

Grand jury convenes Ottens murder probe

By STU CROSS
Staff Writer

A grand jury convened in Iowa City Tuesday concerning the murder of Sarah Ann Ottens.

County Atty. Carl Goetz confirmed the fact that the grand jury met Monday at 1:15 p.m. He said the jury had recently been called to meet on "a" matter but declined further comment on all other questions pertaining to the proceedings.

However, The Daily Iowan had reported Monday that "at least two subpoenas have been issued and delivered in relation to the Ottens murder investigation."

Present in the Johnson County Courthouse during Tuesday's session was John Jutte of Muscatine, the Bureau of Criminal Investigation (BCI) agent heading the murder investigation.

Ottens, a UI nursing student, was found murdered in a Rienow residence hall room the night of March 13. There have been no arrests in the case so far.

The grand jury met for about an hour Tuesday afternoon behind closed doors in a board of supervisors meeting room, and each of the two subpoenaed men, accompanied by an attorney, made two appearances in the grand jury room.

Both were later fingerprinted for the BCI at the sheriff's office, according to Chief Deputy Doug Edmonds.

Edmonds told the DI that BCI had requested the sheriff's office "to roll the fingerprints" but said "we don't even know their names."

According to Edmonds, the BCI took the prints into their possession afterwards.

The two men had entered the courthouse shortly after 1 p.m. Tuesday and waited with their lawyer outside the special room where the grand jury was meeting.

Jutte and Asst. County Atty.

John R. Sladek were also in the lobby room.

The grand jury is meeting in the supervisors room because of remodeling work going on in the courthouse.

The two men were in the grand room the first time for 19 minutes. Later, one re-entered for the purpose of "reading a letter," which was in an envelope.

About a minute later, that man went to be fingerprinted and also later entered Edmonds' office for unknown reasons.

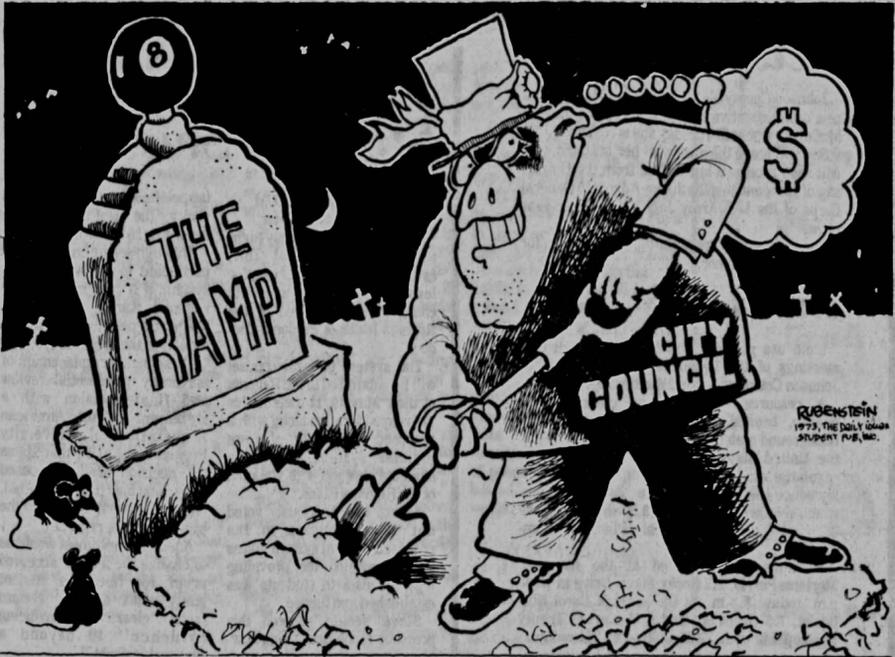

The second subpoenaed man also re-entered the grand jury room for a second time before being fingerprinted.

The men were accompanied to the sheriff's office by attorneys only.

A Johnson County Sheriff's Department jailer was posted at the door in front of the closed session, apparently in response to the presence of two DI reporters observing the proceedings from the lobby room. They were the only media present outside the proceedings.

As members of the grand jury left the meeting room at about 2:15 p.m. and went upstairs to sign out for the day, one was heard to say, "That didn't hurt at all."

According to E. J. Wombacher, Johnson County clerk of court, nothing was filed in his office from the afternoon proceedings.

Resurrection in Iowa City

City proposes 3 ramps; citizens prepare to battle

By NANCY STEVENS
Associate News Editor

The controversy which surrounded and finally engulfed the Iowa City downtown parking ramp is about to be stirred up again.

Local citizen groups are preparing to fight a new city administration proposal which calls for the construction of not one, but three multi-story parking facilities in the next five years.

The proposed ramps—which will cost approximately $8.2 million—are part of the city's proposed five-year capital improvements program.

The program calls for acquisition of land for two of the facilities next year. Construction would begin in 1975. Land acquisition for the third facility is slated for 1977, with construction proposed before the end of the decade.

At least two citizen groups, People Against the Ramp (PAR), and Citizens for Environmental Action (CEA) say they will fight the proposed measures, and will appear at a public hearing on the capital improvements program later this month to protest inclusion of the ramps.

Both groups were instrumental in the defeat of an April, 1972 referendum which would have financed a $2 million ramp with general obligation bonds. Members of the groups later took the city to court when the council attempted to use revenue bonds as an alternative method of financing.

Renewal

City Manager Ray Wells has told the city council that construction of the parking facilities is an integral part of the urban renewal program. The council, however, has not yet identified which proposals will have priority in the five-year plan.

"Under the urban renewal plan, the city committed itself to provide a certain number of parking spaces for the central business district, in line with projected needs for additional spaces," Wells said. "If we don't provide that parking, the federal government could decide they want their money back."

The city manager says the 2,200 spaces provided by the proposed facilities would fill the city's commitment to provide a minimum of 2,000 spaces.

Although Wells said some, or perhaps all of the on-street parking spaces will be phased out as a part of urban renewal, city parking manager Don Akin said only the Eagle lot between Henry's and Varsity Cleaners would be affected by the urban renewal project.

If construction of the ramps is approved, the city will have 2,761 parking spaces, or 700 more than the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) requirement.

Street parking

On-street spaces in the central business district now total 1,974, with off-street lots in or near the downtown area providing 591 spaces, according to Akin.

Carolyn Embree, spokeswoman for PAR, said Tuesday that PAR will attend the public hearing to ask that the ramps be excluded from the program.

"What other action we may take depends on what happens at the public hearing," Embree said. "Rather than getting really excited about it now, we plan to voice our objections there and see what happens."

The group is continuing to support the three ramp-suit plaintiffs who are currently battling the city before the Iowa Supreme Court. (No date for the appeal has been set) PAR is supplying money for legal fees incurred.

"The suit is putting the whole bonding procedure for cities in question. If the decision in our favor is upheld, the city won't be able to go ahead and issue bonds when they feel like it," Embree said.

Mayor C. L. (Tim) Brandt denied that the court suit would affect construction of the proposed ramps.

"We could build them right now by using revenue bonds; that's protected by the state law," Brandt said. Brandt said the ramps are a crucial factor in the success of a re-developed downtown, and that all council members had recently confirmed a commitment to the federal government to provide 2,000 parking spaces in the central business district.

"The re-development of the downtown area is a commercial business, and it's success will depend on the shoppers. It can't be successful unless there are places for people to put their cars while they shop. Anyone who thinks the downtown can survive without adequate parking facilities better get their head out of the sand," said Brandt.

Replacements

Construction of the proposed facilities is imperative to replace parking spaces displaced by the council's intention to remove on-street parking in the downtown area, Brandt said.

PAR also denies the contention that construction of parking facilities is a necessary requirement of the urban renewal program.

"They could fulfill this requirement with another project in the area which would benefit the community as a whole," Embree said. "What's irritated people from the first about this, is the city's unwillingness to go back to the drawing board and re-evaluate this whole thing."

If the Iowa Supreme Court does overturn a lower court decision prohibiting the use of revenue bonds to finance a ramp, CEA said Tuesday it will fight construction of any multi-story facility in the downtown area on environmental grounds.

CEA spokesman John Laitner issued a statement Tuesday which said the group will resist the facilities on the grounds that "the success of Iowa's City's Urban Renewal program will ultimately depend upon the success of a viable, extensive mass transit system and not upon the construction of three parking ramps."

