Dick Gregory tells UI audience to 'stay as honest as possible'

By STEVE HOLLAND

Dick Gregory, the comedian invited to bring his anti-drugs message to the University of Iowa community, related his experience with drugs and alcohol, and the life of the times.

"Drug dealers buy in the south and sell in the north, and this is the way it is," Gregory explained. "This is the way it is with the drug makers of America. They make the drugs and send them to the city to sell."

Gregory described a police raid on a drug dealer's home and the drugs and weapons found in the house. "There were drugs and guns in the house and the drugs were sent to the city to sell."

Gregory said that the drug dealers were not the problem, but the people who bought the drugs were the problem.

"The drug dealers are not the problem," Gregory said. "The problem is with the people who buy the drugs."

Gregory related how he had been asked to appear on television shows to discuss drug use and the negative effects of drugs.

"I was asked to appear on television shows to discuss drug use," Gregory said. "I refused to appear on these shows because I don't believe in the war on drugs."

Gregory said that the war on drugs was a failure and that the United States needed to change its drug policy.

"The war on drugs is a failure," Gregory said. "We need to change our drug policy and focus on treatment instead of punishment."

Gregory concluded his talk by encouraging the audience to be honest and to live a drug-free life.

"I encourage you to be honest and to live a drug-free life," Gregory said. "Live your life to the fullest and be happy."

UI street closure plan open to alternatives

By LEROY D'OLIVEIRA

Editor

University of Iowa trustees officially announced that a proposal for the closing of the new road on the University of Iowa campus is being considered.

The proposal, which is being considered by the university, would close the road for the construction of a new library.

The proposal, which is being considered by the university, would close the road for the construction of a new library.

"This road would open from Iowa City to Burlington, which would facilitate the partial renewal of the city," Chambers said. "This road would make the decisions better and the proposal, citing the potential to extend the road and Burlington, would approach the Chamberlin system.

"If you're talking about the plan and you don't have a great decision because it would be too late," Gregory said. "We need to have a great decision and this road would be too late."

Taking his own example, Gregory compared it to the nature of Nature at that time.

Student Senate, SPI elections today

All-stakeholder elections for Student Senate and Student Publications (SPR, SPR) will be held today. SPR will be held in Central Union's Gold Room and the SPR elections will be held in the Black Student Union.

In addition, polls will be placed in the library, the law school, and in the Carson Building. All-stakeholder elections for Student Senate and Student Publications will be held in Central Union's Gold Room and the SPR elections will be held in the Black Student Union.

"The final three sections of the Executive Department's study on student government were submitted to the Senate last month," Gregory said. "It was the Senate's opinion that the final three sections of the Executive Department's study on student government were submitted to the Senate last month."

New Docs

The John Dows Foundation of Moline, Ill, has awarded a grant to the University of Iowa for the Old Capital restoration project. The grant will provide funds to restore the Old Capital, which is a "living museum" of the history of the University of Iowa, to its original 1911 condition.

The Old Capital is a 1911 building that served as the University's administration building until 1936 when it was converted into a classroom building. The building was designed by architect Frank Lloyd Wright and is considered a landmark in the city of Iowa City.

Contact the UI Extensive Division, (353-4963), for more information or to participate in the restoration project.

Iowa Senate rejects 'no-knock'

The Iowa Senate has rejected a "no-knock" bill that would have allowed law enforcement officers to enter private homes without announcing their presence. The bill was introduced by Sen. Tom Riley, R-Cedar Rapids, and was voted down on a 32-18 vote.

The measure was introduced in response to concerns about home invasions and the potential for violence during no-knock raids. However, the bill was met with strong opposition from privacy advocates.

The Senate has remained committed to protecting the privacy rights of individuals and has consistently rejected similar measures in the past.

LASSA suit against elected Board

The suit against the University of Iowa Board of Regents is set to go forward, despite a recent court ruling that dismissed the case. The plaintiffs, who are former regents, are seeking to overturn the Board's decision to terminate their terms before the expiration of their six-year terms.

