Lauterbur spurns Elliott ultimatum: fired

By BOB DYER
Sports Editor

University of Iowa football coach Frank X. Lauterbur announced Tuesday he had been fired by Athletic Director Chalmers "Bump" Elliott after refusing to make changes in his coaching staff.

Lauterbur announced the firing at his weekly football luncheon at the Iowa Athletic Club.

"If you are going to coach a football team, the coach has to be in charge," Lauterbur said.

The Iowa Board in Control of Athletics met Tuesday in a special session and was briefed by Elliott concerning the football staff situation.

The Board expressed "full confidence" in Elliott's handling of the matter and the Athletic Director's recommendations will be received at the Board's regular meeting next Tuesday.

The Board is officially responsible for hiring and firing anyone but its expression of confidence in Elliott's decision makes Lauterbur's dismissal only a formality.

"In analyzing the Iowa football picture with Coach Lauterbur, I expressed concern for the future and urged him to make changes in his coaching staff organization," Elliott said in a prepared statement.

"At this time, because of what has transpired, I felt that I was compelled to recommend that a change in the head coaching position be made," Elliott said.

Elliott said Lauterbur indicated that "these recommendations for change were not acceptable to him."

Lauterbur said the discussion with Elliott took place Monday and that he was asked to make "adjustments" in his staff and replace certain staff members. He refused to say which staff members were involved.

"I felt I could not do that," he said. "I have to be in command. With this in mind, Bump Elliott fired me as of yesterday." FXL said the Monday discussions were the first time specific staff changes had been discussed.

Lauterbur took the job in late 1970. His three-year record is 4-27-1 and the 1973 team is winless in ten games going into FXL. "I'm under contract for five years." Lauterbur said he will definitely stay in coaching.

His record at Toledo was 48-23-1 in eight seasons and his teams won three Mid-American Conference titles.

"I feel I have a loyal, hard working staff," said FXL. "I hired them, so if they are criticized, you must criticize me."

"Our coaching staff has done an excellent job. I still believe we're not that far away from being a good ballclub. We just needed some help at a few positions."

Lauterbur said he felt he could have brought a winner to Iowa if he had been allowed to fulfill his contract.

He said he had no regrets about taking the Iowa job and wished everybody the best.

"Yes, I feel somebody can win here. I feel we've helped bring the program along with some fine young men."

"Iowa's been a great place. I'm proud to have coached here."

REFOCUS director will remain despite charges by members

By MAUREEN CONNORS
Staff Writer

Richard L. Wayner, A3, is still director of REFOCUS, the University of Iowa's film and photography festival, despite charges made by four REFOCUS department coordinators who resigned last week due to Wayner's alleged "mismanagement" of the program.

Although Wayner was given a letter Nov. 12 demanding his resignation which was signed by eight REFOCUS members, no action was taken during Tuesday night's University Programming Service (UPS)—the parent body of REFOCUS—meeting at which these demands were discussed.

Six Wayner supporters were present at the UPS meeting to defend Wayner and to discuss the charges, but none of the four complainants attended.

UPS Director Chris Lienau, A4, commented that no charges were formally presented from the floor and thus the board could do nothing.

One member, Pam Braus, A3, had passed out to other members the complaints made by herself, Rebecca Gregory, A4, Greg Schmitt, G, and Linda Sawyer, A2, but she didn't attend the meeting. None of the four former REFOCUS department heads were available for comment after the meeting.

Not accurate

Sue Muse, A2, a new REFOCUS department head who replaced one of those who resigned, said it was not accurate that all REFOCUS staff members had agreed to return to their duties if Wayner resigned, as had been charged by the four complainants. She signed a petition to resign if Wayner did leave.

Charges

Charges made against Wayner include failure to return photographs, films and correspondence; lack of guidance, training and organization claimed that 22 persons have within a reasonable period prior to an event; and failure to properly publicize REFOCUS events.

Lienau said several of the charges made against Wayner were things which previously had been taken care of by an adviser from the Office of Organizational Development (OOD). Lienau said this year no adviser specifically took charge of REFOCUS.

The six persons attending the meeting filled vacancies in REFOCUS departments areas. Dave Culp, A3, withdrew his resignation after he learned certain crucial REFOCUS posts had been filled and after he came to understand Wayner's position.

Wayner spoke in his own defense, refuting charges made against him, and giving the UPS board proof that he had drawn up a new budget—as required for UPS to obtain its REFOCUS funds—and had a new staff.

The conclusion given by Lienau was that the REFOCUS situation "still isn't clear, possibly never will be." He did tell Wayner he would offer him suggestions in future REFOCUS meetings.

Russia accuses Peking of trying to provoke Soviet-U.S. clash

By the Associated Press

Moscow's claim that Peking wants to provoke a Soviet-U.S. military clash, though it has an ominous sound, seems nevertheless a Kremlin gambit in a contest for dominating influence in Asia.

The accusation was published Monday by the government newspaper Izvestia, a fact that in itself suggests there might be less to this seeming escalation of the verbal war than meets the eye.

Also, it comes only a week in advance of a scheduled trip by Leonid I. Brezhnev, the Soviet Communist chief, to India, where he wants to push the idea that Asia should join Moscow in a "collective security" system.

Irksome

Peking's anti-Soviet posture has become more irksome than ever to Moscow lately. The new Middle East war permitted Peking to portray the Russians as conniving with the Americans to rule the world. This fits in with Peking's own pretensions to lead what it calls the Third World of "poor" nations.

Peking has maneuvered industriously against Soviet attempts to set up a collective security system in Europe. Moscow can have little doubt that China would be even more opposed to a similar Soviet enterprise in Asia.

It seems Moscow has sought to lay down

Associated Press News Analysis

a propaganda barrage in advance of the Brezhnev trip, designed primarily to scare Asians by portraying the Chinese as eager for World War III.

Soviet propaganda insists the Chinese opposed a Middle East cease-fire because they wanted the war to go on indefinitely; that this illustrated a Peking urge to profit from global turmoil from which it might gain in terms of big power domination.

A few days ago, a Soviet commentator directly linked such alleged Chinese aims with Peking opposition to an Asian security system.