'Disastrous'

The statement said it would be "disastrous to further encourage the use and dependence upon the automobile in light of the pending gasoline shortages and rising gasoline costs."

CEA will demand that an environmental impact statement be done on the possible detrimental effects of constructing the three facilities, if the projects are accepted by the city council.

Laitner said that such an action was considered when the group was fighting construction of the defeated ramp last spring, but decided to go with the suit against the use of revenue bonds.

"Guy Birch (a HUD official) told us that because of the controversial nature of the entire program, caused mainly by proposed ramps, a need could be established for an environmental impact statement," Laitner said.

Laitner said reasons for such a statement include the concentration of automobile emissions, higher accident rates and the inhibiting effect on the mass transit system as a result of facilities.

The aftermath of Watergate

FBI now guarding files

WASHINGTON (AP)—FBI agents were dispatched to the White House Tuesday to guard Watergate-related files kept in the offices of departing officials.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said an around-the-clock safeguarding procedure was begun "to physically protect" various White House documents.

Sources said President Nixon's top aides, H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman culled through government files before they resigned.

The Haldeman-Ehrlichman search for documentation began days prior to Nixon's acceptance Monday of their resignations as his closest advisers, sources said.

Haldeman and Ehrlichman were seen leaving the White House Tuesday morning carrying stacks of documents. They rode off to an undisclosed destination in the back seat of a White House limousine.

Asked whether any Watergate-linked files were missing, Ziegler said he had been informed by Leonard Garment, who took over Dean's duties, that this was "not a problem."

That disclosure came amid a flurry of other developments in the day after Nixon's speech to the nation on the case:

—Nixon met with his cabinet in an effort to get his Watergate-rocked administration back on course.

—After the Cabinet meeting, Nixon met for an hour in his Oval Office with Vice President Spiro T. Agnew. In disclosing the meeting a White House spokesman would not say what was discussed, describing it only as a private meeting.

—With only five members on the floor, the Senate voted Tuesday to tell President Nixon it wants the Watergate investigation removed from the executive branch and placed in the hands of an independent prosecutor.

A few hours later, other Republican senators streamed to the floor and tried and failed to get the action reversed.

'You've come a long way baby...'

Thursday is "Women's Day" in Iowa City.

In conjunction with this, Minta Wajc, 508 Stanley, has scheduled "women related" events for the city and university community.

Wajc originated the concept of the day in connection with her women's studies major and the City College of New York, where Women's Day events are also scheduled.

Wajc said she believed similar events might be happening in those schools with women's studies programs.

Wajc, chairwoman for Women's Day, said the events are being held for a tri-purpose: growing awareness of womanhood, building of sisterhood, and

'Aide hired Papers spies'

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Newly resigned presidential aide John D. Ehrlichman told the FBI that he hired Watergate conspirators G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt to investigate the Pentagon papers case and learned later they broke into the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist, it was disclosed Tuesday.

U.S. District Court Judge

Matt Byrne, presiding over the trial of Ellsberg and Anthony Russo, revealed the statement that Ehrlichman made to the FBI last Friday.

The defense attorneys immediately moved for dismissal of the case and Byrne took the motion under advisement.

The FBI interview quotes Ehrlichman as saying President Nixon designated him in 1971 "to make inquiries independent of the concurrent FBI investigation which had been made relating to the leak of the Pentagon papers."

support of the Equal Rights Amendment which need passage by eight more states to become law, according to Wajc.

Suffragettes will be chained to the Pentacrest Thursday afternoon symbolizing "how women have to get the rights granted to white males," Wajc said.

"You've come a long way baby; or have you? is the theme of the day's events starting at 12:30 p.m. on the Pentacrest with a debate between Clara Oleson, local advocate of women's rights, and John McClure, of the UI department of education on the benefits of affirmative action.

Thursday afternoon from 1:30 to 4:30 several events are slated for the Union Ballroom including a judo demonstration by Marie Matson, of the UI women's physical education department.

Also slated is an explanation of the Equal Rights Amendment by Roxanne Conlin, assistant to the Iowa Attorney General.

Evening events include a single showing of "The Women's Film" at 4:10 in the Union Ballroom, a single showing of "Ramparts of Clay" in the Union Illinois Room at 7 and a women's poetry reading at 9 (no room scheduled).

Shooting

PEORIA, Ill. (AP)—Three gunmen fleeing from police sought refuge in a Roman Catholic elementary school Tuesday and threatened to kill a pupil, authorities reported.

One gunman was killed in an exchange of gunfire and about an hour later the other two were in police custody.

The child who was threatened escaped unharmed.

War

American B52 bombers and jet fighters pounded suspected enemy camps around Phnom Penh Tuesday and North and South Vietnam issued May Day pledges of reforms for their war-weary peoples.

Wounded Knee

WOUNDED KNEE, S.D. (AP)—A possible confrontation between Indian militants and occupants of the Rosebud Indian Reservation was averted Tuesday when the tribal council reversed itself and agreed to allow the burial of a slain member of the Wounded Knee occupation force on its reservation.

In other developments, occupation leader Russell Means was jailed in South Dakota and a government spokesman said peace talks aimed at ending the 64-day siege at Wounded Knee had bogged down during the burial of two of the insurgents.

The Rosebud Council had issued a court order earlier Tuesday prohibiting the burial of Frank Clearwater on the reservation, 100 miles east of Wounded Knee.

50's

One of our vaunted DI reporters discovered the reason for the poor turn-out at Tuesday's public hearing on prohibiting smoking and drinking in UI classrooms. It seems that 427 anti-smokers were frightened away by none other than "Blatz", our DI weather bear.

"We didn't get the license number on his Honda-50," stated one of the would-be testifiers, "but we were sure it was Blatz because he was all big and hairy and ugly and looked like a football that just came out of the shower."

Today's weather is a real bear: variable cloudiness with a chance of light showers are expected for the River City. Highs will be in the 50's. Skies will be fair Thursday with little temperature change.

Yesterday's weather was correct. Season's record: 17-3-3.

in the news briefly

Cable-TV

Opposing views on who should own a proposed cable television system in Iowa City sparked fiery debate Tuesday night at a meeting of the city's Cable Television Committee.

The debate centered around whether the system should be owned by a private profit oriented company, as proposed by several local investors, or by a non-profit, subscriber controlled organization, as proposed by the New American Movement (NAM).

Some members of the committee, opposed the NAM proposal because it advocated governmental investment which they said might lead to undue governmental control over programming. Proponents of the subscriber controlled system say it would provide an operation more attuned to the needs of the public.

SPI probe

Student Senate Tuesday night unanimously passed a resolution providing for the establishment of a committee to investigate the legal status of Student Publications Inc. (SPI) Board.

According to the bill, the committee will also explore the policy guidelines for selecting The Daily Iowan editor and the financial handling of student activities fee money in relation to the DI.

Rejected editor candidate Jim Ryan prepared the bill and was present at the senate meeting.

Ryan said he proposed the investigation not because "I am griping because I didn't get the job and I didn't go into it to become the oldest college newspaper editor in the United States." Senate nominated a committee to investigate

Johnson County's supervisors are looking for a new administrative assistant to replace Jane L. McCurdy, who said Tuesday she is resigning.

She will leave the area with her husband, who will soon receive a law degree from the University of Iowa and join the Judge-Advocate General Corps of the U.S. Army July 1 for a three-year term.

The supervisors are accepting applications for McCurdy's successor.

Land use

Land use planning will be discussed at unit meetings of the League of Women Voters of Johnson County today and Wednesday.

A resource committee on environmental quality, headed by Marty Sixt, will present background material on the history of land use in the United States and the relation of zoning regulations to land use planning. They also will introduce the land use plan for Johnson County which was presented April 18 by the staff of the Johnson County Regional Planning Commission.

Meetings are scheduled at the home of Marlene Perrin, 212 Rocky Shore Drive at 12:45 p.m. today; 8 p.m., at the home of Carol Nordquist, 705 Grant St., and 9:15 a.m. at Trinity Episcopal Church, 320 E. College St. Thursday.

Activist

A peace activist who is accused by Pennsylvania court of pouring concrete over a munition factory rail switch in a symbolic act to halt the shipment of bombs to Indochina will be in Iowa City Thursday for speaking engagements.

