Six vie in elections today

By BILL KRAMERMAN
Assistant News Editor

Iowa City's municipal elections are today. Six candidates are vying for the three seats on the Iowa City Council. Five are running for two regular four-year seats, and the sixth is running for the vacancy left open by the resignation of Richard Ralston. The six candidates are: Jan VanDerbroek, the incumbent; the challenger; the two regular council members, Neil DeProsse and Deanne McFadyen; and three other candidates, including former council member Deanne McFadyen; and three other candidates, including former council member Deanne McFadyen.

According to the newspaper, a group of people were seen at the polls reading local newspapers, and a few who were not reading anything at all. One person was quoted as saying, "I'm just here to make sure everyone knows who I am." The election is being held in the presence of law enforcement officers, who are on duty to prevent any violence or disrupted voting.

Residents of Quadrangle and South Quadrangle are in the third round of the election, with the third round to be held in late April. The first round of the election was held in early March, and the second round was held in mid-March. The third round will be held in late April, and the fourth round will be held in early May.

Ford ends Senate testimony; receives praise for openness

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President-designate Gerald R. Ford completed his two-day farewell Senate hearing Monday with a strong defense of his administration and a plea for respect for the Senate's independence.

"I am here to support the Committee, the Senate, and the Constitution," he told senators. "Let us respect the Senate and the Constitution.

Ford was praised by senators on both sides of the aisle for his performance, with some saying he was "the best performer in the history of the Senate." Others praised his "eloquent" and "eloquent" performance.

The hearing is the last in a series of confirmation hearings for Ford, who is expected to be confirmed as President Ronald Reagan's pick for the Senate seat by a 51-49 vote.

McCain's holding of Signal on an election is an example of local councils, including the Board of Supervisors, that have been criticized for their handling of the process.

The McCain's campaign and the Board of Supervisors say they are committed to a fair and open process, and they have been working to improve the system over the past several weeks.

Fire

LOUIS TREE, Iowa City—A fire that burned Saturday night damaged a home on the west side of town.

The blaze which began about 9:30 p.m. Saturday burned a home at 225 Clear Lake Ave., near the old Farmers and Merchants State Bank, which has been remodeled for a new tenant.

Fireman David Smith said the fire started in the living room and the cause wasn't determined.

The firemen said they were able to get the blaze under control by 10:15 a.m. Sunday morning.

Smith said the home was once under control in the living room and dining room area, but the firemen were unable to contain the blaze which was brought under control by 1 a.m. Sunday morning.

UI daycare combines care and learning

By BY HARRY WADDELL

The University of Iowa will operate a new model day-care center and preschool that will use facilities already in the most efficient combination of child care and learning, according to David Kuhn, an administrator of the center.

Day-care centers in the state are operating on neither a middle of the road approach. Teachers are at the center, and they are trying to establish a balance between educational aims and the needs of the children.

No legislator has been taken on the recommendations at this time and none is immediately presenting a bill because there is a school or organization that has already been established.

Although the state social services agency has made agreements with the center to allow for the licensing of family and preschool, no such criteria have been established yet for day-care centers.

The only state guidelines exist in the form of a series of recommendations by a federal advisory committee on the field of child care and learning at the center's request. No legislative action has been taken on the recommendations at this time and none is immediately presenting a bill because there is a school or organization that has already been established.

Kuhn said the state's social services agency has made agreements with the center to allow for the licensing of family and preschool, no such criteria have been established yet for day-care centers.

The center is experimental in the range of ages it serves. Activities are removed from the family life group, for one or two pre-kindergarten, as well as a half-day program for four to five-year-olds.

Sandra Carey, assistant director at the center, said it is the best of the best. The children are taking first step-group in a small group, and they are taken care of the community's need for a high-quality daycare center.

The center plans to admit a child who feel that the center is a critical learning period, said Sandra Carey, director of the center.

According to Carey, the center will work with the youngest infants by providing them with new experiences, exercising them to stimulate muscle development, and engaging them in a variety of sights and sounds.

Kuhn said that because the center, especially for specific settings has been planned, it can be built into the last step of the program.

"There are no reports of such drugs being used in day-care centers," he said. "Do you know of any centers that have a similar policy for the child's own family?"

Speed diagnosis, operation described by physician

By JOHN INVERNIZI

State's attorneys presented their case to the Court of Common Council, 115 Second St. E., Thursday.

Upon a motion of the state attorney, Dr. Brian McCabe, head of the State of Iowa Medical Board, presented the diagnosis of Speed's case to the Court of Common Council. The court later decided that Speed's case be reversed.

"Speed's blindness is five to ten years gone," according to McCabe. "Speed's symptoms have been noticed for an extended period, but the diagnosis could have been reversed or normal. There were no reports of such drugs being used in day-care centers," he said. "Do you know of any centers that have a similar policy for the child's own family?"

friends' call for nixon to resign

When the only people calling for President Richard Nixon to resign were old political enemies and those portions of the press that had always been against him in the past, it was clear that he would not resign. But it is not surprising that he would not resign because he did not commit政治错误。

But for the first time in years, the press was not just standing by and watching. The press was enraged at the ongoing lying and was looking for a way to earn back some of the prestige that it had lost over the last few years. The problem was that the press was very much divided.

