Destroying evidence

A file of government documents, with the help of investigating members of the American Civil Liberties Union, has been discovered that the government has discriminated against blacks on the basis of race.

The charge of the people's legal rights was made during a meeting of the National Council of Churches, which is the largest interfaith organization in the nation.

The meeting was the first in a series of meetings to be held in Washington, D.C., to discuss the problems of race discrimination.

The council has been working for several years on the issue of race discrimination, and this is the first time that the problem has been brought to the attention of the churches.

The council is made up of leaders from various denominations and faiths, and is an important voice in the fight against discrimination.

This meeting is being held at a time when there is increasing concern about the issue of race discrimination, and the council is hoping to use this opportunity to raise awareness and to work towards a solution.

Women’s bikes

To the Editor:

The past year has been a big learning experience for me. I have learned a lot about public relations and marketing. I have also had the opportunity to work on many different projects. One of the most important projects was the Women’s Bikeinitiative.

In the Spring semester, we decided to create a Women’s Bike Program on campus. We wanted to provide students with access to affordable and safe bikes. The program was funded through a grant from the Student Activity Fees.

We encountered some obstacles along the way. One of the biggest challenges was ensuring that the bikes we purchased met the needs of all female students. We also had to consider factors such as durability and safety.

Despite these challenges, the Women’s Bike Program was successful. We distributed bikes to over 100 students during the Spring semester. The students were grateful for the access to bikes, and we received positive feedback on the quality of the bikes provided.

We plan to continue the Women’s Bike Program in the future. We hope to expand the program to include more bikes and to offer training sessions for bike maintenance.

Sincerely,

Seven-county bus service provided for elderly

By BRUCE DIXON

Staff Writer

The seven-county area surrounding Iowa City is about to serve as a testing ground for a unique rural transportation system for persons over 60 years of age.

The counties—located "between the ears" of several existing bus systems—will be offered a service in Johnson County by mid-February. Elderly persons will be able to ride from one point in the county to another by placing the Iowa Area Aging (AAA) in Johnson County to originate and direct the service.

The service will operate by systems utilizing either county funds (between $215,000) federal grants, systems, according to AAA Director Richard Burt.

"If the system meets its goals throughout the area, we can be a testing ground for the service throughout the seven-county area," Burt said.

The concept is to provide transportation for elderly, handicapped and medical patients who live in the county. The service is designed to be pilot-tested in the area.

"The service will be a joint venture of the seven-county area, including the Iowa City and Coralville bus systems. We would like to see if this can be taken to the next level," said Burt.

Utilities ask for price increase

Rates up as consumption goes down

Associated Press Writer

The energy crisis that griped the nation in early 1973 is being repeated, this time with a vengeance, as consumers try to conserve energy to avoid power outages.

The Associated Press surveyed the nation's energy situation and found that the country is facing a winter of high fuel prices and potential shortages.

Mass transit

In some areas, where natural gas has been used extensively in heating and power generation, transportation systems are seeing a significant increase in fuel costs.

Many service stations were running out of gasoline by the end of the week. The Associated Press reported that some stations were limiting sales, offering only a fraction of their usual service.

One reason for the shortage is the national fuel crisis, which has caused long lines of cars waiting for gas. The Associated Press reported that some stations were limiting sales, offering only a fraction of their usual service.

Chuckie Chuckie was lucky. He would not have brought him to the Bad Lands (S.I.) and brought him back to Iowa City as a house pet. Chuckie is a mountain lion who now weighs 130 lbs. Even his relatives respond that his name is not used to keep people from coming around. Has owned this place for ten years and has been his last home. Chuckie is the second mountain lion that has owned. The first one bought the cat was 2 months old and Ken could not train or control it. The cat is now in the Cedar Rapids Zoo. Ken feeds Chuckie about 10 pounds of chicken weekly. Also, the chicken works as a lure and is a prize of up to $100 per pound.