Rollin Kirk, one of the "York (Pa.) Five," will discuss the charges and acts of conscious in opposition to the bombing from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. in the Union. The event has yet to be assigned a room in the Union.

218 closed

Highway 218 south of its intersection with Highway 1 and Highway 6 is now closed due to work on the widening of 218.

Traffic has been routed over the same detour in effect last fall, using Highway 22 and I. The detour is expected to be in effect for approximately two months.

Expected heavy rainfall in the next few days may force the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to increase the discharge rate from the Coralville Reservoir.

The discharge rate was increased Friday even though the flow is usually much lower this time of year.

Farmers living downstream from the Coralville dam had requested that the abnormally high flow be maintained.

Courthouse

The Johnson County Board of Supervisors was told Tuesday that the county will have a $50,000 limitation of funds that can be spent for a courthouse remodeling project.

The supervisors were also told that several improvements may be left uncompleted unless some painting is left undone.

Address

Louise R. Noun of Des Moines, past president of the Iowa Civil Liberties Union, will give the keynote address at the opening session of a symposium titled "Women and Public Policy" Saturday at the University of Iowa.

Meeting from 9 a.m.-12:30 p.m. the first three Saturdays in May, the symposium will help public policy makers gain a broader understanding of traditional and humanities-based attitudes toward women.

The first session May 5 will consider the images and roles of women in law, psychology and literature. Cynthia Hovden Albright, a legal research associate in the UI Institute of Public Affairs, will discuss "The Changing Status of Women in the Law."

Legal aid funding endorsed by UI Student Senate

By MARY WALLBAUM
Student Affairs Writer

Student Senate Tuesday night passed a proposal that establishes a source of funds for legal counsel for students charged with violation of the Regents Rules of Personal Conduct.

The system of legal counsel will be submitted to the Regents at their May 10, 11 meeting for their consideration along with a proposed University of Iowa judicial system for trying students charged with violation of the Regents Rules.

Senate had previously voted not to participate in the proposed judicial system unless some provision for providing legal counsel to students was established and funded.

Since senate adopted this previous resolution, Craig Karsen, A2, senate president drafted the proposed legal counsel system which senate approved.

This system stipulates that Student Legal Services (SLS) will administer the legal program.

According to the senate endorsed proposal, SLS shall provide a referral list of available attorneys from the Johnson County Bar Association.

These attorneys will be paid $25 an hour—minimum bar rate—up to $300 from funds provided through student senate.

Students can apply for this legal aid, if charged with violation of regents' rules.

Students charged with rule violation can apply for this legal aid, according to the proposed system, if they meet SLS income guidelines.

Those students whose income is above these guidelines may retain an attorney at their own expense, according to the proposal, or they may retain a student intern from SLS at no expense.

Funding for the legal system will come from a soon-to-be-established Student Senate Services Foundation.

Money in this account will come from senate revenue from senate endorsed life and health insurance policy sales, the university directory, senior yearbook and tenant handbook sales.

Revenue from these sources will go to other, as yet unspecified, student services as well as the legal counsel fund, according to Karsen.

Although senate has agreed to participate in the new judicial system, if it is approved by the regents, Karsen said senate would still push for three amendments to the proposed system.

These include replacement of university presidential review and final decision with a statement of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) that states the decision of the proposed peer hearing panel be final, unless a student appeals to the president of the regents.

Another amendment would be to change the level of accepted proof for finding a student guilty under the new system from "clear and convincing evidence" to beyond a reasonable doubt.

The final proposed amendment asks for a more specific definition of the "academic officer" named in the proposed judicial system as the first arbitrator in deciding if a student charged with violation of regents' rules should go before the university court.

Senate passed a resolution Tuesday night endorsing a revised policy prohibiting cigarette smoking in University of Iowa academic buildings.

Hall Emalfarb, A3, 808 Oakcrest, who headed a hearing held last night on the proposed regulations against smoking in University of Iowa classrooms, set forth his own proposal which if adopted by the university will prohibit smoking in academic facilities.

—fire hazards exist
—academic activity takes place
—in classes where one person objects to cigarette smoke.

The policy would not prohibit smoking if no one objects to it and if ample containers exist for ashes and stubs.

Emalfarb said he has submitted the revised policy for Faculty Senate and Collegiate Association Council (CAC) consideration because the policy proposed by the university office of facilities and planning "is too strict."

He was specifically referring to bans in the "university" proposal prohibiting eating and drinking in university classrooms.

Both Boyd and Dooley told The Daily Iowan during an hour and a half interview that they want a "professional" service oriented security department.

They also agree they do not want "an urban police force" or armed security officers.

Many security officers also want a "professional" service oriented department. However, some manifestations of their "professional" department seems to conflict with those of Boyd and Dooley, especially in the area of weapons and the State Law Enforcement Academy.

"Our people are not police officers in the urban sense," Dooley said. "They are peace officers in an academic climate. They have always been viewed as fulfilling the role of peace officers in an academic climate."

Boyd agreed. "I think it (administrative policy toward security) reflects the attitude of the university community. The security officers must be willing to work with students and faculty, but I don't think carrying a gun would help them in these responsibilities."

"Our security comes in a different form," Boyd said. "The English police are not armed."

Should at least have that symbolic power of arrest."

"We have had men assaulted with deadly weapons," another officer exclaimed. "But to try to explain the need for guns is impossible."

In response to Boyd's example of the unarmed English, an officer asked, "Did he mention the difference of cultures...the differences of history? In England, the police have always been respected. In America, policemen were always those people who couldn't find anything else to do...In England it works...here it doesn't."

The State Board of Regents has the power to arm campus security officers. However Boyd said he doubts if that will ever come about in the near future. "We feel that the law enforcement policy should not just be made by law enforcement people, but also by civilians...Civilians should control."

Many officers hope that those civilians who do control understand the "reality" of law enforcement. "It is a good proposition," one officer said.

Do 'professionals' need weapons?

Officers' role debated

Editor's Note: This is the third of three stories concerning operations inside UI Campus Security. The articles resulted from a DI task force composed of staff writers Stu Cross and Bill Roerman, headed by public affairs writer William G. Hladky.

Behind every University of Iowa non-academic department stands the administration, providing resources, coordinating relationships with other departments and setting the basic direction of departmental operations.

UI Campus Security is no exception. Although security head John D. Dooley declares he is "no puppet," his law enforcement philosophy does closely parallel that of UI Pres. Willard L. Boyd.

Both Boyd and Dooley told The Daily Iowan during an hour and a half interview that they want a "professional" service oriented security department.

They also agree they do not want "an urban police force" or armed security officers.

Many security officers also want a "professional" service oriented department. However, some manifestations of their "professional" department seems to conflict with those of Boyd and Dooley, especially in the area of weapons and the State Law Enforcement Academy.

"Our security comes in a different form," Boyd said. "The English police are not armed."

We are interested in law enforcement. We don't want to endanger the campus security officers, but we don't see arming as a good security procedure on campus."

Many officers disagree with Boyd. "I feel that everytime you are out in a uniform," an officer said, "you are a target, and that is not paranoia...If you are going to be out in uniform with full power of arrest, we

"But I sure hope those civilians have a good view of law enforcement. I would like to see Boyd spend six weeks at the academy and come back and say we shouldn't have weapons."

It is very unlikely that Boyd or Dooley will spend any time at the State Law Enforcement Academy.

"I would like not to see them (officers) go to the academy," Dooley said. "The kind of crime we have is different than what they prepare officers for at the academy." Instead, Dooley believes the university's own in-service training programs could adequately prepare security officers.

But Dooley has no choice as state law requires campus police to attend the academy. "The training we get at the academy is not necessarily urban," an officer responded.

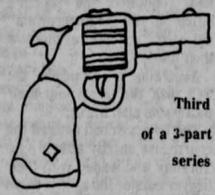

"There are a lot of guys from small towns. The idea is not urban, but to turn people into peace officers."

One officer who agreed with Boyd and Dooley on not arming and not having an "urban police force," disagreed with them about the police academy. He considered the training a "worthwhile experience."

Another aspect of conflict concerns the security department's relationship with other county law enforcement agencies.

Some officers have complained of embarrassment when Iowa City police are called in to aid a security department problem. These officers claim the city police force "gets tired of pulling us out of jams."

