Streakers flash campus...again

By NELLA WALLAUS

Tuesday’s streak is in itself only historical, but it might well be a warning for the future. The campus police said at one time a streaker ran a flagpole and flashed campus. But it would be foolish to think that this incident was isolated.

The streaked women who ran the flagpole were arrested and charged with indecent exposure, an offense that carries a maximum penalty of six months in jail. If the defendants are convicted, they could be fined up to $1000.

The campus police have been watching for streakers for some time. They are concerned that the streaking phenomenon might become widespread on campus.

The police said they are taking the situation seriously and are working to prevent any further incidents. They said that they have increased their patrols and are monitoring the situation closely.

The streakers said they were protesting against the war in Vietnam and that they wanted to bring attention to the issue.

The streakers were arrested and taken to the police station. They were later released on $500 bail.

The campus police said they are working with the streakers to try to resolve the issue. They said that they hope to have a resolution in place soon.
Rape bill pending in legislature

The bill that would penalize the use of rape in order to protect the rights of rape victims will be considered by the House of Representatives this week. The bill has already been passed by the Senate and is expected to be signed into law by Governor John P. Saylor.

The bill requires that anyone who uses rape in order to gain an advantage over another person be punished with a fine of at least $1,000 or imprisonment for up to one year, whichever is greater. The bill also specifies that anyone who makes false allegations of rape in order to gain an advantage over another person shall be penalized with a fine of at least $500 or imprisonment for up to six months, whichever is greater.

Under the bill, the governor would be authorized to create a task force to study the problem of rape and to recommend legislative changes. The task force would be comprised of representatives from the executive, legislative, and judicial branches of government, as well as representatives from the medical and law enforcement communities.

The government shutdown will provide for advance planning of driver's license suspensions. The Iowa government will issue new driver's licenses beginning in 1976, and the new driver's licenses will be valid for three years. The new driver's licenses will include a photograph, and the photograph will be used to verify the identity of the person to whom the license was issued.

Herrick was unavailable for comment after the suit was reversed; he had indicated previously the case would be appealed to the Fourth District Court.

The suit was reversed after the school district settled the case with the family of the student who was allegedly denied a public education on the basis of his sexual orientation.

The school district agreed to pay the family $13,000 in settlement of the case and to provide the student with counseling and support.

The decision overturned a lower court ruling that had allowed the school district to deny the student access to school activities because of his sexual orientation.

The suit was filed by the student's parents, who alleged that the school district had violated their son's rights under the state's anti-discrimination laws.

The school district had argued that it could deny the student access to school activities because of his sexual orientation.

The school district had also argued that it was not required to provide counseling or support to the student.

The court ruled that the school district had violated the student's rights and that it was required to provide counseling and support to the student.

The court also ruled that the school district could not deny the student access to school activities because of his sexual orientation.

The school district had appealed the decision to the Fourth District Court.

The school district had also argued that it was not required to provide counseling or support to the student.

Union club excludes students, caters to faculty, administrators

Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of articles concerning the University of Iowa's Union. Today's article looks at the Faculty Club. By Chuck Hawkes

The president calls it a place where the faculty can share "improvises of substances not generally available in the university dormitories."

The club provides drink for the faculty, where it is taken in the private quarters of the club. It is open from 11 a.m. to 11:30 p.m. and is located on the third floor of the Student Union.

The club operates on the premises of the University of Iowa. The University owns the club, through a lease agreement between the club and the University. The lease runs until 1975, with an option to renew for five years.

In the faculty, the club is situated on the third floor and is the dining hall (or library, depending on the occasion). The club's main function is to provide a place for faculty members to dine or work, and to serve as a social gathering place for faculty members.

The club has a membership of about 600 faculty members, and its membership is obtained by paying dues. The dues for the club are $100 per year, and membership is renewed annually.

The club library and facilities are available to members of the club, and are open to the public. The club has a bar, a lounge, and a meeting room, which are available to members.

Since the beginning of this year we have had several complaints from persons challenging the appropriateness of recreational facilities. In most cases we have referred these problems to the head of recreational services, a printed departmental employee in our opinion, and so motivated little reality in the way of implementing changes. Hopefully we've kept a few lines here where impatience was warranted. We like to think that we've been doing more than a job for the people here.

We continue to work with individuals who have complaints regarding the recreation system as we have in the past. We'd like to put it out of our control, however, which may be more effective in some cases. There is a Recreation Advisory Committee on campus which maintains a standing subcommittee for the express purpose of handling this sort of problem. You can refer a problem to their department by leaving a message at Dean Hall's office, phone 31-1147.

The sub-committee was set up to facilitate those goals: to maintain a continuous check of the recreational facilities' usage and to review and distribute the annual report of the Department of Physical Education and Athletics. This report can be requested through the committee, the president, or the vice-president of the University. The committee reviews the report at the end of the academic year and sends a copy of the report to the president of the University.

Democrats, Republicans win
Parties split primary victories

By the Associated Press

Democrats backed that a special Ohio congressional election is a special Ohio congressional election as an issue of emerging victories, while Republicans and a statehouse majority in Colorado showed the legislature's lack of experience could be overcome.

Former Prime Minister Thomas A. Brookins of Iowa, chairman of the Democratic National Committee and a major election leader, Tuesday in a Colorado district that had delayed a Democratic victory in other states in this century brought the Democrats to Iowa. He bowed to Speaker W. Ray Hays of Ohio, chairman of the House Democratic Campaign Committee, and thanked him for the state's "solid win over the other side of the vote last June and that a bright opponent, now in its own Congress, will be the lead.

Robert John Ford, R-I11., who defeated an Illinois Republican candidate, said the party of the Ohio town was ended by President Robert J.现代物流's victory of seven Democratic opponents in Ohio's special congressional election.

Speakers included the chairman of the Democratic National Committee and a major election leader, Tuesday in a Colorado district that had delayed a Democratic victory in other states in this century brought the Democrats to Iowa. He bowed to Speaker W. Ray Hays of Ohio, chairman of the House Democratic Campaign Committee, and thanked him for the state's "solid win over the other side of the vote last June and that a bright opponent, now in our own Congress, will be the lead.

Jerusalem (AP) — Prime Minister Golda Meir told her cabinet in Prime Minister’s Office on Wednesday and commented that the National Religious party, which holds the most seats in the legislature, will give her a majority in the cabinet.

The cabinet retains Defense Minister Moshe Dayan and other key ministers. Both Mr. and Mrs. Dayan earlier had suggested their resignation in the wake of political developments, but Mrs. Dayan said she will be resigning from her cabinet post.

Dayan reported after an inspection of the Golan Heights that Israeli troops had not suffered any losses and that his government would continue to rule the Golan Heights.

In an interview, the prime minister said that “we have not ruled out an inspection of the Golan Heights.”

The cabinet made the decision to continue inspection of the Golan Heights.

The cabinet will be inspected by the National Religious party. The government will continue to rule the Golan Heights.

Noah Schott, the 1-7-24-31-64 midway track assistant, had the best things to say about the big track. He had been in school for a year and a half, and he was very excited to be working with Coach Schrock.

"I've always been interested in track and field," Schott said. "I've been watching the meets and the practices, and I've always wanted to be a part of it. Now that I'm here, I'm really looking forward to helping out and learning as much as I can."
