Boyd mechanizes smoking ban

Boyd, the University of Iowa's special prosecutor, has begun mechanizing his smoking ban as a result of charges of misconduct that have apparently been resolved.

In addition, the smoking ban is under investigation by the Iowa Student Press. The resolution states that "The appropriate body may be the United States House of Representatives, Senate or Federal Court of Appeals, or may be the Iowa Student Press."

Regents test ‘discriminate’

By LIVER D. POURKIN

Provisibility tests used in the recent Regent meeting may not have adequately assessed the educational ability of minority group applicants for the University.

“The way in which the test scores are treated does not adjust for cultural, social differentials in intelligence,” professorial assistant professor George A. Duncan said the practice violates Iowa law that requires the university to give adequate consideration to factors other than scholastic aptitude in evaluating candidates.

In the article “Scored?” you instruct people with high scores, how do you put minority students who had lower test scores because of their educational backgrounds?”

The approximate cost is $350 round trip to help them with their education.

The lecture is open to the public.

Approximately 25 films will be shown, including the following:

“The Next Step,” by Samuel J. Klev-er, which will discuss the relationship between the industry and the university.

The meeting is at 7:30 p.m. in room
304 of the Union.

Friday, Oct. 26. His visit will be held at 4 p.m. today in room 304 of the Union.

He will also be a guest on “Careers Placement,” a general discussion throughout America to discuss the way in which the test scores are adjusted.

Many area readers have written and asked for the addresses of the legislators in Washington. Although the decision was made to include the letters in this week's issue, the letters had to be cut because of space limitations. Many legislators were asked to express personal opinions, which they did not do. We urge more readers to write to the editors of the Student Daily, who are responsible for the decisions made concerning the content of this newspaper.

LaMaster, deProsse capture primary

Dr. LaMaster won the Democratic primary Tuesday with a landslide majority, taking 1,519 votes. But deProsse's victory was a testament to the strength of the party in the heavily Democratic 1-D, where the former citizen activist is running for state senator in the Sunset legislative district.

Dickinson of the Baton Rouge, who was 85 votes over Epstein's total in the first primary, agreed to support LaMaster, and 172 of the 400-district's 1,170-Democrats lined up behind LaMaster in Tuesday's runoff election.

Proposed Burlington Street widening knocked by ISPIRG

By BILL ROHMAN

A representative of the Iowa State Public Utilities Research Group (ISPIRG) questioned the cost of the proposed widening of Burlington Street in downtown, at the council meeting Tuesday.

ISPIRG, which has filed a petition with the State Appellate Board protecting the public interest, said the city's budget that allocates money for street widening and parking renovation is not enough to cover the costs of the widening, and asserted that the project would cause more pollution.

In her presentation, ISPIRG's attorney also argued that the proposed project would cause pollution for a long time to come and is considered to be a violation of the Clean Air Act.

meeting. The council voted to submit the petition to the Iowa Supreme Court to challenge the decision by the state's highest court.

The project, which includes the widening of Burlington Street, would lead to the construction of new ramps or street level entries, and is considered to be a violation of the Clean Air Act.

The council voted to submit the petition to the Iowa Supreme Court to challenge the decision by the state's highest court.

But the project has been proposed as a way to enhance the economic development of the city and to improve the traffic conditions.

Communication? Why commit

The project is expected to be completed in the next few years, and it is estimated that the project will cost approximately $30 million.

The project would widen the Capitol Business Investors Co. to make it possible to build a $50 million building.

The project would also bring additional traffic to the city, and it is estimated that the project would cause pollution for a long time to come.

Student sculpture exhibit proves successful

By RICHARD DOLLO
A Special to The Daily Iowan

The actual holding of a student exhibit at the Iowa City Art Center is a rarity. It is the culmination of many months of planning and work by the artist and students and the result is a major undertaking.

The exhibit, " обычно entitled " Art in Public Places," is a collection of sculptures created by students from various art classes. The sculptures are displayed on the Art Center's front lawn and are open to the public for viewing.

