

74 persons dead as Libyan airliner crashes

Israel downs Arab jet

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli warplanes fired on a Libyan jetliner that refused to heed warnings Wednesday and forced it to crash-land on the occupied Sinai Desert, the military command reported.

The official casualty toll was given as at least 74 persons dead and nine seriously injured.

The command said the airline pilot acknowledged repeated warnings that he was violating Israeli-held territory, but did not comply. The government said the plane had intruded into a "highly-sensitive military area" and "behaved in a way that aroused suspicion and concern regarding its intentions."

An Israeli spokesman said the airliner flew over Israeli installations on the Suez Canal, which acts as a cease-fire line between Israeli and Egyptian troops, before Israeli air force fighters were sent to intercept. A spokesman for the Libyan government asserted the plane overshoot Cairo's airport and then, because of bad weather, strayed into territory held by the Israelis. He described the plane as "shot down."

Libyan radio said the plane was brought down in "an aggressive attack by the Zionist enemy," and Cairo radio vowed that Israel will "pay dearly at the hand of the Arabs for this crime."

The Libyan government said one of the passengers was from West Germany, another from Poland and the rest from Libya, Egypt, Syria and Jordan. The airline crew was French.

A Tunisian government statement said the international community should take measures against "this new form of terrorism."

President Houari Boumediene of Algeria called the incident "... a violation of the most elementary human principles".

Premier Golda Meir expressed the Israeli government's "deep sorrow at the loss of life resulting from the Libyan crash in Sinai and regrets that the Libyan pilot did not heed the repeated warnings which were given him in accordance with international procedures."

Mrs. Meir apparently meant to designate the pilot of the Libyan plane without reference to his nationality. Air France announced in Paris that the pilot was French, part of a five-man French crew under contract with the Libyan airline.

Air France said two members of the crew survived.

In Cairo, Libyan Airlines identified the plane as Flight 114 bound for Cairo from Tripoli, the capital of Libya, and said it apparently overflew the Cairo airport. The Suez Canal is seven minutes' flying time from the airport.

An airline spokesman said 116 persons, including six babies, were aboard. There was no explanation for the discrepancy between this figure and the Israeli count of dead and injured.

An Israeli source said the pilot landed three times to land the plane, but he refused. Another source said the pilot's reply was, "I don't take orders from Israel."

The Israelis opened fire and hit the plane, but a highly placed source contended that the damage was not enough to cause the crash.

The crash came just 12 hours after Israeli commandos struck seven Arab guerrilla bases deep in northern Lebanon in a drive to break up terrorist centers. The raiders killed 50 Arab guerrillas, an official report said. Arab guerrilla sources put the death toll at 15 to 25.

The military command said the plane entered Israeli air space at 1:35 p.m., penetrating about 50 miles over the Sinai Peninsula, which Israel captured from Egypt in the 1967 war.

The Boeing 727 crashed about 12 miles from the Suez Canal, the spokesman said. He did not specify the area where the plane was forced down.

Transport Minister Shimon Peres said, "There are international laws concerning civil flights and their entry into the air space of another country, even by mistake."

Peres said the Israelis acted according to recognized international law.

To increase minority and female employees

Hiring procedure to swell recruitment

By LEWIS D'VORKIN
Administration Writer

Changes in University of Iowa hiring and recruitment practices are now being implemented in an attempt to increase the number of women and minority employees.

The changes will force the university "to look harder for qualified minority members and create a broader recruitment base for women and minorities" in all four university personnel classifications, according to Cecelia H. Foxley, UI Affirmative Action director.

In order to increase the recruitment base, Foxley said deans, department heads and the university's general service employers are now asked to advertise job openings in The Hawkeye Recruiter, the UI job line—a telephone service informing callers of administrative, professional and general staff vacancies—professional newsletters and at various professional meetings.

In addition, job openings in administrative, professional, technological and general service positions must be registered with the personnel department for 14 days.

Before these advertising procedures were implemented, Foxley said some department heads would call their colleagues and have the job opening filled before anyone knew of the vacancy.

Classifications

There are four job classifications at the university: faculty, administrative personnel, professional and technical personnel and general service personnel.

Advertisements for job openings circulated throughout the United States must include the statement "The University of Iowa is an Equal Opportunity Employer."

"This statement is a red flag," Foxley said, and informs potential applicants that the university has an affirmative action program and "wants people regardless of race or sex to apply for open positions."

After all applications for specific faculty positions are received, a department's search committee, responsible for advertising job openings, will usually review the applicants and select the most qualified person to fill the vacant position.

When filling vacant administrative, professional and technical job openings, Foxley said the applications received by the personnel department are forwarded to department heads who make the hiring decision.

In the case of general service vacancies, all applicants must take a merit system examination, and those with the three highest scores are referred to the specific university employer who will make the final hiring decision.

Check

As a check to determine if faculty openings are being filled in line with affirmative action policy, Foxley said each search committee is required to submit a copy of their recruitment procedure. If a procedure does not follow hiring policy, Foxley will offer suggestions in order to bring the procedure within stated regulations.

If the department has filled a faculty vacancy, and the hiring procedure used did not coincide with affirmative action regulations, Foxley said the search committee is required once again to review all applicants using a proper hiring procedure.

There will be a similar check conducted to determine if administrative, technical and professional applicants are being reviewed in line with university hiring procedures. The merit system itself serves as a check in the hiring of general service personnel, Foxley said.

Although the four university employing departments are not now required to hire a certain number of minority and female employees, Foxley said each department has been instructed to determine the number of minority members and females they can hire in the next three years.

After each department has made this determination, efforts will be made to hire the suggested number of females and minority members.

"The whole process of setting goals and objectives and selecting applicants is highly subjective," Foxley said, "because there is no definite knowledge of the number of qualified minority members and females in the pool of applicants and department heads must estimate the size of the pool."

According to finding of a Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) investigation in UI hiring practices, the advertising of vacancies "did not include statements encouraging referral of minority and female applicants."

However, Foxley said before receiving the HEW report the university received a letter from HEW stating applicants should be treated alike "and the objective of affirmative action is to treat all groups—females, males and minorities—equally."

Foxley said the two HEW letters are contradictory, and HEW clarification will be necessary before advertisement policies are changed.

In order for any affirmative action program to be successful, Foxley said it is necessary to increase the number of qualified female and minority applicants, and this can "only be done through equal educational opportunities."

Big net

Margaret B. McDowell, UI professor of rhetoric and member of Associated University Women, said Wednesday, "Theoretically the objective of affirmative action is to throw out a net big enough to get some women candidates," and the new affirmative action hiring practices are fairer because of open advertising.

McDowell added there are not many faculty openings because the university, in an effort to save money, is not filling vacancies, "so not much is happening in the way of an increase in the number of women on the faculty."

The Faculty Council supports the affirmative action hiring procedures, and in a letter to Foxley, Robert A. Corrigan, faculty senate chairman, said, "Faculty senate has unanimously endorsed the concept of affirmative action and is highly appreciative of the effort made to correct past inequities as well as provide for hiring priorities in the future."

'Approve' freeway impact statement

By BILL ROEMERMAN
Staff Writer

The Johnson County Regional Planning Commission voted Wednesday night to find the environmental impact statement on the controversial proposed freeway 518 to be "consistent regional planning."

They also voted to attach the individual comments of the commission members, and a transcript of the commission's debate surrounding the report, when the decision is sent to the Iowa Highway Commission.

Much of the debate centered around whether the report was in fact consistent with regional planning, and what the phrase regional planning meant.

One commission member said the report should not be accepted because, as a researched document, the environmental impact statement was "woefully lacking."

She listed several points of the report which she considered lacking. She said the report:

—Failed to account properly the controversy which surrounded the freeway 518 project.

—Failed to take into account the need for a route to bypass the Iowa City-Coralville area. A bypass she said was needed to prevent dangerous traffic situations.