Other officers, however, say the relationship between security and city police and the

Chicanos ask action now

By BILL ROEMERMAN
Staff Writer

A group of Chicano organizers and students met for an hour and a half Tuesday afternoon to discuss a list of demands with University of Iowa Pres. Willard Boyd while other Chicanos demonstrated outside Jessup Hall.

Representatives of the Chicanos say they have been exploited and discriminated against by the university.

Their demands include: the establishment of a Chicano studies department, research projects to define the problems facing the Chicano community, "intensive" recruiting drives to attract Chicano students and faculty in the graduate and professional levels of study as well as undergraduates.

They also demanded that the university: hire a Chicano recruiter; institute Chicano studies courses in history, literature, and other departments; ban non-United Farm Workers' (UFW) lettuce from

UI cafeterias and dining services and recruit Chicano students to each department to sensitize the university to "the Chicano and his needs."

Arturo Ramirez, one of the Chicano organizers who met with Boyd, said he was not satisfied with the results of the meeting.

"He didn't meet our demands at all, Ramirez said, "He took a middle of the road stance on the issues."

According to Ramirez, Boyd said he was trying to recruit Chicanos through the UI Affirmative Action Program.

Rameriz said the action through the program isn't enough. "Affirmative action is all right, but different groups have different needs, and it doesn't fulfill the needs of the Chicanos," he said.

Rameriz said the action through the program isn't enough. "Affirmative action is all right, but different groups have different needs, and it doesn't fulfill the needs of the Chicanos," he said.

Boyd also refused to remove lettuce from UI food services because, although he "personally supports" the boycott, he won't "impose his will on other individuals," according to Rameriz.

"We disagree with this," Rameriz said. "We feel institutions must take a stand."

Phillip Hubbard, vice president and dean of academic affairs, said when the university buys lettuce it specifies that it be union picked, but it doesn't specify whether it should be UFW or teamsters-picked lettuce.

Hubbard said although the university still offers lettuce through its dining services, it offers enough "alternatives" so people who support the boycott don't have to eat lettuce.

Associated Residence Halls (ARH) passed a resolution last spring supporting the boycott. Hubbard said, but they declined to endorse removal of lettuce from the dorms.

He said Chicano faculty and staff members were being sought in all colleges of the university.

Chicano leaders said they were adopting a "wait and see attitude" following Tuesday's meeting, to see what actions the university will take.

But they said if they found it necessary to gain their objectives they will "picket the university every day...if necessary we will call in people from around the state or the whole region."

Boyd termed the meeting with the Chicanos as "fruitful" and said he was "anxious to help."

He said he explained the Affirmative Action program to them, indicating its goals as well as its "legal limit actions."

Boyd termed the Affirmative Action program as a "good faith effort" to draw minority people into the university, but added we "can't engage in reverse discrimination."

He acknowledged that he had refused to remove lettuce from the UI dining services, although he "has not personally eaten lettuce for nine or ten months."

"I deem it inappropriate to force my will on the university," he said. "We must assure that the rights of all the people are maintained."

Boyd said space for posters promoting the lettuce boycott would be provided in the dormitory dining halls.

While the Chicano representatives were meeting with Boyd in the president's office other Chicanos demonstrated outside Jessup Hall, displaying placards and changing slogans.

Ben Pintor, A3, E136 Currier, said the actions of the group had the complete support of the state's "Chicano community."

"We couldn't, and wouldn't do anything without the support of the community," Pintor said.

He said if necessary the community would send "hundreds" of people to Iowa City to help, but added that demonstrations would remain non-violent.

Nixon's BOG program cut back

UI financial aid bind averted

By MARY WALLBAUM
Student Affairs Writer

The financial aid bill President Nixon signed into law Saturday has taken the "crisis" out of the University of Iowa financial aid funding for the coming academic year, according to William Bushaw, assistant director of financial aids.

Although the UI financial aids office will not receive word from the federal government on the exact amount of financial aid dollars UI will receive for next year until the middle or end of May, Bushaw said he expects funding levels will be equivalent to last year's appropriations.

"I don't think we will have the problem that was anticipated if appropriations had gone the other way, and it certainly won't reach the crisis proportions it might have," he said.

The financial aid bill Nixon signed into law Saturday divides $872 million for financial aid among three already existing college-based aid programs.

Work-study was appropriated $270.2 million, the National Direct Loan program received $269.4 million and Supplementary Equal Opportunity Grants (EOG), $210.3 million.

In budget recommendations to Congress earlier this year, Nixon had asked that funding of existing financial aid programs be cut back drastically, and the aid money diverted into a new program—Basic Opportunity Grants (BOG).

UI financial aid administrators at that time expressed fear that the new BOG program—which is handled directly by the federal government—would not provide sufficient aid money for both low and middle income students

"there are still unanswered questions, such as will the money get to the right students?"

because of proposed guideline limitations on the amount of money each student could receive.

However, the new financial aid bill appropriated only $122.1 million to the BOG program, instead of $622 million as Nixon had requested.

Although this sum essentially increases the appropriations base for financial aid, Bushaw said, it does not necessarily mean the funds available for students will be substantially more.

"We will have to see how the new program goes—there are still a lot of unanswered questions, such as if the money will get to the right students," he said.

Bushaw said the reduced appropriations to BOG "is a good way to test the program" and to get it operating.

"But to put all the funds in a completely new program would have created great problems. I don't see how they could have got it operating by next fall," he added.

Federal guidelines, not yet completed, stipulate that only incoming freshmen will be eligible for BOG funds.

The program will be handled directly by the federal government, Bushaw said, but the UI financial aids office will "be a focal point where questions can be answered and where aid forms will be available" for the new grant program.

The BOG program stipulates that every student entering college or proprietary schools is entitled to $1,400 or one-half a student's educational expenses minus parental contributions, whichever is less.

Deadline for UI financial aid applications was April 1, and the financial aid office is now making awards to freshman students, Bushaw said.

Upperclassmen awards will be made early this summer when grade reports are in, he added.

Appropriations for financial aids have been pending in Congress since June 1, 1972, when the amendments to the Higher Education Act of 1972 were passed by Congress.

"I was surprised the appropriations moved so fast when they finally did move," Bushaw said, adding they were in Congressional sub-committee until the middle of April, and approved by Congress and signed by Nixon in less than a week.

Bushaw attributed Congressional funding of existing aid programs, instead of the Nixon-approved BOG program, to national lobbying efforts by financial aid officials and other professional groups, as well as student letters to their congressional representatives.

Iowa high court rules employees can sue UI

By PAUL DAVIES
Associate News Editor

The University of Iowa can now be sued for breaking contracts with employees.

Until last week, the university could avoid lawsuits by using its "governmental immunity"—a legal principal that says a unit of state government can't be sued unless it gives consent for the suit.

The Iowa Supreme Court ruled last week, however, that the immunity no longer applies to contracts with the state. The court decided that, by making the contracts, "the state has impliedly consented" to be sued.

Although the decision came in a lawsuit against the state social services department, the ruling said the court was "necessarily" overruling a 1968 case in which the court kept a UI employee from suing the university.

The new decision was welcomed Tuesday by the presidents of two UI employee groups, who both said it is important for the employees to be able to sue the University.

"It's important that an individual have that right (to sue)," added Barbara Bordwell, president of the University of Iowa Employees Association (UIEA). She said UIEA feels "the university is not a particularly sophisticated employer and they do on occasion break the law."

"Once you get over that hump," Bordwell added, "other barriers are going to begin to fall."

"It will have some impact in the long run," said Alvin Logan, president of the Staff Employees Collective Organization (SECO). He predicted that more lawsuits will be filed against UI by employees whose legal costs will be paid by employee groups.

The larger impact he foresaw is that the ruling will force the university administration to set up new grievance procedures. Bordwell said the decision may make the administration more responsive to laws regarding employees.

The ruling "My have some impact on the atmosphere" of UI personnel discussions and procedures, a UI law professor who has studied the ruling said. As often happens, "the impact is more in terms of its symbolism," Eric E. Bergstein added.

Although UI faculty and staff employees don't have written contracts as such, Bergstein said the university-employee relationship is contractual and so is covered by the ruling.

The court made that "quite clear" by saying it has overruled a case involving the university, he said.

Bergstein said the ruling has "great symbolic significance" and "will be of practical significance in some cases."

How many court cases may be affected is unknown.