"What," asked the commentator, "is the true meaning of Peking's call for colossal disturbances if applied to such a region as South Asia? There is no doubt that such an appeal is aimed against the normalization that is underway there. The Peking leaders seem to want to throw the South Asian countries back into the time of confrontation and conflict...."

That was a reference to the India-Pakistan conflicts, the latest of which was in 1971 over the Bangladesh secession from Pakistan.

Speculation

There's been a lot of speculation lately that the Soviet Union has put aside any notion it may have entertained of a pre-emptive strike at China's nuclear installations before China might develop the potential to strike back effectively. That may be too comfortable an assumption long range, but in the short term it seems to hold water.

A look at the map shows that with Afghanistan and India firmly in the pro-Soviet camp, Moscow wouldn't have too far to go to establish something like an old-fashioned "cordon sanitaire" around China. Thus it might opt for the idea that it is possible to catch more flies with political flypaper than with a military sledgehammer.

Rules committee okays Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nomination of Gerald R. Ford to vice president cleared its first congressional hurdle Tuesday and headed for an early confirmation vote in the Senate.

All nine members of the Senate Rules Committee voted to recommend approval of the nomination to the Senate, where a vote is set for next week.

The action followed weeks of investigations and hearings into Ford's personal, political and financial background that began after President Nixon named him to replace former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, who resigned Oct. 10. Rules Committee chairman Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., said the panel conducted "an inquiry of historic proportions" on Ford, a Michigan congressman and House Republican leader.

Reporting the nomination to the Senate floor, he said the five Democrats and four Republicans acted with the "very real possibility that the nominee could become President of the United States."

NRS

The state attorney general's office will issue another subpoena to obtain information concerning National Research Systems, Inc. (NRS) said Julian Garrett, head of the office's consumer protection division Tuesday.

A request that an injunction be issued against the firm, which sells research reports to University of Iowa students, will be made if NRS President Bruce B. Burke fails to comply with the subpoena, he also said.

Garrett termed District Court Judge William R. Eads' strongly worked ruling which denied an injunction against the state attorney general's investigation of the firm, as "strong backing for an investigation!"

He added that Eads' ruling implied that there "appears to be good reason to investigate" NRS.

Deaths

ROCK RAPIDS, Iowa (AP) — Authorities intensified their search Tuesday for three suspects in the shotgun slayings of four South Dakota teen-agers, and indicated there may be some substance to the as-yet unconfirmed reports that a young girl witnessed the violence.

Lyon County Sheriff Craig Vinson refused to comment on reports that a teen-age girl believed to have been with the four boys was being held in protective custody. Vinson said, however, he would disclose more information on that subject later Tuesday or Wednesday.

The victims were Dana Baede, 14; his brother Stewart, 18; Roger Essern, 17, and Mike Hadrath, 15, all of Sioux Falls. They were thought to be camping or partying overnight in the relatively remote park.

City Budget

There were indications at Tuesday night's State Appeals Board Hearing on Iowa Student Public Interest Research Group (ISPIRG)'s appeal of the 1974 Iowa City Budget that the board may consider cutting two parking ramp allocations from the budget while retaining two street widening projects.

One of the members of the board, State Auditor Lloyd Smith, indicated during the hearing his disagreement with ISPIRG's opposition to the two street widenings, which the city claims are designed solely to improve the streets. But Smith added that he was not convinced by City Atty. Jay H. Honohan's argument that the two ramps are essential elements of the city budget.

Saxbe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Without making a recommendation, the Senate Judiciary Committee turned over to the Senate a bill intended to make Sen. William B. Saxbe, R-Ohio, eligible for appointment as attorney general.

The effect of the unanimous vote Tuesday was to refer to the Senate the controversy over whether the administration-proposed bill can remove Saxbe's constitutional disqualification for the Cabinet post.

The bill is slated to be brought up in the Senate after it votes next Tuesday on the nomination of Rep. Gerald R. Ford, R-Mich., to be vice president.

Saxbe's nomination has been held up because the Constitution prohibits the appointment of a Congress member during the term for which he was elected, to an office for which the salary has been increased in that time.

Saxbe, whose term does not expire until Jan. 3, 1975, was a member of the Senate in 1969 when the salary of the attorney general and other Cabinet members was increased from $35,000 to $60,000 a year.

The administration has submitted a bill to roll back the attorney general's pay to $35,000 in an effort to overcome Saxbe's ineligibility for the post.

The bill was approved by the Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee last week but then was referred to the Judiciary Committee, all of whose members are lawyers, to pass on its constitutionality.

Runoff

OSKALOOSA, Iowa (AP)—Karl Heil was elected mayor of Oskaloosa Tuesday night in a runoff election, defeating A. D. Carlson.

However, city officials are awaiting a court ruling on a permanent injunction request against holding runoff elections. The request was filed on the basis that runoff elections are not provided for by city ordinances.

Carlson had received 36 per cent of the vote in the Nov. 6 election to Heil's 31 per cent, but since neither received the majority Tuesday's election was held. Heil received 1,097 votes to Carlson's 726.

Council rapped for not appointing women

By JIM FLEMING
Staff Writer

Meeting in regular session Tuesday, the Iowa City Council was called on the line about its infrequent appointments of women to boards and commissions, received praise for the success of its downtown beautification project, and gave preliminary acceptance to a controversial plan for development of a subdivision of low- and middle-income housing.

Citing the current figure of only 17 per cent membership by women in the city's boards and commissions, Abby Schwarz, chairwoman of the Johnson County Women's Political Caucus, suggested that "the City Council as now constituted should serve as a model for all the appointed boards and commissions in Iowa City." As a result of this month's elections, when Councilwoman-elect Penny Davidsen takes her seat in January, two of the five council members will be women.

Schwarz pointed out that the newly approved city charter will provide for public announcements of vacancies one month in advance of appointment, but added that the implementation of the charter is a full two years away. She urged that a procedure for publicizing vacancies be developed immediately to end the lack of representation of women.

"Project Green," the city's program for combatting "urban visual pollution" through the use of plants, trees and shrubbery, has been awarded a top prize from the American Horticultural Society. The national competition won Iowa City a picture page of recognition in last Sunday's New York Times.

