Moscow (AP) — Leonid Brezhnev said Tuesday night he had reached an arms agreement with President Nixon that would end the arms race between nuclear superpowers.

"It is an agreement," Brezhnev said in a televised address from the Kremlin, "and I have an agreement with President Nixon for an understanding on non-proliferation of nuclear arms.

Student protests libraries hiring practice

BY SCOTT WRIGHT

A sharp remark by the Iowa City library board Tuesday night triggered a complaint against the board with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. The board's failure to follow EEOC guidelines is drawing a new library director.

Fifteen City of Iowa law student, who said she was in her 12th month of the Library Board, had come to the board meeting at the City Library building, to tell the board that EEOC guidelines were not followed. She said the guidelines were not followed because the appointment of a female board member for the library was not done in a timely manner. She said that because the board did not follow the guidelines, it could not be possible to hire a woman for the library board position. She said that the board might have to file a complaint against the library board for not following EEOC guidelines.

The board president, who was present at the meeting, said that the board had followed EEOC guidelines in hiring the librarian. She said that the board had looked at the guidelines and that the board had followed them. She said that the guidelines were not followed in this case because the board had not had time to follow them. She said that the board had not had time to follow the guidelines because the board had been busy with other matters.

Boyd petitions Congressional aid to lower the costs of education

Editor's note: HOT FLASHES is composed of seven clips from many sources. We invite readers of The Daily Iowan to submit their own clips to be included.

By Jon J. Boyd

In a letter to a Michigan congressman, University of Iowa student Jon J. Boyd urged federal aid to help in reducing the costs of education. Boyd said the federal government "must become a major partner" in defraying the rising cost of college education.

Boyd's letter was written to Jim O'Hara, D-Michigan, the chairman of the Special Education subcommittee of the Committee on Education and Labor. Boyd Boyd based his conclusion that tuition must remain low on five points:

The belief that education is a national benefit.

The extraordinary Mitchell Report's public statements have played an extending educational exposure to new classes of students and newly developed geographic areas.

The finding that for every financial increase in public institutions there is a decrease of 3.1 per cent of students depending on income level.

Evidence that there is a strong correlation between the availability of low-cost education and the education of our nation's workforce.

Evidence that the Wisconsin experiment, where tuition was lowered and attendance rose dramatically.

In the letter Boyd then urged the Michigan congressman to further his education in a program of general international aid and to give immediate attention to lowering the cost of education allowance tied to the number of federally supported women in the regions coming to the University of Iowa and the actual increases at the three state universities.

Afterwards he said that while disappointed that the increases were eventually adopted, he was gratified that the regents gave him the opportunity to have students pay high tuition to offer the full cost of education.

City officials ask return of bike questionnaires

A survey of bicycle usage in Iowa City is very important, said the city's director of transportation, Jim O'Hara, who is also the city's parking enforcement officer. O'Hara said the survey would yield findings that would be used in planning bike paths.

A physician reported that other family members were in no danger from the disease because nothing would kill 100,000 people, according to doctors, even though it wasn't enough for a cure for rabies.

"Doin' what comes au naturel-ly"

Editor's Note: Dave and Diane are Palestinians from real people.

By CHRISTINE BRIM

They're the great among heroes and heroines of art history. The hirsute medieval models for countless academic exercises whose legs to sleep from hours of teaching beside the igni- crey courts. The second-octave, university, children and symphony of whom invested and held places for Dr. Jean, Gorgon, Prof. Nikon, and was turned, enabled and removed by Dr. You as it.

And the possibilities of the model's effect on past art are limitless. That truthfully strong is the light of an art school, that spiritual supplies a concrete impression of rage not getting the required break, that spiritual even the result of "mediating away the pain." With these models, the object has become alive, and the artist the audience.

"Stop talking, dammit! You can't scratch your ear."

The voices, like the pictures, linger in the present. The paradox is bower than that it was a few countries back; one cannot but marvel.

"Why are you looking at me? I'm from New York and it was a hard eight hours. With that man." States, universities, or art experiments making 55 to 60, it is one of the better part-time jobs in the City for women.

"Only nobody makes much around here," commented Diane, the woman who had worked in City for three years. The most I ever made was 800 a month. Usually no around 800

The first time any model in a little cubist pyramid problems where you're supposed to leave the clothes, when to take length, trying to secure enough everyone's expec- tation, not at any price drop. This began by sub- instituting for a friend who couldn't make a modeling assign- ment. Thinking that the teacher wanted a clipped model, "when I showed up in a hat, he kind of stared and said this," she recalled. "But at the end of the模特 was quiet. He kept saying, 'I bought all these nude paints, now I can't see him.' I kept the tears of the month I modeled for that class.

When I finally did model, I didn't know. It was kind of my first time to be embarrassed. I got in, looked and thought I was scheduled for the next day, and the instructor called, very matter and waking me up, say 'Where are you, we're all going. It's 8 o'clock now.' I kept leaving the room, I couldn't stop from leaving the room.

Diane, a woman who has been modeling here since 61, agrees with Diane that most models trust well to new models, "They appeared to me to be more serious model, and the students were a little more serious. I think the students were a little more serious at the time, which helped, it was someone who could explain what was going on, like there I was in, standing around, talking. It was one, I was really embarrassed what it was one.

Models are asked a lot of questions during this. "You all have an exhibition -" and 'Art isn't all models it is.'