"The door is open to some extent," said Howard Sokol, assistant provost, "but to what extent, I have no speculation at all."

The university has seldom been sued by employees in the past, probably "because they've assumed they wouldn't prevail" over the immunity, Sokol said.

He said the court was a "surprising source" for abolishing the immunity, which "fits right in" with Board of Regents policy.

The regents' legislative program adopted in January supported an end to the immunity in employe disputes because of "the idea of simple justice" and to relieve the personal burden of "wrongful acts of the government."

Also, the regents' statement said "ability to perform its expanding governmental functions will be seriously impaired" if immunity is used regularly.

Politics needs exterminator

The best dreams of anti-Nixon supporters seem to be turning up true these days.

The Battle of Watergate is becoming the battle of Waterloo. The accounts of political espionage are no longer straight out of a spy novel or a Jack Anderson column. And the victims aren't simply political campaigns.

Take Daniel Ellsberg, for instance.

Documents released by a federal judge said Tuesday that former presidential aide John Ehrlichman hired two Watergate conspirators to investigate the Pentagon Papers case. They allegedly ended up ripping off Ellsberg's private psychiatric records.

Ehrlichman, H.R. Haldeman, Richard Kleindienst, John W. Dean, Jeb Magruder and Patrick Gray are out. John Mitchell, by some sheer stroke of luck, got out early. Martha ain't no dummy.

San Francisco columnist Arthur Hoppe drew up a Watergate scenario over the weekend. It was a Marx Bros. movie, with Groucho, Chico and Harpo in the Nixon aide roles. When Nixon asks who did it, everybody starts pointing at each other and causing a general ruckus. "He did it, you did it, they did it."

On a more cynical note, Chicago columnist Mike Royko has likened the White House crew to "pampered kids in wealthy suburbs who suddenly find themselves in real trouble."

For the interim, at least on the surface, part of the arrogance of the Nixon administration has been stymied. Their antics are no more a touch of Democratic paranoia. They are public knowledge.

Last week Sen. Barry Goldwater charged that his campaign was bugged by the opposition in 1964. He said high-ranking Democrats will be involved and that "both parties will be glad when it's finally over."

You may think Goldwater an avowed rightist and anti-progressive, but his reasoning may be borne out.

Meanwhile, people like Communist Gus Hall—like him or not—can sit back and smile. Like he said here last fall, "they've been bugging us for years."

Nixon and the GOP have not been in charge of federal policy for years.

Sen. Charles Percy (R-Ill.), the darling of the GOP liberal sect, said he was glad the likes of Ehrlichman are gone because they used "intimidation" as a tool to enforce their wishes, like on ABM. Yet Percy and the anti-machine Republicans in Illinois, once had a key campaign aide named Magruder.

Before it's over, and hopefully, there will be a complete investigation of administrative espionage and abuses of Nixonites, Republicans and Democrats against each other and, more importantly, against the right to privacy of Ellsberg, of minorities, of the average citizen.

There are few clean people in Washington. Whether a party is controlled by a corporate elite or a "labor" elite, it does not seem to matter. The name of the game is to win, and, as pacifist Joan Baez said last fall, to be a successful politician (or backroom aide) you have to learn "to lie, to cheat, to kill."

And this is exactly the credibility gap that is currently being exposed on Nixon but one that could extend backwards in the history of the Presidency and power politics.

Pardon the Billy Graham reference, but you're seeing moral corruption in action.

God bless you and good night.

The Watergate Follies Liddy, Hunt and McCord were the Three Stooges

WASHINGTON—The Watergate Follies, set to music, would make splendid comic opera. Here are just a few stranger-than-fiction episodes:

THE LEFT-HANDED PITCH: G. Gordon Liddy, the Watergate ringleader, tried to impress a couple of girls in Detroit by holding his hand over a flaming candle. His hand was so badly burned that it almost spoiled his Watergate presentation before Attorney General John Mitchell, White House counsel John Dean and campaign aide Jeb Stuart Magruder in Mitchell's office on February 4, 1972.

Liddy brought along huge, fancy charts to illustrate the bugging operation. Because he couldn't carry the cumbersome charts in his injured right hand, he juggled them awkwardly in his left. This trouble with the charts detracted from his otherwise slick, Madison Avenue-style presentation of the Watergate crime there in the citadel of law-and-order.

Three Stooges of the Watergate Follies—Liddy, Hunt and McCord—took elaborate precautions to conceal their nefarious activities. Hunt sometimes wore a preposterous red wig to go with his patrician looks. All three used assumed names, carried false identification, communicated by pay phones and exchanged cryptic messages.

Liddy's most successful pseudonym was "George," the real first name he never uses. One day, Watergate conspirator Bernard Barker called Liddy's White House office and asked for "George." Puzzled, Liddy's secretary said there was a phone call for George. "Just who is George?" demanded George Gordon Liddy.

OLIVER'S SECRET: Hundreds of thousands of dollars were spent on the Watergate bugging and its consequen-

Liddy phoned press chief Devan Shumway to explain they had a minor "public relations problem" at the Committee for the Re-Election of the President.

As the news spread, officials began removing and destroying sensitive documents. Liddy began churning documents through a small shredder, then rushed upstairs to a larger shredder that would do the job faster. His secretary, Sally Harmony, even shredded her shorthand notebooks eventually.

Other officials, not knowing the President's campaign security chief James McCord had led the burglary squad, discussed whether burglars could break into their headquarters. Not a chance, campaign administrator Robert Odle assured them. He told them he had brought in an experienced security man to equip every nook and cranny with antibreak-in devices. What was the man's name? Jim McCord, Odle told them proudly.

STRANGE BOOKKEEPING: The stolid McCord, the ultimate bureaucrat, tried to give Hunt's wife a receipt when she delivered hush money to him in an envelope. Even Liddy signed small white chits with a special mark when he withdrew cash from the committee.

But former White House aide Gordon Strachan delivered $350,000 in $20, $50 and $100 bills to the Watergate apartment of campaign official Fred LaRue. No receipt was asked and none was given.

Nixon's stash

BUGGING ON CREDIT: President Nixon's fund raisers stashed millions in campaign boodle across the country, yet they still haven't paid for all the bugging equipment the Watergate wiretappers were carrying when they were caught. The Committee to Re-Elect the President still owes $13,600 to Michael Stevens, whose Chicago company supplied the buggers with sophisticated electronic devices. Some of the equipment was actually in use, but six custom-made, high frequency transmitters and receivers, four of them suitable for bugging rooms, the other two for intercepting phone conversations, were ordered but never picked up.

One of the conspirators, James McCord, surreptitiously came for some of the equipment at 3 o'clock one morning. Through his attorneys, McCord acknowledged the purchases and said he had paid $5,400 in cash, leaving the balance due. Devan Shumway, spokesman for the President's committee, told us "it would be inappropriate to pay any such bill for equipment allegedly used for illegal purposes."

SPY IN A CLOSET: Whodunit writer E. Howard Hunt, another Watergate conspirator, was assigned to reconnoiter the Watergate layout. He tried to enter through a dining room, but couldn't get a connecting door open without alarming a guard.

So the ex-CIA agent remained locked in the dining room all night, sleeping in a closet. He finally escaped at 7 a.m. after the office building was opened and began to fill with people.

ALIASES AND DISGUISES: The

by jack anderson

ces. Lost in all the hullabaloo has been the intelligence that the Republicans got for their money.

A wiretap was successfully installed on the office phone of Democratic party official Spencer Oliver. The first problem was that there were two Spencer Olivers, father and son. The most momentous information picked up by the wiretappers was that one of the Spencer Olivers was planning a trip to either North Carolina or South Carolina to talk to North Carolina's former governor, Terry Sanford.

PR problem

DAY AFTER WATERGATE: On the eve of their arrest, the Watergate burglary-bugging crew had trouble gaining access to Democratic headquarters. Bernard Barker telephoned a cryptic message to Liddy that he was having key trouble. Trouble with the "car key," he added mysteriously.

Nevertheless, the crew broke into the Democratic lair and was arrested at gunpoint at 2:30 in the morning. The news caused panic inside the President's campaign headquarters.

Nixon crime—Watergate

Editor's note: Michael Meloy is today's contributor. Meloy was a supporter of Senator George McGovern in the last election.

President Nixon's televised Watergate speech Monday night was similar to his famous 1951 "Checkers" speech, when he pleaded innocent to charges of accepting $18,000 in political payoffs.