After a cautiously worded debate on the provision of a park for a proposed low- and middle-income housing development, the council gave preliminary acceptance to a resolution which leaves the particulars of funding ambiguous. Mayor Tim Brandt urged that the park be financed out of the city's general fund rather than raising taxes of the subdivision's future residents. The 3-2 split on the voting found Councilmembers Edward Czarnecki and Carol deProse rejecting the preliminary resolution, which holds a decision of the Hollywood Manor Park in abeyance.

In other matters, the council gave final acceptance to an ordinance which provides for city garbage pick-up at curbsides only, except when a request based on the resident's age or disability has been approved.

In its informal meeting earlier in the day, the council received an Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) report on minority employment among city workers.

The report commended the city for its efforts to attract minority workers to positions within the city but noted that, by national standards, the city still has few minority members working for it.

The report noted that of the 82 city positions filled between January and October 1973, 34 per cent were women, and 6 per cent were black.

The report laid the primary blame of Iowa City's lower-than-average minority employment level on the low proportion of minorities living in the city, rather than the recruiting procedures of the city.

The EEOC pointed out that minorities make up only 1.7 per cent of the population in Johnson County, and said that "minority members are in high demand in this area."

According to the report, attempts to attract minority members into the area may have been unsuccessful because of the low minority population.

The council also discussed a tenant-landlord ordinance that was proposed by the Protective Association for Tenants (PAT), and directed Czarnecki to rewrite the proposed law to rid it of unneeded provisions.

Brandt said he didn't see the need for the code at all. He said if all the laws and standards presently on the books were enforced, all the objectives of the code could be accomplished.

Among other things, the proposed law would compel landlords to pay interest when returning damage deposits, and establish grievance procedures for disputes among landlords and tenants, and institute a standardized lease.

U.N. to include U.S.-Russian members on cease-fire force

By the Associated Press

The prisoner of war airlift shuttled more Egyptian and Israeli POWs home Tuesday, and the United Nations announced plans to add Americans and Russians to its cease-fire observer force.

A U.N. spokesman in Cairo also said observers had reported three violations of the Middle East cease-fire over the weekend.

The prisoner exchange, part of the cease-fire agreement worked out with the help of U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, brought 20 more Israeli prisoners home, making a total of 182 repatriated so far by Israeli count.

The Egyptians say they captured 247 during the October war.

The Israeli military command reported it has sent back more than 7,000 of its 8,221 captured Egyptians.

U.N. spokesman Rudolph Stajduhar told a news conference that 36 Americans and 36

Russians will be placed on observer teams. He did not say when they would be assigned.

Eight Americans are already with the U.N. truce observer organization, and several Soviet observers are known to be in Egypt in apparent response to President Anwar Sadat's appeal last month for U.S. and Soviet troops to assure Israeli compliance with the U.N. cease-fire.

The three cease-fire violations occurred Sunday, Stajduhar said. One was at Qantara in the northern sector of the Suez Canal front, and another was a Ismailia near the middle of the front, he said.

The third was some 20 miles from Suez City at the south end of the canal, where Israeli forces fired machine guns and caused Egyptian casualties, the spokesman said.

The United Nations reported the highway from Cairo to Suez continued to be open for nonmilitary supply vehicles. The spokesman said 31 trucks carrying food and medical supplies reached Suez on Monday and 21 others took relief supplies to the Egyptian 3rd Army in the Sinai Desert.

In Cairo, U.S. Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, talked with Economic Minister Abdel Aziz Hegazy and other officials about American private investment in postwar Egypt.

Cambodian leader spurs nation to 'final victory'

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — President Lon Nol, whose palace compound was bombed by one of his own pilots, told the nation in a radio address Tuesday, "I am determined to lead the nation until final victory."

Referring to Monday's bombing, in which he escaped injury but three others were killed and 10 wounded, Lon Nol said, "There will always be an elected president, with one following the other without interruption."

He said the pilot of the T28 aircraft, Lt. Pich Lim Kuan, 29, "joins a small group of people who ignore the notions of liberty and prefer to be sold to the North Vietnamese Communists."

An official source said so far there has been no evidence that the bombing was anything but a single individual's attempt.

Kennedy leaves legacy of opportunity, involvement

One newsman said it all, 'He bore no man lasting grudge or envy; and his readiness to love was instinctive.'

Editor's Note: Today's article is the last in a series of three concerning the life and achievements of President John F. Kennedy. Today's article will deal with what his memory means to the American people today and what he has left us as a legacy.

By WAYNE HADDO
Political Writer

"President Kennedy...seemed the very symbol of the vitality and the exuberance that is the essence of life itself."

These words, spoken by Adlai Stevenson, put into perspective in one short sentence what John Kennedy was and how he will be remembered.

Kennedy's greatest gift to this nation may have been his ability to instill this type of spirit into all of his fellow citizens. He had the ability to make people feel good and to give them a feeling that together, moving as a united country, there was nothing we could not accomplish.

He gave us confidence in our own ability to take responsibility into our own hands.

It is questionable how much good the Peace Corps actually did, but without a doubt it did wonderful things for the Peace Corpsmen themselves.

So much of what has happened in the 60s, the freedom marches, civil rights gains, the return to community awareness, the ecological movement, and the women's lib movement, seem to have been nurtured by the Kennedy axiom that the vigorous person could make things happen.

All of these things may have happened anyway, but John Kennedy appears to be the center of energy that started it all. He created a feeling among the masses that we should all get involved personally to make this a good government. He made us feel that we could indeed affect the bureaucracies and institutions that guide our lives.

This in some part be the blame for the disillusionment that we all felt in the late 60s. He gave us high expectations, but there was no one left to fulfill them after he was taken from us.

He made us feel that America stood for something. Under Kennedy, America stood for idealism and generosity and he gave other countries the feeling that we were indeed the best hope for all mankind.

Nowhere was this more evident than when Kennedy visited West Berlin and millions of West Berliners turned out to shout his name and to wave American flags.

If the sense of hope that he gave to Americans and to the people of the free world still exists in some small way then we still have something left that he gave to us.

What else has he left us with, besides this great feeling of love and belief in each other? What will the Kennedy legacy be?

It would appear that John Kennedy will be best remembered in three areas. First was his effort to guarantee full rights and opportunities to all people. The course was set by Kennedy and carried out by the Johnson Administration.

