

Won't release anymore tapes

Nixon forces confrontation with Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon notified the House Judiciary Committee on Tuesday that he would risk a constitutional confrontation with the panel rather than give it any more Watergate tapes.

In announcing the presidential decision, White House lawyer James D. St. Clair said, "I do not believe it will be an impeachable offense."

Neither committee chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., nor Rep. Edward Hutchinson of Michigan, the ranking Republican, had any immediate comment on the announcement.

Rep. Tom Railsback, R-Ill., a committee member, called St. Clair's announcement "most unfortunate."

"This decision is certain to provoke a confrontation with the Judiciary Committee, the end result of which will certainly be bad for the country as well as for the Republican party," said Railsback.

Asked what the President would do if the Judiciary Committee issues another subpoena demanding tapes, St. Clair said he would "respectfully decline to comply."

When we're going to have a confrontation because the President is firm in his resolve that he already has told the facts."

St. Clair made it clear that the President had not ruled out giving the committee additional evidence relating to the ITT antitrust settlement or campaign contributions from the dairy industry. But any evidence in those areas given to the committee apparently would not include tapes of presidential conversations.

In the same announcement, St. Clair said the President also had decided not to give special prosecutor Leon Jaworski additional tapes.

St. Clair said the President feels that release last week of some 1,300 pages of edited transcripts of his Watergate conversations along with other evidence already provided "is all that relates to Watergate."

The White House announcement came as the impeachment inquiry staff was preparing to begin presenting the evidence it already has gathered to the full Judiciary Committee.

The staff presentation is scheduled to begin at a closed session on Thursday. It will concentrate on events leading up to the June 17, 1972 Watergate break-in and the subsequent cover-up attempt through March 21, 1973, the date the President says he first learned of the involvement of White House and campaign aides.

The staff originally had planned to begin the presentation with a summary of its entire case.

Rodino said the White House failure to supply material requested by the committee was "definitely a factor" in the change of plans.

Originally, the impeachment inquiry staff, headed by counsel John Doar and minority counsel Albert Jenner, had planned to open its presentation of evidence with an overview of the entire case. More than 50 allegations of impeachable conduct have been investigated by the staff.

A committee source said on Tuesday that although presentation plans had changed there were no plans to drop any area of investigation because of White House refusal to supply material.

He said the change in plans was the result of problems in assembling all the material as well as a shift by Doar on the best way to present the case.

Members apparently will receive several "fact books" detailing the evidence compiled by the staff.

Current plans call for an initial four-day presentation, all in closed session. The first meeting would be on Thursday and the next three on Tuesday through Thursday of next week.

About six to eight hours of those first four sessions will be spent listening to tapes of presidential conversations.

Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., hopes to move the sessions along rapidly by restricting questioning to points needing clarification.

James D. St. Clair, President Nixon's chief Watergate lawyer, will participate in the meetings.

The initial plans for hearing evidence left several unanswered questions, including:

—Why the first sessions will be closed;
—When the staff will begin presenting evidence in such areas as the ITT antitrust settlement and the Nixon campaign contributions from the dairy industry;

—How soon the committee will be ready to submit written questions to the President; and,

—Whether a new subpoena will be issued soon for material requested by the committee in a letter sent to St. Clair on April 19.

In response to an earlier committee subpoena, President Nixon last week gave the panel edited transcripts of 47 White House conversations dealing with Watergate.

The President offered to let Rodino and Rep. Edward Hutchinson of Michigan, the senior Republican on the committee, listen to the tapes to verify that the transcripts contained all relevant Watergate material.

Rodino hasn't accepted that offer and the committee, in a near party-line vote, approved sending a letter to the President informing him he had failed to comply with the subpoena.

Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., who had sought unsuccessfully to get support for a contempt citation against the President, renewed his appeal on Tuesday and told a news conference he found "a clear violation of federal law" by the President in the transcript of a March 21, 1973, White House meeting.

Conyers said he was referring to a discussion of demands for hush money from Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt Jr. At one point in the transcript, the President said to John W. Dean III "That's why for your immediate things you have no choice but to come up with the $120,000, or whatever it is. Right?"

"That's right," Dean replied. The President has contended that several alternatives, including payment of the hush money, were discussed but that his final decision was against any such payment.

Conyers also said, "There is not an awful lot of enthusiasm on the part of members of Congress" for vigorous pursuit of the impeachment investigation. He predicted that if the House votes to impeach the President, a Senate trial would not begin until next year, after the new Congress, elected in November, takes office.

Faculty Senate adopts policies on transfers, part-time faculty

By JOAN MCGEE
Staff Writer

In a session that lasted nearly three hours, the University of Iowa Faculty Senate Tuesday adopted a transfer from department policy and another policy concerning part-time faculty.

With the deletion of a section calling for transfers other than those involving collegiate or departmental reorganization, senate members unanimously passed a transfer from department policy. The policy was drawn up by David Vernon, special assistant to the president, for faculty consideration.

Laird Addis, chairman of the Faculty Welfare Committee and associate professor of philosophy, moved that the section be omitted which stated that the educational program of the university will benefit by such a transfer if it appears that the services of the faculty member can be more effectively utilized in another department or college.

Vernon expressed concern that without that section the system would be "too rigid to be manageable." He pointed out that with the uncertainty of the student population in the future, the university would have to be in a position to shift faculty members when necessary.

The policy adopted by the senate permits faculty transfers in the reorganization of colleges or departments for educational, financial or administrative reasons.

Under the policy, no faculty member will be transferred as a penalty or sanction. However, when a faculty member is transferred, that person will be given a written notice three months prior to the transfer date.

Any faculty member that is transferred involuntarily will retain rank, tenure, salary and promotion opportunities.

The senate also adopted a policy which says that part-time faculty members are to be given preference for full-time positions, when they are available, if the part-time faculty person is as equally qualified as the other applicants.

This differs from a motion passed by the Faculty Council last week which stipulated that the faculty member be tenured. Sherwood Wolfson, assistant professor of oral surgery, moved and the senate agreed to delete the word "tenured."

Another change in the policy came from a motion made by Dee Norton, associate professor of psychology. Norton's motion stated that part-time faculty on the tenure track are expected to meet the obligations of the full-time faculty in proportion to the percentage of the appointment.

The motion further stated that administrative units are expected to assign duties and provide support to a part-time faculty on the same basis as a full-time faculty member.

The policy defined part-time faculty members as associate, assistant and full professors who are working more than 50 per cent of the time but less than 100 per cent.

James Lindberg, chairman of the Committee on Committees and associate professor of geography, presented to the senate nominations for senate and university committees. All faculty nominees, he said, were either volunteers or were contacted by the committee to receive approval for the nomination.

Lindberg pointed out that 28 of the 124 committee members, or 23 per cent, will be women. A senate member objected, saying that there were no women on the Budgetary Planning and Review Committee.

Margaret McDowell, associate professor of rhetoric, said that that committee had never had a woman on it and that it was perceived to be an important committee by a number of women on campus.

John Gerber, professor of English, moved and Lloyd Knowler, professor of statistics, seconded that a sixth member be appointed to that committee.

Some questions remained among the senators as to whether that additional person must be a woman, or must be a senator.

In other action at the meeting the senate considered an administration proposal to increase UI parking fees.

Eldon Obrecht, professor of music, moved that the senate endorse the principle of separating University Hospitals patient and visitor fees from those of faculty, students and staff.