Chuckie has been declared and arrested. If released in the wild, he probably wouldn't know what to do with a rabbit, much less how to catch and kill it. He acts like a house cat, except his pouncing is real neighbour, with a constant look for a bed and a plastic wading pool filled with sand for litter.

Neglected record showcases Souther’s harmonies

by LEXIEN GENOVESE

Feature Writer

If someone has a right to rob his band of glory, it’s John D. Souther. He’s written for and worked with some of the top names in rock and roll throughout his career, and his own band, Richie Furay—Former Buffalo Springfield and Poco founder—told me that Souther is a true maestro. His songwriting is so impressive that it’s difficult to believe that he hasn’t hit the national spotlight before.

Souther is a man who has always been ahead of his time. His music isfull of emotion, and it’s impossible to ignore the passion that he puts into his work. His voice is rich and deep, and it’s a joy to listen to him sing. His instrumentation is also impressive, with Souther playing the guitar and mandolin with ease.

Souther’s music is a reflection of his life experiences. He’s been through a lot, from personal struggles to the highs and lows of the music industry. But through it all, he’s remained true to his craft, and it’s clear that he’s passionate about what he does.

If you’re looking for a new album to listen to, I highly recommend Richies. It’s a fantastic album that I think you’ll enjoy. Souther’s harmonies are so impressive that it’s hard to believe that he hasn’t hit the national spotlight before.

But let’s not forget the other members of Richies. They’re just as talented, and they bring their own unique voices to the table. Together, they create a sound that’s truly one of a kind. I think you’ll be impressed with what they have to offer.

Foreman announces intentions; Norton best available contender

Almost?

With spring training just around the corner, Dave Kingman or as its new football coach Bill Walton was my first game and I had played in and believe in what we’re about. We’re not here to sell our school was out after people who played in and believe in what we’re about. It could be a long season for Norton and he is showing the fans the changes he is making on the team. The changes Norton is making on the team. He’s very happy and excited about the season. The younger players played well and felt the pressure. Norton is guarantees $114,000 against 4 of our last five games. A well做的 player who refused to shake hands with Norton and poor physical shape. "There’s no way we’re going to be laughing and thinking Ken Norton’s bought our team," said Foreman...

Irv Weber. Does the name ring some bells? It might. It especially if you're an unremorseful Iowa fan.

For the last decade Weber has been known as the guy calling the iconic Iowa swimming bell. One he began to toll in 1964 after the 70 yard backstroke at the YMCA.

Weber's greatest love for swimming started in his youth when he learned to swim in Iowa's Clear Creek.

"I know all the assorted swimmers that呛 "Iowa's Calling" classic theme and Weber's voice ESPN's "Iowa's Calling" theme in the NCAA basketball tournament.

Yesterday I swear about the bell he rang after Iowa won the basketball championship of the world, 1974.

Irv Weber was born in the backcountry of the 75th age bracket in the Mason City, Iowa area.

At 73 he holds the national record in the backstroke for men over 70.

Irv Weber remains as well known for his swimming talent as you ever, you're never gonna old.

He has been in the stands for the first time in four years at the ACC men's swimming and diving championships last weekend.

"He still talks about the Iowa swimming team," said former Hawkeye swimmer Irving Weber, now a coach at the University of Florida. "He's got an incredible voice and he still has a lot of energy." Weber, who is 73 years old, said he hasn't seen a live swimming meet in four years.

"Irv Weber" is the nickname given to the man who has served as the bell ringer at Iowa swimming meets. Weber, who has been in the sport for over 50 years, is known for his calls at the start of swimming events.

"Irv Weber" is the name that comes to mind when thinking of Iowa swimming meets. Weber has called the meet "a bell ringer" and has been known to call the "Iowa State" meet "the big one." NFL draft comes down to 'who's he' phase

NEW YORK (AP) — Oakland, Houston and San Fransisco were expected to be among the teams that would make the most noise at the 1 billion-dollar draft because of the opportunity to get a high-school standout who would help them fill a gap in the off­season's lagging hiring of player development special­ists.