The exhibit was organized by Sarah Johnson, an art teacher at the Art Center. Johnson said the idea for the exhibit came from a conversation she had with a local artist about the importance of public art.

"We wanted to create a space where people could come together and appreciate the beauty of art," Johnson said. "We also wanted to give our students an opportunity to showcase their work.

The exhibit features a variety of sculptures, including sculptures made from wood, stone, and metal. The sculptures range in size from small, tabletop pieces to large, outdoor installations.

One of the sculptures on display is a large, abstract sculpture made from wood. The artist, Fred Smith, said he was inspired by the natural beauty of the Iowa City landscape to create this piece.

"I wanted to create something that would complement the natural environment," Smith said. "I think this piece really fits well with the Art Center's lawn.

Another sculpture on display is a small, metal sculpture made from wire. The artist, Kim Brown, said she wanted to create something that would sparkle in the sunlight.

"I wanted to create something that would catch the light," Brown said. "I think this piece really shines in the sun.

The exhibit is open to the public from now until the end of the month. The Art Center is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturdays.

The exhibit is a great way to spend an afternoon in Iowa City, Johnson said. "We hope people will come out and enjoy the sculptures," she said. "Art is such an important part of our community, and we want to show that here at the Art Center."

Hancher Auditorium
WASHINGTON (AP) -- House leaders decided Tuesday to go ahead with an inquiry that could lead to President Nixon's impeachment, despite his offer to release the Watergate tapes, which contain evidence of his participation in the break-in at Democratic National Committee headquarters.

They had already announced the start of the inquiry on Nov. 8, after Nixon's announcement on Nov. 7 that his White House attorneys said in court that he would not allow the tapes to be released.

The move by House leaders, who are under increasing pressure to act, was seen as a symbolic act of defiance against the President, who has repeatedly refused to turn over the tapes.

The tapes, which are crucial to the Watergate investigation, were seized by federal agents as part of the break-in at the Democratic National Committee headquarters.

The inquiry would focus on the President's role in the cover-up of the Watergate scandal, which led to the resignation of Vice President Spiro Agnew and the impeachment of former President Richard Nixon.

The House Oversight Committee, which is leading the investigation, has subpoenaed the tape recordings and other evidence in the case, and the committee has the power to hold the President in contempt of court if he fails to comply.

The move by House leaders also marks a significant escalation in the impeachment debate, with a majority of House members now supporting the inquiry.

The President's offer to release the tapes was seen as a last-ditch attempt to stave off impeachment, but it was rejected by the House leaders, who said the tapes were essential to the investigation.

The House Oversight Committee has already released excerpts of the tapes, which show that Nixon was aware of the break-in and had ordered his aides to cover it up.

The committee is now expected to release the full tapes, which could provide more evidence of the President's involvement in the scandal.

The move by House leaders was hailed by many as a crucial step in the impeachment process, with some lawmakers saying it was a matter of time before the President would be impeached.

However, others warned that the move could backfire, with some saying it could alienate the President's supporters and make it more difficult to win a conviction.

The impeachment process is expected to take several months, with a trial in the Senate that could last for weeks or even months.

The House's move to begin the inquiry was seen as a sign that the impeachment process is moving forward, despite the President's continued refusal to cooperate.

The move also comes as the investigation into the President's role in the Watergate scandal continues, with new evidence being uncovered almost daily.

The House Oversight Committee is expected to release more evidence in the coming weeks, with some lawmakers saying it could be a make-or-break moment in the case.

MacPhail
Chicago: Ken "Mr. Mac" MacPhail, general manager of the New York Yankees, was named to succeed Joe Cronin as president of the American League Tuesday.
The appointment, made by league owners, is effective Jan. 1, 1973.
Cronin, who still has two years to go on his contract, said he will continue as the Yankees' controlling owner over league presidents.
Cronin was picked last week by the Yankees, who have said that they were interested in MacPhail for the job. The Yankees had been interested in MacPhail for some time, but the deal was not finalized until last week when they had an agreement with MacPhail on the terms of his new contract.
The deal is expected to be announced next week, but the two sides have not reached agreement on the terms of his new contract.
