Refund checks

Students employed by the University of Iowa will receive refund checks later this week to reimburse them for Social Security payments inadvertently withheld from their Oct. 1 payroll checks, UI officials said Monday. Earnings of student employees are not subject to Social Security withholding.

The refunds will be mailed to local home addresses.

Proxmire

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. William Proxmire was beaten with a stick by one of two youths who tried to hold him up Monday night, police said.

The Wisconsin Democrat suffered minor injuries. He told police the youths told him to give them his money and one of the youths started beating him when he refused.

The youths, who ran off, were arrested shortly afterwards and charged with assault on a member of Congress and assault with intent to commit armed robbery, police said.

Police said the youths were 14 and 15 years old.

Embezzlement

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP)—Jack C. White, 60, a recently disbarred Iowa City attorney, pleaded guilty Monday to charges of embezzlement.

Sentencing on the eight counts of embezzlement, totaling more than $45,000, was set for Dec. 21 by Johnson County District Judge August Honsell Jr.

White's license to practice law in Iowa was revoked by the Iowa Supreme Court July 3.

Extortion

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Pan American World Airways and Braniff International reported Monday that terrorists have demanded $1 million from each of the airlines.

"This is just one of dozens of threats we have received in the past year," a Pan Am spokesman said, but he would not give details.

Braniff's regional director, Harry Marples, said: "We received a threat ... We are taking special precautions as we do in all scares."

Both airlines confirmed that the extortion demands were for $1 million dollars, but they did not say what was asked in return for the money or whether threats were made.

Both airlines said flights were operating as usual.

Police sources said a group calling itself a faction of the Marxist People's Revolutionary Army signed notes to the two airlines detailing the demands, but there was no way of verifying if the people's army was actually involved.

Terrorists

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—Brazil's long-dormant urban terrorists exploded a powerful bomb Monday in the Santiago office of Chile's national airlines, LAN-Chile, police said.

A hospital spokesman said 14 persons were treated for minor injuries from the blast. The Chilean Embassy said the casualties included two political policemen and a Brazilian attorney.

The embassy said a letter with the bomb was from a leftist group, but did not elaborate.

A witness said a man deposited the bomb in the airline office during the morning rush hour, said, "I have a present for the government of Chile," and then fled in a waiting car.

Diplomatic sources said the Chilean Embassy has received telephone threats since a military coup toppled the government of Marxist President Salvador Allende.

Greece

ATHENS (AP)—The army backed Greek government resigned and President George Papadopoulos chose a moderate politician to form a civilian government. It will be charged with preparing Greece for its first general election in 10 years.

Russia

MOSCOW (AP)—U.S. Treasury Secretary George Schultz held a surprise two-hour meeting Monday night with Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev, a U.S. spokesman announced.

Later the official Soviet news agency Tass said the two men covered "a wide range of questions concerning Soviet-U.S. relations, including the development of commercial...ties."

The meeting, held in the Kremlin, came shortly after Shultz formally opened the third plenary session of the Soviet-American Trade Commission.

Barf, the DI's temperamental weather dog, was supposed to scamper in and write today's weather. However, the canine correspondent was so distressed when he read today's forecast that he yelped, bit the forecast to shreds and shot out of the newsroom lickety-split.

We salvaged the scraps of the paper only to learn that today we will most likely have showers. Highs in the 70s. Wait up, Barf.

Citizens 'kept in dark' about city's goals

By JERRY ATCHISON
Staff Writer

Citizens criticized city planners for what they termed as "the city's failure to listen and react to the needs of its citizens" at a public presentation Monday intended to familiarize local residents with the Iowa City Transit system.

Following a slide presentation of the history and possible future of mass transit in Iowa City, members of the Johnson County Regional Planning Commission (JCRPC) and the Institute for Urban and Regional Research (IURR) responded to charges that the public was "once again being kept in the dark" about the long range goals of the city administration.

"Current citizen advisory committees and public meetings such as these provide residents of the community with access to the city administrators," said Barry Hokanson, JCRPC senior planner.

The proposed increase in fares on the local buses was cited by members of the audience as an example of the city's failure to respond to the needs of its residents.

Brent Bair, G, 102 Church St., a member of the IURR, agreed that those who would benefit from the transit system must be well informed about its operation.

"At the turn of the century, mass transit was virtually the only method of transportation around town. Systems like the trolleys were heavily relied on for transportation."

"Today, if the transit systems were to remain effective, if the automobile and its related pollution and parking problems are to be lessened, we must continue to try and make the mass transit system a success," Bair said.

"Success is costly though," said Kenneth Dueker, director of the IURR. While not advocating an increase in fares, Dueker observed that 80 per cent of the cost of a bus system's equipment is paid for through federal subsidies, but no federal money is provided for the operation of the system.

"Would an increase in fares solve the financing problem of the city transit system?"

"Not necessarily," said Dueker. If, as the city predicts, the ridership were to drop by an estimated 22 per cent as a result of the fare increase, they might be right back where they started, he said.

An alternative plan, discussed members of the planners, would divert funds from auto-related projects and channel them into mass transit. Participants in the audience suggested that the $500,000 slated for the Melrose Avenue project might be put to "excellent use" in this fashion.

In response to this suggestion, members of the panel noted that the city was "locked into its decision to go ahead with the Melrose widening project." They doubled the capacity of the Burlington Street Bridge and agreed to an interchange of Freeway 518 at Melrose Avenue, thus requiring a method of getting the traffic between the two points.

Other suggestions from the planners for maintaining the quality and quantity of mass transit service in the city included the following:

—Staggered work periods in the business district which would spread out the peak periods of rider use.

—An integrated maintenance system that would enable all three bus facilities in the city to combine shop space and repair facilities.

—A "Ride and Shop" program much like the current "Park and Shop" program that would encourage people to leave their cars at home and take the bus to shop.

Pedestrian campus criticized at rally

By MARY WALLBAUM
News Editor

Persons attending a citizen's rally to consolidate opposition to highway changes suggested in the University of Iowa pedestrian oriented campus proposal charged Monday night those affected by these changes should decide the proposal's future.

Representatives from various citizen and university groups attending the meeting held in Center East said the highway construction and changes suggested in the proposal would destroy university recreation and residential areas.

"We who are affected have got to decide if (proposed highway) should go through and we hope to rally the support of students to do this," said Nancy Lineback, Iowa Student Public Interest Research Group (ISPIRG) member.

After representatives from each group finished stating objections to aspects of the proposal, a guerrilla theatre group ran down aisles to enact how route changes would hurt citizens.

A member of the UI recreation advisory committee charged the proposed re-routed Highway 6-218 which would run through lower Finkbine Golf Course would knock out UI intramural fields.

He also said this highway change, which is included in a five-year UI campus street improvement plan, was approved "in 30 seconds" at a recreational advisory committee meeting last Friday after UI officials effectively silenced opposition to the planned highway.

Asphalt and cement

The intramural field which would be affected by the route change is the "only flat surface that can be used as intramural fields on which 2,700 students play touch football," he said.

A representative of a Melrose Avenue citizens committee charged the proposed widening of Melrose Avenue is an unneeded and costly venture which would affect over 500 Melrose residents.

Senate refuses to cut weapons bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate reversed itself on two votes Monday, refusing finally to make an overall $500 million cut in a $21 billion weapons authorization bill.

Voting on the same issue twice, the Senate first accepted 51 to 47 a $500 million reduction in place of a $750 million cut proposal, then turned down the $500 million cut 51 to 47.

The bill was then passed by a 91 to 7 vote, sending the measure to a House-Senate conference to adjust differences.

Voting against the $500 million cut in the end were 15 Democrats and 36 Republicans. Voting for it were 42 Democrats and five Republicans.