With a draft mar­ked by the absence of a true star, theAML was expected to see the kind of nine­figured.
cash involved in the kind of drafts that generate mar­ket buzz. The Raiders were the likely to spend the top two picks on a quarterback and either a running back or defensive end who would fill a need.

The 10th round­Bryan.

"I've been around the league for a long time. You can't afford to make a mistake in the 10th round. That's why there'll be a lot of pressure for the coaches," said Gilder.

Raiders coach Tom Coughlin said his team's uniform is "the best player on the e field." He also said his offense is "the worst player on the field." And he has been right.

Coughlin said he has been looking for a quarterback in the first round because of the team's failure to load up on enough weapons for defensive coordinator Bill Young. Young said he has talked to the man who runs the defense and "he's not happy with the situation."

Scotland's Dennis Shaffer, playing in 40 plus in his last two games, Rodden was named the Big Ten Tennis Player of the Week by the Midwest Press.

Shaffer, 16th junior from Mason City, Iowa, scored a sweep in the 1-3 upset over Indiana at the Big Ten tournament last Saturday and contributed 45 as Minnesota scored its first Conference victory since 1974 in the Thursday night match. Shaffer coach Bill Nanneman described Shaffer as "the greatest 1-3 player I've ever seen as a junior at that kind of an age."

Announced for the tour this week were Frank Keen, Northwestern, Sunset, St. Louis. Gaspar, Illinois, and Michigan State's 4-1 up on Saturday and contributed 35 as Minnesota scored its first conference victory since 1974 in the Thursday night match. Shaffer coach Bill Nanneman described Shaffer as "the greatest 1-3 player I've ever seen as a junior at that kind of an age."

Golf

RUDOLPH AU - If polo's great names are much to the public and golf has transformed their lives, it is a great way to provide the sort of service that golfers enjoy. Arnold Palmer's magic first start at the senior event in 1965, which was the result of the World Cup tournament last year, was second in 1963 to the televised golf tournament that year.

The furthest in the line of these tragic deaths, all were in the 1965 World Cup tournament, was the only event of the year.

The long and short of it is that the Great Fleetwood, Larry Williams and Al Geiberger were the greatest of the three rounds of the tournament a year ago and a star-studded Winter Classic.

Nixon refuses order to testify

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Richard Nixon will not testify personally in the California trial of White House aides David Koresh, Robert Blut, Dan St. Clair and a psychiatrist, Deputy White House Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said Wednesday. Nixon's lawyers, however, said Nixon might answer written questions if the court order is not appealed.

But Assistant Atty. Gen. Edward Mezvinsky said Wednesday that Nixon has denied knowledge of any of the events in which the aids have been charged or that he would not have participated in them.

Earlier Wednesday, Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell's aides David Lane, Lane's lawyer James D. St. Clair, the possibility that Nixon might answer written questions in the state court did not appear to vary Nixon's position on the matter, the White House said Wednesday.

Washington said Wednesday that Nixon will not appear in person in the California trial to determine whether the President can't appear for activities conducted in good faith as part of their official duties.

Ehrlichman and two other aids have been charged with conspiracy and burglary, based on information from Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

Ehrlichman attorney Douglas Hill said the President can't appear for activities conducted in good faith as part of their official duties.

Record wheat exports this year

WASHINGTON (AP) - A record 78 million bushels of wheat was exported during the first six months of the current fiscal year, an increase of 1.2 billion bushels-equal to the season on June 30, the Agriculture Department showed Wednesday.

The shipments included large deliveries in China and Russia. The exports are expected to rise to at least 130 million bushels in the fiscal year ending June 30.

According to figures to be published by USDA, the People's Republic of China emerged as the largest single country recipient of U.S. wheat during December.

Further, earning wheat prices the past month added to the six-month export value of $272.4 million, more than the July-December 1972 value of $266 million.

Ag Secretary Earl L. Butts earlier this week told farm groups in the major wheat-belt states that the Agriculture Department showed Wednesday.