Second were his efforts to warm up the cold war. The Berlin Wall had been built, the existence of Quemoy and Matsu were being threatened by Red China and the Soviet Union was building missile sites in Cuba. But with the successful negotiation of the Cuban missile crisis and the enactment of the Nuclear Test Ban Treaty (which Kennedy later said was his proudest achievement), we began a new era in negotiations that still exists today.

The third legacy that he leaves us with is his work to rid the country of poverty and the inhumane conditions under which some Americans are forced to live and which he hated so much.

There is a chance that he might have left us with one other legacy, but it is now being threatened. The concept of public service as a noble profession, the spirit that was evident in the early 60s when people were willing to give up their private employment and comfort to come to work for the government, is falling by the wayside.

Because of recent happenings in this country, one must ask if Watergate could have happened during the Kennedy years.

When reviewing the type of administration that he had and the people working for him, one must conclude that the answer is no.

In the Kennedy administration there was no concept of "we against them" that permeates the Nixon administration. In the Kennedy years, those who opposed the President were looked upon as people with differing views who should be respected and not bugged.

Secondly, Kennedy had an open relationship with the press and he did not keep himself isolated, listening to just a few advisers. Kennedy listened to opposing views religiously.

As we look back on the life and times of John Fitzgerald Kennedy, those of us who are fortunate enough to remember him will never forget how he typified all that was good in America and how for a few short years we all felt at peace with one another.

Benjamin Bradlee remembers, "He bore no man lasting grudge or envy, and his readiness to love was instinctive...He loved his children with a light that lit up his world. He discovered his daughter when election finally brought them under the same roof, and he delighted in her pride and in her performance. His heart leapt up when he saw his son, careening through life as if there were no tomorrow, and he lit up the heart of all those who saw them enjoy each other..."

John Kennedy is dead, and for that we are a lesser people in a lesser land."

Immunity delayed on former Howard Hughes aide Meier

WASHINGTON (AP)—The special Watergate prosecutor's office Tuesday delayed a Senate Watergate committee effort to gain limited immunity for John H. Meier, a former employee of billionaire Howard Hughes and long-time associate of President Nixon's brother, F. Donald Nixon.

The Senate panel had asked Chief U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica to grant Meier immunity from prosecution based on any evidence he might furnish the committee.

But Sirica granted the prosecutors' request Tuesday that he block the immunity order until Dec. 5, the maximum delay permitted by law. The prosecutors gave no reason for their request.

Meier, according to several sources, has information relating to Hughes's $100,000 cash gift to C.G. "Bebe" Rebozo, the President's close friend and Key Biscayne, Fla., neighbor.

The White House has said the money was intended as a campaign contribution. Rebozo kept it for three years, and he returned it to a Hughes lawyer earlier this year.

Meier currently is under federal indictment on charges of evading income taxes on more than $250,000 he earned in 1968 and 1969 while overseeing purchase of several thousand Western mining claims for Hughes.

Hughes is suing Meier and several associates claiming they acquired marginal mining properties and sold them to Hughes at inflated prices.

Meier has denied the charges, saying they grew out of White House ire at his refusal to break off his association with the President's brother and his nephew, Donald A. Nixon.

He also has filed a motion in one of the court cases seeking to learn if any of his conversations were overheard while the Secret Service was tapping the telephone of the President's brother.

Watergate committee sources said Meier was involved in the Hughes two unsuccessful attempts to deliver the first money in 1968.

In August 1968, the sources said, Rebozo and an old friend and Nixon campaign worker, Richard G. Danner, met Hughes lawyer Edward P. Morgan in New York.

Morgan told them Meier and F. Donald Nixon were in New York at the time and "ready to make the drop," the sources said, but when Rebozo heard the Nixon brother's name mentioned, he broke off the discussion.

Former Hughes executive Robert A. Maheu has testified in a lawsuit that he later attempted to deliver $50,000 in cash to Nixon personally after the election but before Nixon was inaugurated. But the President-elect's schedule was changed and Maheu's appointment was cancelled, he said.

Meier, 39, left the Hughes financial empire in 1969, became associated with Toledo Mining Co. in Salt Lake City and was instrumental in acquiring some valuable mining concessions for the company in the Dominican Republic.

Superstitious see King Tut as war influence

CAIRO (AP)—Some superstitious souls in Cairo are wondering whether the curse of the Pharaohs had any influence on the Middle East war.

One competent authority says that's nonsense. But the ancient curse clearly says those who tamper with the grave of the Pharaohs shall suffer misfortune. And after a review of the following coincidences, who can be sure?

The relics of Tut-anh-amen, an Egyptian boy-king in the 14th century B.C., were to leave for a Moscow exhibit Oct. 7. The war began Oct. 6.

The King Tut exhibit was to open in Moscow on Oct. 22. That was the date of the first U.N.-sponsored cease-fire, during which Cairo claims the Israelis seized a large chunk of Egyptian land.

And then, there's the history.

Twice before — when King Tut's relics were shipped to Paris in 1967 and to London in 1972 — men involved in the shipment died and were buried as it left for the airport, according to newspaper reports at the time.

Now the relics are scheduled to leave for Moscow this month, said the director of Cairo Museum, Henry Riad.

Fifty pieces of the 3,000-year-old collection have already been packed and insured by the Soviet Union for about $25 million. They are to be exhibited for nine months in Moscow, Leningrad and Kiev.

"But no date has been fixed," Riad added. "It is not immediately known whether the cease-fire will work out and we want to make sure these priceless treasures go and come back safely."

Riad, who has served in the antiquities department for more than 30 years, was asked about the curse.

"I don't believe in the curse," he said. "It is all coincidence."

But he acknowledged that as many as 22 persons connected with the discovery of Tut-anh-amen's tomb 51 years ago died or met with accidents in what some consider frightening sequence.

Nixon to governors: 'I'm sorry if I have added to your burden'

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — President Nixon told the nation's Republican governors Tuesday he knew of no further embarrassing revelations which could come out of the Watergate scandals and said he was sorry for the problems he had caused them.

Nixon huddled for almost two hours with the governors at their winter conference, and several governors said later the President promised them full revelations about Watergate.