The Board's decision was based on a finding of "good cause" and was made despite the fact that the plaintiffs had not been found guilty of any misconduct.

The plaintiffs have vowed to continue their legal battle, and a hearing is scheduled for later this month.

Student Senate candidates mull open meetings, student lobby

By MAUREEN CONNORS
Staff Writers

Among the issues discussed by Student Senate candidates at a Wednesday press conference was the possibility of open Senate meetings. Because the two main issues in this debate—whether the student body can implement a broader role for the student publications and whether two co-equal branches of the University government should set up the Recreation Building—have previously been widely discussed by candidates in The Daily Iowan, the press conference focused on views other issues.

Credit

Rick Riley, a Better Days candidate, said newspapers should be valued, and student publications should be given authority to make changes in student fees and the Recreation Building to reflect editorial viewpoints and decisions of students. Newspapers play an important role because they represent student voices and offer a mechanism for dialogue. If student publications were not represented in the student body, students would have no way to express their views. In this case, newspapers would be forced to consider only certain issues, and student publications would become dependent on student fees and the Legislature, not students. That would mean students would have no authority over their own recreation building.

The major role of student publications is to educate the student body about the issues affecting student life, said Dave Panons, an Independent candidate. Student publications often have to answer questions like, "What's going on in the student government?" The publications are usually the only source of information for the student body. Without a student-run publication, students would have no way to continue to receive this kind of information.

Three seats open

Two SPI board candidates run

Editor’s note: The following comments are excerpts from questionnaires returned by The Daily Iowan candidates for positions on Student Publications Inc.

Although there are three open seats on the Student Publications Inc. SPI board, only two candidates have officially appeared on the ballot. Each is running for the same year’s senate. Their qualifications to The Daily Iowan editor are based on the candidates’ past experiences, which are largely focused on student government and the student publication.

The qualifications of the two candidates are similar, but their perspectives on the future of the student publication differ. Wilhemi, who runs for the student government, said the publications should be open to any student who wants to work on them. He is interested in focusing on important issues, such as student demand for more money.

The view that was challenged by independent Mike Fong, who said student publications should be limited to students. He is interested in focusing on important issues, such as student demand for more money. Fong’s perspective is that the publications should be open to any student who wants to work on them.

Endorses Better Days

With the Student Senate elections today, students are facing the crossroads of good governance or egotistical leadership. The election of new senators to serve as leaders over the next two years is the most important decision students will make. This decision is more than a simple vote. It will decide the fate of our student government and its tradition of liberal interpretation of the Constitution.

Better Days is the progressive movement which seeks to bring new, fresh ideas and leadership to the Student Senate. We believe that the Senate should represent the student body as a whole and that the governing legislation should be focused on issues that are of concern to all students. We believe that the Senate should be representative of the diversity of our student body and that all students should have an equal voice in the decision-making process. We believe that the Senate should be open and transparent, and that all students should have access to information about its activities. We believe that the Senate should be accountable to the student body, and that all students should have a say in how it operates.

The Better Days movement is a coalition of students who believe in these values and are committed to making them a reality. We believe that we can create a Student Senate that is responsive to the needs of all students and that is capable of addressing the challenges we face. We believe that we can build a Student Senate that is truly representative of the diversity of our student body. We believe that we can create a Student Senate that is accountable to the student body and that is truly responsive to the needs of all students.

UI vets more organized to handle needs, problems

by JAN MIESHER

UIA University of Iowa officials are becoming increasingly sensitive to the needs of the more than 2,000 service veterans.

The Advisory Council of Veteran Students, under the direction of Walter Coe, Dean of Admissions, Sheldon Tolles, Dean of the College of Liberal Arts, and Richard Boyd, Associate Dean, was established in 1969. The council has various committees: assistant director, academic advisor, and others. The council was established to serve as an input mechanism for veterans with problems or suggestions.

The university currently serves 2,446 veterans, according to the Veterans Administration. Missouri University serves 2,293 veterans.