She also noted that a 1972 court decision contended that environmental impact statements must not only consider alternate routes for a proposed highway, but also must consider alternate modes of transportation, which the freeway statement does not.

Commission member Linda Dole said the commission should not vote agreement or disagreement with the environmental impact statement because such a vote would be meaningless.

"Many of us may vote it up or down for different reasons," she said. "A vote of this kind doesn't transmit to the Highway Commission what we think is wrong with the report."

The Citizen's Advisory Committee of the commission presented a detailed criticism of 518 environmental impact report. The commission took no action on the critique, but commission president Michael Katchee said the criticism would be forwarded to the Highway Commission.

In other action the commission voted to make the University of Iowa a voting member.

in the news briefly

Reconstruction

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers Wednesday refused to rule out reconstruction aid to North Vietnam by presidential order if Congress fails to appropriate the funds.

He told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that no firm commitments have been made, and none will be, "without the support of Congress."

But he avoided a direct answer to an inquiry by Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., whether he "rejected" the idea of a fund transfer from other programs.

"I've never talked to the President about it, and I don't know what he intends," Rogers said.

Food prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon said Wednesday his effort to halt the food-price spiral will have a powerful effect in the second half of the year and bring the American consumer relief without cutting farm income.

In a nationwide radio message, the President also defended his cuts in the federal budget, saying they will "do more than anything else to protect your family budget."

Borrowing a phrase from Franklin D. Roosevelt, Nixon wound up his address with the warning that "we could be wrecked on the rocks of loose fiscal policy" if the federal budget gets out of control.

US-China

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Communist China will issue a joint communique Thursday that is expected to report new strides in relations between the two nations.

The communique is the outgrowth of Henry A. Kissinger's lengthy talks with Chinese leaders in Peking, including Chairman Mao Tse-tung.

The White House said it will be made public in Peking and Washington at 11 a.m. EST Thursday.

Kissinger, who has reported to Nixon since his return from Asia Tuesday, will hold a news conference at the White House to discuss the communique and details of his visit to both Peking and Hanoi.

Morning after

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration said Wednesday it plans to approve the drug DES for use as a "morning after" birth control pill despite the possibility of a cancer risk to newborn infants.

FDA Commissioner Charles C. Edwards told the Senate that "there is no evidence for a significant risk" to women under prescribed dosages.

"However," he added, "because the possibility of a harmful effect on the fetus either from a pregnancy existing of a harmful effect on the fetus either from a pregnancy existing at the time of treatment, from a previous sexual exposure, or resulting from a patient failure during treatment, an early abortion induced by conventional means should be seriously considered even though an action of this kind on the fetus is not known to exist."

Grateful Dead

A "very limited" number of Grateful Dead tickets will be available at the Fieldhouse doors Saturday night, Commission on University Entertainment (CUE) officials said late Wednesday night.

According to CUE chairwoman Bev Horton, AA, the tickets will be sold at $5 each—the previous listed gate price—with a "strict" limit of two per person. Horton said the time and Fieldhouse location for the ticket sales will be announced Friday.

Earlier, CUE had said the Dead tickets were totally sold out, but Horton explained that an "administrative decision" had been made to save some tickets "as a pressure valve" to avoid potential danger situations from what some people have called the "mythical die-hard Dead freaks" who follow the group from concert to concert.

Horton said she now didn't think there would be any problems with those travelers. "It just doesn't happen in winter," she added.

Steam away

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ten communist ships trapped since May by the American mining of Haiphong steamed out of the North Vietnamese harbor after the United States provided navigational charts locating the mine fields, the Pentagon said Wednesday.

Defense Department spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim said the ships "left at their own risk without any U.S. assistance or guidance" other than the general information contained in the maps given the North Vietnamese.

Remains

PARIS (AP) — The remains of Marshal Philippe Petain, stolen from his traitor's grave Sunday night, have been found by French police and will be returned Thursday, police sources reported.

At least five persons were under detention in connection with the attempt to move Petain's coffin from the bleak Atlantic island where he died to the national war cemetery at Verdun. Petain, a hero in World War I, died in 1951 while serving a life sentence for heading the collaborationist Vichy government in World War II.

Earthquake

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A rolling earthquake shook the Southern California coast Wednesday morning, cracking plaster, shattering windows, starting several fires and inflicting property damage.

The structural damage, mainly to older buildings, was heaviest in Oxnard, a coastal city of 70,000 persons, 50 miles northwest of Los Angeles. Estimates by the State Office of Emergency Preparedness placed damage there at up to $1 million, mostly in cracked walls, broken windows and collapsed roofs. See photo on page 2.

Orientation

Are you looking for a part-time summer job in Iowa City? Are you interested in helping people? If so the Orientation Council says its looking for you.

Fifteen student advisers are needed to work with incoming freshmen during the Orientation-Registration programs next July. The student advisers lead small group discussions about student life, show the new students around campus, and help them with course scheduling and registration.

Students are eligible for the adviser jobs if they have spent at least one year at the University of Iowa, are not on academic probation, and are eligible for work-study.

Student advisers are paid for the approximately 40 hours of training they receive during spring semester and for the 12 days they spend working with freshmen during July, for a total of $350, according to Martha Rosen, an orientation worker.

Applications can be picked up in the Orientation Office, first floor of the Union, or in the Student Activities Center and are due on Feb. 26. Interviews will be arranged with all applicants, Rosen said.

Agnew, Percy followers differ

Editors Note: This is the second of two articles analyzing data gained by a Daily Iowan poll conducted at the Republican Lincoln Day Dinner in Des Moines.

By STU CROSS
Political Writer
DES MOINES—Vice President Spiro T. Agnew easily out-distanced other possible contenders for the 1976 Republican presidential nomination in a poll taken Monday by The Daily Iowan and the Iowa Opinion Research Bureau (IORB).

Agnew, although not officially announced for the post, received 41 per cent of the votes cast by persons attending the Republican Lincoln Day Dinner in Des Moines.

Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois and Gov. Ronald Reagan of California were the closest competitors for Agnew, each receiving 19 per cent.

The remaining support was spread among ten other candidates with former Democrat John Connally, Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York, Republican national chairman George Bush and Sen. Mark Hatfield of Oregon mentioned the most.

Both Percy and Reagan have been making subtle and not-so-subtle hints that they would like the nomination. Percy built an enormous political organization in Illinois last year to win a crushing victory and return to the Senate.

Reagan has announced that he will not run for another term as governor, but there is wide-spread speculation that he intends to challenge Sen. John Tunney in 1974 as a stepping stone for the nomination.

Agnew and Reagan who agree on many issues including law and order, busing, amnesty and military spending, are in sharp contrast to Percy's position.

According to the poll, a great disparity exists among the Republicans who support Agnew and those who back Percy.

On the question of the recent Supreme Court ruling on abortion, 69 per cent of those in attendance agreed with the ruling, with 27 per cent disagreeing.

Of those supporting Percy 60 per cent agreed with the ruling while only 14 per cent of those indicating Agnew as their preference agreed.

Twenty-one per cent of those preferring Percy disagreed with the ruling, while 76 of those preferring the Vice-President disagreed.

The total sample overwhelmingly disagreed with a concept of busing school children to achieve racial integration. Eighty-three per cent disagreed with the concept and 11 per cent indicated approval.

Six per cent of the Agnew supporters agree with busing while 43 per cent of those in Percy's camp like the idea.

Ninety-two per cent of the Agnew supporters disagreed with the idea of busing while only 52 per cent of those in Percy's camp dislike the concept.

Of those preferring Percy, 75 per cent thought capital punishment (the death penalty) should in no instance be reinstated in Iowa, with 23 per cent believing

Lectures here Saturday

Stokely to speak in Union

Stokely Carmichael, black political activist and co-author of Black Power, will speak to students at 7:30 p.m. Saturday Feb. 27 at the Union main ballroom.

Members of the Black Student Union who commissioned Carmichael to come to the UI campus said he will be discussing his future political plans.