"The President looked at us around the room and said, 'I'm sorry if I have added to your burden,'" Tennessee Gov. Winfield Dunn said.

Dunn added that Nixon assured them he knew of no more painful facts about the Watergate still to come to light.

"He said if there are, he is not aware of them," Dunn told a news conference. "If there's anything waiting yet to be revealed, he's not aware of it."

Deputy White House Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said Nixon "felt it was a very good session..."

Warren said Nixon told the governors he would "cooperate with the courts and with the special prosecutor...that he was determined to make the facts known."

However, Warren said he had no further details on precisely how the facts will be presented, saying those decisions will be made known "as soon as we can."

Dunn said Nixon answered

the governors' questions extensively and gave the strongest indication yet that full disclosure on all aspects of the various White House scandals will be forthcoming.

"He indicated a number of papers will be issued clearly responding to the questions which have been raised," Dunn said.

Dunn, newly installed chairman of the Republican Governors Association, said Nixon mentioned his personal finances, the ITT case and the milk case as potential subjects of the papers.

Nixon, making his third Southern appearance in four days, spoke before the meeting to a crowd of several thousand near the Memphis river bluffs.

"Part of the greatness of America is that when we have problems we just get out and solve them," Nixon told the banner-waving crowd.

While not referring directly to Watergate in his public speech, Nixon made several references to being able to solve other problems from the Middle East to the energy crisis.

Referring to a placard which said "I Believe in Nixon And America," the President said, "I believe in you, every one of you."

Nixon also drew a few boos and jeers from the crowds estimated by local officials at about 5,000. Some signs read "Impeachment Now More Than Ever" and "Free Democracy. Resign."

The Memphis appearance followed weekend appearances at Macon, Ga., and Florida, including a televised news conference at The Associated Press Managing Editors Association meeting in Orlando Saturday night.

The meeting with the governors was similar to sessions Nixon had held in private at the White House last week with congressional leaders.

It followed several days of discussion among the GOP governors about the impact of Watergate on the Republican party's future.

The Republican governors adopted a resolution Monday generally praising Nixon's record in foreign and domestic programs but indirectly urging him to clear up the Watergate problem.

Republican party chairman George Bush told the governors Tuesday that Watergate will not hurt them in the 1974 elections.

"These haven't been easy times," Bush said, "but the thing that is so greatly encouraging is seeing the Watergate matter turned around rather dramatically as a result of the President's actions in the last few days."

He said the party machinery is running smoothly toward the 1974 elections.

"Anybody who takes any look at history is going to discover that scandal does not harm party," Bush said.

Also on Tuesday, the governors heard Nixon's top energy adviser, former Colorado Gov. John A. Love, say the current oil shortage is "the worst problem we have faced other than wartime."

Both Love and Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton said they believe that gasoline rationing may come but only as a last resort if the present system of allocations and voluntary cut-backs in fuel don't work.

New religion lauds freedom in captivity

By DAVID PATT
Religion Writer

"You are warmly invited to attend our first Special Free Exercise Seminar, on Sunday, November 18, at the Iowa State Penitentiary Auditorium. The theme of this special Church of the New Song service will be The Celebration of Life."

It happens every Sunday at Fort Madison. The members of the Church of the New Song (C.O.N.S.) gather in their chapel—the prison auditorium—to worship their God, Eclat, through the service they call the Free Exercise Seminar. The phrase "free exercise" is from the Constitution, "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

Under the same article of the Constitution, U.S. District Judge William C. Hanson ruled on July 25, 1973, that officials of Fort Madison penitentiary must give Eclaterians "the same rights of assembly and worship enjoyed by Protestant and Catholic inmates."

But this is a special service and a special Sunday for the Eclaterians. Numerous invitations have been sent to people on the outside. A band is coming. A great deal of effort and hope has been invested in the event.

Entering the prison is an exercise in paranoia. We fill out several forms and our names are checked against a visitor's list. We empty our pockets and remove belts with metal buckles and pass through a metal detector. A little G is stamped on our left hands, a metal gate slides open, and we enter the ward. The little G somehow stands for Freedom—it will be checked under an ultra-violet light as we walk back through the gate after the service.

Eclat

We are early and in the auditorium are a dozen or so of the leaders of the Church, called Revelation Ministers, talking, handing out programs and greeting their friends from the outside.

"Eclat is heavy, man. He got the sink in that bathroom cleaned for the first time in ten years." But the band has not arrived yet and there is some concern. Three hours have been allotted for the service and it must be over by 4 p.m. "Eclat has to f-ck up sometimes. He's new. He's finding his place. But it will work out. It always does."

The congregation of prisoners begins filling the seats and the band arrives. It's Icebreaker, one of Iowa City's best bands, and, as they begin to play, the atmosphere loosens up. Seventy-one siders have come and many of the girls are now dancing in front of the stage. The prisoners are slow to join in the dancing, but as the music pounds on a few get up and boogie.

One turns to me and says, "It makes a big difference to have the outsiders in here. The vibrations are tremendous."

I ask a guard what he thinks of the Church. "It looks like they're having a good time. It's a little early to tell, but it looks like it could be good for the spirit and morale of the guys. They look like they're enjoying themselves."

Warden Lou Brewer is watching from the back of the hall and I ask him what he thinks of the Church. "I am opposed to the Church and I am operating under a court order. My attitudes were pretty well expressed in court." This is his official position, and in the silence following the curt reply a prisoner approaches the warden and says, "Peace, truth and freedom, that's what we're after. I hope sometime you come to the realization that we're trying to do the right thing."

"I hope so," says Warden Brewer. He tells me of his concern as to whether C.O.N.S. is a bona fide religion. "I have the same dilemma as the court. Who's to say what is or isn't a religion... Many religions had a hard time being accepted in the early stages. Our judgment has to come down the road a piece." He is concerned that it could unrealistically raise the expectation of what it could do for the prisoners. But he concluded, "It's a here-and-now fact of life, and we are going to accommodate it as best we can."

The music stops and the speakers begin to address the crowd, which by now is about 200 strong.