The melodramatic Checkers speech kept Nixon on the Republican ticket back in the '52 Presidential election. Monday night's drama kept the lid from blowing off on Nixon again. But, as usual, Nixon has failed to answer the smoldering questions behind the Watergate espionage operation.

Was Nixon really "misled" on the Watergate scandal when his intimate political operatives were the ones engineering it?

Why didn't Nixon explain the roles of top advisors Haldeman and Ehrlichman in the Watergate bugging when they already have been directly implicated?

Will Nixon take the responsibility if the Watergate scandal eventually leads back to Nixon himself?

Why didn't Nixon himself appoint an independent prosecutor not connected with the White House if he is really interested in cleaning up the whole mess?

Nixon seems to have done his best to obstruct justice during the first ten months of the Watergate aftermath. He refused to openly discuss the affair during the November presidential election. He arrogantly tried to hide White House aides behind the cloak of executive privilege in order to prevent them from testifying before Congress.

Only on April 17 did he even admit that members of the White House staff might be involved.

Yet Nixon claims complete innocence while wrapping around himself the flag, God and country.

Nixon's "law and order" administration has been implicated in scandals before. They have already been implicated in the

Slapstick

DISSEMINATING THE RUMOR OF AN I.T.T. scandal, the Russian wheat deal scandal and the milk price fixing scandal. During all three of these they routinely broke the law and got away with it.

If the blame belongs at the top, as Nixon says it does, they why have his aides been resigning and not Nixon himself?

Ralph Nader wasn't exaggerating when he called this administration "easily the most corrupt ever."

Think about it.

For foreign aid to friendly nations

Nixon asks $2.9 billion

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon asked Congress Tuesday for $2.9 billion in foreign aid to friendly nations, including $632 million to rebuild Indochina.

The package included no money for North Vietnam, but Nixon said the Communist country would be eligible for U.S. help when it complies fully with the Vietnam cease-fire agreement.

"If and when that occurs," he said, "I believe that American assistance for reconstruction and development of both South and North Vietnam would represent a sound investment in confirming the peace."

His proposal includes $652 million in military assistance and another $100 million for Jordan, Thailand and other countries considered especially close to the United States. Some $33 million would also be spent to train foreign soldiers here.

Nixon said that "to ignore these needs would be to task the enormous investment we have in the freedom and independence of the countries of Southeast Asia."

Nixon asked Congress to act on his request "with a special sense of urgency so that we may continue the important progress we have made toward achieving peace during the last year."

The President said that under the Nixon Doctrine the United States has tried to stimulate the other countries to bear a larger part of the costs of their own defense and economic needs.

"The sums I am requesting represent the absolute minimum prudent investment which the United States can afford to make if we wish to create a peaceful world," Nixon said in his message.

But he said this balance should not be shifted too quickly, "and increase the likelihood of international instability."

Hit procedure in Heffner choice

An internal statement expressing "concern over procedural matters involved" in Provost Ray Heffner's appointment to the English department faculty has been drafted by a group of English graduate students.

According to drafters of the statement, "It is not aimed at anyone, least of all Mr. Heffner (of whom one hears nothing but good), but solely at what we think are necessary improvements in procedure."

The statement, signed by 18 out of more than 450 English graduate students, concluded that Heffner's "teaching in the English department should have been a matter for public discussion," and "urged that tenured academic appointments not be granted in the future as perquisites of administrative positions."

University of Iowa Pres. Willard Boyd said Tuesday that because Heffner received tenure rights four years ago his recent appointment did not "necessitate subsequent consultation."

"When I urged Heffner to come to Iowa, he wanted to return to teaching," Boyd continued. "But he served on the administration out of loyalty to the university and I am indebted to him for deferring his teaching desires."

Boyd added that Heffner came to the university "under the assumption that he would return to teaching here."

Heffner, who recently resigned from his present position to accept full-time teaching responsibilities in Shakespearean and Elizabethan studies, said when appointed provost in 1969, "It was my understanding the department asked me to join."

John C. Gerber, director of the School of Letters, said that when Heffner first came to the university "the professors voted unanimously to give him tenure."

"I'm a strong proponent of tenure," Boyd said adding that he is "very grateful" to faculty members who want to serve as administrators.

"They (the 18 students) are suggesting that administrators should not be members of the faculty," Boyd said. "I am opposed to this notion because it would develop a cadre of people who are not professional academicians and the university would then be propelled in a non-academic direction."

Sadat charges US backs Israel for oil

By The Associated Press
President Anwar Sadat of Egypt charged Tuesday that the United States backs Israeli domination of the Middle East out of concern over Arab oil and the energy crisis.

He assailed U.S. peace plans for the Middle East and pleaded for Soviet support for the Arabs in what he repeated is an "inevitable" confrontation with Israel.

Sadat declared in his 90-minute speech that Washington has an interest in maintaining Israel's strength because the Arabs control more than half the world's known oil reserves and "we know there is an energy crisis in the United States."

"If need be, the Americans would come and occupy the sources of energy in the Arab world," he added.

Campus security

county sheriff is improving.

"On my level, we work very well with campus security," said David Epstein, Iowa City public safety director. "It is not a total wall of separation. We ride on each others streets. Despite different jurisdictions, we do cooperate."

Johnson County Sheriff Gary D. Hughes said his department does not work that closely with security. "We are trying to have a real good relationship with all law enforcement agencies," Hughes said he does hope that during any future protests "campus security would lock up the buildings (instead of staying in them) and rap with the kids."

UI administrative policy does maintain somewhat of a gap between security and other police agencies. While the county and city are considering joint communications and record facilities, with a possible coordination of detectives, Boyd claimed the university could not take part in such joint operations.

"I don't think we could participate in a joint facility," he said. "Here it's a different kind of situation."

Dooley agreed. "We are specifically directed toward university interests."

University interest concerns campus crime. According to a Christian Science Monitor article, "Crime has replaced student militancy as the number one problem on U.S. campuses."

"It has risen even faster there than in society in general," the article explained, "because for so long crime was a minimal campus problem."

However, William L. Binney, director of campus security, told the DI earlier this year that UI crime was down 42.5 per cent in a comparison of first semester statistics for 1971 and 1972.

One reliable source involved in the county's legal-law enforcement area said he believes crime per capita is higher on the UI campus than in the community.

Dooley disagreed. "I have not seen, as a student or administrator, a growing attitude of violence... It is just not here."

Dooley added, however, that he is researching the crime rate to see if UI parallels the national trend.

Talks of peace and war in 'celebrations'
All the world's a May Day

By The Associated Press
 It was a May Day of contrasts abroad, with war talk and peace talk, and strikes that virtually crippled a nation.
 Workers in many parts of the world took time off to celebrate the labor's international holiday of official left wing.
 While the president of Egypt spoke of war, the leader of the Soviet Union affirmed a policy of peace.
 Workers in Britain went on strike, throwing the transit system into chaos.
 May Day became an occasion for labor demonstrations after the Second Socialist International chose that date for its holiday in 1889.
 In England and the United States, the holiday grew out of an ancient Roman rite of spring — celebrated with dancing around a Maypole decorated with flowers and streamers.

 May Day themes around the world were familiar ones — peace, struggle against capitalism and colonialism.
 The crowds ranged from 750 Cambodians who showed up at the Olympic Stadium in Phnom Penh to vast throngs who filled Moscow's Red Square.
 President Lon Nol told the Phnom Penh rally, "We must work harder and harder so our country will survive Communist domination." Insurgent forces were only a few miles outside the city.
 In Moscow, five huge posters of Leonid I. Brezhnev waved above a sea of smiling Russian faces in Red Square. Brezhnev, the Communist party secretary who dominated the day, told them: "The policy of the Soviet Union in Europe, just as in other parts of the world, is first of all a policy of peace."
 The Russian leader's peace pledge contrasted sharply with those of Egypt's President Anwar Sadat.
 "Our friends in the Soviet Union believe a peaceful settlement is the only way out of the Middle East crisis," Sadat said over Cairo radio in a May Day speech.
 That idea, Sadat said, "is a myth." He asked for Soviet help in preparing for war with Israel.
 North Vietnam celebrated with a massive military parade, while the Communist party newspaper, Nhan Dan, warned in an editorial, "The situation in the Indochinese peninsula is very grave."
 In Rome, Pope Paul VI told thousands of persons assembled for his weekly audience, "Radical struggle among different classes for the monopoly of richness is a social and economic error." Not far from the Vatican, tens of thousands of Italian workers staged a rally where many held signs with leftist slogans.