Carmichael, initiator of the slogan "Black Power", will also be available to answer questions on Saturday at the Afro Americana Cultural Center.

Carmichael has served as chairman of the Student Non-violent Coordinating Committee (SNCC) before H. Rap Brown.

After leaving SNCC, Carmichael studied economics in Guinea. Recently returned from Africa, he presently is chairman of United Front, headquartered in Washington D.C.

Carmichael also initiated the Vietnam War slogan, "Hell no, I won't go."

Saturday's lecture, sponsored by the Black Student Union, is free and open to the public.

Pitchers available in Wheelroom

Pitchers are now available in the Wheel Room at the Union, according to bar manager, Dennis Jones, 155 Stadium Park. Jones said final policy now established calls for a door check of IDs whenever pitchers are sold.

Volunteer doorpersons will be on duty during all hours of Wheel Room operation, according to Jones. This means that 18-year-olds will no longer be allowed in the bar, he said.

Jones said it is too early to tell whether pitchers will increase the profits of the Iowa Student Agencies (ISA)-operated bar, but he said, "A lot of people have been buying pitchers."

The election for student trustees of Student Publications, Inc., will be held on the first floor of the Communications Center on Wed., Feb. 28, and Thurs., March 1, 1973, between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 7:00 p.m.

All students currently enrolled at the University of Iowa are eligible to vote in this election. The election ballot will be printed in the Daily Iowan on both election days. Additional ballots will be available at the polling booth. Students must present their student identification cards in order to vote.

Connell prefers present system of city government

By NANCY STEVENS
Associate News Editor
Council member 'Doc' Connell said Wednesday he favors the current form of government in Iowa City, but feels salaries paid the council members should be raised.

Speaking at a meeting of the city's charter committee, Connell said, "I personally feel a more realistic figure would be $125 a month with the mayor getting $225-250. In my particular case it doesn't matter what I'm paid, but I think you might have trouble in the future getting people to serve."

The current rate of pay for council members is $75 a month. The committee plans to hear each of the council member's views, before drawing up a charter for the city.

Connell said he spends an average of 16 hours a week on council business, not including attendance at the Johnson County Regional Planning Commission and other meetings of boards and commissions.

The charter committee has been considering an enlargement of the council to make the council more responsive to the people, but Connell said he disagrees with enlarging the council.

"It's not going to make any difference if there's seven or nine, it wouldn't be any more efficient than what we have now," Connell said.

Ralph Meardon, chairman of the charter committee, cautioned Connell that his statements were subject to publication, and that he was not obligated to answer all questions.

Connell said, "Public record or no public record, you wouldn't have asked me here if you didn't want your questions answered, and I just don't think it would be any easier with seven or 12. The more people you have, the more difficult communication becomes."

Connell also said he feels the current form of government and the men on it are responsive to the public.

"I personally like to think I've bent over backwards to make myself available. I've put off business commitments to talk to people. I think the council has done their darndest to serve all the factions of this community," Connell said.

An expanded council, even if enlarged to nine members, would still not be enough to cover all of the commissions adequately, Connell said.

Committee member Penny Davidson asked Connell if there was any way to make the government more responsive to the people.

"It seems we react to a problem instead of being able to initiate policy. I wonder if a strong mayor might fill that leadership gap," said Davidson.

Davidson said, "Our system is a slow system and often slow to respond to an uproar in the community."

Connell responded that it is better to take longer to come to a decision, and get it right, than jumping into a decision and having to go back later and correct it.

"What the people don't understand is that sometimes we just can't move quickly because our hands are tied legally. Sometimes there's just nothing you can do right away," said Connell.

Connell also disagreed with Davidson's contention that a strong mayor would better the council, saying that he suspected problems might develop between the manager and mayor.

"It's possible that those two might lock horns and the city could lose a hell of a good manager," Connell said.

"Someone the voters might think is great," Connell said, "might not be the man to work closely with the city manager. The council has a leverage of power now that might be divided if we had a strong mayor."

Connell also said he favors retaining the manager, and added that the city has functioned much more smoothly since the city changed to the council-manager form.

"I've never had any trouble with the city manager. No matter what you ask him, he has the answer back in writing usually the same day," Connell said.

$75 for new election

Senate passes budget proposals

Student senate passed its budget committee proposals for funding five university organizations Tuesday night.

Senate allocated $170 to the Society for Chinese Studies, $200 to the School of Art and Art History, $100 to Women in Communications, Inc., $250 to the International Association, and a re-allocation of $175 to the Muslim Student Association, whose funds had reverted to senate because of mistaken loss of university recognition.

The allocations leave $75 with which to conduct a new election, according to Bill Sturtz, E4, 612 E. Court budget committee chairman.

Hugh Stone, A3, 219 E. Church, Elections Board member, said senate could conduct an election with this amount of money, "but it won't be much of an election."

In other action, senate passed a motion providing that Iowa Foundation money received from Herdbook and student insurance sales be given to Protective Association for Tenants (PAT) and Student Legal Services (SLS) for a legal retainer.

According to the motion, PAT would receive 45 per cent of this money in the Iowa Foundation account, and SLS 55 per cent.

Sherry Jenkins, L3, 510 Iowa, SLS member, explained that receiving Iowa Foundation money is a procedural device to seal in funds so that the two organizations may make long term plans, in particular so legal help retained this year may be insured of payment.

Senate also conferred commission status upon PAT and SLS.

Commissions remain semi-autonomous from senate, but receive third priority in senate funding, according to the constitution.

Jim Ryan, PAT director, said the organization accepted commission status, with certain reservations.

"Space allocation and funding should be based on merit alone, and not on the privilege of commission status," Ryan said.

Senate also approved staff recommendations made by SLS and PAT.

Senate passed 3-2 with eight abstentions, a resolution presented by Tom Eilers, A2, 37 C Meadowbrook Trailer Ct.,

'Try praying' to alleviate poor housing conditions

DAVENPORT, Iowa (AP)—About 100 downtown Davenport residents who gathered on Wednesday to air grievances about living conditions were told by a federal official to "Try praying."

Guy Burch of the Omaha, Neb., office of the Department of Housing and Urban Development said, "The Lord helps those who help themselves."

Burch explained that little can be done to alleviate poor conditions because the Nixon administration has frozen housing funds.

Charles Williams, president of Davenport's Senior Citizens' organization, enumerated what he said were conditions to be found in downtown quarters.

He told the gathering of "deplorable conditions. No kitchens, no running water, plaster falling from the ceiling, bad water, fire hazards, poor lighting, insufficient heating and too many flights of steps."

had to climb a flight or two of steps to reach a bathroom shared by others, Williams said.

It was "not uncommon," he added, "to find some vagabond sleeping in the toilet when we do get there."

The meeting was sponsored by Mayor Kathryn Kirschbaum and the Federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Hancher policy: consideration

A nasty habit of coming late to Hancher performances is rapidly developing as was evidenced last week by the number of people seated after both the Alvin Ailey productions had begun. This is unfair to both the performers and to fellow members of the audience.

Hancher officials have a very clear policy on this matter. Latecomers are seated at the earliest break in the performance. Unfortunately because of the large number of tardy ticketholders and their great talent for being rude and outraged at having to wait, the pressure on the ushers has at times been too great for them to hold back the angry hordes.

The people who should be outraged are those that have to suffer through blocked vision, muttering and other annoying clatter that accompanies the guilty as they innocently stumble to their seats. At the Alvin Ailey performances these disturbances had to be endured up until the first intermission.

Hancher officials should once more clarify their position and stick by it. Most performances begin at 8:00 p.m. and members of the audience should know by now that the traffic snarl in the parking lot is typical not exceptional. Driving patrons should arrive early enough to insure their seating before 8:00 p.m. Patrons coming by bus, bike or foot have even less of an excuse.

Perhaps it would be best if Hancher people stated their late seating policy in black and white (and large type) at each of the doors to the auditorium. This would give more authority to the ushers and better enable them to withstand the sometimes vicious onslaught by late arrivals.

