Nixon plans shakeup of executive

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — President Nixon

stated at the last of his lengthy press conference on Thursday night that he would shake up his presidcial staff. "I am going to do very much more than just making changes in the White House staff.

I am going to change the structure of the executive branch of government."

Within hours after the reconcl-cile, Nixon announced his plan to restructure the White House and the Cabinet. He said he would continue through late November with his reorganization program.

Resignations

Frustration only temporary

Leone will continue the battle

By Paul White

For most people, the 1970 Iowa Senate election is Sunday at the polls. Yet, the real action in the fifth District Senate race is already on the move. Most of those people are candidates and campaign workers.

Leone was a local coordinator for McGovern before he became a lawyer. His first active political activity was in the Iowa City Democratic election in the spring.

"We plan to keep working the polls, but we'll be analyzing complete voting patterns and keeping a watch on the results of the national campaign," he says.

Leone says this type of voting pattern is valuable to candidates who are seeking to measure the outcome of an election in the same district in which they're running.

"Many of these people, who were hardworking Democrats, look like they have a good chance of becoming Republicans," he says.

"It's the fact that the American people could be turned around by a change of candidates in the House administration," he says.

The most serious and difficult challenge to McGovern came from the party of the rich.

"While McGovern was in the Senate for a few more years, the party of the rich, the political or religious literature, was starting to pull themselves together," he says.

But the worker obviously was not a choice, and he wins 4 to 1 in the Senate race.

Most of the information on the national level came from what Leone calls "McGovern's honesty and morality."

"The home was messy and the ceiling-high divider in one room had been installed by a McGovern supporter since before the November Democratic primary election," he says.

The frustration and anger among a large number of voters is only natural, where they are starting to pull themselves together and fight back.

"They need the three main elements in the campaign: an issue, a personality and the right candidate," he says.

"It's our big-business hang-up problem, and Fred Sale. We have to have a large family to measure up to a grass-roots, door-to-door campaign against State Senator Butchvarov," he says.

"What we say about the local Lincoln County election isn't always a choice, but the worker obviously was not a choice, and he wins 4 to 1 in the Senate race.

Revenue bill puts rich on dole

WASHINGTON—A doubtful $11 billion air show the air-craft carrier Forrestal has been banned, in part, upon the Navy’s recommendation that the ship be retired. It is the Navy’s second request to have the ship withdrawn from service.

The ship has been under repair for several months, and its withdrawal is part of a Navy plan to reduce the size of its fleet by several dozen ships.

The Forrestal is the Navy’s largest and most advanced aircraft carrier. It was built in the early 1950s and has a crew of about 5,000, including about 3,000 Navy personnel.

The ship’s withdrawal is part of a larger restructuring of the Navy’s fleet, which has been reducing its size in recent years to meet budget constraints.

The ship is the second of the Forrestal class, which includes the Forrestal, Enterprise, and Kitty Hawk. The Forrestal is named after the Forrestal family, which has served in the Navy.

In a statement, the Navy said that the Forrestal was no longer needed and that the money could be used to purchase new ships.

But Nixon

The news came as the administration was considering a new round of defense spending cuts. The Forrestal has been the subject of debate in Congress, with some lawmakers calling for its retention.

353-620 Tues., Thurs. 7-7pm.

I will probably write out this request in Survival Line, but something's been going on at me, and I have to put it in a nutshell at the very least. It seems like a lady sitting next to me who was wearing a dress and was being a bit odd (as is her nature), was handed a cigar band and promptly put it on her head. I don't know if she was wearing a hat or if it was a gift, but I thought it was quite odd. I have no idea what the significance is, but it seems to be a common occurrence among some women.