Seven senators who voted for the $500 million cut initially as the lesser of the two proposed figures switched to vote against it on the final roll call. They were Sens. James B. Allen, D-Ala., Wallace F. Bennett, R-Utah, Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., Russell B. Long, D-La., Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., Gale McGee, D-Wyo., and Milton R. Young, R-N.D.

Three senators demonstrated preference for the larger cut by switching from "no" to "aye." They were Sens. Quentin N. Burdick, D-N.D.; Dick Clark, D-Iowa, and Harold E. Hughes, D-Iowa.

Administration supporters opposed any "meat-ax" cut. Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said the "meat-ax" approach did violence to the Senate's committee system where defense and other proposed expenditures are studied item by item.

Humphrey earlier had proposed a $750 million blanket cut. He said he considered it reasonable. In the end, he supported the Byrd modification, calling it "modest" and in keeping with fiscal responsibility.

During nine days of Senate debate, administration supporters were successful in defeating proposed curtailment of specific weapons systems.

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R.S.C., urged the Senate not to undo months of congressional scrutiny of individual programs with a "meat-ax approach" that he called impractical and dangerous to national security.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., argued on the other hand that defense spending must be curtailed if the national budget is to be held within limits without 25 to 40 per cent cuts in such programs as child nutrition, forest protection, health services and education.

Byrd defended his $500 million cut proposal as merely restoring the bill to the $20.4 billion voted by the Senate Armed Services Committee before additions were made on the floor.

The Senate added $495 million for the purchase of 50 additional F14 fighter aircraft for the Navy and Marine Corps.

The House reached a $20.4 billion total, $1.5 billion under President Nixon's budget request, by voting to require the Defense Department to make $950 million in overall reductions.

Differences in the House and Senate versions will have to be resolved in conference committee.

The Senate bill would require withdrawal of 110,000 land-based U.S. troops from overseas stations by Dec. 31, 1974, including 40,000 by June 30, 1974. It also would require a reduction

Penn Central ailing; asks aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Interstate Commerce Commission asked a federal judge Monday to keep the Penn Central Railroad running until a reorganization plan could be drawn up for the financially ailing corporation.

Liquidation of the railroad, the ICC said in a report to U.S. District Court Judge John P. Fullam, would have "a severe economic effect on the people of the entire northeast sector of the country." It also would "have a ripple effect from coast to coast," the commission said.

Judge Fullam currently is overseeing the reorganization of the Penn Central under federal bankruptcy statutes. He had asked the ICC to prepare by Oct. 1 a proposal that would keep the railroad running without eroding the assets of its creditors.

Otherwise, Judge Fullam said, he would have no choice but to order the railroad shut down. He has set a hearing in Philadelphia Oct. 12 to determine what will be done with the railroad.

Neither Judge Fullam nor the railroad trustees will have comment on the ICC report until after the Oct. 12 hearing.

The ICC offered no plan for reorganization but said it had taken preliminary steps towards restructuring the Penn Central and the other ailing railroads in the Northeast.

It said it would hold a series of hearings in the near future to determine just how much of the development and construction of the Trident submarine system, completing the first fully equipped submarine in 1978.

The Senate voted $1.1 billion for the purchase of 77 F15 aircraft for the Air Force, compared with 39 allowed by the House.

The Senate bill strips $100 million from the $473.5 million requested by the administration for the B1 bomber development program.

Penn Central's 20,000 miles of track should be utilized after reorganization.

These hearings, the ICC said, also would focus on the adequacy of alternative transportation in some areas, on the condition of the Penn Central's equipment and on the public's willingness to provide financial support.

The commission said it felt Penn Central could be restructured into a viable network if external assistance was provided but rejected outright all three proposals presented to it during its more than one month of hearings.

The ICC said its final plan would call for "substantial federal-state monetary and other assistance."

Hancher events

Student tickets are now on sale for Neil Simon's play "The Prisoner of Second Avenue." Starring Imogene Coca and King Donovan, the comedy will be presented at 8 p.m. Oct. 20 and at 3 and 8 p.m. Oct. 21 at the University of Iowa's Hancher Auditorium.

Mail orders from non-students are also being accepted at the Hancher box office. Box office sales to non-students will begin Oct. 8.

The box office is open from 11 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday; 1 to 3 p.m. Sunday; and until 9 p.m. on the nights of performances at the auditorium.

All tickets have been sold for the 8 p.m., Oct. 14 performance of "Grease" at Hancher. Tickets may still be obtained for the 3 p.m., Oct. 14 matinee, with seats available in all three seating zones.

'Cabaret' cast

The cast has been announced for the University of Iowa's production of the musical "Cabaret," which will be presented at Hancher Auditorium Nov. 8-10 and 16-18.

Dan Shaheen, G. Cedar Rapids, will portray the Master of Ceremonies, the role created on Broadway by Joel Grey. Shaheen has appeared most recently in UI theater productions of "The Music Man" and "Chamber Piece."

Amanda Howard, A1, Great Neck, N.Y., is cast as Sally Bowles, and David Vining of the UI Theater Department will play Cliff.

Also appearing in the production, directed by Prof. Cosmo Catalano, are Cheryl Rhoads, A2, Western Springs, Ill., as Fraulein Schneider; Randy Alderson, G, Wadena, Iowa, as Herr Schultz; Starla Smith, A4, Union, Iowa, as Fraulein Kost; and John Cuttler, A4, Spencer, Iowa, as Ernst.

City Council

The Iowa City Council will hold a public hearing on the proposed budget for 1974 and the first half of 1975 at 4 p.m. today in the council chambers at the Civic Center.

Mayor C.L. "Tim" Brandt urges all interested residents to attend the hearing and express their opinions. The council will make a final decision on the budget at its 4 p.m. meeting on Oct. 9.

No smoking

AMES, Iowa (AP)—Students living in Alumni Hall on the Iowa State University campus won't be smoking in their rooms any longer.

The 65 male residents have voted to limit smoking to the rest rooms and to the Catacombs and Dugout, where food machines are located.

Robert Randall, executive director of the YM-CA, which operates the dormitory, said the building is old and thinks there was as much concern about fire as there was feeling against smoking.

Flansburg

The senior political reporter for the Des Moines Register, James Flansburg, will speak on "The Changing Political Scene in Iowa" Wednesday, Oct. 3, at 7:30 p.m. in the Minnesota Room of the Union.

Flansburg covered both political conventions last year and has worked for the Register for 16 years.

The meeting is open to the public and is sponsored by Sigma Delta Chi, a professional journalism organization.

Huit readily available at Union to help with 'anything, everything'

By LINDA YOUNG
Staff Writer

A nervous student may walk into the green carpeted office half fearful of meeting a stiffly formal Dean of Students. Instead he finds himself seated on a comfortable couch with the Dean taking orders for coffee.

Have a problem with the administration, an instructor or yourself? One place to go for help is to Marion L. Huit, Dean of Students and recently appointed university ombudsman.

In 26 years at the University of Iowa, Dean Huit has handled every kind of problem. "You name it, I've heard it," he says.

The Ombudsman title is little more than an official name to a role Huit has played for a long time. "It's a formalization of the work I've done for years," Huit says.

Huit's job as ombudsman is primarily to serve as a liaison between the administration and students.

to student groups or individuals. "I look at a situation and recommend to the affected body what I think could be done, Huit said. Some of Huit's suggestions have been acted on favorably and rather quickly. For instance, on his suggestion, many has found him dealing with many cases and problems, from drugs to sex to law. Once he answered a call for help from students who had been arrested and subsequently found himself locked in jail. "I managed to yell loud enough for someone to let me out," he smiled.