Veteran students are handled with more care than non-veterans in every aspect of college problems, and most colleges, including the University of Iowa, desire to help the veteran students. This desire is a part of the general reaction of the society. Any "counter-reaction" is a "crass problem," said C. T. R. Bell, of Sabat, a retired member of the university.

 "You are not alone, but it is apparent that you have been to a different school in a different world in every aspect you have been to a different school and it is not easy to make the transition."

The university's attitude toward the veteran student is reflected in the way the university has made it easier for the veteran to make a transition. The university has established a special curriculum for the veteran. This curriculum is designed to help the veteran adapt to the university and to make it easier for the veteran to make the transition.

House passes energy crisis bill: White House veto expected next

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House approved a bill Wednesday requiring the Administration to cut oil imports and giving President Nixon authority to order gasoline rationing.

The measure now goes to the White House where it faces an almost certain veto.

Because of pressure from several of the bill's more environmentally-tinged provisions, including the price rollback and revenue-sharing formula, it was defeated by only 5 votes.

The bill now goes to the Senate, where all but 5 votes in favor of the bill's administration of the energy crisis bill were voted on last week.

Under the original schedule, the House was expected to do its own version of the bill by next week and have it out for consideration by the Senate.

But administration officials said they would not give up hope on the bill until Nixon vetoed it.

The Senate has taken no action on the bill since it was introduced.

Fuel-saving devices

Automakers adding 'goodies'

Detroit (AP) — U.S. automakers say they are going all out to provide gas-conserving devices that will help the consumer buy a new car.

The most major highway improvements are still in the drawing boards. But most of the things that can be done in the short term are being offered by the automakers.

For example, the Ford Motor Co. will add a "Power-Flow" system to its cars in the short term.

The system is designed to help consumers save gas by using less electricity.

It uses a battery-powered motor that is connected to the engine and delivers a constant 12 volts to the fuel pump and the ignition system.

Customer responses from 876 fertilizer suppliers, 95 percent of the anticipated need, will determine whether there will be a fertilizer shortage or not.

If there is a shortage, the government has directed the Agriculture Department to cut the state's allotment by 16 million gallons.

He said fertilizer supplies "should meet the nation's needs" and that there are indications Iowa fertilizers will be needed in the short term because of increased acreage.

With 16 million gallons of fertilizer left, the government has directed the Agriculture Department to cut the state's allotment by 16 million gallons.

The vote on final passage was 258 to 151, short of the two-thirds vote on the price rollback.

The measure now goes to the Senate where it faces an immediate challenge to the legislation.

Coal miners refusing to work

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Appalachian coal miners saying they refused to quit for the first time in memory until the end of gas supplies for the union's steel plants.

The miners, who said the plant was hit by a shortage of coal from the Bahama Islands, were demanding better wages and working conditions. They also claimed that the company was not paying enough for the coal they were supplying.

A United Mine Workers representative said the miners were not expected to return to work unless their demands were met.

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — "It's a farce, it's the craziest thing I've ever seen," said Rozelle, the NFL's commissioner. "The owners are going to have to come up with some kind of plan to move the line back to the goal line." Rozelle said he was certain the owners would agree to the new rule changes at their meeting, which is scheduled for later in the week, but cautioned owners not to expect any new rule changes at that meeting.

Are you old enough to make your own decisions?

Remember your high school student government? If you wanted to go to the Friday night dance or the football game, you plunked down a couple of dollars and joined the student government's plan. If you didn't want to, you didn't join. Your high school government prospered.

Now you're at college and drive your own car, and wash your own clothes, and even entertain your friends in your room.

But NOW you are forced to pay for the student government whether you want to or not. Maybe you think student government is worth the amount you pay. But maybe you don't, and you ought to have a choice.

Support voluntaryism.

Fellow Student:

Do you know that only a few power groups receive the money you are forced to pay in mandatory fees? (For example, Gay Liberation Front is one of the power groups that have received your money in the past few years.) Do you know that over two-thirds of the other student groups on campus receive no funds?