John Dooley, director of the department of transportation and security, was present at the meeting and pointed out that faculty, staff and student parking is currently being subsidized by patient and visitor parking. He pointed out that there had been no increase in parking fees since 1968.

Chairman William Hines, professor of law, asked Dooley why he proposed to increase the rates 60 per cent in one year rather than a gradual increase over the next five years.

Dooley said that this seems to be a viable year for such an increase with the legislative approval of increased salaries. He said that it would be easier to raise the rates over one year, rather than to have to bring up the issue over a period of several years. He also pointed to the immediate need for money in maintenance work.

Hearing set in Hall trial

Prosecuting attorneys once again are pressing for a change of venue in the murder trial of James W. Hall.

Johnson County Atty. Carl Goetz and Asst. Atty. Gen. Garry Woodward Tuesday filed a petition with the Iowa Supreme Court requesting a writ of certiorari, which would bring up district court rulings on pre-trial motions for review by the Supreme Court.

In the petition, Goetz and Woodward asked the court to issue an order to stay trial proceedings, scheduled to begin Thursday, until a ruling is issued on their request for a writ of certiorari.

A hearing on the matter has been scheduled to be held at 3 p.m. Wednesday in Des Moines.

The prosecution's request comes only a day after District Court Judge Louis Schultz refused to reconsider an earlier denial by Judge Ansel Chapman to move the trial from Johnson County.

If the court issues a stay order, the Hall trial will have been postponed four times.

In requesting the court to consider the writ for certiorari, Woodward stated that the court had acted wrongly in not previously granting a change in trial site.

Hall, who is charged with the March 13, 1973, slaying of Sarah Ann Ottens, has pleaded innocent and is free on bond.

House Minority Leader John J. Rhodes of Arizona tells newsmen Tuesday in Washington transcripts that was "definitely impeachable." Rhodes added he felt portions of the transcripts did raise some serious questions.

in the news briefly Contract

Mayor Edgar Czarnecki and representatives of Old Capitol Associates signed Tuesday morning an amended urban renewal contract for the redevelopment of downtown Iowa City.

The contract provides that Old Capitol will purchase and redevelop 11½ acres of urban renewal property according to its six-year, $24 million plan. The city will provide parking ramps and other improvements in the urban renewal area, as stipulated in the contract.

The City Council approved the contract Friday, with Czarnecki and Councilwoman Carol deProse voting against the plan.

The new contract is subject to the outcome of two urban renewal related lawsuits facing the city. It also depends on the approval of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

HUD has ordered the city to incur no further urban renewal costs and to suspend acquisition of property since it found the project "financially unfeasible" after the defeat of the March 28 bond referendum.

City officials plan to meet with HUD representatives in Omaha Thursday to press for a reversal of the federal ruling now that the new contract has been signed.

Election

Former astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. won a Democratic Senate nomination in Ohio on his third try, and Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace easily won re-nomination for an unprecedented third term Tuesday night.

The 52-year-old Glenn, first American to orbit the earth 12 years ago, showed surprising strength in urban areas to defeat appointed Sen. Howard M. Metzenbaum in a race in which financial disclosure was a major issue.

In North Carolina, State Rep. William E. Stevens won the GOP nomination, while Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan led former Rep. Nick Galifianakis in the Democratic contest for the seat of retiring Democratic Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr.

In Alabama, Wallace easily topped the 50 per cent needed to avoid a June 4 runoff. The early count gave him more than 60 per cent of the vote against four Democratic rivals.

Hearst

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Three grandchildren of San Francisco Mayor Joseph L. Alioto may have been targeted for kidnaping by the Symbionese Liberation Army, the mayor said Tuesday night.

The mayor was commenting on reports an alleged member of the SLA, which kidnaped newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst Feb. 4, was seen questioning the grandchildren while they were playing outside their home in San Francisco about three weeks ago.

The New York Times and San Francisco radio station KCBS both reported Tuesday night that the woman was seen by the mayor's daughter, Angela Veronese, mother of the three pre-school children involved. It was also reported Mrs.

Veronese later saw a car with two black men parked near the house, apparently observing the family's living patterns.

Mrs. Veronese is reported to have talked with the woman who had approached her children and later identified her from police photographs as Mrs. Emily Harris, one of the women police have linked with the SLA.

"The New York Times story is substantially correct," the mayor said in a statement released by an aide who contacted Alioto in Los Angeles. "We will deal with it and the mayor will have no further comment."

The San Francisco Examiner, meanwhile, reported that the SLA was apparently building a bomb in an apartment here.

Irish

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Terrorists killed four persons and wounded six Tuesday, pushing the death toll to 1,012 in nearly five years of Roman Catholic-Protestant violence, authorities said.

Terrorists also planted a record-sized 1,100-pound bomb 200 yards from Belfast's City Hall, but it was defused. And they fire-bombed and destroyed the Smithfield Market, one of Belfast's landmarks, and freed Sammy Tweed, a militant Protestant leader, from a Belfast courthouse by screaming a bomb was hidden there. No bomb was found.

Two Protestant teen-agers opened fire on Catholic workers having lunch in a shack in Belfast, killing two and wounding five. Terrorists believed to belong to the mainly Catholic Irish Republican Army ambushed and killed a Catholic couple and wounded their teenaged daughter as the family drove to their home in Dungannon, 40 miles west of Belfast, officials said.

University will probably achieve '73-'74 Affirmative Action goals

By MARY ALICE SCHUMACHER
Staff Writer

Indications are that the University of Iowa will achieve its 1973-74 Affirmative Action goals for faculty hiring.

Figures for the entire year are not available, but the university-wide goals were exceeded by mid-year, according to Affirmative Action Director Cecelia Foxley.

According to projections made last summer, the university planned to fill 20.6 per cent of its 1973-74 faculty openings with women and to place minority group members in 4.9 per cent of the openings.

As of January, women accounted for 23.4 per cent and minorities for 7.8 per cent of all faculty hiring.

The hiring goals were conservative, Foxley said, so the university hoped to either achieve or better them.

An analysis of non-academic hiring for the year has not yet been done, said Mary Jo Small, vice president for university administration. Faculty hiring tends to be completed by September, she noted, while non-academic hiring continues throughout the year.

Small monitors the hiring of non-academic personnel, which includes administrative, professional and general service staff.

Although statistics are not available, Small thinks that Affirmative Action hiring goals will be achieved on the collegiate level.

"I sense increasing cooperation and understanding of policy by the departments and a willingness to be affirmative," she commented. "This should make the job of reaching goals easier."

The scarcity of qualified women and minority group job candidates can pose a problem in recruiting and hiring.

According to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), minority group members make up only 1 per cent of the available hiring pool. Approximately 20 to 30 per cent are women, Foxley estimated, but that figure varies with each academic field.

The Affirmative Action program does not change the university's policy of hiring the best qualified candidates, explained Foxley. "It changes the breadth of recruiting so that the candidate pool has within it top quality women and minority candidates."

If university departments were looking only for women or minority personnel, that would mean preferential treatment for those groups, she said.

Affirmative Action "cannot mean reverse discrimination," she emphasized, "but must mean special effort to locate and recruit women and minority representatives where they are not represented."

"Of course if you really need a woman or a black," she commented, "you hope they're the best qualified."

Active recruiting procedures mark the Affirmative Action program. The biggest difference in the hiring process is in advertising positions, Foxley said. Advertisements are placed in a variety of publications and minority organizations and individuals are contacted.

The recruiting area depends upon the level and pulling power of the job. For general service staff, recruiting is limited to the Iowa City area. The recruiting area for faculty is the entire nation.

