Parking violator crackdown

UI to begin towing cars

By GERALD THOMASON
Iowa City Press-Citizen

A proposed change in the parking requirements at the University of Iowa will begin next week.

The current system of parking permits will be replaced with a new system of towing violators.

The change will take effect on Monday, September 13, 1970.

UI President John D. Eccles said that the new system will be implemented to reduce the number of parking violations on campus.

The new system will involve the issuance of parking permits to all vehicle owners who park on campus.

The permits will expire at the end of the academic year, and vehicles without permits will be towed away.

The towing will begin at 9:00 a.m. on the first day of the academic year, and will continue throughout the year.

In addition, the university will provide a 24-hour emergency service to assist drivers with parking issues.

The new system is expected to reduce the number of parking violations and improve traffic flow on campus.

UI officials encourage drivers to purchase parking permits as soon as possible.

The permits are available for purchase at the parking office located in the UI Union.

City windfall

Iowa City would be receiving over $1,000,000 in federal money for the 1970-1971 fiscal year.

The proposed federal aid will help the city to construct a new public safety building.

The grant is expected to be approved by both houses of Congress next week, and the money will be available to the city on December 31, 1970.

The grant will be used to construct a new building for the police and fire departments.

The building will be located at the corner of E. Market Street and N. Gilbert Street.

It is expected that the new building will be completed by June 1971.

.UI officials are optimistic about the grant and the future of the city.

Doing well

Nearly 10% per cent of the 33,000 UI graduates who have applied for federal student aid have been awarded grants.

UI officials are pleased with the high percentage of graduate students who have applied for aid.

A grant is available to UI students who are enrolled in at least half-time courses.

To qualify, students must have a cumulative grade point average of 2.0 or better.

The grant is offered through the UI Office of Financial Aid.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House vote was made yesterday to strike down the proposal of a federal corporation to operate and lease government-owned buildings.

The measure was introduced by Rep. Jim Wright (D-Texas) to prevent the sale or lease of government properties in urban areas.

The corporation, which was proposed by President Richard Nixon, would have operated as a public corporation to lease government-owned buildings to private owners.

The House passed the measure by a vote of 217 to 199.

Bill never has been defeated

A bill that has been before Congress for several years was defeated yesterday.

The bill, which was introduced by Rep. John Dingell (D-Mich.), would have prohibited the sale or lease of federal properties for commercial use.

The measure was rejected by a vote of 181 to 197.

Dingell vowed to fight

Rep. John Dingell (D-Mich.), the sponsor of the bill, vowed to continue the fight.

Dingell said that he would introduce a similar bill in the next Congress.

Nix increase

The House has rejected a proposed increase in the federal income tax.

The increase, which was proposed by Rep. Henry Gonzalez (D-Texas), was defeated by a vote of 195 to 218.

The increase would have raised the tax on incomes over $100,000.

The House has rejected similar increases in the past.

Debate

Edward W. Anderson and Fred Schwab, members of the UI faculty, presented a debate on the issue.

The debate was held in the UI Union, and was attended by approximately 100 students.

The debate focused on the need for increased funding for higher education.

The debate lasted for approximately two hours.

Whistle blowing

Troubling and breaking their ways to tremendous challenges, the whistle blowers. They are the ones who have stood up and said, "Here is the law!"

The Whistleblowers, led by a former U.S. Navy officer, were arrested and charged with revealing classified information.

They were later acquitted on all but one count.

The case, which has become known as "The Case of the Whistleblowers," has raised important questions about the rights of individuals to reveal classified information.

The case has been the subject of much debate and discussion in the media.

The Whistleblowers believe that their actions were justified to protect the public from potential harm.

They were supported by many individuals and organizations who believe in the importance of whistle blowing.

The case has also sparked a national debate on the issue of whistle blowing.

The Whistleblowers have since gone on to advocate for whistle blowing as a means of protecting the public from potential harm.

They have continued to speak out on the issue, and have become leaders in the field of whistle blowing.

Whistle blowing is a powerful tool for those who wish to protect the public from potential harm.

It is a brave act, but one that is necessary to hold those in power accountable.

The Whistleblowers have set an example for others who wish to do the same, and their actions will be remembered for years to come.

AMES, Iowa—Two Iowa State University civil engineers say they would welcome about $13.7 million to make the large auditorium on campus a reality. The $6.5 million project is the largest in University of Iowa history.

