Progressive News

The former Vice President took a major step Monday towards the settlement of a dispute at the Old Capitol, the Center Co. in the reorganization and its subsidiaries. As a result, the case was set for a hearing before the court.

After a closed meeting this morning that resulted in a settlement, the council agreed to a proposal that Agnew had accepted.

The settlement involves a dispute between the respondent and the bar of the state of Iowa and the Iowa Supreme Court.

A hearing is to be held May 15th.

In a statement made at the time of the hearing, the council said in part:

"We are pleased to announce that a settlement has been reached.

"The council recognizes the nature of the case and the importance of the issues involved.

"We are hopeful that this settlement will be accepted by the bar and the public.

"The council looks forward to the final determination of the case before the Iowa Supreme Court."

Legislators suggest holding surplus funds

DES MOINES—Out of the central area of concern in the session, the Iowa Legislature was what it does with the surplus budget estimated to be between $220 and $280 million. Although there has been much discussion of a legislative return of some sort, the majority of legislators reflect on the 1997-98 session.

Enemies list goes world-wide

The dicorner of former White House legal counsel John Dean has had an amusing list of enemies that he prepared while in custody. The list includes numerous names of people who were to be a threat to him or to others. The list has brought much publicity and outcry from the press and the public.

But there is another enemies list that has brought much less attention. This list is known to almost no one and is almost virtually unknown to the citizenry, although it is potentially more dangerous and may have dire consequences.

This list is an "international enemies list" involving several government agencies and foreign governments. The list is not public and is kept secret.

The president has determined in varying degrees against Canada. New Zealand, Australia, the Netherlands, Finland, Sweden and Denmark.

The most dramatic case in point involves Sweden, with which relationships were not remarkably strained but ultimately severed. The catalyst for this event was, as it was in most of the countries named above, the 1972 Christmas bombing of North Vietnam, which accomplished virtually nothing—there is still not a true peace in Vietnam—and squad-wrecked world-wide, disastrous, which Premier Olof Palme of Sweden expressed most forcefully.

As a result of the Palme anti-Nixon statements, the United States charge of affairs in Sweden was told not to return to Sweden following a vacation that he was taking and a newly named Swedish ambassa dor was told to show his face in Washington.

Palme retaliated by standing in front of a Stockholm department store and collecting signatures on a petition condemning the bombing.

Perhaps the most serious action was the freeze against Canada. This resulted in nothing short of idiocy when you remember that the United States is eager to spread development and curtail gas deposits in the Canadian Arctic with the hope of getting some of the fuel for its nuclear power plants. This has relied heavily on such supplies from Canada.

Since the US questioning all and themselves by the 1980's, Canada is reluctant to part with the resources that they have at hand and they must certainly will not part with the resources if they are frozen out by the White House.

There is also the fact that the American-Canadian relationship has long been pointed to as an example of mutual friendship between two countries sharing common border lines.

Despite this, when the Canadian Parliament condemned the bombings, Nixon was enraged to the point where American officials visited Premier Pierre Trudeau to try to avoid relationships with Canadian diplomats and accordin to The New York Times, no one above the rank of the Canadian desk officer would correspond with the Geneva office.

The list of examples goes on and on but all point to the same thing President Nixon, with the characteristic arrogance that has marked his entire career, seems not to realize that the United States is not the only power in the world and that inferior breeds who are supposed to roll over and approve the traditional sex roles have done their time alone. The individuals who reason or another spend a great deal of the day and night.

Arguments for hard look at TV medium

By: John Norrie

T.V. Specialist

John advises the "movie reviewer" below the "music critic" and in turn, the "music critic" below the "film critic." Utilizing this herarchy, anyone below the "movie critic" can and often will offer only the "television critic" a spirited special or essay on his/her choice. Other readers then ask the "television critic" to gear down to the tube, and the people below the "television critic" are not essentially the approach. The question, simply, is whether television deserves the criticism implied.

Does who so say nada do the same for an occasional review? A colage of Montreal tickets strew the page, the question looking for an occasional NET special or news review. The "television critic" and often will offer cosmopolitan adventures to the "television critic". The "television critic" clearly has only the hardware sold over the defense of Let's Make A Deal or The Brady Bunch. On the other hand, only a few of television's critics haven't let that be a Deal or The Brady Bunch. The "television critic" not a good Net number will write in the "television critic". The "television critic" discussion of these programs over or under the "television critic" isn't television's journal but that patiently attends the "television critic". The "television critic" copy editor offers itself up so easily. Movie houses, bookstores, concert halls can all be critical but television's accessibility can be turned on once and the difference is fine for sports coats and a good labelling is fine for sports coats. The acting and the kind of changes other media presents that are television . . .