Where available, women and minority members must be included on faculty search committees. The entire recruiting and hiring procedure is monitored by the Affirmative Action office.

Competition can make recruiting difficult, as other institutions are also looking for women and minority personnel. According to Foxley, the question becomes "Who has the best sell?" Pay and attractive location are important factors.

"It is difficult to get minorities to come and often their stay is short," Foxley said. However, more women are becoming available for jobs, she added.

Small agreed, stating, "We have been more successful in generating qualified women candidates than in generating qualified minority applicants, a lot of it because of setting," she said.

The problem of finding qualified women and minority candidates for non-academic openings has not been as intense as in some faculty areas, Small said. But when there is a problem, she continued, it tends to be in a specialized area.

Foxley considers the appointment of a woman as vice president for academic affairs an important gain for Affirmative Action on the administrative level. May Brodbeck will assume that position in July. Presently the 15 top administrative positions are held by men.

City discusses insect control

By MAUREEN CONNORS
Staff Writer

Health, environmental and monetary factors entered into the Iowa City Council's decision Tuesday night to defer for the present time any action concerning mosquito control.

The council will await policy statements from the city's Commission for Environmental Quality and the Johnson County Board of Health before it determines whether to enter into a contract for mosquito control.

Attending the council meeting were two representatives from a mosquito spraying company and a member of the Johnson County Health Department.

Lyle Fisher of the Health Department told the council that he was not endorsing any commercial firm but was seeking information about mosquito control. He said he did so after receiving a request from a Coralville man who was concerned about the mosquito "nuisance" Coralville has endured in the past.

The Clarke Outdoor Spraying Company of LaGrange, Ill., offered the council a mosquito control program which features malathion, a chemical which they said has a high degree of toxicity to adult mosquitos and small insects, but which is low in toxicity to humans and animals.

A representative from the company told the council that Coralville and Tiffin had supported the program but were awaiting Iowa City's decision. The mosquito control package the Clarke Company offered has a $2,000 price tag.

Councilwoman Carol de Prose's concern with the program was its environmental soundness.

"The investment just isn't worth it if it is just for the nuisance value," she said.

Other council members expressed a desire to receive policy recommendations before investing such an amount of money in the program.

Mayor Edgar Czarnecki's final comment to Fisher and the mosquito control contractors was that "time is of the essence, but at this time the council isn't prepared to make a decision."

"If and when the city does decide whether to control mosquitos in Iowa City, because of the amount of money involved bids would probably be accepted."

The council also decided that the seating arrangement in the council chamber for next Monday's public hearing for the Old Capitol Improvement Program should try to achieve an atmosphere conducive to an exchange of ideas.

De Prose had earlier asked that the public hearing be in a meeting place other than the "formal" atmosphere of the council chambers.

Councilwoman Penney Davidsen agreed with de Prose, but both women met opposition from the rest of the council.

Councilman Tim Brandt said, "The city Civic Center is the center of government and the public meeting should be here. If the crowd gets too large it can be moved to the Recreation Center."

Nixon signs bill creating Energy Administration

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon signed legislation creating the Federal Energy Administration Tuesday and warned of "disturbing indications that...many Americans believe that good conservation habits can be forgotten" with the easing of the energy crisis.

"By no stretch of the imagination have we yet overcome the energy challenge," Nixon said in a statement after he signed the bill.

He also asked for prompt congressional passage of other administration sponsored energy measures.

The new, independent agency created by the legislation will coordinate federal policy and actions in coping with energy shortages. It replaces the Federal Energy Office, which Nixon established by executive order last winter.

John Sawhill, who has been assistant FEO director, will take over Wednesday as head of the new agency when William E. Simon is sworn in as Treasury secretary.

Nixon said the new agency's first priority will be "to prepare a comprehensive program for achieving the goals of project independence—the capacity for energy self-sufficiency by 1980."

First increase effective June 1

UI to comply with wage guidelines

By MARY WALLBAUM
News Editor

Paychecks of University of Iowa student employees receiving the UI minimum of $1.85 an hour will reflect a five cent an hour pay increase on June 1 in compliance with federal minimum wage guidelines.

And although the next federally mandated increase to $2 an hour need not go into effect until Jan. 1, 1975, the UI will make the increase as of July 1, the beginning of its budgeting year.

While very few of the 6,800 UI students who work for the university during the year are affected by the first increase, many more students will receive pay hikes due to the second increase.

According to John Moore, director of student financial aids, many students presently are working either just below or at recently mandated minimum wage levels. The average pay range for UI student employees is between $1.95 and $2.35 an hour.

In addition, the university hopes to extend raises to as many student workers to maintain a pay differential among employees. The number receiving these increases will depend on money available in university budgets, but an accounting of this has not yet been made, said Mary Jo Small, vice president for university administration.

Initial estimates made by the financial aids office show that the increases could cost the UI $18,000 a month, Moore said.

This figure is based on the assumption that all of the approximately 3,400 students working for the university in a given month will be receiving a pay hike.

If UI budgets are tight, not all students will receive increased wages. After those not currently receiving the minimum wage are given a pay boost to meet new standards, "middle pay range" students will receive hikes, and if funds permit, the highest paid students will then be in line for increases, Moore said.

He does not expect the average pay range for UI student employees to increase very much as a result of the increases, stating that the variance for next year will probably be between $2 and $2.35 an hour.

The financial aids office currently is working to establish job payment guidelines for the 65 UI departments employing students, and these should be prepared before July 1, Moore said.

Each of these departments will absorb the cost of their student employee pay increases, he said. Moore does not know if departments will have difficulty coming up with funds to finance the pay hikes, but he does not foresee problems.

Most departments hire very few students, and thus should experience small financing problems, he said.

Considering that the university budget for student employees who are paid by the hour is $8 million annually, with an additional $1 million budgeted to work-study students, the pay raises do not represent a major increase in funds expended for wages, he said.

However, the number of available work-study positions may be decreased because of the pay hike, Moore said, but any drop would be quite small.

The financial aids office determines the number of work-study positions it can offer on the amount it receives from the federal government for the program.

If wages are increased, the number of students who can be supported by the program must decrease, he noted. Individual departments also must pick up their 40 per cent share of the work-study salaries paid to student employees, and if budgets are strained, employees might be sacrificed.

Social Democrat wins nomination as successor to Willy Brandt

BONN, Germany (AP) — Helmut Schmidt, a tough finance minister rated as a firm friend of the United States, won his party's nomination Tuesday to succeed West German Chancellor Willy Brandt.

Brandt, who won a Nobel Peace Prize for improving relations between West Germany and Communist Eastern Europe, resigned early Tuesday over an espionage scandal.

While Bonn buzzed with rumor over possible underlying causes for Brandt's decision to accept personal responsibility for a close aide's role as a Communist East German spy, the 55-year-old Schmidt's nomination was approved in an emotional session of the Social Democratic party's parliamentary caucus.

Weeping

"This is not the time to yammer," Brandt told weeping legislators in his first public appearance since his resignation was announced soon after midnight Monday.

"I am certain that our state will have a federal government that is firmly on the track in 14 days," Schmidt said before breaking off a Hamburg visit to return to Bonn soon after his nomination.

The 60-year-old Brandt, whose policies of East-West rapprochement bolstered his country's world status and won him the 1971 Nobel prize, fell in a political storm raised by the discovery of a Communist East German spy on his personal staff.

