House inquiry to check Cox dismissal

By LINDA SCHREPPEN Hallinan

A new way in American society began Jan. 22, 1973 when the U.S. Supreme Court struck down the Texas and Georgia abortion restrictions and issued guidelines for a minimum epoch.

The result of the Supreme Court decision was to make valid any abortion statutes which did not conflict with the guidelines they felt. This included Iowa's.

Shorin, author of those guidelines, then become legal in Iowa, and they were now performed in many hospitals throughout the state, including University Hospital in Iowa City.

An abortion was performed in University Hospital in the month of June. But the rate has increased. Seven abortions were performed in the week of June 13 according to Dr. Ben Berg, director of University Hospital's information services. Nearly 200 completed abortions at University Hospital were back in order to serve pregnancy testing patients, and according to Dr. Berg, the board iscomposed of a psychiatrist.

While all women of any age may now plan an abortion at University Hospital prior to being given those pills to prevent it, they are our first responsibility.

Women may walk in and require a pregnancy termination, they may be referred by their physicians or they may be sent by County Welfare Agencies, he said. During the first 20 weeks abortions at the University Hospital were performed on a smaller scale the technology to military use .

Tuesday the House Candy subcommittee will hear the abortion issue, deals with the legal implications of the Supreme Court's decision on contraception and conflict rights are complex.

The Supreme Court ruling on abortion, a series of cases in 1970, made the following points: It is crime to defend it. It is crime to obstruct it. It is crime to conceal it. It is crime to attempt it. It is crime to participate in it. It is crime to promote it. It is crime to allow it. It is crime to distribute it.

Barnes commented that abortion is performed under circumstances that indeed threaten pregnancy.

Supervisors consider combined police communications center

by SCOTT WRIGHT

IOWA CITY

Johnson County's council work session this week will include consideration of a request from the county to the Iowa City police department to provide a part-time police communications officer to help the county with its police communications center. The mayor and councilors also will consider the purchase of a new police communications vehicle.

The new communications unit will be housed in the county's Justice Center, which is located in the heart of downtown Iowa City. The new unit will be staffed by two full-time police communications officers, one of whom will be responsible for monitoring the center, while the other will be responsible for providing backup support.

The county's current police communications center is located in the Iowa City police department, which also is responsible for providing the part-time police communications officer to the county. The new communications unit will be staffed by three full-time police communications officers, one of whom will be responsible for monitoring the center, while the other two will be responsible for providing backup support.

Proposed parking fee hikes cut back

According to the university's senior vice president for student affairs, the parking rate increase was the result of several factors, including the need to increase revenue to support the university's financial needs.

Parking fees have increased in recent years, with the rates rising from $10 per month in 2000 to $20 per month in 2005. The proposed increase would have raised the rate to $30 per month.

The university has been facing financial challenges in recent years, with budget cuts and reduced state funding leading to a need for additional revenue. The proposed increase was intended to help fund these needs.

The university has been working to reduce costs and increase efficiency in recent years, but the proposed increase was viewed as necessary to ensure the financial stability of the institution.

The proposed increase was met with opposition from students, who have expressed concerns about the affordability of parking fees and the impact on their ability to afford education.

The university has been working to address these concerns, with efforts to increase the availability of parking spaces and improve the efficiency of the parking system.

Overall, the proposed increase was viewed as a necessary step to ensure the financial stability of the university, while efforts are being made to address the concerns of students and other stakeholders.
A War by Any Other Name...

Today—for those of a mind to celebrate such things—an anniversary of sorts; on this, 194th year, Congress declared war on Great Britain and France, beginning the War of 1812.

This War, in turn, is often forgotten, particularly by those outside the realm of American Revolutionary War history. It is not a war we celebrate with parades and fireworks; it is not a war that we mention in school history lessons, and yet it was a war that had a significant impact on the United States.

The War of 1812 was fought between the United States and Great Britain, and it lasted from 1812 to 1815. The war was fought over a number of issues, including control of the lakes and the right to navigate the Mississippi River.

During the war, the United States and Great Britain both suffered significant losses. The United States lost over 10,000 soldiers, while Great Britain lost over 14,000. The war also had a significant impact on the economy of the United States, as it led to a decline in trade and a rise in prices.

It is important to remember the War of 1812, as it played a significant role in the development of the United States. The war helped to shape the country's identity and its relationship with Great Britain, and it helped to bring about the end of the War of 1812, when the United States and Great Britain signed the Treaty of Ghent in 1814.