Bob Copeland, a Revelation Minister living in Iowa City, talks about "spiritual validation." "Eclat is the new name for the Godhead, the spirit within us... We are speaking of the equality of human beings. Each deserving of love. Possessed of dignity and sovereignty over our selves... Today there are forces of oppression pressing on many spirits in the world, dehumanizing, depersonalizing—the task of C.O.N.S. is to expose these forces and eliminate them... to build a new human order of peace and freedom... to fight the sickness of personal spiritual alienation... We have the good news that we are not inferior, ignoble slaves, impotent and deserving of punishment. We are good, powerful and free... The purpose of life is to enjoy it."

Necessities

Copeland speaks of the three necessities of life: something to eat, somewhere to sleep and somebody to love. Those who have these three essentials, he says, are obligated to help others obtain them.

Becky Hensley, another R.M. from the outside, reads from Ecclesiastes and in her sermon reaches the emotional peak of the service. The auditorium is silent except for a few "Yeas" and grunts of assent. She speaks of the freedom to choose life or death. "Whether you keep the faith is yours to choose... Life or death, whatever you prefer is yours... What the spirit of truth tells us it says to wardens and prisoners and guard... The only thing that stops us from loving everyone is that every day we nail Him up on the cross again... I pick life—I pick to say that the spirit of truth is inside me now."

UI professor of psychology Stephen Fox, R.M., concludes the speaker's list with a discussion of institutions, internal and external. He speaks of institutions that "box our lives in... rigid structures that hold our spirit in and down... an institutional disease that keeps us from ourselves and each other... the Man is deep inside you and me... there is a spirit in you that has to fight a monster of institutionalism. It's down in there, you just have to bring it out... the only free person is one who sets someone else free with every act."

The band strikes up again, coffee and donuts roll in, and the dancers, including many prisoners now, are working out. A few prisoners, playing harp and sax and drums, join the band. It's become a h-l of a party.

Geeling good, sensing a liberating vibe of brotherhood, shaking hands and circulating, I talk to the prisoners. Larry Taute and Gene Shockey tell me, "Nobody's ever seen anything like this. This place has never been open like this before. The brothers are looking at each other... The racial tension is gone. They're not stabbing each other anymore."

I am particularly impressed by the totally integrated racial mix, and speak with several black prisoners. Scott Love, an old timer with only 50 days to freedom, told, "My name is 'love.' That's what we need. This is one big step to getting us back to being considered as human beings. I can leave here with confidence that my brothers behind me will have things better and they will be getting better day by day... This is the first time I ever saw you could jump up and dance with somebody. I almost jumped out of my seat."

Tension

Jack Baker, R.M., says that although there used to be some racial tension, "now everything is mellow. We're not fighting each other. We're all together. Before the Church you'd never see such a mixed group... Lou (the warden) will start working with us. He's coming around. He'll stop fighting us."

After the service Lou Brewer says his opinion has been "mitigated a bit. Admittedly there hasn't been the disruption. We try to channel our negativism into hospitality." At 4:00 p.m. the service is over. John Kyle, R.M. who has served nine years on a life sentence, is talking about the Church. "It's changed my attitude. There's hope where there wasn't. I was bitter when I came here, but not so much any more. I can rap with people. The Church showed me where it was at. I feel like now I can make it. All I need is a chance." We shook hands. I turned and waved to the prisoners left behind in the yard. They were smiling. We walked back through the gate where they checked my left hand.

Don't call the cops

What do I do when they are having a beer bust with the stereo full blast at 1:30 a.m. a few doors away? Should I call the campus cops. —M.A.

There are several other things that you should try first. We spoke with Ms. Elaine Tomash, head resident of Currier, and she suggested that students with a noise complaint would be best advised to follow this procedure: First, it's always advisable to try to solve the problem on a person to person basis. If this is the first time you've experienced trouble with your neighbors, or if they've been cooperative in the past, talk to them yourself and many times you'll find that that is all that is necessary. If you can't get any satisfaction on your own, then call the advisor in residence on your floor. If the R.A. is out or can't resolve your noise problem, then it's time to call the Head Resident.

Dormitory life is supposed to be an exercise in community living. In any community you are generally advised to try to reach a solution by individual action before calling down the wrath of the public protectors (the campus security police in

Received a new clock

I purchased a Seth-Thomas digital alarm clock at Wayner's store in downtown Iowa City on July 10, 1973. On approximately August 10th I returned the clock to them because of a malfunction in the drowse button. I was informed by the clerk waiting on me at the time that the clock would be sent to the factory. It has now been almost three months since that time. I have tried unsuccessfully to get any information from the clerks at the store as they didn't seem to know much about it.

I asked for a refund, but Mr. Wayner told me that he couldn't give me a refund and that I would have to wait for the clock. He told me that the company doing the repair had moved and that was the reason for the delay.

I don't feel that it should take three months for this type of repair, and I'm very dissatisfied with the manner in which I've been treated at this store. I would appreciate your assistance.—R.O.

Well, you have a new clock now, due primarily to the letter writing skills of Consumer Protection Service personnel who you also called upon. It seems that the company which makes your clock really did move recently, and this may be the reason for the delay you endured.

The clock you purchased is one of Wayner's less expensive lines, and the warranty that attaches to it is somewhat limited. The customer is generally responsible for sending the clock in to the factory, and the company in turn is bound to make repairs or to replace the clock. In your case Wayner's sent the clock in for you, but they really had negligible control over it after they had returned it to the manufacturer. Fortunately the CPS letter to the company seemed to be sufficient impetus to move Seth-Thomas to send you a new clock rather than make you wait even longer for repairs to be completed on your old one.

You also have a new warranty. In the future if you have trouble you might do better to send the clock in yourself with a cover letter explaining your problem. Repeated letters of inquiry after that usually bring some action if the company is slow in responding to your request for repairs.

Bucks-Wolves

CHICAGO (AP) — What will happen Saturday if either Ohio State or Michigan is confronted with the possibility of going for a tie or for a win in their big game for the Big Ten title and Rose Bowl bid.

"I'd say both will play to win," Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler told Chicago Football Writers Tuesday in a telephone interview.

A year ago, Bo refused to try to tie the game with a field goal attempt and went for what failed to be a game-winning touchdown. The Wolverines lost 14-11 and Ohio State gained a share of the conference crown and went on to the Rose Bowl.