Normalization

Brandt had been chancellor for 4½ years and made normalization with the rival German government in East Berlin one of the chief objectives of his Ostpolitik. He had survived a parliamentary crisis sparked by his East-West detente policies two years ago and went on to win a special general election by landslide proportions.

But as his Ostpolitik slowed in the face of East German resistance and as inflation at home eroded his popularity, Brandt showed increasing irritability. Observers at home and abroad reported he seemed weary of his office.

The final straw appeared to be when Guenter Guillaume, 47, a pudgy-faced political affairs aide in the federal chancellery, was arrested as an East German spy on April 24.

Although other members of his government, chiefly Horst Ehmke, came under much harsher opposition attack, Brandt took upon himself "political responsibility for negligence in connection with the esspionage affair Guillaume," as his letter of resignation expressed it shortly after midnight Monday night.

Ehmke, formerly chancellery chief and now postal minister, hired Guillaume in 1970. A special report released by the government Tuesday in the wake of Brandt's sudden resignation showed that Guillaume received security clearance despite suspicions that he had been a Communist agent even before his 1956 "defection" from East to West Germany.

Ehmke reportedly twice offered to submit his resignation, but Brandt refused to bow to opposition attempts to make the postal minister the scapegoat.

Submitted

The full Brandt Cabinet formally submitted its resignation to West German President Gustav Heinemann on Tuesday afternoon. Heinemann, who appointed Vice Chancellor and Foreign Minister Walter Scheel to head a caretaker government, asked the ministers to remain in their posts until a new chancellor is elected on May 16.

One day earlier, Scheel is scheduled to be elected by a federal electoral college to be Heinemann's successor in the largely ceremonial office of president, starting June 1.

Scheel's small Free Democratic party, the pivotal third party in a parliament where neither of the two major parties has a majority, pledged Tuesday to continue its coalition with Brandt's Social Democrats.

This practically assured Schmidt of the chancellorship since the two coalition parties control 271 of the 496 voting seats in the Bundestag, the lower house of parliament. The resignation of the government in West Germany does not automatically lead to new general elections.

SECO seeks medical payments

By KRIS JENSEN
Staff Writer

Full payment of all regents institutions employees' medical plans is requested in petitions sent to the Board of Regents' executive secretary by the Staff Employees Collective Organization (SECO).

SECO, in its petition sent Monday to R. Wayne Richey, is calling for full payment of staff employee medical benefits by July 1, 1975.

SECO President Al Logan said that approximately 3,500 employees from the three regents institutions signed the petitions which were distributed in March and April.

Richey was not available Tuesday afternoon to comment on the petitions. A regents representative said the Des Moines office hadn't received the petitions.

The University of Iowa SECO petition states: "We, the undersigned petitioners, employees of the University of Iowa, request that the university provide full payment of Blue Cross and Blue Shield coverage for its employees. We feel that the university is taking advantage of the employee by not returning the dividend from medical insurance premiums."

Currently, no Blue Cross or Blue Shield coverage payment is offered by the UI. The University of Northern Iowa pays part of employee Blue Cross and Blue Shield coverage. Iowa State University also pays part of the coverage under a different company.

Dale Anderson, coordinator of staff benefits, says the comprehensive coverage for Blue Cross and Blue Shield is $12 a month for individual employees and $31.90 a month for families.

Anderson says that last year was the only year in the past four years that the university received a dividend or surplus money from Blue Cross and Blue Shield.

Surplus money is budgeted into a contingency reserve fund to cover years when claims are higher than income, he said.

He also noted that last year the Blue Cross and Blue Shield premium rate dropped $4 a month for families and $1.35 a month for individuals.

Logan contends from his own investigations that there are large dividends from Blue Cross and Blue Shield. He noted that discussions with insurance personnel and insurance underwriters reinforced this stance. However, he refused to comment on the identity of the persons.

"Hello, Waterloo? Bonaparte calling."

In 1960 it cost 70¢ to make a 3-minute evening call between these two Iowa cities. Today you can make that same call for only 55¢ after 5 p.m. or on the weekend if you dial direct without operator assistance. A little money still goes a long way on the telephone.

*Dial-it-yourself rates apply on calls (excluding Hawaii and Alaska) completed from a residence or business phone without operator assistance and on station calls placed with an operator where direct dialing facilities are not available. Dial-direct rates do not apply to person-to-person, coin, hotel-guest, credit card, or collect calls or to calls charged to another number, because an operator must assist on such calls.

Brandt compared to Nixon

An interesting parallel can be drawn between the resignation of West German Chancellor Willy Brandt and the problems plaguing President Richard Nixon.

Brandt was forced to resign because he lost much of his political support in recent state elections and was involved in an espionage ring within his own government.

The details of the espionage plot are sketchy, but it appears that one of Brandt's high officials was arrested as a spy for East Germany. Although Brandt has contended that this official was not privy to state secrets, the very thought of a spy high up in government was enough to run him out of office.

Brandt's problems in state elections stemmed from decreasing support of his attempts to warm relations between the Communist bloc and western oriented governments. Although these talks had won Brandt the Nobel Peace Prize in 1971, the national opinion of his efforts had dwindled since that time.

In comparing Brandt's difficulties with those of Nixon it is only fair to note that the political climates of Europe and the United States are indeed "horses of a different color." European nations have always been more prone to suffer through governmental upheaval than has this country.

But the present situations are very similar in nature, if not in effect.

Nixon has faced four very dramatic election losses in the last six months, and if he isn't facing a loss of national support for his administration, no president ever has, or will. And the problem of misdeeds by subordinates is hardly in doubt any longer—except to the most ardent Republican supporter.

If Brandt had faced several election losses and had then gone out to directly campaign in a general election and lost, he would have resigned long before now. In European politics, every vote is seen as either a vote of support or rejection of the government in power.

It is obvious this is not the case here, as Nixon has faced this problem and many more and seems firmly implanted in office—at least for the present.

Equal Time

Editor's Note: Today's Equal Time column is a contribution of Mrs. Andrew Dahl of Oelwein, Iowa. The column was written in the form of a letter to former Student Senate Vice-President Rod Miller.

I have read your letter in the paper regarding the use of marijuana. I dare say, you are an example of the idiots we have teaching in our universities today, who should be fired, or better yet, shot for their teaching such rot and spreading germs of 'revolt' against the natural order of God and nature. Atheists they have to be to have such a total hatred of the order of God versus man.

In the 7th grade you are taught in biology that everything on this earth, from the lowly earthworm on up to the trees, animals, bugs and flies, all affect our environment. Indeed that is what you are taught in your 'better environment' classes, isn't it? You know this to be a fact, that the earthworms affect the fields, the crops. The birds affect those crops; the deer; animals; each affect the other. Therefore, how can any professor in a college of grown persons get away with teaching such an ignorant, stupid statement, as to say that you should have the right to do with your body as you please. Drugs, prostitution, crime, revolution, all have no effect on the human race. Who takes care of the drug addict? Mother, father, nurse, friends, doctors, public taxes; on and on it goes. Who takes care of the prostitute when she gets filled with disease and ends up in a mental hospital? Nurses, doctors, friends (if she has any). Who is affected by her disease? Every person that she comes in contact with. Again, taxes and more taxes; on and on.

These idiot professors, and a good many of our women liber teachers need to be canned from the teaching profession, and have no business in a classroom spreading the poison and error they teach. It is falsehood and lies, not truth, and contradicts the facts of nature, biology, science, and everything else that your 'quote higher education unquote' morons are studying. Judas goats lead many sheep to the slaughter.