Curtis and Wright Architects, the firm that designed the auditorium, have come up with plans for the $6.5 million project.

The auditorium will be located on the Iowa State University campus, and is expected to be completed by 2020. The project is being funded through a combination of state and federal grants.

The auditorium will provide a much-needed space for the university’s many student organizations and clubs.

Grainy

AMES, Iowa—Grainy conditions may have slowed the progress of Burge Hall at about 1:15 a.m. on Sunday, according to a recent US/ISVI report. The recent crop is expected to be harvested in mid-August.

The Iowa State University industrial engineering professor, who spoke at the report, said that grainy conditions have been impacted by the recent drought.

The professor said that the recent drought has caused the grain to become more brittle, making it more difficult to harvest.

Housing

ROSEBURG, OR—The recently completed $2 million housing project in Roseburg, Oregon, is expected to open for occupancy next month.

The housing project is located in the heart of Roseburg, and is designed to provide affordable housing for low-income families.

The housing project includes 72 units, each with one to two bedrooms and one bathroom.

The project was funded through a combination of federal and state funds, and is expected to be completed by the end of the year.

Two would improve business, profits

ISA asks beer hour boost

"Would improve business, profits"

By GREG REAUX

Iowa State University

Dr. Greg Reaux, ISA president, says the university is considering a proposal to increase the beer sales hour by one hour. According to Reaux, the proposal was made by the university’s administration to address the issue of low enrollment.

The university is currently operating under the state-imposed 2 a.m. closing hour for beer sales, which has been in place since 1982.

The proposal would extend the closing hour to 3 a.m., which would be in line with other universities in the state.

The university administration is expected to make a decision on the proposal in the next few weeks.

Specified hours

This summer, the State Board of Regents ordered all state universities to reduce their operating hours. According to the order, all state universities must reduce their operating hours by at least one hour.

The order was expected to result in a reduction of at least 10% in the number of student hours worked.

The order is expected to be in effect for the remainder of the academic year.

Controverted

Opening the West Room

Reaux said that the university is considering a proposal to open the West Room, which has been closed for several years.

The West Room is located on the fourth floor of the Student Union, and was previously used for student events.

The proposal would involve reopening the West Room for student events, and would require a renovation of the space.

The university administration is expected to make a decision on the proposal in the next few weeks.

Renewal purchase policies attacked

The city is proposing to purchase the property for the local police station, and is seeking feedback from the community on the proposal.

The city is planning to develop the property for a new police station, which would replace the current facility.

The city is expected to make a decision on the proposal in the next few weeks.

We are writing to correct some of the errors which appeared in the article "Police, CoPOver hot issue" by Ted Edwards which appeared in The Daily Iowa, September 28, 1971. Thefirst paragraph of the story gives the impression that the CoP coworkers or the UniversityCommunity coworkers are opposed to racial equality.

For the CoP to go public and put students on the campus is nothing new and is counterproductive.Edges which can create a lot of problems. [Student Senate].

In the article "CoP on offensive," we would like to point out that the CoP has not been successful in its efforts to gain recognition as a student organization. The CoP was established in 1970 with the goal of promoting student involvement in university affairs. However, the organization has not been able to gain support from the student body or the administration.

The CoP's proposed constitution, which was submitted to the Student Senate in January, was rejected by a vote of 17 to 1. The Senate did not believe that the CoP would be able to function effectively as a student organization.

In addition, the CoP has been unable to attract a significant number of members. As of late fall 1971, the CoP had only four members, and two of them were CoP officers. The CoP has also been unable to organize any events or activities that would attract the attention of the student body.

The CoP has been criticized by other student organizations, such as the SCA, for its lack of organization and its inability to effectively represent the interests of the student body. The CoP has been accused of being a "rubber stamp" for the administration, and of being a "token" organization that is not truly representative of the student body.

The CoP's inability to gain recognition and to organize activities has led to a loss of student interest and support. As a result, the CoP has been unable to achieve its goals and has been forced to dissolve.

We would like to ask the administration to consider the opinions of the student body and to support the formation of a new student organization that is truly representative of the student body and that is able to effectively represent the interests of the student body.

On stage at Clapp Hall during reception

Clapp Recital Hall’s future is ‘exciting and promising’

By DIANE K. DOTTIN
Assistant Feature Editor

Philip Greeley Clapp Recital Hall was formally dedicated Friday evening, September 29, officially beginning the inaugural season of the Iowa Center for the Arts. Tickets were sold out for the event, but about 300 of the best seats of the house were empty to enable the organist, Delbert Disselhorst, to begin regular chamber music performances.