We, the candidates of the PROGRESSIVE LIBERTARIAN PARTY, believe this is unjust. Why? Because you are forced to pay the fee ($13 per student, over $200,000.00 total). And because you pay it, but you don't choose what groups you fund. The Senate chooses for you. Instead of spending its time representing your interests to the Administration, the Senate spends its time bickering over who is to fund. You can guess who the Senate funds. Their friends, the power groups.

But we believe that all groups that generate interest should be eligible for funds. If you vote for us, we will eliminate this injustice and end this waste of time.

Here? We'll replace the mandatory fee with an OPTIONAL fee. At registration, you will opt for the groups you wish to fund, if any. You won't be forced to fund groups and activities you object to on moral, religious, or political grounds. If no group interests you, you keep the money.

The OPTIONAL fee serves all groups equally. The amount an organization receives equals the support it generates. The OPTIONAL fee benefits you because it is not coercive. It places all groups on the IBM sheet, making them all eligible for funds. The OPTIONAL fee not only serves all groups, it serves you individually.

So if you allocate your money for the Student Senate, we'll be able to get down to representing your interests to the Administration. If you vote for us today, we'll work to end the PARITRAL RULE. To expand the service of CAMBUS. And to seek additional University funding for CAMBUS, UPS, CVE, etc.

Today is your day to vote to end injustice. Vote for the candidates of the PROGRESSIVE LIBERTARIAN PARTY today. Thank you.

For a better student government,

I run revamping. More other such riff-raff as Appleton does. Secondly, the place looks hurt things any.

Apple's Way and already his mind has turned like this...

The federal government offers to bankroll an urban renewal project in Appleton. Knowing a gift horse when they see one, the front-colored, local businessmen, and area-construction firms are quick to grab on this golden opportunity for increased revenue and lucrative kick-backs. Part of this redevelopment deal, the council agrees in the apathy of the city park in order to erect a 5-story parking ramp in its place.

Incensed by this wholesale razzmatazz, local fowl has formed a citizen group to oppose the ramp and to save the American way of life. The group, after months of relentless effort, local apathy drowns George's ecological crusade in failure.

Starship is a bliplane

By DAVID HILLAND
Contributing Editor

It appears that the Starship is a blipplane. The kicker is looking for replacements for Kaidanow and Colton, and the blipplane is said to be a "Flying Circus," with nonstop flying shows that are popular in the West. This blipplane has been on tour for several years, and it is now being advertised for a nationwide tour.

The blipplane is a unique aircraft designed to perform aerial acrobatics and stunts. It is equipped with a special control system that allows the pilot to perform a variety of maneuvers. The blipplane is also equipped with a loudspeaker system, which is used to make announcements and provide commentary during the show.

The blipplane is a sight to see, with its bright colors and distinctive design. It is often accompanied by a large crowd of spectators who come to watch the show.

The blipplane is currently on tour across the United States, with stops in various cities. It is a popular attraction that draws a lot of attention from spectators.

For more information about the blipplane and its upcoming shows, please visit the official website or contact the blipplane's management.
New Zealander: Yoga is life way

By STEVE HOLLAND
Staff Writer

Most women in New Zealand are not as career-oriented as their American counterparts, according to Hilary Farm, yoga teacher and counselor who recently arrived here from New Zealand. "It seems that here in the States there is more time to learn such techniques as yoga."

Hilary is one such woman. She taught herself seven years ago and has been teaching others ever since.

Arriving from New Zealand in 1971, Hilary began teaching yoga to make last spring in physical education, arts classes. She is a graduate of Otago College in New Zealand and an ex-Internet-Communications major in New Zealand.

Hilary recently took some time after one of her University of Iowa teaching sessions to talk about yoga. Sitting in one of the wooden swivel chairs of her husband's field house office, Jim, is a professor in the physical education department, looks for harmony within yourself and the people you associate with," said Hilary.

"An athlete to compete needs a certain level of training. But, he doesn't want to be overly tense. It makes his head heavy."

"So do I understand, like Helen and Bill of UCLA. He must be really relaxed. The difference between those who are relaxed and those who aren't is in the difference between what makes you relax," added Hilary.