Huit said if he is unable to help a student he will often refer him to someone who can. Huit views his work as a necessary function. "If everyone's problems were cleared up I'd work myself out of a job. But that's a pretty ideal situation."

Normally the job calls for an eight-hour day. However, Huit receives calls at home. Huit said he has never received a crank call, and attributes the lack of harassment to his respect for students. "Students will treat you as you treat them. I strive for mutual respect and understanding."

"I work in behalf of the students, not necessarily to defend them, but to get the facts and to be fair and objective to everyone," he said adding that each case is handled in the strictest confidence.

Huit has served as Dean of Students since the Office of Student Affairs, which he headed, was "liquidated" three years ago.

Still Huit serves in something of an administrative capacity. He handles inquiries and requests for references that before would have been sent to the Office of Student Affairs.

Despite the official title, Dean Huit can only suggest administrative action with respect sidewalk curbs have been lowered for easier access to handicapped persons.

Huit takes time out once a week to rap informally with students about "anything, and everything."

Huit said he started these informal chats with students five or six years ago, "in the student activities center. However when he found himself "talking only to student group leaders and political leaders," he moved into the Wheel Room to be available to a wider range of students in need of help.

Last Wednesday Huit moved his weekly rap session, the first this semester, into the Land-

Apparently the 3 to 5 p.m. Wednesday stint is a notable success for Huit. "I'm talking with someone nearly all the time and sometimes people even wait in line to see me," he says with a trace of a smile.

Huit estimates about 90 students have come to his office seeking advice or with complaints thus far this semester.

"I'm not an administrator working with discipline," Huit said students frequently are afraid he's the high school principle stereotype, dealing with discipline. "That's not the case," he asserts.

Pedestrian plan would close Iowa Avenue bridge

Editor's note—This is the second of three articles presenting the University of Iowa proposal for a pedestrian oriented campus. Today's story deals with specific route changes suggested in the proposal and Wednesday's will present current objections to these changes.

By MARY WALLBAUM
News Editor

One of the inherent goals of the pedestrian oriented campus—the UI proposal to drastically reduce campus traffic—is to unify and, in a sense, create a University of Iowa campus.

A concern of UI Pres. Willard Boyd is that because of physical location, UI colleges located on the west side of the Iowa River may view themselves as separate entities divided from the "campus," the Pentacrest area.

In addition, there are currently four specific highway penetrations through university areas which UI officials see as separating parts of the campus from each other and contributing to an ununified, multi-versity feeling.

These are:
—Melrose Avenue—which is now and soon will become even more so a major east-west arterial.

—Highway 6-218 Riverside Drive—which divides the east and west campuses.

—Jefferson-Madison streets—which divide the Clinton Street dormitories, a number of academic buildings and the Union from the balance of the east side campus.

—The western portion of Iowa Avenue and the Iowa Avenue bridge which funnels an excess of 14,000 cars per day around the Pentacrest.

In addition, current city plans, in conjunction with urban renewal development, would develop Madison Street into a major north-south artery.

Pedestrian oriented campus proposals are based in large part on closing or reducing traffic access to these streets to eliminate major causes of campus division as well as to eliminate cars from the campus area.

Two of the strongest suggestions in the proposal call for the closing of Madison Street between Burlington and Jefferson streets and closure of the Iowa Avenue bridge.

The proposal states that Iowa Avenue and the Iowa Avenue bridge are the key to campus circulation "problems" because they funnel traffic through the campus area and require Madison, Jefferson, Market and Washington streets, all of which pass through the campus area, to remain open.

Therefore, the proposal states the necessity of closing Iowa Avenue and the bridge west of the Pentacrest.

However, closure of this complex would require changes in traffic patterns of Highway 6-218 and improvement of the Burlington Street-Riverside Drive intersection.

The proposal suggests that Freeway 518, the construction of which the university believes will be completed in the near future, will divert much regional traffic from Riverside Drive leaving only "local" traffic on this street which can be re-routed from the campus area.

Daily Iowan News Perspective

In order to accomplish this re-routing, the proposal suggests four circulation changes.

Two of these changes would result in the actual re-routing

6-218 itself around the campus.

Specifically, 6-218 would be routed from a point near its intersection with Rock Shore Drive south across the east end of the lower Finkbine Golf Course to the Rock Island Railroad where it would veer southeast and parallel the railroad tracks to an intersection with Melrose Avenue.

In the long range version, a new bridge would be built across the Iowa River, reducing some of the demand on the Burlington Street bridge.

The second change would be a connection between 6-218 and North Riverside Drive, located al states this would provide a more direct north-south arterial through the community than presently provided, would permit river crossing at other than Benton and Burlington Street bridges and would reduce pressure on the Highway 618-1 intersection.

The proposal, as indicated above, contains interim and long range proposals.

The only difference between these is in the highway used for the relocation of Highway 6-218.

The interim version funnels the balance of re-routed traffic down Melrose Avenue and across the Burlington Street bridge. Routing traffic this way relies on the construction of a Melrose Avenue diagonal. The location of this diagonal would be from the intersection of South Grand Avenue and Melrose angling to the Burlington Street bridge at Riverside Drive.

While this diagonal would always be maintained, traffic flow on it would be reduced with the implementation of the long range version which does not funnel traffic down Melrose and calls for a new bridge across the Iowa River.

tion with Melrose Avenue.

From this point, in a short range plan, the route would follow Melrose Avenue east to a point east of its intersection with South Grand Avenue, at which point it would move diagonally northeast to the intersection of 6-218 Riverside Drive and Burlington Street.

In a long range version of the proposal, relocated 6-218 would continue southward across the intersection with Melrose Avenue and continue to parallel the railroad tracks into the area east of the Iowa River, at which point it would connect with the north-south arterial system.

These relocations would serve several purposes, according to the proposal. They would permit Riverside Drive to be closed to through traffic where it passes through the campus. In addition, the short range version would funnel traffic across the Burlington Street bridge. The proposal states this routing would improve the capacity of this intersection and the river crossing capability of the bridge.

The greater traffic dependence on this bridge would make the closure of the Iowa Avenue Bridge possible.

The first would be a connection between Fifth Street Coralville and North Dubuque Street at Taft Speedway. The purpose of this route would be to provide an alternative to 6-218 for certain traffic moving between Coralville and Iowa City. The university proposal would also divert the route from Manville Heights.

The second diversionary "improvement" is a connection between 218 south of Iowa City with Gilbert Street. The propos-

Station owners 'livid with rage'

By The Associated Press

Relaxed Phase 4 controls already have increased the cost of gasoline for motorists in many areas, but rising wholesale prices may quickly generate pressure for a new round of retail hikes.

Independent operators of branded service stations in nine states met over the weekend in Las Vegas and called for an indefinite, nationwide shutdown of 200,000 stations until all retail price controls are lifted.

But Charles Binsted, president of the National Congress of Petroleum Retailers, the only national group representing branded dealers, said his organization had not taken any move in that direction.

And a shutdown protest in Houston over the Cost of Living Council's Phase 4 gasoline regulations drew little support Monday despite predictions that 80 per cent of the stations would close.

In Southern California, two dealers' associations said they would urge a shutdown of their 3,000-member stations for at least a week beginning Friday.

The dealers will be asked at a meeting in Los Angeles Wednesday night to lock their pumps until the council lifts Phase 4 price ceilings, said an attorney for one group.

"You've got a bunch of angry dealers," said one operator. "They're fed up and they're not going to take any more."

A spokesman for a station operators' association in Northern California said its members were "livid with rage" over the council's increases to consumers.

The council, in new rules issued Friday, relaxed its regulations to change the base date for ceiling prices from last Jan. 10 to May 15 and allowed dealers to pass along all wholesale increases to Sept. 28. This allowed increases of as much as 2½ cents a gallon.