European travel:
by ground or air

Editors note: The following is the first of a four part series on European travel, prepared by the University of Iowa Office of International Education and Services. This section deals with transportation in Europe. For more information, call the office, at 353-6249.

Whole World Handbook: Six Continents on a Student Budget. Travel-Study-Work is a new and excellent publication of the Council of International Educational Exchange (CIEE). Cost is $2.95. It contains a tremendous variety of information as well as all of the bare essentials: e.g., various ways to travel, where to stay, how to get visas and jobs, hitchhiking, language study information, etc. This type of information is available on Western Europe, the USSR and Eastern Europe, The Middle East and North Africa, Africa: South of the Sahara, South Asia, The Far East (including the People's Republic of China), Southeast Asia, Australia and New Zealand, Latin America and Canada. Copies of this amazing publication are available in the OIES for browsing.

Train travel

Most students have heard about the Eurailpass which allows you unlimited first-class travel in 13 countries. It costs $130 for 21 days; $160 for one month; $220 for two months and $250 for three months. This includes travelling on the European luxury trains such as the Trans-Europe Express. The Eurailpass must be purchased before you leave.

The Student-Railpass costs $135 for two months but is for unlimited second-class travel in 13 countries. You must, however, specify the starting date of the two-month period. These must be purchased before you leave. Consult the OIES for further information.

There are also student trains run by European national student groups. These run once or twice a week and sometimes save as much as 40 per cent over commercial trains on round-trip tickets. The international Student I.D. card is necessary to book seats on these trains. Trains and Ships for Students and Youth will be published in April and will be available in the OIES at that time for consultation.

Air travel

There are three major ways to travel by air: student charter fare, youth-student fare and regular commercial fare.

The Youth-student fare is available on almost all regularly scheduled commercial flights within Europe and is 25 per cent less than the regular commercial fare. It is available to youths between 12 and 21 and full-time students between 22-25, i.e., with proof of full-time student status; e.g., International Student I.D. Card. These youth fare tickets can only be purchased in Europe.

Student charter fares are available through the Student Air Travel Association (SATA) which operates an extensive network of student transportation; e.g., planes, trains, and ships, throughout Europe and to major cities in Asia, the Middle East and Africa. The fares on SATA flights are often as low as 40-50 per cent of the regular commercial fare. In order to book seats on SATA flights you must be a full-time student between 16-30 and must present a valid International Student I.D. Card. The booklet listing flight schedules and fares, SATA Programme: Student Flights, is available free from OIES. Flights may be booked directly through the Council on International Educational Exchange (CIEE) in New York.

Regular Commercial fare can be booked locally at Iowa City's four travel agencies.

In order to get a better idea of comparative costs the 1973 fares follow:

To	From	SATA fare	Youth-Stu.	Reg. Commercial
Madrid	London	$34.00	$74.70	$99.60
London	Paris	$16.30	$27.75	$37.00
Rome	Athens	$37.60	$70.80	$94.40
Paris	Athens	$59.70	$115.63	$154.30
London	Nairobi	$160.00	$315.38	$420.50

Intern'l ID

If you plan to go to Europe, the International Student I.D. Card is the first thing to get. This card is not just another scrap of paper created by a bureaucratic superstructure to make your life difficult, but a passport created especially for students. With it, both high school and college students gain free admission or student rates for museums, theaters, and concert halls throughout Europe. It lets you make use of the money-saving services of the European student travel bureaus, organizations that have had many years of experience in serving the traveling student. The card is also required if you plan to book on intra-European student charter flights (SATA), stay in student hostels or eat in student restaurants.

The card costs $2 and you must be a full-time highschool or college-university student to get it (not an illogical requirement for a student card, after all). The Office of International Education, 214 Jessup Hall, is the only place in Iowa City where the card can be purchased.

In order to get the I.D. card, bring the following items with you:

1. A small facial photograph about 1 1/2" x 1 1/2"
2. Proof that you are or were a full-time student—either, last semester's grade transcript indicating the number of semester hours you were registered for; or your I.D. card so we can call the Registrar to find out how many hours you are currently registered for; $2.

Along with your International Student I.D. card the Office of International Education and Services has prepared a small Survival Kit for you, free of charge!

Francisco in the pre-acid rock days. This was when the Grateful Dead-Jefferson Airplane-Big Brother types were into folk music. He remembers beating Jerry Garcia in a banjo picking contest.

Folk boom

"Part of the reason for the new folk boom is that there are people like me still around who came into folk music with the first folk boom, with the Kingston Trio and Peter, Paul and Mary. Those of us who stayed with the music and there are a bunch. The people who stayed out of the pop scene and just played to themselves. That coupled with a dying of the whole rock band thing and no one knows what's coming next. I've been predicting a folk boom for four years now."

"Also, that all these rock bands are full of folkies. I remember when all Bob Weir played was a wash tub bass and a kazoo. At Newport one year Janis Joplin's whole band came up to me and said remember us we played in Palo Alto as a folk band. All those people are drifting back."
 "Jerry Garcia is booked into a blue grass festival this summer."

See the cat drop a nickel

Tom Freestone a pinball wizard

By BART RIPP
Sports Editor

Tom Freestone gave a lecture Monday at the C.O.D. Steam Laundry on the origin, evolution and function of the pinball machine.

Tom ought to know—he's been involved with pinballs, juke boxes and other electronic amusements for 30 years. Dick Freestone, Tom's brother, was in the business in Des Moines and Tom went directly from East High to the Amusement device business.

"This was before you had such things as flippers and thumper-bumpers," says Tom, who looks like a former football star who became a Hollywood cowboy, then retired to private business.

Freestone had the market cornered around the Iowa City-Muscatine area but sold the business in 1961 to open Fairview Golf Club. Now he's back into the coin machines.

"You know, the first coin machine was invented by the Egyptians," says Tom over a Bud. "You'd drop in a coin and get water. Water was real scarce and very valuable to the Egyptians." "The first pinball machine came out of the depression. The playfield had lots of holes and pins and used a glass marble. They were called marble games. You could buy a new one for $18 in 1933."

The times before the Depression were wild—gin mills and speakeasies and lots of money flowing. The marble games came around and people'd be in a place and see a cat drop a nickel in and they'd say, 'Who's the guy with the nickel?'

We adjourn to the back room of the C.O.D. where they have three machines set up. Tom, who owns all the amusements in the bar, unlocks the machines, slides the glass off, and exposes the innards.

"See, many people think there's magnet in the devices to cheat them, but it's only gravity," says Tom. "The old machines had only one tilt, but the players got hip to it. The tilt is actually called an 'anti-cheat device,' and you can set it correct or loose. You usually set it critical, so people won't pick up the machines and set match book covers under the legs, or pick them up from the back."

The beer-carrying crowd mills about the open machines. The pinballs exposed look like something familiar and fascinating explained after a long mystery—like splitting open Ma Bell with a shiv. Inside the pinballs, there's plenty of circuits and bulbs, connections and bells, noodles of wires and dumpings of solenoids.

Someone asks about the game-winning thump the machines make and Tom explains, "A solenoid activates a plunger that hits the side of the cabinet. That's all."

Who makes the best machines? "Gottlieb, the ones you see in here, are probably the best. Williams has come a long way. Bally is a good machine. Bally used to make a 5-ball bingo machine. They still have them in Las Vegas."

After a few more questions, Tom closes the machines, and drops a quarter in one called "Funfest" that has an animated prospector with a beard dancing with a bunch of chorus girls who have huge heads and look embalmed.

Tom checks the flippers—"This is the best innovation for the player. It gives you lots of control."—and launches the first silver ball. He has great style, rocking the machine gently, using a sure but economical flip. Like John R sez: "Just a touch means so doggone much." By the time the second ball is down the hatch, Tom's got 59,000, smoking, chewing his gum and making it pop.

He steps back to let some others try their touch, then says, "We'd like to get it where it's fun to play and you can win, but not too much."

Sports editor Ripp wishes to thank DI readers for their patience with his long stories. Ripp will soon be joining the sports staff of the Albuquerque (N.M.) Journal.

