New route passes 3-2

City Council votes busing to Mark IV and Bon Aire

By MICHAEL MCCANN

The Iowa City City Council finally settled the question of the routes of two new busing plans on Tuesday night, when both routes were approved by a vote of 3-2. The new routes will connect the North Mobile Home Lodge, 6210 N.E. Mobile Home Lodge, with the Mark IV, 5915 North, and with Bon Aire, 1310 Bon Aire, as proposed by Bob North, 6210 N.E. Mobile Home Lodge. The council had been meeting for over a year on the issue of busing to Mark IV and Bon Aire.

Busing would have been in effect by the fall of 1985 under a proposal to run two new buses to the north side on two routes, one between Mark IV and Bon Aire, and the other between Mark IV and the University of Iowa. The council had been meeting on the issue of busing to Mark IV and Bon Aire for over a year. The council had been meeting on the issue of busing to Mark IV and Bon Aire for over a year, and had been meeting on the issue of busing to Mark IV and Bon Aire for over a year.

Mayor Edgar Carver was the only council member to vote against the new routes. He said that he had injured himself in the course of his duties and that he had been advised not to go to Mark IV and Bon Aire.

"I would like to see the city council consider a busing plan that would connect the North Mobile Home Lodge with the Mark IV and Bon Aire," said Mayor Carver. For some buried deep in the soil of America, the news media serves as a necessary political weapon in their struggle to liberate the oppressed. The news media is a powerful tool capable of influencing public opinion and shaping the course of events. But, in order to wield this tool effectively, it is essential to understand the nature and limitations of the news media system.

The news media is a complex system with a variety of stakeholders, including the government, the public, and the media itself. The government often uses the news media to control public opinion and divert attention from controversial issues. The public, on the other hand, relies on the news media to provide information and hold those in power accountable. The news media itself has a responsibility to strive for accuracy, fairness, and objectivity in its reporting.

However, the news media is not always able to fulfill its role as a guardian of the public interest. The news media is often influenced by a variety of factors, including financial incentives, political pressures, and personal biases.

The news media's ability to report the truth is often compromised by the constraints of the news cycle, which demands quick responses and sensational stories. The news media's reliance on sources and the need for exclusivity can also lead to inaccuracies and errors. Additionally, the news media's ownership structure and the influence of powerful interests can further limit its ability to report the truth.

Despite these limitations, the news media remains an essential institution in a democratic society. It is up to each of us to be informed and critical consumers of the news media, to demand accuracy and fairness in our reporting, and to support independent journalism that serves the public interest.

Eden’s Farm markets, trucks out produce

BY WILLIAM J. MALLOY

Driving south out of Lane Tree, the last maple-leaved tree down in the eastern suburbs of Johnson County, a person gets the peculiar feeling like being in a string of time. The pavement changes to blacktop and narrows, then gets another or a sign painted with pictures of hands of lettuce, various produce and eggs. The last gas station is a red sign — "We Buy Bulk!" — and a small white shed. The sign is the hard part to turn for Eden’s Farm Truck: The muck from the truck is deemed too much by the newness of the city. Eden’s Farm is a family-owned store and the truck is run by and for the family. That’s true in all the Forbes Farming areas. The family farm is a small portion of which, but the truck is a big part of the family’s work.

Coop pools tools, helps local bikers

BY DRAKE HOLAND
Special To The Daily Iowan

Deep in the heart of Blackhawk Station, an ancient and dusty dark room contains such things as a pile of old bicycle manuals and pamphlets, a couple of bicycle repair manuals, and a shiny new toolbox filling two cubby holes. Tom Snyder, owner of Cooper's Cycle, has spent a good portion of his life working on bicycles.

Cooper's Cycle is a unique establishment in that it serves as a repair shop, a parts store, and a tool exchange. Snyder believes in the importance of cycling, and he believes in sharing his knowledge and resources with others.

One of the main attractions of Cooper's Cycle is the free tool library, where anyone can check out tools for a small fee. The tools are organized by category, from bicycle repair to general maintenance.

Snyder also offers classes on bike repair and maintenance, and he encourages his customers to get involved in the community through cycling events and organizations.

"The goal is to make cycling more accessible to everyone," Snyder said. "We want to provide the tools and resources needed to keep bikes running smoothly and encourage people to get out there and ride."