But three major companies announced wholesale price increases of from two-tenths of a cent to 1½ cents a gallon over the weekend and these hikes must be absorbed by the dealers.

"The ink is not dry on the new regulations and we find that Shell went up one minute after midnight on the 29th, which means the dealers are not entitled to that two-tenths of a cent," Binsted said.

Phillips Petroleum Co. raised wholesale prices by a half-cent a gallon and Atlantic Richfield set a 1½ cent increase.

Binsted said the executive directors and boards of directors of the group's member state organizations would discuss the situations during meetings in Washington on Wednesday and Thursday.

Pollution money and bureaucracy

The American people are by now used to seeing the President impound funds for badly needed programs. Now the Canadian government and the people of Canada are learning the same thing under similar conditions.

Just as each day's Watergate testimony deteriorates Nixon's credibility at home, so his international credibility deteriorates everytime Canadians look at the great lakes.

Amid much celebration and fanfare the President and Prime Minister Trudeau signed a pact in April of last year designed to provide the cash necessary to de-pollute municipal and industrial wastewater discharges to the lakes.

The cost for this mammoth undertaking was estimated at $250 million for the Canadian side and $2 billion for the American side. According to the approved text of the treaty a 1975 deadline was set. The Canadians believed that this meant that all work was to be completed by then, but American spokesmen say no, that it was only meant to be started by then, or at least the money was to be committed by then. This interpretation by the Americans surprised the Canadians, but to the American people it is just another example of bureaucratic foot-dragging that we have witnessed in this country for many years. This is not just a characteristic of the Nixon Administration, but of all administrations of the past.

The Canadian government has put the burden of cost on their taxpayers and the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, roughly the equivalent of the U.S. Federal Housing Administration, has loaned the municipalities $167 million of the $250 million needed.

United States law provides for 50 to 55 percent federal aid for pollution control, so Canadians looked forward to a real thrust of activity, particularly for badly ailing Lakes Erie and Ontario. Congress bouyed their hopes even more when it appropriated over $6 billion for water pollution abatement, but once again American credibility stood out like a sore thumb when the President impounded all but about $2 billion for 1973 and $3 billion for 1974—nationwide.

The Canadians view the impoundment as leading to a three to five year delay in getting the work done. They base this assumption on three facts:

—Construction around the Great Lakes ordinarily can be started only between March and October so that work can be under cover during the cold months, resulting in at least a years delay while everything is sorted out.

—The impoundment does not reduce allotments to all projects by a fixed percentage, but under a priority system all the money available goes to a few projects, resulting in a starting delay for at least 60 percent of the work.

—American city officials, aware of how Congress juggles anti-pollution funds, are reluctant to even start serious planning until they're sure of how much federal money they can get.

Canadian hopes soared somewhat when a United States federal court ruled that these impoundments were not legal. Then they read the fine print, as did dismayed American environmentalists, and learned that the Environmental Protection Agency must consider all applications before it decides whether any money is actually allocated, but is not required to allocate all that is appropriated.

One could go on and on about the justification or the lack of justification for the President's impoundment decisions, but by doing this we lose sight of the more important crime that is being allowed to grow by governmental inaction. The crime is allowing our countries natural beauty to be continually raped by idleness. Worse than the widening credibility gap is the simple fact that pollution in Lake Erie is moving nearer the point of no return every day.

Perhaps the President believes that one natural beauty in this country is enough.

Percy visit

To the Editor:

Senator Charles Percy's visit on October 4 in the Iowa Memorial Union at 3:30 is an excellent opportunity to become better acquainted with one of the leading public figures in America. Since his debut in elective politics in 1964, Percy has become a force to be reckoned with on the American political scene. Percy's race for the governorship of Illinois in that year marked the culmination of a gradual changeover from a spectacularly successful business career to full-time involvement in public affairs. Although smothered by the Johnson landslide in his first campaign, Percy put up a tough vigorous fight that won him national recognition. Two years later, he ran for public office again, this time for the Senate in Illinois. His startling 55 per cent victory over the popular incumbent made him a national figure. Percy's impressive 1.1 million vote reelection margin last year as well as his progressive, moderate stands have heightened speculation that Percy might be a serious candidate for the Republican presidential nomination in 1976. With this possibility in mind, it is well worth your while to come and interact with the man who just might be the 38th president of the United States.

CAMBUS riders

To the Editor:

Last year CAMBUS was initiated as the mass transit system to transport students, faculty, and staff from peripheral parking lots (primarily Hancher) to various points around campus. Long distance inter-campus travel and safe commuting at night were additional benefits the system was designed to meet. The tremendous success as demonstrated by the 12,000 daily riders last year is evidence that the system has effectively accomplished its purpose.

The systems success has continued this year. During the first months of the fall term, ridership on CAMBUS has skyrocketed. During a clear 70 degree day last week the ridership exceeded 17,000 passengers. This increase has been attributed to people using the bus rather than "walking two or three blocks." Unfortunately the CAMBUS system is neither equipped nor financed to handle this heavy of a load. The concern of the managers of CAMBUS is increasing as the colder months of the year come closer. Estimates are running as high as 23,000 people daily for the winter months.

A proposal has been informally suggested to charge five to ten cents to ride CAMBUS to help control this problem. I'm sure that most students would strongly oppose this charge. Unfortunately the alternatives are few.

If daily ridership levels can return to last year's levels, CAMBUS can remain a free service. If students will return to walking rather than riding when they are only five to ten minutes from their destination, a lot of money and hassle for those students who really need CAMBUS can be saved.

Nixon talks

Editor's Note: The following article is the second of a two-part series by Bob Sutton.

Z. What did you say to Vice-President Agnew concerning his potential presidential ambitions after hearing of his possible indictment?

N. I see thy glory like a shooting star
Fall to the base earth from the firmament.

Z. This whole Watergate affair seems to have changed you, Mr. President.
Your conciliatory gestures towards Congress, your candor with the members of the press would indicate a "New, New Nixon" has been born.

N. The quality of mercy is not strained
It droppeth as the gentle rain from heaven

...It is an attribute of God himself;
And earthly power doth then show likest

God's;
When mercy seasons justice.

Z. I'm deeply moved, Mr. President. What, then, will be the first act of this New New Nixon?
The first thing we do, let's kill all the lawyers....

At that point, Ziegler interrupted before Nixon could elaborate any further and dissuaded the President from using the words of Shakespeare and to stick to the tried and true method of prior press conferences. Nixon, Himself, was finally persuaded to admit, in his own words, "I have neither wit, nor words, nor worth. Action, nor utterance, nor the power of speech. To stir men's blood I only speak right on. Right on, right on!

Incumbency and money

Editor's Note: Today's Equal Time column is a contribution of Paul E. Bohnsack II of 504 Rienow.

Wayne Haddy's September 27th article on "Money and Politics" provides an interesting background for a discussion of campaign financing in the First Congressional District of Iowa.

A Common Cause study cited by Mr. Haddy shows that Democratic challengers spent last year an average of $29,600 trying to beat Republican congressmen who spent an average of $60,800 trying to keep their seats. Reports on file with the Clerk of the U.S. House of Representatives show that this trend was completely reversed in the First District congressional race last year. While Edward Mezvinsky collected over $132,000 in a successful drive to unseat his incumbent opponent, Republican Fred Schwengel collected only $69,500 in his efforts to stay in office. The war chest amassed by Mezvinsky enabled him to become one of only ten challengers to defeat an incumbent congressman. This was despite claims by Mezvinsky that Schwengel would outspend him by a 4 to 1 margin.