The fact that Time's sister publication, the new Daily, today made a call for Nixon's resignation is in itself a very big deal. But the problem is that this call is just the beginning. The Daily runs several stories, including a huge, two-block-long story on the impeachment process. We cannot afford to be led through this period in time by a man with no credibility and no process of impeachment. We cannot afford to be led through this period in time by a man with no credibility and no process of impeachment. We cannot afford to be led through this period in time by a man with no credibility and no process of impeachment.

BRUSSELS (AP) Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger flew to the Arab world on a bid to prevent any further cuts in oil exports and to conciliate Arab oil exporters and Europeans after Cairo declared an embargo on sales to Israel.

Mr. Kissinger, who was accompanied by Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger and Secretary of Energy Photis Davidsen, arrived here Monday to discuss the Arab oil decision with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Saudi Arabia.

Before leaving Washington, Kissinger had said it was a "poor time for students to take care of our present needs." But in Washington he added that it is a "poor time for students to take care of our present needs." Senator James Schaben, here to discuss the Arab oil decision with European officials, said Monday that the European Community was "very much in favor of" a cut in oil exports because of Israel's "invasion" of Arab lands.

The warmest winter is a day pleasure driving. West Germany's government will consider such a measure, as Europe's government is "very much in favor of" a cut in oil exports because of Israel's "invasion" of Arab lands.

Fairbanks' career peaks in fairy tale flight

By PATOWNES
Feature Writer

The silent movies are getting a second look and that's mostly a good thing. Last weekend's screening of "The Thief of Bagdad" was a fine example of that. It was certainly a treat for those who are interested in the history of movies and for those who enjoy good entertainment.

"The Thief of Bagdad" was released in 1924 and it's a story of adventure and romance set in the Middle East. The main character is Sinbad the Sailor, played by Douglas Fairbanks, and his adventures take place in Baghdad and other parts of the Middle East.

The movie is notable for its use of technicolor and for its elaborate sets and costumes. It's also known for its musical numbers, particularly the famous "Rubaiyat" sequence.

In the movie, Fairbanks plays Sinbad, a sailor who is hired to help a band of thieves rob a rich merchant. Sinbad is successful in his mission, but he is later captured by the royal guard and imprisoned. However, he is eventually released and he returns to his adventures, this time as a prince.

The movie is a classic example of the silent film genre and it's a must-see for anyone interested in the history of cinema. Fairbanks' performance is excellent and the movie is a delight to watch.
Styron tells calm audience of new novelist's struggle

By GAILANN FAGEN

Faneuil Writer

It was a quiet crowd that entered author William Styron's house that October afternoon to hear him discuss his latest novel. The house is on a quiet street in Cambridge, Massachusetts, and it is surrounded by trees, giving it a sense of seclusion.

Styron, who is known for his novels like "Lie Down in Dark" and "Long Island" and his biographical introduction of his newest novel, "The Long March," was in his usual form, calm and collected. He spoke further of his novel, "The Long March," and how it came about. He spoke about his novel's setting and the characters within it. He talked about the themes he wanted to explore in his new novel, and how he tried to capture the essence of the time period.

He spoke about his novel's setting and what it was like to write about it. He talked about the people he met while writing his novel, and how they affected his writing. He talked about the research he did and how it helped him to write his novel.

He also talked about the differences between his new novel and his previous ones. He talked about how his new novel is different from his previous ones, and how he tried to capture the essence of the time period.

He also talked about the challenges he faced while writing his novel. He talked about how he tried to capture the essence of the time period, and how he tried to capture the essence of the place.

Amateurs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Olympian Mark King and Ken Moore asked Congress Monday to use federal government funds to set up an organization to promote amateur sports, especially emphasizing international participation.

"We're the ones who are going to make sure that things are done right," Moore, a former Olympic swimmer, said. "We're the ones who have been doing things right all along."

The representatives of the National Federation of State High School Athletic Associations (NHSAA) said the new organization will be called the National Amateur Sports Association (NASA). The organization will be established by law and will be responsible for administering all aspects of amateur sports, according to the representatives.

"We have been successfully running amateur sports for more than 50 years," Moore said. "We have a solid record of success and we want to continue that success."

Women who get German measles while they are pregnant may have only a 50-50 chance of having a normal baby.

Not very good odds. During the last German measles epidemic, more than 30,000 babies died and at least that many, more were crippled for life. The real tragedy is that it didn't have to happen. Most of the dangerous virus is spread by young children of school age who can be immunized with a safe, effective vaccine. But the vaccine is useless unless we use it. Another big breakthrough is almost sure to come. All children desperately need to be vaccinated against an epidemic is to be stopped before it can begin. Once it starts, there's no stopping it.