Clapp, who organized the University’s music department and the University Auditorium, thought the ‘music building.’ People are excited and most of his other orchestral, choral, vocal and instrumental works were performed by The University Choir under the conductance of Frank Piersol and its fine bands, the Student Brass Chamber Group, conducted by Frank Ferstel, the director of the music bands.

James Dias conducted The Faculty Chamber Group, then called the composer of the work, Philip Bezanson, to the stage to take a bow. The Casavant Concert Organ was used to introduce a program of graduate study and accompanied, and directed the instigation of advanced degrees in music. He also composed two of his 12 symphonies and most of his other orchestral, choral, vocal and instrumental works.

Willard L. Boyd, university president, participated in the dedication ceremony. The University Choir performed by The Faculty Chamber Group under the conductance of Frank Piersol, composed by Philip Greeley Clapp.

The dedication of a building is like a climactic event in the life of a university. It gives me great pleasure to convey the vision, Dr. Boyd said, “With the easy access, the building is a symbol to the university of the fine experiences. It gives us a new building to look where we were, with the accompaniment of Delbert Disselhorst, who died while constructing this building. Fellow, 19(8) Performed by The University Choir under the conductance of Herald Stark.

"Being on the stage is almost unbearable; there is so much sound."

By HARRAL STUDE

A mind-blowing experience

Official opening night of the Virgil H. Hancher Auditorium began with a tribute of honors and ended with a stirring oration for the University Symphony Orchestra and Chorus.

University of Iowa Press; William R. Boyd began the evening with a report that the demand for tickets had far exceeded the supply, and that the entire house was filled.

The audience gave him a standing ovation.

The program was greeted with excitement. The acoustics were most appreciated by Mrs. Miller.

Attending from New Jersey was Hugh Harper, son of Earl W. Harper, governor of Eastern Iowa.

"For years," Miller said, "events have made meaningful contributions to the fine arts. But there's nothing like an evening in the Virgil H. Hancher Auditorium to give a sense of pride in our rich cultural heritage."

The performance included Johannes Brahms' Academic Festival Overture, and Richard Strauss' Don Quixote of the Windmills of Spain. Professor James Dixon, who conducted the University Symphony, was also present.

"This is the first time we've been able to present an orchestra of this quality," added Dr. Becker, head of the speech and dramatic arts department.

The auditorium director, James Wockenfuss, talked of Hancher's impact on the arts of the midwest. The combination of all the forces that happened together, he said, is what makes the hall such a special place.

"The acoustics were most appreciated by Mrs. Miller," stated Wockenfuss. "They are unbelievable. I've never seen a stage that starts up better. To me, it is more impressive than the Kennedy Center. It is simply in perfect balance.

The clothes were all from Des Moines. Clark Miller, of the Kennedy Center, has spoken of the acoustics here.

"We are very excited in Iowa," said Governor Ray. "This is a hall, beautiful. And a first class orchestra and chorus."

"This is an auspicious night," said President Willard L. Boyd. "It is an auspicious moment; a new world premiere of Grand Bamboula presented a brilliant performance, a very thrilling experience."

"This is the first time we've had an orchestra that is completely professional," said Mrs. Miller.

"We have some teething problems," added Wockenfuss. "But nothing we can't handle.

And everywhere you walked, students were enthused. "Wow" and "great occasion" were the words of the evening.

The housing after concert chatter was full of pride and excitement. Students, faculty, friends, parents—performers—they were all pleased.

"It was a brilliant performance, a very thrilling experience. I am really very happy to be part of it," said Dr. Richard Bianchi of the music department.

"Being on the stage is almost unbearable. There is so much sound. Everyone is extremely excited about the hall."

Smith has personally known Thomas A. Edison, the father of cinema history," said Kenneth Faber, who is directing the Tom Sawyer Festival in the center's oral history dossier.

"The last 60 years of his life were spent in the air, both in the United States and the Orient," Smith said. "I have been in the taxi business for over 70 years."

Smith, who said he was a boxer in his youth, said he was offered a job at the 1950s boxing tournament sponsored by the United States Marine Corps.

"This is a great day for Charlie Smith," a photo booth with a 10-year-old girl said. "I'm his twin sister."