Next year Mezvinsky will be the incumbent trying to retain his seat and as a result, according to the Common Cause study, he will probably outspend his Republican opponent. It is here that a real challenge develops for our congressman. For as the incumbent candidate, Mezvinsky will have all the advantages associated with incumbency, and he should therefore make every effort to keep his campaign receipts well below the excessive amounts he collected last year. In addition, he has the responsibility to let the voters know immediately where the money is coming from that he does receive. In 1972 Mezvinsky accepted thousands of dollars from labor groups that didn't have any interests or representation in the First District; groups such as the International Ladies Garments Workers Union; the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite, and Paper mill Workers; United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastic Workers of America; and the Brooklyn Longshoremen's Political Action & Education Fund. In addition, he received $9,000 from dairy and agricultural groups in Missouri and Kentucky. If any such questionable contributions are accepted by next year's Mezvinsky campaign, the public has every right to know why and to receive assurances that such contributions come with no strings attached.

With incumbency comes responsibility. I hope Ed Mezvinsky is concerned enough to live up to this responsibility.

Grading and EPC

I've had more than a little trouble following the current debate over grading in the meetings of the Educational Policies Committee. This could be due to my never having understood the grading system as evidenced by the fact that I received six hours of D in one of my majors, took a course pass-fail from an instructor who gave an A to anyone who missed fewer than three classes and worked harder in one pass-fail course than I did in several required courses. Also, it could be due to the fact that the debate isn't making a lot of sense.

What bothers me most about the debate is that I have yet to read in articles about the debate any mention of the EPC members quoting long term studies to back up their various points of view concerning grading. I'll assume that this is not due to any of Chuck Hickman's omissions (a shaky assumption in the things I wrote for the DI) but rather that this is due to the EPC members not quoting any studies.

This leads me to wonder what the debate is all about. I would assume that the committee is looking for the best grading system, i.e. one that will be of the most benefit to students. This in turn assumes that grading is supposed to ultimately benefit students and is not a hold-over from the last century or simply a method that enables the administration to objectively kick some people out of school and make others Phi Beta Kappas. Proceeding on those two assumptions, I'm left even more confused about the lack of evidence used to support the various grading systems being discussed.

In the back of my head is the suspicion that there are no studies that would indicate the best grading system. If there are, even if the studies were contradicted by countless other studies or even common sense, I'm sure someone would quote from them.

To remedy this glaring oversight I suggest that the liberal arts college in conjunction with the college of education begin a study of alternative grading systems conducted roughly as follows:

—Each graduate is assigned to one of several distinct grading systems for the duration of his or her stay at the university. The distinct systems would include the current pass-fail system; the pre-pass-fail straight grading system; the Stuit plan for credit-no credit; the Huntley chameleon system of allowing five poor grades to be changed to pass at graduation; total pass-fail, and a variable credit system.

(This system, which was put into effect for a short time by a business professor five years ago awarded varying hours of credit instead of grades depending on the amount of work done by a student. A student who simply showed up most of the time and knew something on the tests received one hour; a student who did well on the tests, wrote a final paper and talked in class received five hours with various other requirements for earning two, three or four hours.)

—Students would be questioned periodically by researchers about their attitudes toward education, grading, careers, personal expectations, etc., in order to determine what variables besides a particular grading system have an effect on grades and learning.

—All students would be given some sort of entering test to determine how much they knew when they arrived and an exit test to determine what they knew when they left. SAT and GRE tests could be used for this.

—The performance of students at the university would be compared with the performance of students at other universities while they were students. After graduation comparisons would be made to determine if the various grading systems correlated with professional success, personal satisfaction or learning in graduate programs.

Basically the proposal calls for studying the educational system to death to determine the interplay between personal attributes (e.g. motivation), educational systems (grading) and performance in later life. This understanding of how education works, an understanding now lacking, should make for schools that are more responsive to the real needs of students and the needs of the society they have to function in.

The education industry should be expected to invest in research and development with an eye to bettering its product like any other multi-million dollar industry. Then, when the results are in, the EPC can make a decision based on facts and not on whatever it is that they base their current discussion.

This whole line of reasoning breaks down if either of the assumptions in the third paragraph are wrong: that the EPC members are interested in what is most beneficial to students and that grading systems can benefit students and correlate significantly with professional success, personal satisfaction, etc. My personal belief is that both these assumptions are wrong and that the EPC is engaged in a debate that serves to put it in a class with student senate, namely, those given to grandiose statements and arduous debate in an attempt to reach a monumental solution to a problem of monumental insignificance. Of course, writing this puts me in the same boat, but my television is broken and I had nothing better to do.

Limitation statutes hasten Agnew probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal prosecutors are racing the calendar to wind up their probe of Spiro T. Agnew before statutes of limitations run out on alleged crimes for which the vice president is being investigated.

Legal arguments may be made that the statutes on at least some of the alleged crimes expire in as little as three weeks, it was learned Monday.

Agnew is under investigation by a special federal grand jury in Baltimore for possible violation of bribery, extortion, tax and conspiracy laws while governor of Maryland.

Under federal law, prosecution for bribery and extortion must be initiated within five years of the commission of the crime. After five years, no legal action can be taken. The statutes of limitations on tax evasion and tax fraud are six years.

The statutes on conspiracy to commit bribery or extortion are five years; on conspiracy to commit tax evasion or fraud, six years.

On Oct. 22, 1968, the Maryland State Board of Public Works held its last major session before Agnew left the office of governor. At that session, seven major engineering contracts were awarded totalling more than $5.6 million.

These contracts involved construction of approaches to the Chesapeake Bay Bridge and the Baltimore Outer Harbor Tunnel, the two major projects to be financed out of a $220 million bond issue.

All records involving these contracts have been subpoenaed by the Baltimore grand jury.

Should the panel wish to indict Agnew for extortion, bribery or conspiracy to commit either of those crimes in connection with the Oct. 22, 1968 awards, Agnew's lawyers reportedly are considering an argument that the indictment cannot be returned after Oct. 22, 1973 — five years after the meeting, sources close to the case reported.

Milk prices expected to rise in Iowa

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—The president of the Iowa Dairy Foods Association says Iowa housewives will probably be paying three to four cents more per quart of milk early this month.

The price hike is expected to vary among various areas of the state.

Store operators will probably hand out three to four cents more per gallon of ice cream.

In an Associated Press interview Monday, John Brockway said he didn't know where the increases in dairy products would stop. "It's gone beyond anything anybody expected," he said.

Brockway explained that many families switched to cheeses when meat prices soared a few months ago. That boosted the price of dairy foods.

Brockway said the increase in milk costs follow guidelines set by the Cost of Living Council, which now allows the increased cost of raw agriculture products, labor and other factors to be passed on.

Among the other factors contributing to the boost is a large jump in the cost of soybean meal—the principal protein feed for dairy cows, the association president explained.

By that reasoning, however, the prosecutors should have until Oct. 22 of next year to pursue allegations of violation of tax laws, the sources said.

It is known that the prosecutors in Baltimore are moving as quickly as possible to present evidence to the grand jury.

Crucial to that effort was the ruling last week by U.S. Dist. Court Judge Walter E. Hoffman that the grand jury investigation may continue while Agnew's lawyers and the Justice Department battle in court over the grand jury's constitutional right to investigate a sitting vice president.

In the meantime, Agnew was to return here late Monday afternoon from a weekend on the West Coast during which he made the strongest statement in his personal defense since he disclosed Aug. 6 that he was under investigation.

Agnew also attacked Asst. Atty. Gen. Henry E. Petersen as the source of a controversial news leak about the investigation. On Monday, the White House said Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson had assured President Nixon that Petersen was not the source of the CBS news report Sept. 22. That report quoted sources as saying Petersen had said of the investigation: "We've got the evidence; we've got it cold."