If some people plan to make it a habit of coming late, then they'd better be prepared to make it a habit of missing a sizable part of the performance. Now that Iowa City is able to host professional performers in style, its audiences had better learn to deserve them.

Need to understand, appreciate

'Chosen for his political reliability'

Senate must not confirm Pat Gray as FBI director

WASHINGTON—Pat Gray, with his bullet head and pugnacious jaw, has the look of an FBI director. It is now clear that he lacks the qualifications.

His credentials were less than impressive when he was appointed acting director in May 1972. He had no experience whatsoever in law enforcement. As an attorney, he had specialized in taxes and trusts and paper shuffling.

He was selected, insiders knew, because of his complete devotion to Richard Nixon. Gray had joined Nixon's personal staff in 1960 and had established himself as a loyal team member. By Nixon standards, there is no higher qualification than loyalty to the team.

Gray's main mission was to make the FBI responsive to the President's will and, thereby, to assure that the FBI, like himself, became part of the team. In short, Gray was chosen for his political reliability to fill a post that the Senate has decreed should be kept out of partisan politics.

He immediately started roaring around the country ostensibly to inspect FBI field offices. Almost everywhere he went, however, he took the occasion to say something favorable about President Nixon. Gray's travels had the earmarks of a political campaign tour, yet he flew in Air Force planes at the taxpayers' expense.

He was away from Washington so much that he became known around FBI headquarters as "Two-Day Gray." When he wasn't off somewhere newsmen, movie stars, black leaders and other prominent Americans. "None of our guys are going to believe this," he said, "...but there are no dossiers or secret files."

We promptly furnished him with excerpts from the files of a number of notables, who had committed no crimes and are unlikely to commit any crimes. Yet the files showed they were under active FBI surveillance. To help Gray locate the hidden dossiers, we even provided the FBI file numbers.

Six months later, FBI agents were caught actually checking on a Democratic congressional candidate in Ohio. This flushed out the fact that the FBI had been gathering information on both congressmen and candidates.

An embarrassed Gray pleaded that the practice had "just come to my attention" and said that he had ordered it stopped. All that had been collected, he insisted, was "biographical data on major candidates for the House of Representatives and the Senate from newspapers, magazines, campaign literature and various reference publications."

Once again, we published details from the files of several congressmen, including House Speaker Carl Albert and House Republican Leader Gerald Ford, to prove that their dossiers also contained eavesdrop information, surveillance reports and gossip from informants.

promoting the re-election of the President, he was usually splashing in his swimming pool at his summer home in Stonington, Conn.

Political police

But most serious of all, Gray has used the FBI as a political police force. He denied to newsmen last May that the FBI kept dossiers on politicians, Editor's note: Today's soapbox is by Ahaziah Umanah, President of the International Association.

Everyday of our lives, we strive to satisfy our needs. What we lack, or what we do not possess, is what we need. Yet we cannot possess that which we do not understand. We may know our needs but if we do not understand them, we cannot possess them. It must be said here that "there is a great difference between knowing and understanding; you can know a lot about something and not really understand it" (Charles Kettering). Thus in a world as complex as ours, it is not enough to know about people, we need to understand them. We need to be able to identify, and also identify with those subtle aspects of other peoples' ways of life if we are to be able to co-exist. This takes understanding.

Understanding is not a prize one can pay or receive for doing a certain thing for certain peoples. It is something one acquires through communication. It takes total involvement. This does not come about through reading the newspapers and listening to the radio only. It means something more than extensive shortwave facilities scattered about the globe. It means an attempt—serious attempt at achieving common understanding of the various traditions, customs, ideas and ideals of the many peoples of the world. It involves a discipline of the mind, and a uniqueness of it.

This is essentially so because commonplace minds usually or generally condemn what lies beyond the reach of their understanding. Commonplace minds are also flimsy—casting things out without serious thoughts. A good mind works like that of Mark Twain who said: "I have a prodigious quantity of mind; it takes me as much as a week sometimes to make it up." Worse still, since we are born into our specific cultures, and are reared within the confines of their disciplines and values, each of us possess old minds. Yet we must be reminded here that "old minds are like old horses; you must exercise them if you wish to keep them in working order" (John Quincy Adams).

We can say then that with good minds, serious intentions and better communication, we can improve our understanding of ourselves and others. "The improvement of understanding is for two ends: first, our own increase of knowledge; secondly, to enable us to deliver that knowledge to others" (John Locke). Such functions of understanding then engenders appreciation of self by self, others by self and self by others. Thus what one appreciates is what one possesses. What one possesses is what one understands.

It is the view of this body that the so-much-talked-about world peace, the so-much-talked-about love cannot and will not exist unless we, individually and collectively, make serious and genuine efforts to understand and appreciate ourselves. The problem with love today amongst individuals, peoples, and nations is that we talk about it, we need and demand it, we make it, but we don't understand it, hence we don't have it. Without love there can be no peace. How long can the human species stand chaos and entropy without extinction? We of the International Association are calling on you to join us in our efforts to promote Intercultural Understanding and Appreciation.

More on language

To the Editor:

The opposing positions on the validity of the foreign language requirement of the College of Liberal Arts have been extensively debated with varying degrees of eloquence and objectivity, but to the satisfaction of few. This is because the issue is only a part of a greater problem which has been hinted at but not developed. The problem is that the American university is trying to play two antagonistic roles, that of a high-class trade school for the masses and that of the ivory tower, the traditional university.

As is the case with most American syntheses, neither goal is approached and both ideals are degraded in the process. We produce, instead of skilled workers and disciplined scholars, illiterate unemployables. Those who recognize the value of foreign languages are forced to suffer the continual erosion of their discipline. Those who consider the language requirement one of several anachronisms in Liberal Arts are nevertheless forced to endure them if they want to avoid manual labor for the rest of their lives.

The only truly workable solution would be the complete reconstruction of the educational system after the general European pattern. American education, however, was consciously developed in opposition to that seemingly elitist pattern.

Mark C. Thomas

'Completely shocked'

To the Editor:

With regard to the conflict concerning the foreign language requirement, I find myself completely shocked that a generation such as ours, which appears to embrace many ideas and products of other cultures, and claims to be more adventurous and receptive to new ways of living, could possibly be so backward when actually confronted with a primary key to new worlds: language.

In Europe, students begin, in high school, if not much earlier, to study a foreign language, often even 2 or 3. From my own experience, I found a much more relaxed attitude toward the study of a language. It didn't seem to be surrounded by the aura of fear and drudgery that it is here. The study of language in Europe is accepted as a most necessary completion to a liberal education. As a result, I believe one finds much more awareness among European students of other customs, attitudes and behavior. Consequently the national borders in Europe seem to be mere boundaries, not barriers. The mobility and flexibility of European people with regard to travel, is a reflection it would seem, of the same attitude toward other languages and cultures.

Mr. Knorr mentioned perhaps one of the strongest points in favor of studying a foreign language, when he claimed that it enables one to better know his own culture. Judging from my own experience, I believe most students would be shocked after their first contact with European students in their own milieu. We have a tendency to consider ourselves the innovators, and the representatives of a truly liberal world; this is an illusion that is quickly dispelled when one finally pulls his spirit out of the home soil. One of the things we might learn about ourselves in comparison to other cultures, is that we are mentally isolated from the rest of the world. It is not through reading Nietzsche, drinking a bottle of Beaujolais nor transcendental meditation that we communicate with new worlds. It is rather through a direct contact with these worlds, which starts at their heart: Language.