"The circumstances are different this year," said Schembechler. "Last year we had clinched at least a share of the title and they had one loss. I don't know what the circumstances will be this time but I'd say either team would go for the win."

Confronted with the same question, Woody Hayes, coach of the No. 1 ranked Buckeyes, refused to answer by saying "I'll have to discuss it with my staff."

Both coaches, however, agreed that the winner of their game Saturday should be No. 1.

Little

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Floyd Little, Denver Bronco running back who says he wants to "try and make the area a live in a better place to live." Tuesday received the YMCA Brian Piccolo Award for unselfish contributions to the betterment of man and his community.

The second annual award, given in the memory of the late Chicago Bear running back, was presented by the National Council of YMCAs.

Little, a graduate of Syracuse University, told newsmen he is enrolled at the University of Denver law school and hopes to become a juvenile court judge.

"I do not choose to be a common man," he said of his philosophy. "It is my right to be uncommon if I can."

Little has campaigned against drug abuse and also worked, as a volunteer special assistant to the Colorado governor and the Denver Police Department. He also has worked with the Denver YMCA, the United Negro College Fund, the Epilepsy Foundation and the March of Dimes.

"Anything you ask him to do, he finds time to do," said Denver Mayor Bill McNichols. "He's amazing."

Little was selected for the award by a committee of YMCA, sports and business leaders. The award goes to athletes whose humanitarian services are "on their own because they believe in something," said John A. Meyers, a magazine publisher and committee member.

Four other finalists were the late Roberto Clemente of the Pittsburgh Pirates; Willie Stargell, Pirates; Phil Niekro, Atlanta Braves, and Milt Sunde, Minnesota Vikings.

Jauron

NEW YORK (AP) — About a week ago, somebody sidled up to Dick Jauron, the Detroit Lions' rookie safety, and mentioned that he hadn't made an interception all year.

"I don't know if I'm ever gonna get one," Jauron replied. "Nothing seems to come my way."

On Sunday, everything came his way. The former Yale running back intercepted three Chicago passes, all of them deep in Detroit territory. He blazed 95-yards for a touchdown with the first one and piled up 167-yards in returns with the three to spark the Lions to a 30-7 romp over the Bears.

For that standout performance, Jauron was named Tuesday The Associated Press Defensive Player of the Week in the National Football League.

"The turning point was Jauron's first interception," said Detroit quarterback Bill Munson. "We scored the first time we got the ball, but then we went into a lull. When Jauron put us ahead 14-7, everything seemed to turn around."

Other outstanding defensive players included Jauron's teammate, Mike Lucki, who intercepted two other Chicago passes. Charlie Stukes of Los Angeles, who picked off a pair of passes that set up scores in the Rams' 31-13 victory over San Francisco, and Willie Lanier of Kansas City, who made 10 individual tackles, made an interception to set up a touchdown and forced a fumble in the Chiefs' 38-14 triumph over Houston.

Poll

Unbeaten Ohio State, which prepped for Saturday's showdown against Big Ten co-leader Michigan with a 55-13 rout of winless Iowa last week, retained the top spot in The Associated Press college football ratings, announced Tuesday.

There was no change among the positions of the top 13 teams from last week's poll.

The Buckeyes received 34 first-place votes and 1,142 points from the nationwide panel of 62 sports writers and broadcasters participating in this week's poll.

Second-ranked Alabama, which meets Louisiana State Thanksgiving Day in a Southeastern Conference showdown, got 16 first-place mentions and 1,082 points.

Oklahoma, which can clinch the Big Eight title by beating Nebraska Friday, received nine first-place votes and 973 points to retain third place.

The next three teams each received one first-place vote. Michigan held down fourth place with 845 points. Notre Dame was fifth at 760 and Penn State was sixth at 672.

Completing the top 10 were LSU, 577; UCLA, 469; Southern California, 407, and Nebraska, 391. UCLA and Southern Cal meet Saturday in a battle for the Pacific-8 crown.

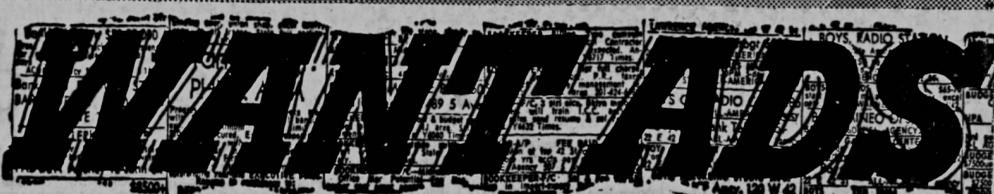

Texas, Texas Tech and Arizona State retained the top three spots in the second 10, but last week's No. 14, Missouri, lost to Iowa State 17-7 Saturday and dropped down to 19th. Houston, idle Saturday, climbed one notch to 14th and Miami of Ohio, which has completed a 10-0 season, moved from 17th to 15th.

North Carolina State finished 16th, followed by Tulane, Oklahoma State and Missouri. Kansas and Pittsburgh tied for the final spot in the top 20.

Will confront Elliott

Shocked Hawks react to firing

By GREG LUND
Asst. Sports Editor
University of Iowa football players were shocked Tuesday upon hearing that their coach, Frank Lauterbur, had been fired.

Lauterbur told the squad of his dismissal prior to their rain-soaked practice.

Some outcry against the action was raised in a squad meeting following practice. One unidentified player said that representatives from each class will meet with Athletic Director Bump Elliott this morning to discuss the firing.

For the seniors, Lauterbur's firing is the second coaching change since they began their careers at Iowa.

Tailback Craig Johnson was a sophomore in 1970 when Ray Nagel was fired following two straight 5-5 campaigns.

"I'm upset about the coaches leaving but there were rumors that they might leave," said Johnson. "I don't see how you can blame our season on the coach. This is going to be bad for the younger players."

Defensive back Rick Brooks was also in on the Nagel controversy with then Athletic Director Forest Evashevski. Of the original 35 players recruited in that class, he's one of 12 currently on the squad.

"I think he's a good coach," Brooks said. "There was pressure everywhere. This week's game is a must to win."

Senior tight end Tom Cabalka felt the timing of Lauterbur's firing was bad, saying if action was going to be taken it should have been after this week's final game.