"This morning the attorney general assured the White House that Asst. Atty. Gen. Petersen was not the source of the statement reported on CBS," said Deputy White House Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren. "The attorney general assured the White House that Asst. Atty. Gen. Petersen had not talked to the news media."

NBC tries, fails to recreate vaudeville

By MARTHA ROSEN
Feature Writer
When I was much younger, my parents and I used to watch "The Ed Sullivan Show" together. I would laugh and cheer and chuckle my way through the comics, the dog acts and the romantic tenors, while my parents smiled tolerantly and said, "You would have loved vaudeville honey." I've always been sorry that I missed it.

had in mind. I've always thought of vaudeville as something vital, fast and raucous. The show is lame and belabored. It's one contribution to the variety show genre (America's newest dying art) is that it doesn't have a host. No one comes out and says, "Our next guest is the lovely Lapp songbird, star of the Northern Wastes, etc." The acts just keep on coming with no messing around.

several years ago. There are also a lot of long-legged show girls who sing the title song something about "Here's the NBC Follies—Bringing you your jollies." The song ends with: "And so, on with the Show!" Off with it, I say.

A semi-newcomer on television is "The New Perry Mason Show" (Sunday nights, CBS). CBS has a solid three hours of crime and drama on Sundays, "Perry Mason," "Mannix," and "Barnaby Jones." They all look basically the same, mostly because they're all set in that smoggy Los Angeles never-never land that television executives think passes for reality.

The new Perry Mason is played by Monte Markham; his supporting cast (Della Street, Lt. Tragg, et. al.) includes such fine actors as Sharon Acker and Harry Guardino. If you like the other CBS crime shows you'll like this.

On Monday nights, there is something good happening. It's the semi-new "New Dick Van Dyke Show." (I wonder why they don't go the whole way and call it "The New New Dick Van Dyke Show.") I suppose it is a bit much.) Our hero, Dick Preston, has moved with his lovely wife

Jenny and his not-too-intolerably-smart-aleck kids to Hollywood, where he intends to make his living as an actor. (The Phoenix television station for which he did a talk show last season evidently fired him, perhaps because his ratings and reviews were as bad as "The New Dick Van Dyke Show's" were.)

The real hero of the switch is Carl Reiner, who was also the genius behind Van Dyke's original television show. Carl Reiner is once again working on scripts, editing, and so on, and he has saved the day.

The two shows I've seen this season have been tight, comic and acid when necessary. As an added bonus, for those who like cute young men, there is the presence of Barry Gordon. Not only is he, as advertised, cute—young, he is also the actor who played Murray Burns' nephew in the film version of "A Thousand Clowns." I always knew something interesting would happen to Nicky—turned—Murray (he was the one who got to change his name until he hit something he wanted permanently). As it turns out, he grew up to be a neurotic Hollywood scriptwriter. Way to go, kid.

Coe College to present Memphis Blues' greats in concert, workshop Thursday

By LEMUEL GENOVESE
Feature Writer
Coe College plans a concert of Memphis Blues' greats at 8 p.m., Oct. 4 in Sinclair Auditorium. Prior to the concert there will be an afternoon workshop at the Gage Union in the PUB. Featured are those gentlemen of the Blues: Furry Lewis, Sleepy John Estes with Hammie Nixon, Houston Stackhouse, Joe Willie Wilkins and His King Biscuit Boys, Piano Red and Harmonica Frank Floyd. Tickets run $2.50 and $3.00 and are available by writing to the Ticket Office, Gage Memorial Union, Coe College, Cedar Rapids, Iowa 52402.

Coe has saved the day for the dedicated Blues aficionados of Iowa and culled some of the finest straight-line country blues artists still touring in this country. Now let us understand that there is a difference between Blues and the Blooze.

around today is Sleepy John Estes, and with Hammie Nixon on Harp their set should really be something to behold.

Does Harmonica Frank Floyd fit into the ranks of these Bluesmen? Well, he's on the bill, so that's got to mean something. I'm told he's developed a way of putting a harmonica in one side of his mouth and is able to play it and sometimes sing at the same time. Does Paul Butterfield do that?

Any University or Staff person can call the service at 353-3116 and receive information on commuters leaving from this area. The person must also leave his name so others calling in can contact him.

All information is stored in two boxes marked, "rides" and "riders", filed according to location. Starting October 8, the boxes will be open to anyone who wishes to browse through them for contacts.

When a person makes satisfactory arrangements, his name will be moved to an inactive file so that he won't be receiving unnecessary calls. If the arrangements don't work out for some reason, the person can call the commuter service and have his name moved to an active file.

The commuter service will also have a file for weekend travellers. The weekend service works in the same way as the regular service. A person leaves his name, destination, and day of departure. He will then receive the names of those who meet the given qualifications.

Kathy Hagman, G. Cedar Rapids, the supervisor of the commuter service, says that its success depends on the generosity of those driving regularly. She points out that taking riders is not only beneficial economically, but also ecologically; fewer cars on the road will reduce the effects of air pollution and also conserve fuel.

W.C. Handy, one of the founding fathers of the Blues gave Furry Lewis his first decent guitar and his recordings stretch three decades and his bottleneck style hasn't lost its bite. "Playboy" even did an article on his a few years back.

Groups opposing Melrose project

Student wants to join

Before transferring to the University of Iowa I considered the Melrose Project a good idea because it would allow for more of a pedestrian campus, but since reading more about the proposal I have changed my views. My question is, are there any student organizations concerned with the defeat of this project or any groups supporting an alternative route for the highway; one that would avoid the loss of day care centers and people's homes?—L.D.

There are several groups you might wish to contact if you're interested in working in opposition to the Melrose Project. First of all there's the Melrose Avenue Civic Association, composed primarily of persons living in the area to be affected, including people from the dormitory complex on west side of the river. We spoke with Jim Herman concerning this organization. You could call him, 338-4320, or the group's chairperson, David Baldus, for more information.

There are other citizens' groups opposed to the project. The People's Alliance for Carpenter and Ranney has taken a stand against it. If you wish to support these individuals, who would work against the proposed development from within the City Council if elected, you could call 351-4852. We have also learned that the Iowa Student Public Research Group, ISPIRG, has taken a position opposing the project. Their number is 337-7774.

The Daily Iowan is running a series of articles on the proposed Melrose Project. Check your DI for the series which began yesterday and will continue through tomorrow for more information.

What's in our tap water?

What is in our city tap water beside H2O and Chlorine? It is at its all-time vilest to my taste. Why aren't ozone purification techniques used here as in other places so that chlorine would be unnecessary? Is there a public tap in town where one could draw off good spring or well water? Do any of the supermarkets sell reasonably-priced mineral water?—W.S.

If you think this is bad you should be here in the spring. That's when it becomes necessary to really step up the content to "purify" the city water supply. If you don't care for it the way it is now, you'll be pleased to know that most local groceries sell bottled water. Prices run from 40 to 50 cents a gallon, which you may or may not consider to be reasonable. We know of no public well within the city available for the use of persons dissatisfied with the local brew.

If you're really interested in the contents of the Iowa City water, there's a pamphlet put out by the university entitled "Water Water Everywhere" available at the University Water Plant. University water is substantially the same as City water; they both use the same river, and put in most of the same additives. Very briefly, what they put in consists of the following: filter alum, a coagulant to remove suspended material; lime, for chemical softening, the filtration and removal of particles; and chlorine, a disinfectant. Both city and university water contains flouride as well, for better teeth. Everything that goes in has a purpose.

