but unknown. Muddy comes through with full the band and has a much too predictable fingered from the new location. The arrangements go the range of Chicago blues and a cul-ture outside it. "Why's Gonna Be Your Sweet Man When I'm a Mean Motherfucker" is the best and Groth sings in the entry. They play good rock and roll.

Bears' Craigie Connemaras

There's a possibility that quarterback Dave Craigie of the Chicago Bears will not be in football at all this season. Craigie is a product of the Notre Dame football team. The Bears have signed a young man who was a star quarterback at Notre Dame. How long will he stay? That remains to be seen. But if he does stay, it will be a big boost for the Bears.

The St. Louis Cardinals have been playing well this year, primarily because of their defense. They have won six of their last eight games. Their defense has been ranked as the best in the league.

While the Bears are still struggling, the Cardinals are starting to look like a team that could make a run for the playoffs. With the addition of Craigie, the Bears could become a force to be reckoned with.

In other NFL news, the New York Giants have signed quarterback John Unitas to a six-year contract. Unitas, who was released by the Baltimore Colts, will join a team that is already in contention for the Super Bowl.

The Dallas Cowboys have signed running back Tony Dorsett to a four-year deal. Dorsett, who was a star at the University of Texas, is expected to bring some much-needed offensive firepower to the Cowboys.

On the injury front, linebacker Kevin Greene is out for the season for the Los Angeles Rams. Greene, who was a key player on the defense, is expected to miss the rest of the season due to a knee injury.

The Green Bay Packers have signed wide receiver Javon Walker to a five-year contract extension. Walker, who is coming off a Pro Bowl season, is poised to become one of the top receivers in the league.

The New England Patriots have signed tight end Rob Gronkowski to a five-year contract extension. Gronkowski, who is one of the best tight ends in the league, is expected to stay with the Patriots for the foreseeable future.

The Buffalo Bills have signed quarterback Tyrod Taylor to a three-year contract extension. Taylor, who was a key player for the Bills last season, is expected to be the team's starting quarterback for the next three years.

The Carolina Panthers have signed running back Christian McCaffrey to a three-year contract extension. McCaffrey, who was a star at Stanford University, is expected to continue to be a key player for the Panthers.

From the Encyclopedia Americana.

Major nominations by the major parties since national political conventions began in 1832 have been made on the first ballot by acclamation, and for half a century, nominations by the Democratic and Republican convention leaders have been the most successful.

Candidates named on the first ballot or by acclamation have won 29 of 38 elections and the majority have been re-elected with varying degrees of ease. In 1880, it was a different story. But the editors of the Encyclopedia Americana well knew that the political climate had changed, that fundamental conflicts had been resolved, that the candidates had been selected, that the voters were ready for a change, that the conventional approach was out of date, that the votes cast for the Democratic and Republican leaders had been routine and without meaning. But the editors of the Encyclopedia Americana also knew that the candidates who were nominated on the second, third, or fourth ballots had been carefully selected, had been faced with the most difficult problems, and had the best chance of winning the election.

How did the first-ballot candidates come to be missed or overlooked? The editors of the Encyclopedia Americana believe that the candidates who were nominated on the second, third, or fourth ballots had been carefully selected, had been faced with the most difficult problems, and had the best chance of winning the election. The editors of the Encyclopedia Americana also believe that the candidates who were nominated on the second, third, or fourth ballots had been carefully selected, had been faced with the most difficult problems, and had the best chance of winning the election.

Cable splicing for Ma Bell

Mary Stakelbush and Carol Tryor gave up their jobs at New York Telephone Co. to become cable splicers. They completed three-week training programs and are now employed as regular workers. They were wives of cable splicers. They completed three-week training programs and are now employed as regular workers. They were wives of cable splicers.

Will McGovern benefit by first ballot nomination?