"We (the team) just want to win a game so bad," said the Edina, Minn., native. "It's just bad timing, but there's no good time to get rid of a coach, some class will get hurt."

One of the Hawk tri-captains, Brian Rollins, also reflected upon the shock that was on many of the Iowa players' faces.

"I'm really not involved, I'm over the hill since I'm a senior," he said. "I think he should have had a chance to fulfill his contract. He has a lot of guts and I respect him. I've had my disagreements with him, but you're happy to be associated with someone who believes in you."

Rollins was asked if he was surprised at the announcement.

"There was a lot of talk about it, but I was surprised," said Rollins. "I hope a lot of younger cats don't get messed up."

Though associated with two coaching changes and poor Iowa football teams, Rollins says he will still be a Hawkeye fan.

He also talked about this season's woes.

"Being a captain, my name goes into the record book right along with Frank's," he went on to say. "When you're in the coaching profession you've got to put your stuff out on front street."

The younger players on the team are the ones who will be affected the most by Lauterbur's firing. All of the underclassmen were recruited by FXL and his staff. They too reacted with shock and the stark realization that after Saturday, Frank Lauterbur won't be their head coach.

Sophomore linebacker John Campbell said, "I'm sorry to see him go, but we're just going to have to play for somebody else."

Middle-guard Dave Bryant was shocked at the announcement and along with many players wondered what kind of coach will be hired and what type of philosophy he'll employ.

"I'm used to playing middle-guard," Bryant said. "If they (the new staff) don't go with a 5-2 defense, I could end up in a different position."

Bryant was asked if he could pinpoint why the Hawkeyes have been losing this season.

"It's hard to pinpoint something like that. Nothing's gone right this year. But the answer isn't in a coaching change."

If any of the players are considering a change in schools, the mandatory one-year waiting period stands in the way. Cornerback Earl Douthitt pondered that possibility.

"I can't go anywhere," Earl said. "I'd have to sit out a year. I like it here, but I'd think about playing somewhere else."

Another tri-captain, Roger Jerrick, summed up Tuesday's events.

"I wish they would have stuck with him," he said. "He stuck with us through this whole season. He's a helluva guy."

Afterthoughts bob dyer

Firing a football coach can often turn out to be a dirty affair. Iowans saw too much of it during the Nagel-Evashevski feud. But whether you agree or disagree with Frank Lauterbur's dismissal, you have to admire the character shown by the people directly involved.

Say what you want about FXL's coaching, and I guess people will be considering his 4-27-1 record, but never let it be said that he was shortchanged in two categories. Those are guts and class.

Lauterbur was fired by Athletic Director Bump Elliott, but if a guy ever went out in style, it was FXL.

He was dismissed because he wouldn't make coaching changes Elliott felt necessary.

After an 0-10-? season something had to be done. Elliott felt a reshuffling of the coaching staff was the answer. Lauterbur did not.

Instead of slandering each other both men parted crisply. No referee was needed to break up this confrontation.

It's no Pentagon secret that one of the coaches involved was the volatile Ducky Lewis. But Ducky too showed his class.

Neither Elliott, Lewis or Lauterbur would comment on the situation. It was done and that was that. There was no name calling.

Lewis even broke up the dismal setting with his usual quick quip.

Upon seeing an unusual number of newsmen in the Hawkeye camp, Ducky exclaimed, "when the Titanic goes down, everybody shows up."

That Ducky was the primary iceberg in the sinking is not completely true either. One rumor had him offering his resignation to Lauterbur but FXL refused to accept it.

Lauterbur rebutted this allegation saying that no one on his staff had resigned or talked to him about taking a new job.

FXL will be missed in this corner. His availability to newsmen was unparalleled. He never backed off from a candid question.

A respected man in his field, he'll have no trouble finding new employment.

His primary worry Tuesday, however, was for his assistants, who work with only one-year contracts.

You can't fake the kind of concern Lauterbur showed toward his staff. A lesser man might have released a couple of assistants to save his own scalp. Not FXL.

And I wouldn't bet against every one of his eight aides landing a job somewhere soon.

"I had planned on going fishing," laughed FXL, "but now it looks like I'm going to have to attend that damn coaches' convention after all."

As for Bump Elliott, he did what he thought was necessary to improve the football picture at Iowa. He's the Athletic Director and it was his decision.

No matter your opinion of the move, the way the people involved handled it has to be admired.

Elliott: A change needed

By BOB DYER
Sports Editor
Iowa Athletic Director Bump Elliott slumped back in a chair in the Sports Information Department office in the Field House. A weary look enveloped his face.

"This certainly won't go down as one of the happiest days in my life," said Elliott, shaking his head slowly.

Elliott had spent the afternoon answering questions concerning the firing of a man he had worked closely with for three years, Frank Lauterbur.

"Basically, it was a matter of making staff changes," he said. "I felt it was necessary for us to have a new look, a feeling of some change. Frank disagreed. 'When you've had a season like we've had, you have to see where you are and get things going.'"

Elliott said Lauterbur would have remained as coach if the recommendations had been accepted. He would not deal in specifics as to which coach or coaches he felt should be replaced.

Elliott briefed the Board in Control of Athletics on the situation and received its vote of confidence.

The former Michigan all-American said he couldn't pinpoint the reason for Iowa's downfall this year.

"Things seemed to accumulate as the season rolled along," he said. "We played a fine game against Minnesota but it did not turn us around. We had to make a change."

Elliott indicated that as of now he had no idea who would be appointed as the new coach. However, he did say it would not be himself or his brother Pete, now the head coach at Miami, Fla.

"A state bylaw prohibits nepotism so that leaves Pete out," he said. "As for myself, I'm not interested in getting back into coaching."

The third-year athletic director said he would discuss the coaching situation with the athletic board next Tuesday.

"Everything has happened so fast," he said. "But we'll try to name a coach as quickly as possible."

Concerning the remaining two years on Lauterbur's contract, Elliott said the board would also discuss it next Tuesday and that all commitments would be honored.

Elliott further stated that his relationship with Lauterbur had been close the past three years and that only the difference over coaching brought about the dismissal.

"I really felt optimistic before this season began," he said. "I never would have dreamed it would have ended this way."