'I was amazed'

To the Editor:

I read my letter to the Editor that appeared in the DI of February 19, concerning the foreign language requirement, and I was amazed at the way you handled it. My letter was constructed in such a way to answer two sets of arguments, namely the benefits that can be derived from the study of a foreign language and the feasibility of language study. Your decision to drop the second set of arguments in which I deplore the Pass-Fail system and its abuses misrepresents those who share my opinion. Had you not substituted a cartoon for the page you chose to eliminate, I would have agreed that my letter was rather long. Therefore the only explanation I can think of is that you are motivated by an intolerable eagerness to use the DI as an instrument of propaganda to prejudice students by suppressing ideas contrary to yours. Your indifference to the moral commitments of your profession demonstrates blatant hypocrisy and shoddy journalistic practices that discourage the healthy dialogue necessary to an understanding of the problems concerning our academic community.

Paul Kouidis
Assistant Professor of French

Editor's note: The letter as it appeared in the DI was over 500 words when "we request that letters be no longer than 250 words." Contributions to Soapbox Soundoff "will not be edited without the knowledge of the writer(s)," and they run as space permits.

Ding-a-ling sexual stereo-type

All sorts of subversive material may be found floating around the Daily Iowan office from time to time. None, however, can match up to the propaganda I chanced upon the other day.

It's so bad in fact, that if I wasn't such a staunch advocate of freedom of the press, I'd try to have it banned. While appearing at first to be quite harmless, it is the kind of garbage that warps people's minds in just the way our present society desires.

The two publications I find so demeaning are monthly booklets called Dynamic Office Girl and Supervising Women. They are published by the Bureau of Business Practice. Both are directly aimed at keeping female office workers simple-minded and blissfully content in their boring jobs. This then allows their male bosses to devote all their precious time to their important business without having to worry about women problems.

The booklets use the same old ding-a-ling office girl stereo-type. Admittedly such girls exist, but much of their reason for acting as they do may be attributed to such attitudes as are so blatantly revealed in publications such as these.

Dynamic Office Girl is aimed at the employee herself. It is "written by women, for women—it talks in a language they understand and accept." These booklets which the men in command distribute to their charges, contain many a little gem worth memorizing. The girls "can go over it again and again at home." Of course they're especially designed for easy reading.

According to Atwood, the promoter of Dynamic Office Girl, the male employer will find this to be the "best office girl's training service..." The male superior—female inferior role is persistently emphasized and portrayed as natural.

But it's not natural at all. Jobs and attitudes held by women could just as easily be held by men, and are in some instances. An example of this is in the military forces where men are forced to do some of the clerical jobs. To be sure, they too find time to become distracted from their fascinating work.

The superior attitude of males intent on keeping women in their place is repulsive but very common. The day that booklets on office relations will be designed for human beings instead of women is still far in the future. It is doubtful that impersonal booklets such as these will ever be very effective in creating a human environment in which to work anyway.

To be fair, the other booklet, Supervising Women, does admit on page three that women "are human beings." It goes on to show how supervising women is a skill acquired after some practice and understanding of their nature and concerns.

After all, as this publication points out, women are biologically different to men (an earth shattering discovery). Some of the "facts" pointed out about women's mental makeup are their lack of mechanical proficiency, their impracticality, and their inability to be as objective as men. Also, "they don't like to discuss ideas as much as men do—they'd rather talk about people."

Supervising Women then goes on to discuss how men should tactfully deal with their female underlings' absenteeism, lateness, boyfriends, brides, babies, dress, makeup, and problems of appearance. These are the matters that women are concerned with today. It's surprising that a monthly recipe isn't included too.

All this is grossly insulting and reactionary. It caters to the already held beliefs of many males about the small-mindedness of women in general. With this type of mass indoctrination on the upswing many women will continue to be brainwashed into believing that their job potential is limited to the typewriter and their outside activities ought to center around weddings and children.

Yup, we sure have come a long way, babies!

Survival Line

"...promised you an herb garden"

For Christmas my boyfriend bought me a "San Francisco Herb Garden" from Jackson's here in Iowa City. It was "guaranteed to grow." So far 4 of the pots have failed to germinate. When I called Jackson's about it, the sales clerk said they wouldn't replace them because it was just a sales gimmick. Is there some way SURVIVAL LINE can convince them that "guaranteed to grow" should mean what it says? —N.C.

SURVIVAL LINE spoke with C. W. Housel, manager of Jackson's China & Gift. It didn't take much convincing, as Housel agrees with you. He said the "Herb Garden" should have been replaced and it will be if you'll just bring it in and ask for him. According to Housel the "guaranteed to grow" means exactly that, if the plants are cared for in the manner prescribed on the accompanying instructions.

Further, Housel would appreciate it if you could identify the clerk you talked with so he can set that person straight too.

This seems to be just another case of not taking your problem to the right person, the MANAGER, when lower-echelon complaints don't pay off.

Go get that new herb garden so we'll know where to find some fresh marjoram the next time we run out at 3 a.m.

Help! (please?)

We tried, but we couldn't do it! SURVIVAL LINE has had numerous reader queries about recycling facilities for plastics. We've had calls from ecology-conscious readers whose apartments are filling up with those plastic jugs the dairy industry is insisting on inflicting on us.

There must be something that can be done to recycle these plastic albatrosses in which we're bringing Mother Nature's best home from the store.

Does anyone know of a recycling program in this area that makes use of these plastic milk jugs?

Or, alternatively, is there a local group that is thinking of a viable program along these lines?

Here's a chance for all you faithful SURVIVAL LINE readers to get in on the act yourselves and do some investigating. We'd sure appreciate the help!

SURVIVAL LINE cuts red tape, answers your questions, investigates your tips and all sorts of good things like that each morning. Call 353-6220 Tuesday and Thursday nights from 7-8 p.m. or write SURVIVAL LINE, The Daily Iowan, Communications Center, Iowa City.

The lively art of revolution

New Iowa Players to perform '1776'

The assembled Continental Congress tells John Adams what they think of his ideas. "Sit down, John!" they chorus.

By DAVID HOBART
Staff Writer

A musical about the lively art of revolution is the New Iowa Players' current production. 1776 will be presented in MacBride Auditorium Feb. 22-25.

The opening night coincidentally falls in the traditional Washington's birthday.

George Washington's presence in the story is felt only through his gloomy dispatches to the Continental Congress, describing untrained, ill-equipped troops hopelessly outnumbered by the British.

The central character is John Adams, played by Steve Arnold. Adams is presented as the spark plug of the Continental Congress, urging the American colonies to sever all ties with the parent country.

In the flyblown heat of Philadelphia, the Continental Congress reacts to Adams' thundering demands with varying degrees of apathy and resistance. The "founding fathers" are treated as very human, fallible men rather than as demi-gods. One issue raised is whether Adams was an idealist promoting independence, or a malcontent agitator promoting personal goals.

Adams' faithful sidekick is Benjamin Franklin, played by Jay Harding, who comes up with quotable quips such as, "Treason is a charge invented by the winners as an excuse for hanging the losers."

1776 won a New York Drama Critics' Award and a Tony Award for best musical in 1968-69, on Broadway. The music and lyrics were by Sherman Edwards, and the book was by Peter Stone.

The New Iowa Players is a company devoted to bringing musical productions to stages which may be described as lying west of the Mississippi. 1776 director Cheryl Russell noted that the show has been treated as a stock company. "Everybody worked at numerous things." When not rehearsing, the players worked on props, painted flats, or distributed handbills. The costumes were obtained from Ft. Dodge and from Loras College. "It's a very independent production," said Russell.

Much of the 16-member orchestra for 1776 is composed of volunteer first-year symphonic students. The cast ranges from university freshmen to a Vietnam veteran. Their off-stage duties were best described in an announcement by set designer Steve Peters during one rehearsal: "If you can swing a paintbrush or a hammer, we need you. We need swingers."

The songs in 1776 move from whimsical humor to the volatile urgency of South Carolinian Edward Rutledge's denunciation. "Who stinks the most, the southern slaveholder, or the northern slaver?" sung by Dan Krehbiel.