Women lib teachers are a rot in our society, teaching selfishness of 'me, I'm, and myself' only (no care for children, husband, society, just self-self). Suing, extortion, blackmail—these are the courses they take. Since they do not have the strong back of a man, nor his strength, why do they want his rights? Since they do not have the functions of a man, but rather, were born with the complete functions of a woman, and (childbearing is only part of it) man does not have to contend with, therefore men have something to offer an employer that women do not, since he is stronger by far and has no 'Curse' of having to bear children or having the ailments of a woman. God made them male and female. He said, two different species, therefore, not alike, and there is nothing we can do about it. Godless people don't care. They are bent on destroying any connection with the order of God's Law. Women's libbers are certainly good examples of that, willing to sell their own child's rights for self-love. When that child has a skinned knee, where does he turn? When he has a cut finger, to whom does he turn, when he is hurt? To a complete stranger? No, he has no one. Abandoned by his own mother; he has no security, and no security of mother, of home, family, is why all the juvenile delinquency. Again, it backfires on society.

Stand up in class and defy these idiot teachers in universities. Everything is good upon earth, it is only the abuse of it that is wrong. This one sentence sums up the entire universe. God gave you hands, feet, eyes, breath, and everytime you abuse these things, you spit in God's face. You defile the grace that Almighty God gives you, and he gives this grace to the evil people as well as the good. They insult God each time they abuse his grace.

In our town, I have been going to adult classes, and am forced to listen to these women libbers, who call themselves teachers. They are less than an animal and have no place in a classroom.

The Greeks held that the teaching profession was an honorable one. No more it isn't. We have everything from drug-pushers to prostitutes, playgirls, even a criminal, can get a degree and teach. Because of civil rights, this poison in society goes on and on. Civil rights should be destroyed if we are ever to have any law and order restored to our country.

Civil rights is a Communist organization, for the purpose of protecting criminals and Communists from the laws of our country, so that they can work without interference, but I don't have to tell you that.

People sit behind their doors and gripe and grumble that we have no law and order anymore, that we can't put criminals away. Why, because of the Civil Liberties Union and Civil Rights Commission. That's the reason. If we erase these two rotten forces out of our society, then we will have law and order restored.

So to you, and all the other student body who agree with those nincompoops at Iowa City, I can only say to you—you're full of bologna!

To the Editor:

In a recent decision, UI President Willard Boyd refused the city's request for UI student car registration information. This decision immediately came under attack from City Manager Ray Wells, who insulted the move, and then proceeded to maim other university decisions he considered detrimental to the city's operation.

Wells continued to attack the university in the DI for its basic indifferent attitude toward city affairs. The article appeared to be laced with threats of crackdowns on student drivers and new supplies of Denver Boots for those violators that couldn't learn.

I would find it refreshing for once if the City Council would express some feelings themselves, instead of letting Mr. Wells do it for them. He has continually shot off his mouth at every student university policy implemented. Contrary to what Mr. Wells feels the effect of a loss of those parking registration lists will incur, it instills faith in the student populous that there is still such a thing as Confidentiality of Student Records.

One would also hope that before Mr. Wells renounces the UI again, he would examine his own methods of priorities.

For two years now he had refused to believe that there exists a large plot of grass, with several buildings on it, known affectionally as the Central campus of the UI. Although this section is only two blocks west of the Civic Center, Mr. Wells rarely acknowledges its presence. I find it highly ironic for a man with such an indifferent attitude towards the university, to express distaste with the UI's attitude toward the city. There is more to life in Iowa City than just parking ramps, Denver Boots, and parking registration lists.

Letters

If Mr. Wells would face up to the fact that the university provides a great deal of Iowa City's population, and that they ought to be treated as an acceptable constituency, he might see the need for a pedestrian campus or at least a Madison avenue that can be crossed without risking one's life.

the Editor:

I noticed your selective distortion on the pictures in the tapes issue (notice Dean vs. Ehrlichman and Haldeman). I also noticed your distortion on the urban renewal project (how many papers are unbiased enough to caption "Vote No" and back it up with a blurb on the front page?). My visions of a harmonious world are dampened by sights such as these.

Steven Gronberg

To the Editor:

While William F. Buckley's many charms were in full display at the Iowa Memorial Union last Wednesday night, his dazzling eloquence and urbane wit failed to obscure his apparent loss of contact with reality. His defense of the free market system took the form of an attack on the political tyrannies of communist societies. While much of what Mr. Buckley said was true, he was playing his game with loaded dice. An economic system is, at best, an ideal toward which a society works to justly distribute the products of its collective labor. To weigh the theoretical beauties of one system (capitalism) against the perversions of the actual practice of another system (communism) is a deceptive and logically unsound tactic.

A new way to listen: DI style

"AAA! That's just The Daily Iowan spouting off again. They're on that liberal kick over there. Always against Nixon or Agnew. There's never anything of real interest in that paper."

Or do you hear this? "The DI is biased. The writers always leave out facts that give the other viewpoint."

But maybe the DI is not the only paper receiving flak about its news coverage, news writing or news judgment. Maybe the local residents also have complaints about the Des Moines Register, the Cedar Rapids Gazette, the Iowa City Press-Citizen. Or maybe the small hometown newspaper—like the Dallas County News—is what people dislike.

On the other hand, is it possible that the broadcast media as well as the print media are subject to harsh criticism? Is it CBS's Dan Rather you're tired of listening to? Or do you feel real aggravation listening to Walter Cronkite reading the news as if it were God's words, piped through a tunnel from heaven? Or when Cronkite signs off, do you pull an Archie Bunker, puckering your lips to let loose a loud, "pzzzzzzzzzz?"

With the controversial happenings in America today, the media are subject to much criticism. And criticism is healthy. The sad point is this: most newspapers or radio and television stations make no effort to talk to the people consuming their product—to face the complaints and criticisms head on.

There is one exception, however. The DI is listening.

The paper recently established a system by which its editors can receive reader input, hear the numerous complaints (or compliments) and find out what the reader wants not only from the DI, but from other newspapers and the media in general.

This system was not developed in a short time; no readership project is simple. It all began with the entire university community—students, faculty and staff. They were all in the pool. From this community, 400 were selected at random. Of these individuals, 200 were interviewed in some fashion and numerous questions were asked. A special questionnaire was also completed; a questionnaire that would enable editors to discover what stories their readers enjoyed, what stories were not read, and lots of other nice information editors can use to better the product.

Finally, the editor conducted 40, 10-to 15-minute personal interviews and recorded them on video-tape for later study. It was then that the readership had the opportunity to scold, attack, and offer suggestions to the person directly in charge; the person who could relay the complaints to other DI editors.

And it was interesting. The comments were useful and caused a great deal of reflection. Some comments caused change.

That's the benefit. The newspaper has established a system by which those who consume the product can respond and cause change.

Such a set-up has other benefits. The editor is not the only person who can listen to the interviews; they can be replayed for reporters and other editors.

Reporters, in particular, can benefit greatly from this set-up. They can actually listen to what people have to say about interpretation, analysis, factual accounts. The result: reporters would have the reader in mind when writing stories. Their function or style of writing might change.

There is one other plus in this type of readership survey. It shows readers that the paper cares and values the opinions of those who buy the product and enables the reader to participate in the production of the newspaper.

As previously mentioned, this system is not simple. It takes time and people. But the system is now available and can be employed year after year.

The benefits are there for both the media and the consumer.

Aid rejection brings munition cancellations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department began reviewing on Tuesday which munitions contracts it may have to cancel in the wake of the Senate's rejection of $266 million in additional military aid for South Vietnam this fiscal year.

Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger ordered the aid program examined at a series of meetings called at the Pentagon.

At the White House, meanwhile, Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said the continued infiltration of North Vietnamese tanks, artillery, missiles and ammunition into South Vietnam, coupled with the Senate rejection of more aid jeopardized U.S. reliability to support its allies.

Warren said the White House was "deeply disappointed" in the Senate vote.

At the Pentagon, official sources said nearly all categories of military aid to South Vietnam, especially artillery rounds, might be reduced between now and June 30, the end of the fiscal year.

The Senate's 43 to 38 vote Monday limits U.S. aid to Vietnam to a $1.126 billion ceiling the administration has been pressing to raise.

The House has already rejected one attempt to raise the ceiling. The Senate vote, resulting from a campaign by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., rejected a bookkeeping device which would have credited $266 million in aid to earlier years.

Because both houses have acted on the issue, Pentagon officials saw no chance that a conference committee of senators and congressmen might act to increase the ceiling. Sources indicated there would be no attempt to influence a conference committee in that direction.

Officials said rejection of the increased aid, while a major setback, is unlikely to result in an immediate reduction in South Vietnamese military operations.

Fairfield citizens discuss future of Parsons

FAIRFIELD, Iowa (AP)—Fairfield citizens crowded into the Chamber of Commerce building in this Jefferson County town Monday to discuss the possibility of the Maharishi International University (MIU) buying bankrupt Parsons College.

Jerry Leahy, president of Pella National Bank in Pella and a believer in transcendental meditation, served as spokesman for MIU. He has been active in negotiations to purchase the assets of Parsons and bring MIU from Santa Barbara, Calif., to Fairfield.

Fairfield was hurt economically by the closing of Parsons June 11, 1973. But town officials Monday wanted answers before they put their stamp of approval on the proposal.

They asked such questions as: what is transcendental meditation? What kind of students will attend MIU? Will they have long hair and beards and wear robes and beads like the Maharishi? What courses will the university offer?

"I think it is just great," said Lou Graf after two hours of questioning. Graf is a member of the study committee to find a use for Parsons. "It looks like all pluses and no minuses. The only people who might object are the taverns (MIU students don't drink, smoke or use non-medical drugs)."

Mayor Robert Rasmussen said a series of local meetings with MIU officials are planned so Fairfield residents can ask questions.

"It is a very difficult program to explain to the lay person," Rasmussen said.

An oak commode, anyone?

New store boasts array of antiques

By BOB CRAIG
Feature Editor

Have you ever had the urge to buy a desk and chair for $1,750? I can guarantee that you will if you stop in at Brickhouse Antiques at 319 Bloomington St. and take a look at a 140-year-old hand-carved desk and chair.

The desk has intricate carvings around the edges and "Man in the Mountain" legs. The chair, also hand-carved, has a leather back and seat with tooled chessmen. The owners of the new business, Michael and Merle Rodice and Steve Seyer, say that to have that kind of custom work done today would cost over $5,000. It is beautiful.

But don't be frightened by that high-priced item; there are plenty other fine items that are priced to compete with new furniture.

"We want to keep things at reasonable rates," says Seyer, "so that people will buy antiques rather than the plastic furniture that so many stores offer at exorbitant prices. The mark-up on furniture—40-50 per cent—is so great that when you leave their stores your furniture is automatically devalued at least 25 per cent. Our antiques will be worth 25 per cent more within several years after purchase."

The price of antiques compared to their original cost is astounding. Seyer points out an oak commode with a bevelled mirror that "sells for a conservative $110. We found an old catalogue that lists the commode for $1.49."

Several other antiques are really nice. A barrel-top desk with a rolled glass-covered bookcase, several little drawers and mail holes and brass handles sells for $650. A slightly worn Sultan handwoven Persian rug is dated to 1895 on the backside.

There are mirrored dressers that range from $70 to $90. One, a Chittenden Eastman with round sculpted edges, would easily cost $300 new. There is also an oak kitchen cupboard with a flour bin that Rodice said is dated by workmanship between 1880 and 1890.

Brickhouse will also be offering a stripping service within a few weeks. They will be using the methyl chloride cold method. In the basement of the house they have two large tanks to dip the furniture into. When the piece is removed, it is sprayed with water to remove the chemicals and rough sanded and returned to the customer for refinishing. Most furniture experts agree that the cold method of stripping is superior to that of hot caustic chemicals because of the damage that the latter can do to wood and glue.

Several items have already been brought to them for stripping; one is a solid walnut bed that is in perfect condition—which isn't bad considering that it was built in 1773.

By mid-summer Rodice will be offering stripping and refinishing classes at the shop. He says, "The course will teach people how to use, choose and dilute filling materials to obtain different results, the use of various glues for different woods, how to apply hand-rubbed oil finishes and how to use different finishes to obtain different color tones, among other things."

Seyer says that they are trying to offer an antique shop that is exquisite, one where the average person furnish their house from—even a flea market—all under one roof.

We are even interested in contemporary items," says Rodice, "anything that is high quality, durable and solid. For instance, if we found some good deals on Amara or Chittenden Eastman furniture, whether it be six weeks or 150 years old, we would definitely be interested."

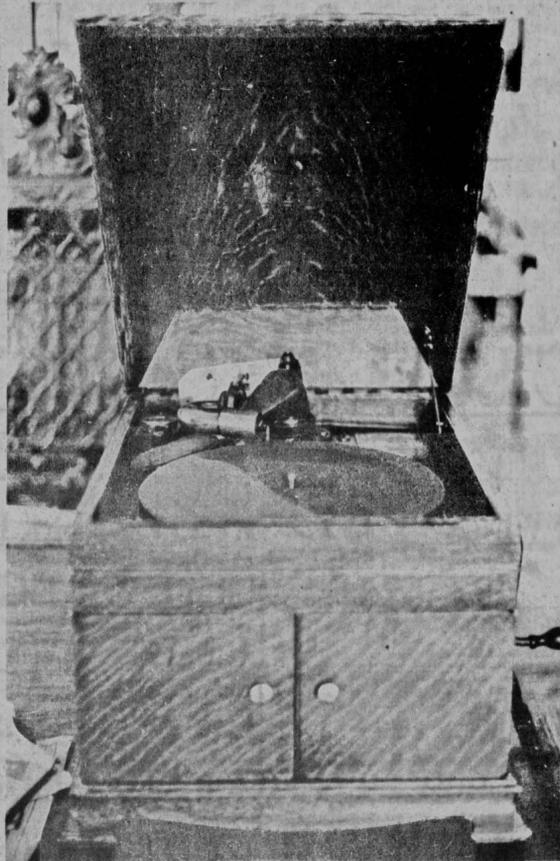

In the shop they have one piece of contemporary furniture: a perfectly balanced, hand-made Lebanese cedar baby cradle by Marcello Galupp of New York. It cost $300 new five years ago and is priced at $250.

Even the house where Brickhouse is located is an antique. It was built in 1877 by Conrad Graf as part of a bottling business that had been located next door since 1857. He resided there until his death in the 1890s. Then his wife was remarried to Christian Senner, who was running the bottling company and managing the estate.

Senner, who had been a German officer, moved back to Germany and died in Heidelberg in 1935. When he left, William Graf, the grandson of Conrad moved into the house. William, who still resides in Iowa City, says that he sold the house to Dr. Lois Boulware in 1955 and the house became her residence and her medical office.

