NOWSA Cyprus (AP) - The Cypriot government leaders have reached an agreement on the restoration of a federal government, according to an official who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The leaders of the Greek and Turkish Cypriot communities have jointly called for the restoration of a federal government, according to the official.

The agreement was reached after extensive negotiations that were held over several days. The leaders agreed on the need for a federal government to provide stability and security in the region.

The agreement was welcomed by the international community, who have been monitoring the situation in the region for many years.

The leaders also agreed on the need for a political solution to the Cyprus problem, which has been ongoing for decades. The agreement was seen as a significant step towards resolving the conflict.

The official who spoke on condition of anonymity said that the agreement was reached after hours of discussions, and that both sides were willing to make concessions to reach a solution.

The agreement was welcomed by the United Nations, who have been involved in the negotiations for many years. The UN has been monitoring the situation in the region, and has been calling for a political solution.

Roads

In the first case (A) an owner of a county road going through land for residential development was set, the supervisors took what Bartel called developer's part guaranteeing a vacation will force the Corps to authorize a vacation hearing. If this is done, a vacation will be investigated. The Corps also could be forced by the Federal Highway Act to acquire the right of way. Before this was done, a vacation hearing was reached for a 1918 stretch of road, a process expected to take months. The Corps maintains the road, and if it is declared usable, it will be open to local use. The Corps also could be forced to use the road, but local government will not be forced to do so. All artists, novice or professional, are invited to enter the first juried exhibition being featured by the Iowa City Art Center. The entrance fee is $5 for students and $10 for non-students. The exhibit runs from April 4 to May 3.

The reception for the exhibit is planned for April 3 from 6 to 8 p.m. The event is open to the public, and the gallery will stay open after the reception. The exhibition will feature works by artists from across the country, with a particular focus on Iowa City artists.

"This is the first exhibition we've had here," said Gallery Coordinator Jill Schuppener. "We've had several Artist in Residence programs, but this is the first exhibition. We're looking forward to seeing everyone's work."

The exhibit will feature works in a variety of media, including painting, sculpture, photography, and mixed media. The entries will be judged by a panel of local art professionals, and the winners will be announced at a later date.

The gallery is located on the second floor of the Iowa City Public Library, 212 N. Linn St. The hours are Monday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., and Sunday, 1 to 5 p.m.

Colson testifies on Schorr case

RICHARDSON (AP) — World-famous Henning's House and Henning's House, Ltd., defendants in a $10 million suit by the Iowa City Art Center, say they won't turn over any art to the gallery of the name, as ordered by the court.

The suit, filed by the gallery in 1979, seeks ownership of 16 works of art, valued at $1 million, that were donated to the gallery in 1976 by the gallery's founders, Martin and Louise Henning. The gallery claims it never received the works and that they were stolen.

The Henning's case is one of many that have dragged on for years, as the gallery has failed to provide documentation of the thefts.

Television Safety

By Mark Meyer

The U.S. Consumer Safety Product Commission has issued a set of safety guidelines to assist consumers in preventing fire, electrical shock, and other dangers associated with the use of television sets. The guidelines are targeted at responsible television owners, but parents and teachers should also be aware of them.

1. Turn the set off during storms. Electrical surges associated with lightning can also cause fires and electrical shock hazards.

2. Use the proper connections. Make sure that all cables and cords are properly connected to the set. Improper connections can cause fires and electrical shocks.

3. Keep flammable materials away from the set. Do not place any flammable materials near the set, such as paper, cloth, or curtains. These materials can catch fire if they come into contact with the set.

4. Do not place the set on a bed, sofa, or other soft surface. The heat generated by the set can cause fires if the set is placed on a soft surface.

5. Keep the set away from water. Never place the set near a sink or other water source. The risk of electrical shock is high if water comes into contact with the set.

6. Do not use the set if it is damaged. If the set is damaged in any way, such as if the cabinet is broken or if the cords are frayed, it should not be used.

7. Service the set only by a qualified technician. If the set is not working properly, it should be serviced by a qualified technician.

8. Do not replace parts yourself. Only a qualified technician should replace parts or make repairs to the set.

9. Do not use the set outdoors. Outdoor use of the set can cause electrical shock and should be avoided.

10. Keep the set away from children. Children should not be allowed to play with or tamper with the set.

These guidelines are designed to help consumers ensure the safety of their television sets and prevent accidents. By following these guidelines, consumers can prevent fires, electrical shocks, and other hazards associated with television sets.

"We've beaten Michigan 10 times in my lifetime."—Los Angeles Angels manager Earl Weaver

Angels fans must have been relieved to hear Weaver's declaration yesterday. For a while it seemed they might have to live without baseball for a week. The Los Angeles' National League team was scheduled to play two games at the notorious Comiskey Park this week, and many fans were afraid that their team might be trampled by the Chicago White Sox. But Weaver put their fears to rest. "We're not going to let that happen," he said. "We're going to win those games." And the Angels did. They won both games, 10-9 and 6-4, to take a 2-0 lead in the three-game series against the White Sox. Weaver's team is now 9-3 for the season, and many fans are predicting a World Series victory for the Angels. Weaver is a man of few words, but his team's performance speaks for itself. The Angels have been playing well all season, and they look like a team that's ready to take home the championship. Weaver may be right when he says, "We're not going to let that happen."