The supporting cast of 1776 includes Steve Peters, Tom Halliburton, Jim Cooney, Ted Carpenter, Jim Severson, Kevin Reeves, Glenn Wetz, Lloyd Stockdale, Jeff Severson, Scott Duncan, Jamie Leo, Roger Ballenger, Jerry Biebesheimer, Jerry Gray, Mark Andreasen, Jim DeLong, Bryce Malek, Les Anderson, John Demitroff and Dave Aurand.

The assistant director is Cindy Wien, the musical director is David Picken, and the pianist is Bob McCoy.

Tickets, available at the Union box office, are $2, $1 for students. Performances are at 8 p.m. Feb. 22-25 in MacBride Auditorium.

book beat

Goshawk Squadron sounds a little like the title of a book you might pick up in a bus station when there's nothing else around to read. It's not. On the front cover, a blurb describes it as being "Like Catch 22". It's not that either. What Goshawk Squadron really is, is a very funny and sometimes sad account of men in war.

This, of course, is hardly unique. Books about war are as plentiful today as books about sex. Derek Robinson, however, is wise enough to know this, and he does several things which prevent his book from lapsing into the mediocrity which is the fate of so many novels of this sort.

First, the action of the novel is not set in Viet Nam, Korea or even World War II, but World War I, a war just far enough behind us to retain an aura of romance, however undesired.

Secondly, the warriors involved are not infantry men slogging through the mud and mire, but flying aces engaged in graceful dog-fights over France.

Finally, and I think most importantly, the pilots are not American, but British. By utilizing the British idiom, the author manages to make the absurdity of war seem even more absurd. There is something ludicrous about professional killers refusing to confront the Hun until after tea time.

Robinson's real strength is his characters, and they are at least the equal of Milo and Yosarian. Major Stanley Woolley, commander of Goshawk Squadron, is a hard-nosed career man who sets little store by cajolery. His methods of getting the men into a fighting mood is a swift kick to the groin. He categorizes every flier in the squadron, regardless of ability, as a "bloody bastard".

There is Killiam, a newcomer to the squadron, who prides himself on his ability to construct a sexual metaphor around anything in the universe. Responding to a challenge, Killiam finds copulatory connotations in wood, cricket, and coal mining: "You force an entrance, my dear chap, in order to reach the source of all power."

There's Richards, whose main problem in the air is incontinence. His solution: a slug of plum brandy to "stun the bowels."

And Peacock, who, when told that he should be prepared to shoot German pilots in the back if necessary, responds with his standard phrase. "Sticks in the crow, a bit, that."

In the final analysis, the skillful characterization which gives this book its charm also prevents it from being considered a great war novel in the tradition of Catch 22. Beneath the surface, Goshawk Squadron lacks a unifying vision. Yosarian's neurotic perceptions bring war into a crazy kind of focus, and make it a human experience.

Yosarian's war is a real war: Major Woolley's war is contrived by a writer. It's senseless, destructive, horrifying, but essentially unbelievable. We laugh at it, are angered by it, but we are not afraid of it. Joseph Heller creates a war so convincing that he makes us fear it. Derek Robinson cannot quite accomplish this, but he writes a pretty good novel in the attempt.

One of the most fertile minds in European art

British painter to lecture

Editor's note: Michael Tyzack is a Visiting Professor in Art and Art History from London, England.

By MICHAEL TYZACK
For the Daily Iowan

During the present academic year, the Painting Department of the School of Art and Art History has had the good fortune to attract a number of artists of international stature to lecture on their work and critique that of current students. Last semester, the New York painter, Ray Parker, returned to his alma mater to discuss his recent Matisse-oriented abstractions, and earlier this month the explosive visit of the figurative painter, Rosemarie Beck, restored the balance somewhat.

On campus this week, we have the distinguished British abstract painter, Derek Southall. Widely exhibited and collected in Europe, he is currently Artist-in-Residence at the University of South Carolina. Shortly before taking up this appointment in September of 1972, he completed a major "Hanging Wall Piece" for the main office of the British Department of Social Security, Newcastle-upon-Tyne, United Kingdom, commissioned by the Department for the Environment. Earlier that year his work was the subject of a critically acclaimed B.B.C. documentary color film. This film, together with a slide lecture, will be presented by Southall at 7:30 tonight in the main auditorium of the Art Building.

Never one to involve himself in modern "academies", Southall's achievement is marked by an independence of attitude and spirit that is uncommon in artists of his generation. A pioneer of the "shaped canvas" in the early 1960's (a direction he discarded long before its acceptance and subsequent popularity with younger artists), he remains one of the most fertile minds in the European keyed, chromatic nuances but also dramatic changes of tonality within a single work.

John Russell, the art critic of the London Sunday Times and a contributing editor to Art in America, a propos of Southall's London show at Axiom Gallery in 1968, perceptively described the Southall spirit as "an exasperated energy casting around for a fuller expression." It seems to me that in lifting the canvas from the stretcher, he not only achieves this but is moving toward more direct and purer means for presenting his specific and particular world.

A recent catalogue note by Southall contains elements of his aesthetic philosophy and ends by stating:

In spite of changing mores and manners, of the interrelatedness of the world of things and our conditioning consciousness, painting has now, and has consistently, had, a constant function. It opposes chaos with particular meanings irreducible to words—it confronts non-entropy.

'Painting...opposes chaos with particular meanings irreducible to words—it confronts non-entropy.'

art scene.

He is first and foremost a painter, his involvement being a kind of mystical cooperation between painter, pigment and canvas. If Jackson Pollack's working method can be described as "arena, event, and image"—the arena being the canvas; the event, the painting process; the image, the result—then clearly, Southall's rejection of the supporting frame can be seen as a personal development of this direction. Released from the confining geometry of the stretcher, the paintings achieve an "edge" rather than confront it. They present a soft, organic unity rather than a dialogue between form and format.

Although the paintings hang languid, stately and bannerlike, they do not celebrate the victory, rather they present the conflict. The juxtaposition of fluid stain, encrusted pigment, flicks, pocks and striations of color, convey the energy of the process and the tacit element of risk. Spatially complex, these are works which require an intelligent "reading" over a period of time. Their complexity lies in Southall's ability to handle areas which "allude" to, rather than create, illusionistic space; to exploit marks which support the surface and sustain the picture-plane and at other times, because of shape, color or saturation, puncture, invade and seemingly possess the space inhabited by the onlooker.

His control of detail allows him to manipulate both the large gesture and negotiate whole constellations of chromatic fragments without losing a sense of scale or the unity of the whole.

Certainly one of the most audacious colorists in Britain, Southall's recent instincts have led him to deploy not only highly

Classical ballet: pain in the bones

Daily Iowan News Services
The classical ballet dancer is "probably the world's most neglected athlete," says an orthopedic surgeon.

The artist frequently puts in a six or seven day week of strenuous athletic activity "more physically demanding than any other endeavor imaginable," said Dr. Edward H. Miller.

Few medical studies have been made of these dancers, and what is thought to be the first study of alterations in the dancers' anatomy was presented Feb. 5 at the annual meeting of the American Academy of Orthopedic Surgeons in Las Vegas, Nev.

Miller, professor and director of orthopedic surgery at the University of Cincinnati, is principal author of the study, based on X-ray examinations of members of the Cincinnati Ballet Company.

"The ability to leap in the air, complete two 360-degree turns and land on one foot in a perfect arabesque facing three-quarters front to the audience, plus or minus 5 degrees, is as exacting as the gross movements of football and basketball," he noted in an interview. The price of ballet dancers' artistry, Miller said, is "pain and pathology."

Over the long range, ballet dancers are subject to a high incidence of degenerative arthritis of the knee, chronic laxity of hip joint ligaments and probable alteration in the shape of hip bone, Miller and his colleagues found.

Many ballet dancers, especially men, start dancing relatively late in life—in their mid or late teens—and this makes them even more prone to knee injuries, the orthopedist noted.

Gov't. official suggests less meat
Cheese can't run jackhammers

By The Associated Press

Meatless days are already standard practice in many households, some price-conscious housewives said Wednesday, reacting to a government official's suggestion that they switch the menu to cheese one day a week to drive down meat prices.