The ozone treatment of which you made mention is quite a new process with advantages and disadvantages of its own. As far as we could determine it's a process used by relatively few communities, and primarily smaller ones. The task of converting all of the chlorine-type purification equipment presently in use in Iowa City would be very expensive. It's unlikely that any change will be forthcoming in the immediate future.

Return to Forever

Chick Corea to perform at Hancher

Chick Corea and his group, Return to Forever, will be performing at Hancher Auditorium on Oct. 27. They are the second prominent jazz group to appear at Hancher this year.

Corea, who plays electric piano, is one of the many young stars of the jazz world who came to prominence playing with Miles Davis. Earlier in his career Corea played with Stan Getz.

Although he began his career playing with jazz groups he prefers not to label his current music "jazz." His current style is melody-oriented and makes frequent use of Latin-American and rock rhythms.

bass, Lenny White on drums (White, with Corea appeared on Miles Davis' album "Bitches Brew") and Bill Connors on electric guitar. Their last album, "Light as a Feather," has sold well and has been popular not only with jazz fans but with the rock and roll set as well.

Student tickets for the concert will cost $2.00 and go on sale tomorrow at Hancher Box Office. Non-student tickets will cost $3.50 and go on sale October 9.

The group's music has been described as having a solid Rhythm and Blues base, and critics have called it "among the most listenable jazz being played today."

The group features Stanley Clarke on electric and acoustic

Course aids coping with stress

By LESLIE MANN
Feature Writer

It's eight twenty-five. Raining. You're two blocks from Spanish. Five minutes from a mid-term. The boy you've been watching eight weeks from across the street is heading your way. Finally. Your pulse races. You taste your eggs. Now's the chance. You wet your lips, determined to smile. He is reading the paper. Closer. He turns the page. The paper is getting soggy and limp in his hands. How can he read and walk you wonder. Neat. There's time to toss your head before he looks up. You wish it weren't raining. Hair in strings. Makeup running. Hate Spanish. Almost there. A horn honks. You turn. Dog in street almost run over.

You look back. He is past. You turn and smile at his back. His hair is nice on his shoulders. Your smile cracks. He is still reading. You start to run. Your Spanish book falls. Turn back one last time. He is crossing the street. Paper at side. You're late to Spanish. Everyone looks up. You miss the direction given once in English. You end up doing the whole test in Spanish when half was in English. Next day, he is back on the other side of the street. By this time the B vitamins in your breakfast are depleted. Didn't eat enough anyway. Tired. Restless. Depressed. You sit down in the Wheel Room and look around. Tables of two's and three's, mostly singles. Someone looks over—or did he?

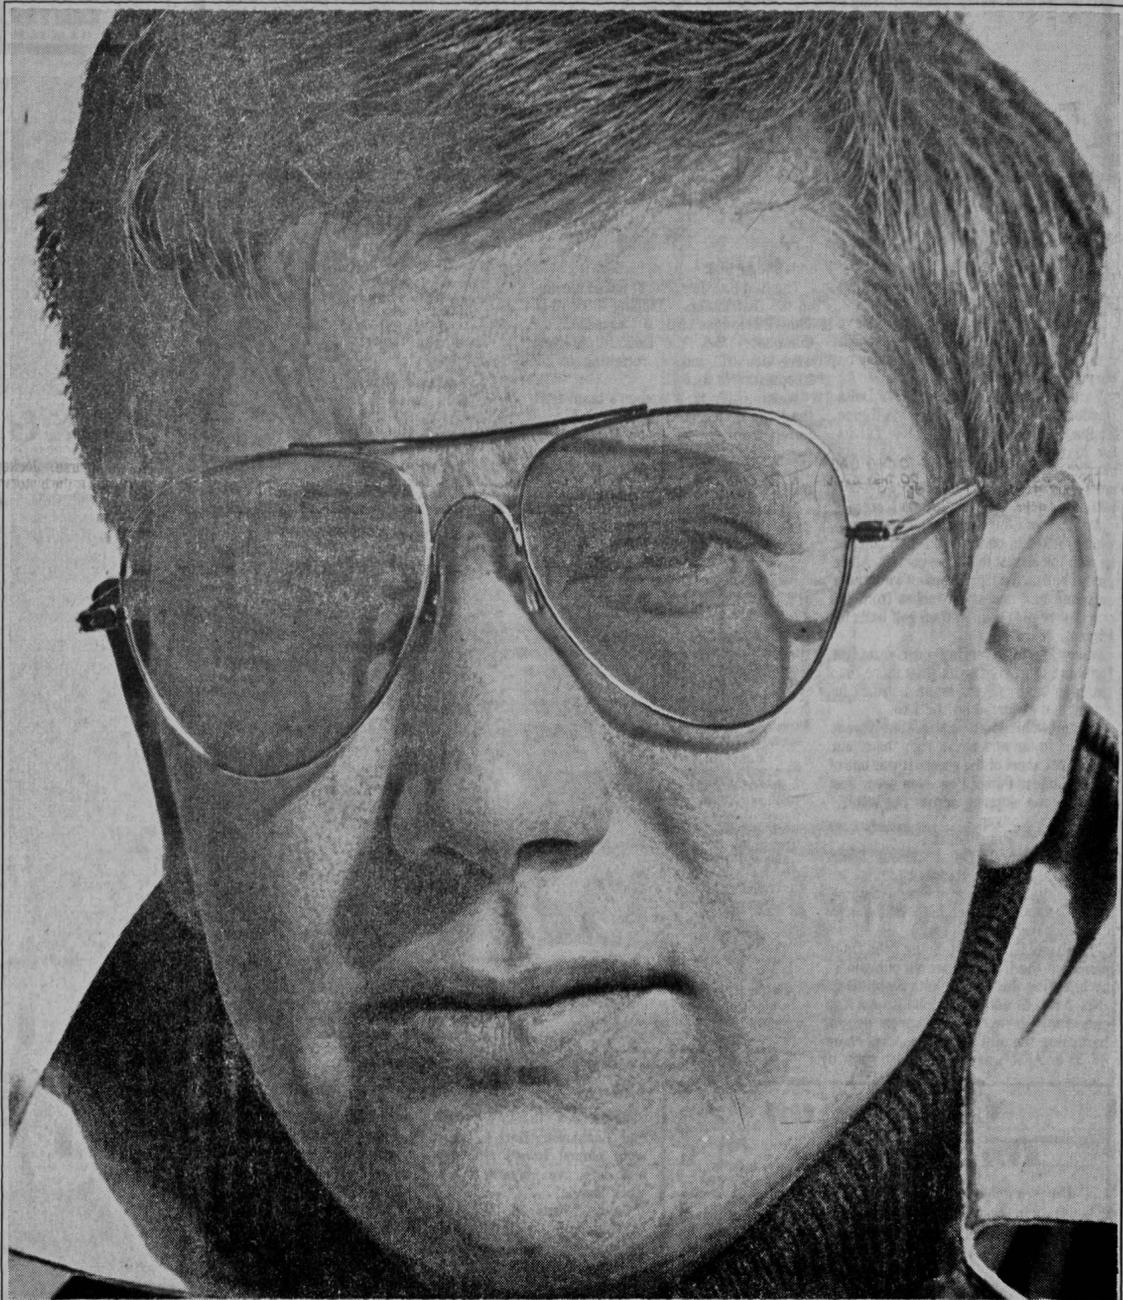

Just how do you meet people anyway. Just for curiosity you try to go all day without saying a word. You smile at alot of backs though. You do it. It's not hard. John Stenger, in the Counseling Service, proposes we all have these, or similar problems. Starting mid-October, groups will meet once a week, for eight weeks, to try to deal with some of these problems. Encounter groups they're not—just comfortable, relaxed sessions aimed at airing problems and dealing with them. It seems last year, many students found some answers in a similar program with Harvey Joanning. If you're interested, wander into the Union to the Counseling Service in the next few weeks. You may even find the guy with his head buried in the newspaper. He may be telling the counselor about how he sees this girl every morning but she's always on the wrong side of the street.