Football tickets now on sale

Student tickets for the 1973 Iowa football season are now on sale at the Iowa athletic department ticket office. Students will receive a priority based on the year they first enrolled at the University of Iowa. All student tickets will be sold on a season basis only. The deadline for receiving priority for football tickets will be May 15, 1973. Tickets will be available September 1, 1973 and the student must present at I-D at the time of pick-up. The season book is being sold for $13.00.

Student tickets will continue on sale on a non-priority basis after May 15 and will remain on sale until after the first home game with Michigan on September 15, 1973.

A student may order tickets for friends provided he has their student credentials. However, each individual must pick up his or her own ticket and sign for it at the time of pick up.

A married student may purchase a spouse ticket next to his or hers at the student price. A spouse ticket may be used by a University of Iowa student with I-D Card and current registration certificate without regard to sex.

A golfer practices his putting stroke on the greens near the futuristic Quail Creek Clubhouse

Perfect round within reach at Quail Creek and Fairview

By BOB DENNEY
Staff Writer

(This is the second in a series of three articles on the golfing opportunities in the Iowa City area. Bob Denney toured the local links and relates his experiences on what the average golfer should know before tackling the course.)

PART II FAIRVIEW & QUAIL CREEK

Every golfer has the dream of that perfect round. The time he steps up to the ball and hits it where he wants, and as far as he wants. He's always looking to score five strokes better than he did before; he's searching for a course that will make him come back, one that won't bury him before middle age.

Two local courses provide the average golfer with such opportunity Fairview golf course (on American Legion Road) and Quail Creek (on Highway 218 near North Liberty) are a pair the golfer will remember.

Fairview's manager, Bill Suter (son of Hawkeye sports announcer Bud), says his track is "where the average golfer can enjoy himself."

"We accommodate a variety of folks here," Suter said. "It's not a challenge of a Finkbine, but we're appealing to the golfer who doesn't want to kill himself on the round."

The par 35, 2,794 layout is short enough to do some scoring. There's only one par five on the course (number eight, measuring 460 yards) and with two good shots you're on the green ready for an eagle.

Fairview's clubhouse was built in 1964 and remodeled last year. Golfers are welcome to use the upstairs lounge to grill their own steaks while they hash over what happened on the course.

The clubhouse walls are lined with murals, including a portrait of "Bogey" (Humphrey Bogart), by local artist Jum Hutchinson.

Hutch's new Herky the Hawk series are also here, as is the first Hawkeye caricature by Dick Spencer.

Fairview's clubhouse overlooks the first tee, a great view while you're chowing down. As the oldest course (1927) in Iowa City, Fairview has been the site of the City Amateur and the ever-popular eight-inch cup tournament.

"We're a public course and open to anyone," Suter said. "You can have a good time out here, and just might play a bit better here too." That's enough bait for any ailing swinger.

Dean Jones, owner and designer of the Quail Creek golf course near North Liberty, says, "to make golf enjoyable, you have to provide the player with as little trouble as possible."

Jones has made the game more enjoyable at Quail Creek. The 160 of farmland has been transformed into a golfer's dream. The par 36, 3,176 yard layout has no sand traps to slow down play, one water hazard, and nine beautiful fairways and greens.

"Too many courses today are built for the low handicap golfer," Jones said. "When you realize that less than 10 per cent in the country fall into that category, you're faced with an inadequacy. You have to think of the average golfer."

Quail Creek is a pleasure. The commuters from Cedar Rapids and Iowa City stream to this plush playground daily. The course is but four years old, yet the large greens hold an iron shot, and the fairways are carpeted through out your nine hole trip.

Former Hawkeye star, Chris Larsen of Iowa City, is the club pro. Larsen manages an efficient clubhouse and an elaborate pro shop.

The futuristic design of the clubhouse resembles what happened after some angry player bit the roof off. At Quail Creek there's no reason to take it out on the course. Inside the clubhouse, two fireplaces warm the guests, while a bar and lunch counter help the handicapped appetite.

The concave windows provide an over-all view of the course and the practice area to the south. The course's one tester comes on the finishing hole.

The par four, 400 yard ninth demands precision and a bit of guts. A small pond divides the fairway, demanding the player drive over the water 200 yards out, if you choose to save your game and play short, it's a long iron or a fairway wood home.

Around the first tee Jones is building a set of condominiums. The housing complex, situated on the first hole's dog leg, will give the residents plenty of entertainment when the season's in full swing.

Jones is also planning an expansion of 18 holes. The project will take up an additional 160 acres southwest of the course.

"We aim to provide the golfer with as much comfort as possible," Jones added. "The new addition will speed up play as well as accommodate twice as many golfers."

Jones epitomizes what every golfer wants—a course built just for him. Quail Creek is ready for you, its comfortable clubhouse, spacious practice areas, and capable club pro are waiting to help you enjoy your visit.

Staff writer Denney wishes to thank DI readers for their interest in his popular IM Corner. Denney will soon be a welcome addition to the staff of the Burlington Hawk-Eye.

Murals of Bogey and Herky greet the famished at the 19th hole of Fairview's clubhouse.

Big racket

Iowa's record-breaking tennis team kept its winning streak alive Tuesday as it defeated Drake in a dual meet at the Kinnick Stadium courts 7-0.

Iowa won all six of its singles matches and one double match before the meet was called on account of rain. No. 1 singles player, Rod Kubat started off with an easy 6-3, 6-1 victory over Drake's Ron Leiserowitz. Steve Dickinson, the number two player, defeated Gregg Russell 6-3, 4-6, 6-0 for his tenth victory of the season.

Iowa's number four star, Ian Phillips, was unable to participate in Tuesday's match due to a kidney attack suffered Monday evening. Phillip's condition was described as much improved Tuesday evening.

"We're all hoping that Ian will be back for the weekend," Coach John Winnie said Tuesday. "His loss would be a big hole in the line-up. As for today, it is always good to get by Drake. We're playing well."

Iowa is now 13-4 for the season, while Drake falls to a 2-12 mark. The Hawks face Michigan State (4-2) Friday in Iowa City, and host favorite Michigan (2-0) on Saturday.

Dewey & Huey

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—Drake basketball Coach Howard Stacey Tuesday announced the signing of four guards to basketball national letters of intent.

Stacey signed two Louisville, Ky., players, 5-foot-10 Dewey Minton and 6-3 Norton Fleming. Minton ranked second in the city scoring race for Pleasure Ridge High School with a 25.2 points per game average. Fleming, who graduated from Louisville Male two years ago, scored 24 points a game the past two years for Northeast Oklahoma Junior College.

Also signed was Napoleon Gaither from Crenshaw High School in Los Angeles, Calif., and Huey Smith from Lincoln High School in Houston, Texas.

Gaither averaged 18.6 a game and Smith, ranked as the top guard in Texas, averaged 35 points a game in his senior year while maintaining a grade point average in the classroom that earned him a National Honor Society membership in mathematics.

Canadiens win

MONTREAL (AP)—Speedy Yvan Cournoyer scored a pair of goals Tuesday night, leading the Montreal Canadiens to a 4-1 victory over Chicago in the second game of their National Hockey League championship playoff series.

The victory gave the Canadiens a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven Stanley Cup series, which now moves to Chicago for game 3 Thursday night and Game 4 Sunday.

Wynn-derful

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Jim Wynn hit a fifth-inning home run and Hector Torres faced a run-scoring single in the eighth as the Houston Astros registered a 3-0 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Tuesday night.

Wynn's homer snapped a scoreless pitching duel between loser Steve Carlton and winner Jerry Reuss.

Murcer-Ful

NEW YORK (AP)—Bobby Murcer broke open a tight game with a three-run homer and relief ace Sparky Lyle posted his first save of the season as the New York Yankees defeated the Kansas City Royals 6-1 Tuesday night.

Transfers

MASON CITY, Iowa (AP)—Two standout basketball players from North Iowa Community College here have signed national letters of intent.

Guard Dennis Shaffer, former all-stater from Mason City High School, will transfer to the University of Minnesota. He is a first-team junior college All-American, the only native Iowan ever to receive this honor.

Shaffer averaged 25 points per game in two years at North Iowa CC.

Forward Terry McKissick of Milwaukee will attend Drake University. He averaged 26 points per game in two years and, with Shaffer, was on an all-Iowa junior college first team selection.