Others had little appetite for the idea, including an Iowan who predicted that people will go on buying meat no matter what the price. A husky construction worker noted that it takes more than a cheese sandwich to run a jackhammer.

The suggestion of a voluntary meatless day week was made by federal reserve board chairman Arthur F. Burns, who said he had nothing else to recommend until action to curb food costs becomes effective.

"The American public will be just as well off if it spent less on meat and more on cheese," he told a congressional committee Tuesday.

Fish and eggs

"You have to," agreed Ann Nelson, a Bronx, N.Y., housewife who feeds a family of six. "We're already doing it twice a week." She said they used fish and egg dishes as well as cheese.

"We've been doing that for a long time to save money," said Mrs. Leo Tyllus, a Calumet City, Ill., mother of four daughters.

But she said the price of fish has jumped from 49 to 89 cents a pound in six months.

"I mortgaged the house this week to buy a roast," quipped Judy Catton, a suburban Minneapolis mother of eight. "I think before Americans go to eating cheese one day a week, we'll have to come up with some good ways of fixing cheese."

"We only eat meat about once or twice a week anyway," said salesman Melvin Montey of Salt Lake City. "The prices have forced us to eat more rice dishes, spaghetti, macaroni and things like that."

Marge Leland of San Francisco commented, "I don't think that's a bad idea, but cheese is high, too—more than a dollar a pound. And what if the price of shoes got too high?"

Not realistic

"There are days when our family doesn't have meat, but it's for a variety of reasons," said Mrs. Robert Westlund of Des Moines, Iowa. "I don't think it's very realistic, and I think people will go on buying meat no matter what the price."

Johnny Brown, a Hartford, Conn., construction worker, was eating a double-deck, meat-stuffed sandwich when interviewed by a newsmen. "Going without meat might bring the price down, but you'd have to go without it more than one

University receives $477,000 grant to establish Lipid Research Clinic

University News Service

As part of a nationwide attack on the conditions leading to arteriosclerosis and coronary heart disease, the University of Iowa has received a $477,000 contract to establish a Lipid Research Clinic.

The grant is from the National Heart and Lung Institute (NHLI).

Dr. Francois Abboud and Dr. William Connor are the project directors. Dr. Connor is director of the UI Hospitals Clinical Research Center and Dr. Abboud is director of the Cardiovascular Division of the Department of Internal Medicine. Both men are professors in that department.

The Lipid Research Clinic at UI is one of six new clinics established during the past year at medical institutions in various parts of the country by the NHLI.

A core lipid laboratory will be set up to perform biochemical analyses under the direction of Dr. Arthur Spector, associate professor of biochemistry, and Dr. Donald Wiebe. A treadmill exercise test to detect early coronary heart disease will be conducted by Dr. Richard Kerber, assistant professor of internal medicine.

The researchers will also be investigating the rate at which cholesterol is deposited in diseased arteries and some aspects of the secretion and synthesis of cholesterol by the body.

The close tie between levels of blood fats,—particularly cholesterol—and the subsequent development of arteriosclerosis and coronary heart disease is the point of attack.

The UI clinic will participate in research directed toward prevention of premature arteriosclerosis by identification and treatment of persons who are highly susceptible because of blood-fat abnormalities.

"Probably half the adult U.S. population has either a mild or severe form of hyperlipidemia (abnormally high blood levels of fats)," Dr. Connor noted. "There are hereditary aspects to the disease, but studies indicate that much could be done to lower the levels by lowering the amount of cholesterol consumed."

Cholesterol is a fatty substance found only in animal products. Large amounts of cholesterol

Trivia Bowl to be held

If you like reading Trivia every day, you'll love the annual Trivia Bowl, to be sponsored by Contemporary Affairs of University Programming Service March 24-25.

Applications for four-member teams can be picked up at the Activities Center and are due by 5 p.m. March 21, according to Mike Maloy, from Contemporary Affairs.

Bowl organizers will tap all available resources for trivia questions and answers, said Maloy, including books, library references, and, as back-up material, The Daily Iowan.

There is a legend that Trivia Bowl originally began as a local elimination competition for the old General Electric College Bowl program, televised some years ago. The nature of the contest has apparently metamorphosed, however, since that time.

According to Maloy, the reason for the contest now is, "It's something students have an interest in and Contemporary Affairs wants to serve that interest."

IM Corner

By Bob Denney

Slater's Raiders defeated Eighth Daum Tuesday night 16-11, moving the Raiders to the finals of the women's All-University basketball tournament. In the other bracket, it was the Amalgamated Funkies whipping Kat's Meow 23-13.

The Raiders moved to a 9-9 half time deadlock after falling behind 6-4 at the quarter. The Raider's Nancy Bernard kept the Slater girls in the game with some good free throw shooting and a fine floor game. Team mate Linda Dogotch felt that the Raiders had improved a lot since its Holiday Tournament loss to Daum.

"We certainly shot better this time," she said. "They (Daum) had the height advantage on us and out-rebounded us as well. We used a zone defense against them, and it did the job. As for the finals (Feb. 27) we will be really up for that one. We lost to the Funkies earlier, and it won't be the same this time."

The Raiders went ahead in the tight contest with Daum in the waning stages of the third quarter, 10-9. The fouls began to take the toll for Daum as several starters got in foul trouble. The Raiders popped in a few from the charity line and that was the game.

The Amalgamated Funkies pulled the tail on the Kat's Meow early in the game. The Funkies did not allow double figures until the third quarter. The Kats didn't make a bucket in the fourth quarter, and the 23-13 margin held up. The finale Tuesday night should be very interesting.

I-EMMING: The letters are flowin' again, the IM readers are back at it. Coverage for IM sports demands more than sound mind and body, it requires a politician's tact and aloofness.

THE LETTERS: Dear IM Corner: "Just finished reading your column on co-ed basketball and I really hate to hassle you further on the subject. But...as an Alpha Phi I was somewhat disappointed by the impression you put forth concerning our attitude toward our house boys. They are not simply the guys 'who just dish out the food.' If one of the Alpha Phi's did say that (and one did) I know that she wasn't really being serious. Honestly, she may very well not have known the guy playing, because the fact that several new players had to be recruited the last minute for the game. We were notified of the playoff Thursday afternoon and several of our boys were unavailable, some out of town. Because the Easy Hitters refused to postpone the game we were forced to play short-handed. Anyway, we do appreciate and thank our house boys. They are really the greatest! I'm sure that it's very obvious that we never would have gotten as far as we did without them. Signed, M.K.S. The Alpha Phi House

Dear M.K.S.: Your house boys are a good bunch of players. They outscored the Hitter's guys 18-2. The Hitters gals outscored you gals 18-0. Sounds like the house boys really don't "just dish out the food."

Dear IM Corner: Just a short note to thank you for your article in the paper today, (Feb. 16). We all appreciate your interest in us last night, and believe me, it was great for the kids...

"What we've accomplished in basketball is just amazing. We started out with only three people having played the sport. We started from scratch with work on fundamentals and it really paid off. The girl's play is a sterling example of success through hard work. You probably noticed that our men's squad is lacking, and you're right. We're extremely short and I'm the only one with some experience. But, with a lot of hustle and second effort we can usually hold on to a lead given us by the girls...When I say that we'll give any team a good game, it's because we'll rise to the occasion on pride, nothing else...Sincerely, Jack Broman Capt., the Easy Hitters, The Pride Team P.S. It was a pleasure writing this type of letter!"

Dear Jack: Right on! The IM program needs more zip and sis-boom-bah like the Easy Hitters. There's plenty of potential in women's basketball on campus, all it needs is a good motivator and the Hitters have found one in yourself...

Russian tracksters visit America

NEW YORK (AP) — Valery Borzov blushed and fidgeted when a brash Yankee newsman asked him if it was true that after the Munich Olympics he had bragged that he was "The World's Fastest Human."