In the late 60s the house and surrounding land was sold to Measurement Research Inc. and then resold to Westinghouse Learning Corporation for one dollar and other valuable considerations.

Even if you don't have the money to buy, just stop in and browse for art's sake.

Know your Saturday

I would like to know when the Iowa City Saturday recycling unit will again be picking up newspaper in my area. I was going to set out my basement full of newspaper on the 1st round but it was Holy Saturday and I was out of town. — J.K.

The first Saturday of each month the city will pick up papers on the west side of the river. On the second Saturday papers will be picked up north of Burlington Street and west of 7th Avenue. On the third Saturday pick-ups will be made south of Burlington and to the west of Lower Muscatine and 7th Avenue. On the fourth Saturday the rest of the town, east of 7th Avenue and east of Lower Muscatine, will be covered. On the fifth Saturday, if any, the crew will rest.

The cycle begins anew each month per the schedule above. Papers must be bundled, and should be on the curb by 8 a.m. Pick-ups begin bright and early, so have those papers tied and ready.

Kalso Earth Shoes

Where can one write or call for a pair of earth shoes? Is there a local source? — R.R.

We know of no local distributor for earth shoes, but can give you a number to call. Try 312-528-8510 for a Chicago distributor. Or, if you'd care to send for a free brochure describing this odd form of footwear, write: Kalso Earth Shoe, 2112 N. Clark St., Chicago, Illinois 60614.

Earth Shoes, for readers who haven't seen them walking about the campus, have an inverted design whereby the heel is lower than the sole. You walk around at first feeling slightly inclined to fall backwards. Supposedly, your back is actually straighter than when wearing normal shoes. There are varying opinions going around as to whether your stature is better or worse for wearing the shoes.

Lentils Arabian

Our last contribution to this term's semi-regular Survival Gourmet feature comes from Barb Norton. It's good, very good in fact.

Ingredients: 1 cup lentils (with 2 cups water and a bouillon cube); 1 cup rice; 1 or 2 onions; about 8 strips of bacon; several tomatoes; oil and vinegar or lemon juice; cumin (optional); salt and pepper to taste.

Procedure: Cook the lentils in water and bouillon (and cumin) for about 20 minutes; they should be firm. Prepare rice separately. Broil the bacon and then brown chopped onions in bacon

America turns out for food, fun, shows: shopping malls become activity centers

NEW YORK (AP) — Like the cracker barrel in the old country store or the soda fountain at the corner drugstore, the modern regional shopping mall is establishing itself as a focal point in the life of American communities.

Not only have centers captured 44 per cent of the total retail market in the country, but they are fast becoming the nucleus of social, community and cultural activity in suburban America, reports Albert Sussman, executive vice president of the International Council of Shopping Centers.

One study shows that shopping trips account for only 6 per cent of total family trips. The sociological sidestep done by shopping centers since World War II has produced a glittering array of attractions. In a typical week at a mall children might be treated to a traveling zoo or performance by a magician. The elderly can find companionship at senior citizens' clubs.

Women can see fashion shows, arts-and-crafts displays, travel exhibits, cooking demonstrations, decorating seminars and yoga programs. Teen-agers often participate in baton-twirling contests, public speaking competitions, square dances and Junior Achievement fairs.

The masculine shopper isn't ignored, either. He's lured to the mall with sports demonstrations, antique automobile shows, boat shows and camping and recreational vehicle displays. Some malls are even offering accredited college courses. One center in Chicago offers classes in everything from belly dancing to first aid or driver education.

A typical example of the cultural benefits shopping centers are bestowing on suburbanites — at no cost to the shopper audience — manifested itself recently at the Northgate Mall in Chattanooga, Tenn. There the center's merchants' association sponsored a concert by the Chattanooga Symphony Orchestra for 1,500 residents.

The impact of the mall on the life style in suburbia is reflected in recent studies that show that time spent there ranks next to time spent on the job and at home. Even the energy crisis hasn't dimmed these suburban "Main Streets," Sussman adds. One study shows that shopping trips account for only 6 per cent of total family trips. 7:30 ABC EVENING MOVIE. There are times when the critic's job is unwittingly made easier by the object under consideration. What follows is the complete press-release description of this evening's movie: "An alien being turns a piece of construction equipment into a huge murdering organism in Killdozer, a 1974 TV-movie about a hard-hat crew being stalked by its own machine." On 9.

8:30 AS IF THAT WEREN'T ENOUGH, NBC's In Tandem explores (read: exploits) the relationship "forged" between a wisened trucker and his young, college-educated partner when they try to deliver a load of oranges against the wishes of some violent orange-growers. It looks as though those chimpanzees that Dr. Gamow chained to typewriters some thirty years ago are finally coming through, on 7.

9:00 WORLD AT WAR. For tonight, documentary footage of the Second World War from the Japanese point of view, including a ground-level film of Doolittle's 1942 air raid on Tokyo. This series is one of the best on its subject, but is definitely not for children—the brutality is very explicit, the horror unedited and very real. On 12.

10:30 WIDE WORLD OF ETC. This evening's Salute to Redd Foxx spends most of its 90 minutes with a "comedy roast," in which a bunch of the guys get together and pile on dirty toilet jokes, most of which can't be aired. With Milton Berle, Demond Wilson, and Steve Allen & Jayne Meadows—who were television's most enchanting couple until the Deans came along. On 9. FOREIGN FILM. 1962's Catherine of Russia (Italy) stars Hildegard Neff and Sergi Fantoni in a very awkward, falsified, and sometimes enjoyable historical melodrama. Now, that's Italian. On 12.

Boston takes series lead

Orr's goal edges Flyers, 3-2

BOSTON (AP) — Bobby Orr scored on a long, bouncing slap shot with 22 seconds remaining in regulation time Tuesday night to boost the Boston Bruins to a 3-2 victory over the Philadelphia Flyers in the opener of the National Hockey League's championship series for the coveted Stanley Cup.

Orr came through with his dramatic goal after the Flyers had rallied from a 2-0 deficit. Philadelphia just missed scoring with 55 seconds to go as Orr managed to smother the puck near the corner of the Boston goal. Goalie Gilles Gilbert was virtually helpless on the play.

The Bruins, rebounded quickly and moved down ice. However the Flyers appeared to have the situation in hand when suddenly the rolling puck came back to Orr. He set himself up and let go a slap shot from about 35 feet out. The puck went through a maze of players and appeared to bounce through Philadelphia goalie Bernie Parent's legs.

The defeat was a heart-breaker for the Flyers, who have not won in Boston since their first NHL appearance here Nov. 12, 1967.

The Bruins came out like gang busters and dominated the early action. The tactics finally paid off with two goals, 53 seconds apart.

Wayne Cashman tipped in a long screen shot by Orr during a power play at 12:08. Greg Sheppard was credited with his 10th goal of the playoffs at 13:01.

Boston continued to hold an edge until the Flyers were aroused by a fight between their Ed Van Impe and Cashman at 6:46 of the second period. Then Philadelphia took charge.

The Flyers closed to within one goal, 2-1, at 7:47 as Orest Kindrachuk cashed a rebound of a shot by Joe Watson.

In the third period Bobby Clarke, stationed at the crease, beat Ron Gilbert on a shot off a second rebound. Clarke dug the puck out and flipped it over the outstretched Boston goalie, tying the score 2-2.

The second game of the best-of-seven series will be played in Boston Thursday night before the two teams move to Philadelphia for Games 3 and 4 Sunday and Tuesday.