When this 25-year-old researcher wanted to investigate a possible cancer treatment, we gave him the go-ahead.

We also gave him the right to fail.

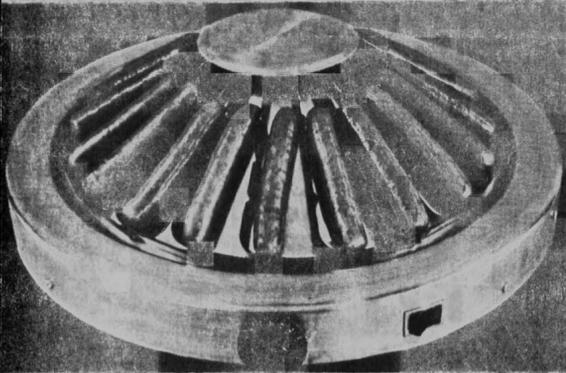

At Kodak, it's not unusual for a 25-year-old like Jim Carroll to win the title of senior research physicist. Like any company involved in a lot of basic research, Kodak has felt the pressure of modern technology and the need for young, fresh thinking. So we hire the best talent we possibly can, and then give them as much responsibility as they can handle. Whatever their age. We have departments and divisions, like any company. What we don't have are preconceived ideas about how an expert scientist's time should be spent. So when we received a request from the medical community for assistance in experimenting with lasers as a possible cancer treatment, we turned to 25-year-old Jim Carroll, who is deep in laser technology, and gave him the go-ahead. He built two half-billion watt laser systems, one of which Kodak has donated to the National Institute of Health. The lasers proved unsuccessful in treating cancer, but we'd make the same decision all over again. We entered laser technology because we have a stake in business. We let a young researcher help the medical community look for a means of cancer treatment because we have a stake in the future of mankind. To put it another way, we're in business to make a profit. But in furthering our own needs, we have often furthered society's. After all, our business depends on our society. So we care what happens to it.

Retiring New York Mets outfielder Willie Mays gets doused with champagne in dressing room at Chicago's Wrigley Field, Monday, after the Mets downed the Cubs, 6-4, to win the NL East division championship.

CHICAGO (AP) — The New York Mets put an end to one of the tightest races in baseball history Monday when they clinched the National League East title with a 6-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs, behind the hitting of Cleon Jones and Jerry Grote and the clutch relief pitching of Tug McGraw.

The Mets now advance to the National League playoffs against the West Division champion Cincinnati Reds. That best-of-five series begins Saturday in Cincinnati.

The Baltimore Orioles and Oakland A's will meet in the American League playoff, which starts Saturday in Baltimore.

Jones, one of the Mets' hottest hitters in their stretch drive, launched the winning assault with his 11th home run of the season in the second inning. It was his sixth homer in the last 10 games.

Mets ace Tom Seaver, 19-10, got the victory, with relief help from bullpen star McGraw.

Originally, the Mets and Cubs were scheduled to play a make-up doubleheader Monday. But after the Mets won the first game, the second was cancelled.

The triumph dashed the hopes of the Pittsburgh Pirates and St. Louis Cardinals, both of whom had chances of gaining a tie for first place if the Mets had lost both games of the doubleheader. In addition, the Cubs and the Montreal Expos weren't eliminated until Sunday, when the Mets won the second game of a doubleheader from the Cubs 9-2, clinching a tie for the title.

But it all ended in a drizzling rain at Wrigley Field Monday. After Jones' homer, the Mets made it 3-0 in the fourth when Rusty Staub opened the inning with a single. Cubs starter Burt Hooton, 14-17, walked John Milner and Jones to load the bases, and Grote followed with a two-run single.

The Mets added two more runs in the fifth. Wayne Garrett opened the inning with a double and took third on a single by Felix Millan. Staub singled Garrett home and Millan came in on a sacrifice fly by Milner.

Seaver wasn't at his best. He was rapped for five wasted singles in the first four innings before the Cubs finally scored two runs in the fifth on singles by Ken Rudolph, Rick Monday, Don Kessinger and Billy Williams. He pitched out of further trouble by getting Ron Santo to foul out and striking out Jose Cardenal.

Like eggs and kids, golf balls are also cheaper by the dozen.

Especially for Delta Sigma Delta's Steve Vorheis, who captured the intramural golf title by firing an even par 72 Saturday on the wet links of Finkbine.

Vorheis, edging out Mike Cutler of Delta Upsilon and Bill Newland of Alpha Kappa Kappa by one stroke, won 12 new Titlists for his efforts. AKK repeated as team champions as Newland (73), Mark Hoganson (76) and Bob Forsythe (77) played fine golf as reflected by their 226 total score.

Al Albee of Kappa Sigma had his bomb-sights locked in on the tough 13th hole, as he won the closest to the pin contest. Albee put his ball on the 150 yard par 3 water hole only one foot and seven inches from the cup. Albee also won a dozen golf balls for his feat.

Mike Duytschaver, an official at the Finkbine tournament that had more than 140 men entires, relates an unusual incident that occurred on the 13th.

"A golfer hit a ball so hard that it went into the water and came right back out again just short of the green. It was one of the strangest things I've ever seen. Just like a stone skipping across the water," stated Duytschaver.

Flag Football

Easy Hitters, Delta Sigma Delta, Neoplasts, Furlongs, Red Ball Jets.

All of these teams are household names in intramural flag football, and Sunday they all were victorious again.

The Easy Hitters, defending Coed champions put the Daily Planet out of business, by blanking them 28-0. Delta Sigma Delta (No. 2 rated) added to Alpha Kappa Kappa's football woes this season by embarrassing the all-University sports champs, 25-0. AKK was whipped last week by Psi Omega, 31-7.

The Red Ball Jets (No. 6) pulled the plug on the Distributors, whipping them 25-12. The Furlongs (No. 5) squashed the Cumquats, 25-6. The Doubtful Starters were doubtful indeed, forfeiting to the Neoplasts (No. 3), 6-0.

Westminster 12, a women's team from the Dorm-Independent League, won a 6-0 forfeit from the 4th Floor Farkles. Last week they ripped 4300 Burge, 31-0. Women's IM coordinator Colette Downs tells us that Westminster has a fine team:

"Their really organized. They have plays and everything. I'd say their team to beat," commented Downs.

Caldwell, LaFleur players of week

Quarterback Butch Caldwell and linebacker Dan LaFleur were named Iowa's offensive and defensive players of the week Monday.

Caldwell entered the Penn State game in the second quarter and completed nine of 16 passed for 162-yards and a touchdown. The performance earned Caldwell a starting job this week against Arizona.

LaFleur had four solo tackles and six assists to lead Hawkeye defenders.

Coach Frank Lauterbur said sophomore fullback Phil Hayman suffered strained neck ligaments against Penn State and will be sidelined indefinitely.

JOIN THE RACE

Help Those Less Fortunate!

The aged, the homeless, the disadvantaged . . . people in your community in trouble or in need . . . look to you for help, support and understanding. Don't let them down. Extend a hand. Reach out. Give the United Way.

Your United Fund is making its annual appeal right now. This is the one time each year the member organizations and agencies ask you to contribute money. A single check will cover a lot of territory.

When you give the United Way, you know your money will be put to the best possible use by qualified professionals in accredited organizations devoted to the battle against disease and illness . . . social or physical. You may say how you want your check used . . . the Fund will honor your preferences.