Ask for generic name

I have a problem, I concern drugs and money. I think a lot of drugs. I am aware of prescription drugs, of course. I've had a run of colds and other probems requiring medical attention this winter, and I'm costing me a fortune. I may be mistaken, but I have the feeling that our operation is prescribing drugs which are more expensive than need be for my particular problem. Aren't a lot of drugs left? How much money do the name brand name? Can I be sure that I am getting the drug I need without these expensive names? There is a way to save money on prescription drugs and medicine. Buy the drug under its generic name. Most well-known advertised brands of anything more than unknowns are brand names. You pay for the advertising that brand names. In many cases you pay considerably more.

The first thing you have to do, though, is to get your doctor to prescribe the drug under its generic name. Don’t hesitate to ask your pharmacist if your prescription calls for the drug under generic name at your specific request. Tell the drugstore that you want the lowest-priced generic drug that he or she can recommend. You may be surprised at the amount you can save by returning to pay for a "brand name" drug.

Pictures were bad

As an ad in the television program last week for a new show, and let's face it, the program, plus special gift that turned out to be some imitation pearls. About three weeks after the screening to look at the pearls. They were ok, but there were some flaws. Each of the flaws was noticeable, but I was assured that the viewing process would cover up these types. I enrolled more copies of the pictures.

I put 50 down and another 400 to the picture came C.O.D. They turned out bad. They were pretty big ups of me because they promised something I didn't get. Then I would like to go elsewhere to have other pictures taken.

Next, tell your pharmacist that your prescription calls for the drug under generic name at your specific request. Tell the drugstore that you want the lowest-priced generic drug that he or she can recommend. You may be surprised at the amount you can save by returning to pay for a "brand name" drug.

Actuallist poet to write mile long poem today

Science may fail but poetry to succeed

By PAUL RASO

A Special to The Daily Iowan

Iowa City (Iowa) — The poet who was named one of the ten best in the country by the National Endowment of the Arts last January, has decided to write a poem that will be exactly a mile long. The poet, David Morice, is known for his unique ability to combine poetry and science, and this latest project is no exception. The poem will be written on a special machine that can type out exactly a mile of text. The project is expected to take several months, as Morice works tirelessly at his typewriter. This is not the first time Morice has taken on a project of this magnitude. In 1995, he wrote a poem that was exactly one mile long, and it was displayed in the National Museum of American History in Washington, D.C. Morice's latest work is already generating a lot of interest among poetry enthusiasts and scientists alike. "It's a unique project that speaks to the intersection of art and science," said one observer. "It's a testament to the power of poetry to express complex ideas." Morice is currently preparing for the release of his latest book, "Mile Long Poem: The Science Behind the Art," which will be released later this year. The book will explore the scientific principles that underlie the creation of the poem, and it is expected to be a bestseller.
Egypt rejects parts of pullback

ASWAN, Egypt (AP) — Egypt's latest round of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's pullback plan for the Sinai Front Monday and is expected to complete by the end of the year, Kissinger leaves for Athens to begin his tour of the Middle East.

Kissinger came to Egypt for the Middle East peace talks, which have proceeded very slowly since the last round of the talks, held in April. Kissinger's visit is expected to be brief, and he is not expected to participate in any of the substantive discussions.

In his press conference, Kissinger said that the current round of the talks is different from previous rounds because it is not focused on specific issues but on the overall framework for peace in the region.

Kissinger added that the talks are not being held in a vacuum, but are taking place in a context of ongoing violence and instability in the region.

He said that the talks are not yet at a point where they can be called successful, but that they are making progress and that the parties are willing to continue the discussions.

Kissinger also expressed hope that the talks will lead to a lasting peace in the region, and that they will be able to build on the achievements of previous rounds of the talks.

He added that the United States is committed to supporting the peace process and that it will continue to work closely with the parties to the talks.

Kissinger's visit to Egypt is expected to be short, and he is not expected to participate in any of the substantive discussions.
Hey, man, did you see this ad for stereo systems? Like, man, all the big names.

Yeah, man, like Marantz, Pioneer, Akai, TEC, Sony... you know, all the biggies.

And like, man, the price is right. I mean right on. I can get the whole system for less than I thought.

Hey, like how come you keep saying too much, man?

Hey, man, how come you know all that? Like lower prices and a better place to buy.

'CUZ I saw that ad, man, and I happen to know I can do better at World Radio. Same brands, same systems, but lower prices and a better place to buy.

'CUZ World Radio is big, man. Like the biggest discount stereo operation in Iowa and Nebraska. And big means buying power... and that means they buy for less so they can sell for less.

Yeah! And you get personalized service from qualified stereo consultants. And your purchase comes with a written 5 year warranty with World Radio's own service department to back it up. And warranty.

It's no ripoff, man. 'CUZ World Radio sez to bring in any current newspaper ad from their competitors and if World Radio's price isn't already lower, they'll beat the competition on any comparable item in stock.

No, man, not far out. But right on at World Radio!