Toronto Northmen Memphis bound

MEMPHIS (AP) — The Toronto Northmen of the World Football League prepared Tuesday to pack up and move South to Memphis after winning a five-year lease on the city's stadium, starting with a 10-game home season beginning July 10.

"We're moving the franchise the moment the lease is formally signed," said owner John Bassett Jr.

He added, "I would never return this team to Canada. The Northmen now belong to the people of Memphis."

The city Park Commission voted 3-1 Monday to give Bassett a five-year lease, with an option of another five years, on 50,000-seat Memphis Memorial Stadium, site of the annual Liberty Bowl college game. The lease gives the WFL team preference on playing dates in the stadium.

Critics of the lease decision claim the commission probably doomed the city's long campaign to obtain a National Football League expansion franchise. Memphis is one of four cities the NFL said were under consideration for an expansion franchise.

An NFL spokesman declined comment Tuesday on the effect of the commission decision on Memphis' standing as one of the four possible expansion cities. He said only that the status of Memphis and the other three cities would be discussed at the June 4 meeting of NFL owners in New York.

Bassett looked to Memphis under the threat that the Canadian government would bar his team from playing in Toronto. The franchise's best-known names are Larry Csonka, Jim Kiick and Paul Warfield, the Miami Dolphins stars, but they won't be available until 1975.

Notable pros on the roster are quarterback John Huarte, the 1964 Heisman Trophy winner from Notre Dame; offensive tackle Art Lasser of the Buffalo Bills; and Ottawa defensive back Herb Marshall.

Phi Epsilon Kappa, the Burge Bombers and the Easy Hitters won very few team championships in intramural sports this season. But by participating and placing high in almost every event, from archery to track, they have claimed the most important and most prestigious honor...the all-University title.

Phi Epsilon Kappa dethroned Alpha Kappa Gamma, winners of three straight all-U crowns, 1682-1541. While PEK won comfortably, the Bombers and the Hitters just edged their opponents for honors in the women's and coed leagues, respectively.

The Bombers slipped by Kappa Kappa Gamma 779-760. Likewise, the Hitters squeaked by Snatch and Grab, 845-832.

The all-U title for PEK, a physical education fraternity, is its first championship in the past 15 years. According to PEK's intramural manager Ed Buffum, winning the crown really came as "no surprise."

"We knew we had a good team and some outstanding individuals. It came to no surprise that we were able to beat AKK," said Buffum confidently. "We thought we could give them a good challenge and we heard a couple of other teams were going to make it tough for them to repeat."

Buffum believes his squad's success came from total participation and the fact that they were completely organized.

"We did what AKK had done in the last few years when they won it. That was to enter everybody in all the events, because points were also awarded solely on participation.

"We won a few all-U trophies in the past, but for the most part, only individuals entered the competition. This year we got organized and did the job," said Buffum.

Phi Epsilon Kappa made it to the semi-finals in both flag football and volleyball and had three titlists in the wrestling tournament.

Led by Don Casady, PEK picked up valuable points in the individual events.

Casady won the paddleball singles and teamed up with Jim Horagan to take the paddleball double's title. Casady and Gary Burke won the handball doubles also. PEK's Bob Conley and Kai Chan took home honors in the badminton doubles competition.

Two other Professional Fraternity League teams won three all-U team championships. AKK earned first places in golf, swimming and outdoor track. Delta Sigma Delta won championships in flag football, trapshooting and indoor track.

Although PEK didn't take home any team trophies in the major sports, an overall showing in every event catapulted them to where they stand now—at the top.

Women

Dormitories competing in intramurals have never been known for their organizational capabilities, but this season the Burge Bombers shot down that philosophy.

"It's hard to have a close knit group on a dormitory floor," said Lea Dorsey, IM manager. "But this season it worked out well for us. Of the 60 girls on the floor, 42 of them played in at least one sport during the year."

With the participation and enthusiasm like that, the Bombers made their presence felt early in the year. They won the flag football crown in the Dormitory League, but then fell to Westminster 12, 27-6, in the Dorm-Independent League final. The girls placed high in badminton, paddleball singles and billiards; finished second in the trike race and made it to the quarterfinals in volleyball.

The Bombers took over the No. 1 sport in the all-U point standings after they outdistanced the Hillcrest Muthas 16-8 for the indoor track title. Also helping the cause was a team championship in archery.

The girls, much to the delight of the rest of the league, will enter as an Independent next season according to Dorsey.

"We plan to go Independent next year. Most of the girls on the floor are freshmen and we'd like to stay together," said Dorsey. "There's just a lot of girls here involved in sports."

"This is the first year we have had our organization and winning the all-U title is just fantastic," concluded Dorsey.

Fantastic, indeed.

Coed

For the Easy Hitters, winning the title was anything but easy.

"We had to scrap this year," admitted coach Jack Broman. "The teams were a lot tougher than last year. Once we established ourselves, everyone was out to get us. But that's the way it should be."

The defending champs had to struggle most of the season, as they could come up with only one team championship. But their sole title, coming in volleyball, was probably the victory that assured them a shot at the all-U crown.

The season didn't start out so much a promising note however. The Hitters lost the championship flag football game to Revenge, and dropped decisions in quarterfinal matches in water polo and basketball.

But a fine showing in bowling and in softball, helped the Hitters come down the stretch in good shape.

Broman felt the team showed progress throughout the year and came through when they had to.

"The way we came back to win the volleyball championship typified the spirit and ability of this team," said Broman, in referring to the Hitter's crucial game against the defending champion Financial Aids Office. The Hitters trailed 14-8 in the second match but rallied to win the game.

"I think we have performed up to our capabilities. I'm proud of our team in that, above anything else, we display sportsmanship. I feel we also, by our intense competition, made the coed program stronger," said Broman.

Friday, look for the last IM Corner. We'll wrap up the year and say adios.

Quality Sound through Quality Equipment

Becoming a physician is a tremendous satisfaction.

Let us give you the job satisfaction that should go with it.

Whether you're still in medical school with the rigors of three to five years of graduate medical education still to be faced, or are already a practicing physician, it's our opinion that the Air Force can offer both professional and personal satisfaction hard to duplicate in civilian life.

An overstatement? Not if you consider the specifics. Take the problem of graduate medical education. It's a period of your life the Air Force can make considerably easier with comfortable salary and living conditions.

Creation comforts aside, the Air Force offers professional advantages. Besides receiving training in your own specialty, you'd be in contact with physicians in all of the medical specialties. You'll function in an environment which is intellectually stimulating and professionally challenging.

Not all physicians pursue post residency fellowships. But if you are interested, the Air Force conducts them both in-house and at civilian institutions. The physician already in practice can look forward to other things. If you want training in the practice of the medicine of the future, you'll find it in the Air Force. For example, there's emphasis on group medicine and preventive medicine, and the growing specialty of "family physician." Whatever your interest, there are few specialties which are not being practiced in today's Air Force.

The physician starting his practice in civilian life has to take into account the cost of setting up an office. The physician commencing his practice in the Air Force does not. He finds his office established for him. Supplies and equipment readily available. He has many options available to him when treating patients. For example, he can consult with Air Force specialists. He also has referral to other Air Force facilities via aeromedical evacuation. Last, but not least, are the satisfactions that come with having the opportunity for regular follow-ups, and a missed appointment rate that is practically nil.

Whether you are already a physician, or soon to become one, you might find it extremely interesting to find out what the Air Force has to offer. We think it could be a real eye-opener. If you'll mail in the coupon, we'd be happy to send you detailed information.