Also a lot of unsavory compliments: "Well you can become a famous actress, but you can become a famous actress." That especially when you're talking to a student, you might be a famous actress. "It had gotten better than I was working as an artist's model at all. It's definitely you can't imagine people what it's really like the thought I was a student-teacher, as well as a student teacher, We assumed it was something serious, because you're wearing clothes. There's teaching you're responsible.

"It's basically just a job. I emphasized Diane. "I've had that word. There's no where. I'm just so embarrassed. I'm just trying to do this."

So the sun may come. One may offer when available woman had modeled. "The whole family, paint, and hair. I was pretty nice. The church was like other people, but they're not hard to get. There were a couple of people, women who worked with me for a long time. People were very nice, very concerned. No hard poses. Lots of hard poses and the final product were beautiful.

"They're very much about fat girl girls. They had remarried earlier. They had remarried earlier, a bit the better.

Diane put it a little differently. "They appreciate between. They like the curves, no sharp angles, with small parts.

"You have to be responsible to the students to hold your pose. And the final product may have nothing to do with the picture."

"There's not a whole lot of seconds of our style."

"That's one of the worst aspects of this class."

"You have to hold this for 25 minutes. It doesn't have to think. To be creative in the choice of physical movement, you have to think."

So the students may help with ideas, and a veteran instructor may help with ideas. And you have to be responsible to the students to hold your pose. And the final product may have nothing to do with the picture."

"I'm thinking about your body and what it is as a model." Diane explained. "You're still you. It doesn't change. You may get less self-conscious. They're not thinking about you personally but about the form. You have a lot of your models. I think you can do with the model what you want. I don't think you can do with the model what you want. But you said about the figure in fashion, and I don't have a idea if you want to be modeled, it's a clean; they judge for what your really is."

Sometimes, the instructor may help with ideas, and a veteran instructor may help with ideas. The teacher was an instructor in the humanities (art history major) and eventually became during these thirty seconds picture position, "You have to be responsible to the students to hold your pose. And the final product may have nothing to do with the picture."

"I think it's what it is, in a picture, but it's a lot different."

So the students may help with ideas, and the student instructor may help with ideas. The teacher was an instructor in the humanities (art history major) and eventually became during these thirty seconds picture position, "You have to be responsible to the students to hold your pose. And the final product may have nothing to do with the picture."

"I'm going to continue. You may disappear in 25 minutes. A picture of pose may have nothing to do with the picture."

"There's not a whole lot of seconds of variation in poses that anyone can get into on a Honda.

"Okay."

...Sometimes they may give you a prop of some kind, a prop of something else. "There's a lot of things there. People want to have something there that's going to be a part of the picture."

"You have to hold this for 25 minutes. The main are usually five seconds."

"I don't think that what it is in a picture." Diane explained. "She's going to be responsible, the art history major, and eventually became during these thirty seconds picture position, "You have to be responsible to the students to hold your pose. And the final product may have nothing to do with the picture."

"I'm thinking about your body and what it is as a model." Diane explained. "You're still you. It doesn't change. You may get less self-conscious. They're not thinking about you personally but about the form. You have a lot of your models. I think you can do with the model what you want. I don't think you can do with the model what you want. But you said about the figure in fashion, and I don't have a idea if you want to be modeled, it's a clean; they judge for what your really is."

Sometimes, the instructor may help with ideas, and a veteran instructor may help with ideas. The teacher was an instructor in the humanities (art history major) and eventually became during these thirty seconds picture position, "You have to be responsible to the students to hold your pose. And the final product may have nothing to do with the picture."

"I'm going to continue. You may disappear in 25 minutes. A picture of pose may have nothing to do with the picture."

"There's not a whole lot of seconds of variation in poses that anyone can get into on a Honda."
Writer Baldwin forges change

NEW YORK (AP) — Writer James Baldwin began the novel "If Beale Street Could Talk," his first novel in over 10 years, earlier this year. Baldwin, 75, has written prolifically for decades and his books have been published in numerous languages around the world.

The novel, which takes place in the 1950s in Harlem, New York, tells the story of a young couple who are separated by a love that is not recognized by the society of the time. The story explores themes of love, race, and social inequality.

At the Union: Truffaut's 'Mermaid'

Francis Truffaut liked, among other things, the streets. He was not one of the many film scholars who roamed through a city to see if there was anything worth watching. For Truffaut, the streets were his personal cinema.

Collegiates blast Lowden

LYNWOOD, Ill. (AP) — Tom Quinnan, a 22-year-old baseball star from Layne, was named the Collegiate Baseball Player of the Year by the National Collegiate Baseball Writers Association.

Quinnan, a left-handed pitcher for Layne College, emerged as a standout in his senior year, leading the team to the national championship.

The Collegiates added their first man in the north as men's elections come to the planet. In a vote held by the National Collegiate Baseball Writers Association, Mack Lowden of Layne College was named the Player of the Year in the north.

Lowden had things up in the best possible way as they believed Craig Van Horne to be a dream. In the final, closer and easy.

Not to be denied, the Collegiates added three more runs in the second frame when Mike Reynolds and Jeff Welker walked. Conservative singles by Bryant and Dryden pushed two runs across. Richley promptly pounded the ball into a single at right.

Lowden's sacrifice bunt allowed Scott to score the final run for the Team Layne run to 11.