"I never said that," the tall, handsome Soviet sprinter replied through an interpreter. "It is not for me to say who is the world's fastest human. The people must decide that."

If Borzov didn't say it, others did after the red cannonball ended America's long-time Olympic sprint supremacy by scoring a gold medal double in the 100 and 200 meters.

Borzov is in New York with three Russian teammates to compete in Friday's AAU Track and Field Championships at Madison Square Garden. The meet will determine U.S. representatives for the Soviet-USA clash March 16 in Richmond, Va.

Once you could spot a visiting Russian easily. He wore baggy pants, frayed shirts and squeaking shoes. When he smiled, he would almost blind you with gleaming steel teeth.

No more. Borzov, a 182-pound six-footer, was attired in blue jeans, button-down shirt and fur-lined suede jacket. His hair was modishly long. His teammates could be mistaken for young Americans.

They are Yevgeny Arzhanov, silver medalist behind Dave Wottle in the Olympic 800; Vladimir Abramov, a gangling high-jumper who has done 73 1/4; and Lumila Bragina, world record-holder and Olympic gold medalist in the women's 1,500 meters.

The country is being invaded by peaceful Reds. The Soviet boxing team already has been here. Little Olga Korbut and her gymnasts are due any day now. They will be followed by the basketball team and later in the spring a team of beefy Soviet wrestlers.

But they are a new breed, these Russian athletes—sharply dressed, articulate, with many speaking several languages, and with a good sense of humor.

The things they like most about the United States, they admit quite openly, are hot dogs, blue jeans, cowboy hats and the wide choice of television channels.

They spent most of Tuesday evening with eyes glued on a horror show.

"It was about castles and monsters," said Abramov. "We thought it was very funny. It was so scary we had to laugh."

Borzov confessed that he didn't care much for Uncle Sam's ear-splitting rock'n'roll and country music.

"I like music soft and slow," he said. "Like Andy Williams."

The visitors were asked if they would like to see a hockey game Wednesday night. Hockey is big in the Soviet Union.

"No," said Borzov. "We would like to see the Roller Derby."

They were asked what souvenirs they would prefer to take home from America.

"The Statue of Liberty," quipped Arzhanov.

The Russians bent double with laughter.

Farrell to Ann Arbor

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Dan Farrell, assistant hockey coach at Michigan Tech, was named Wednesday as head coach at the University of Michigan, effective at the end of the season.

He will succeed Al Renfrew, Michigan's hockey coach the past 16 years.

The 35-year-old Farrell, a former Michigan Tech forward, has been an assistant to John MacInnes for five seasons.

Renfrew compiled a 217-180-10 record going into this season, including five Big Ten titles and the 1964 National Collegiate Athletic Association championship. But his team now is 4-25.

Well, BG arrived at 8:45, but didn't get on the floor until 10:15, and didn't arrive back at BG until after midnight. And they wouldn't have made it then if TU's Rockettes, who also planned to work out, hadn't finally yielded the court to them.

'Forgotten' Trevino ready for Gleason

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Lee Trevino was almost, but not quite, the forgotten man going into Jackie Gleason's $260,000 Inverrary-National Airlines Classic, the first stop after the pro golf tour made a cross-country shift from the West Coast to Florida.

Most of the attention after the celebrity-studded pro-am events were out of the way centered on the resumption of the Arnold Palmer-Jack Nicklaus rivalry that reached another peak in the Bob Hope Desert Classic two weeks ago.

Those two giants, idle last week, are rated the co-favorites in the 72-hole chase for a $52,000 first prize that gets underway Thursday on the 7,128-yard, par-72 East course at the Inverrary Golf and Country Club.

The purse, second largest on the tour this year, possibly has drawn the strongest field of the year. Included in the 150-man field are 78 tour event winners and all but three of the top 30 money winners from a year ago.

Trevino, whose golfing exploits, quick wit and exuberant personality have given him status as an international celebrity, was all but overshadowed by scores of show business personalities in the pro-am events and the promise of another Palmer-Nicklaus confrontation.

And, too, there's been Trevino's less-than-spectacular showing so far this season.

He's won $13,524 in six starts. But he missed the cut once, hasn't ever been a strong threat, and his best finish was ninth, in the Big Crosby. In 23 competitive rounds, the man who has won the Vardon Trophy for the low scoring average the last three years has broken 70 only once.

"I've had some troubles with my swing," Trevino admitted. "My stance has been wrong. I think I'm about to get it worked out. It'll come around."

Even though he's had his problems, he ranks high in the list of challengers to Palmer and Nicklaus. The 43-year-old Palmer broke an 18-month victory drought when he overhauled the front-running Nicklaus in a classic, head-to-head confrontation in the Hope and now is bubbling with renewed confidence.

Preps to open mat tournament; C.R. Jefferson favored in AAA

By DAN EVEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Cedar Rapids Jefferson looms as a favorite in Class AAA, but the other two class titles appear wide open as the 53rd annual Iowa High Athletic Association wrestling tournament opens a three-day run Thursday.

The tournament has been increased to a three-day affair for the first time and as a result 12 wrestlers will compete in each of the 12 weight classes instead of the previous eight.

District champions, however, received first-round byes and will not be in action until Friday. First-round action starting at 5 p.m. Thursday will find district runners up and consolation victors battling.

Cedar Rapids Jefferson draws the favorite role in Class AAA on the strength of 10 state qualifiers including four district champions led by 126-pound unbeaten Gary Bentrim.

J-Hawk Coach Bill McNeil, however, doesn't feel his district championship team is a shoo-in.

"Nobody's foot is in the door until after the first round," he noted. "You don't score point until the second round, so we'll have to wait and see."

Defending Class AAA titlist Waterloo West, which failed to win its district for the first time in nine years, Harlan, Cedar Falls and Urbandale appear to be the strongest challengers.

In Class AA, Creston leads with seven qualifiers, but the team title race should be a scrap. Britt, the Class A titlist last year and Eagle Grove will challenge.

No less than nine teams could make a run at the small school-Class A title with Lisbon, Marcus and Logan-Magonolia tabbed as early favorites.

A number of defending champions return in each class.

In Class AAA, Mike Norris of Ankeny, who won at 138 pounds a year ago, is back this time at 145 but faces an uphill battle. He was defeated in the district meet by Urbandale's Bill Edmondson, 28-1 on the season, and will carry a 14-2 mark into the opening round.

Nine 1972 champions return in Class AA, but will be competing in weight divisions with other titlists of a year ago. Back again are Brent Hagen of Britt (98) in Class A, Dave Morgan of Eagle Grove (98 a year ago, at 105 this year), Jack Flieher of Strawberry Point Starmont (105, up to 119), John Wilson of Clarion (112, up to 126), Larry Bergman of Jackson Junction (119, up to 126), Paul Martin of Algona (132, up to 138), Bernie Hanson of Humbolt (138, up to 145), Dave Fox of Johnston (167 in Class A) and Tom Ball of New Hampton (167 in Class AAA).

Among the Class A schools only Ken Gordon of Pleasantville (112) and heavyweight Mike Furne of Durant are back to defend, and both at the same weights.

All state qualifiers will wrestle at least two matches. Afternoon and evening sessions are scheduled Friday and Saturday.

City 'tappie' file finally abolished

City 'tappie' file finally abolished
The City of Iowa City has abolished its "tappie" file, a system of handwritten notes and files that had been in use for many years. The decision was made by the City Council on Tuesday, Feb. 20, 1973. The "tappie" file was a collection of handwritten notes and files that had been used by the City Council and its various committees. The notes were often written on small pieces of paper and were filed in a cabinet. The system was criticized for being inefficient and for being a waste of money. The City Council decided to abolish the system and to use a more efficient system of filing. The new system will be a computerized system that will allow the City Council to search for information more easily. The City Council also decided to abolish the "tappie" file because it was a waste of money. The City Council estimated that the "tappie" file cost the City about $10,000 a year to maintain.
