Ford vetoes veterans' bill

The Daily Iowan

City reviews intoxication laws; takes steps to fill council vacancy

Wednesday, November 27, 1974
Vol. 107, No. 105
Iowa City, Iowa 52242 10c

City area to seek new federal mass transit aid

Iowa City area to seek new federal mass transit aid
Burns, Bartel swap insults at meeting

By MARIA LAWLOR

Iowa City Police arrested an Iowa City man for lateness of a motor vehicle after the man drove a truck for $30 to find a lost child before en route to a laptop meeting Monday night.

Police apprehended Arthur F. Walsh, 30, at 610 1st Ave. S. and First Avenue, police said. Walsh had allegedly driven a truck he is alleged to have stolen into a telephone pole Monday night.

Burns pointed out that the motion to include an additional $250,000 for the road program was approved.

Burns said that the road program is being cut and referred to Bartel's comment about the cost of the road program being $355,000 for 1975.

Burns said that he could not support the road program in its current form and referred to Bartel's comment about the cost of the road program being $355,000 for 1975.

Burns said that he could not support the road program in its current form and referred to Bartel's comment about the cost of the road program being $355,000 for 1975.

Burns said that he could not support the road program in its current form and referred to Bartel's comment about the cost of the road program being $355,000 for 1975.

Burns said that he could not support the road program in its current form and referred to Bartel's comment about the cost of the road program being $355,000 for 1975.
Testimony differs from Magruder’s Mitchell denies break-in approval

WASHINGTON (AP) — For­mer White House lawyer Mitchell, who stood on the witness stand yesterday and shouted "I never confronted anyone," today described himself as a government official who was involved in the cover-up of the Watergate burglary…

"We’re going to do everything we can" to correct the testimony given by the witness, who said he was not involved in the Watergate burglary, Mitchell said today. "We’re going to do that."

Mitchell also denied that he was involved in the illegal wiretapping of the Watergate burglars.

Mitchell said he was not involved in the Watergate burglary, but said he was involved in the cover-up of the burglary.

Mitchell’s statement today was one of many made by government officials in recent days to correct testimony given by other government officials in the Watergate investigation.

Officials approve coal contract, mines could reopen next week

WASHINGTON (AP) — Regional leaders of the United States mining industry, after approving a coal contract offer from the coal industry last week, said today that they would approve a contract for the sale of coal to the United States government.

The approval of the contract, which was negotiated between the mining industry and the United States government, was announced by the leaders of the mining industry at a news conference today.

"We have been in negotiations with the mining industry for some time," said one of the leaders of the mining industry. "We are pleased to announce the approval of the contract for the sale of coal to the United States government."

The contract, which was negotiated between the mining industry and the United States government, was announced by the leaders of the mining industry at a news conference today.

"We have been in negotiations with the mining industry for some time," said one of the leaders of the mining industry. "We are pleased to announce the approval of the contract for the sale of coal to the United States government."

The approval of the contract, which was negotiated between the mining industry and the United States government, was announced by the leaders of the mining industry at a news conference today.

"We have been in negotiations with the mining industry for some time," said one of the leaders of the mining industry. "We are pleased to announce the approval of the contract for the sale of coal to the United States government."

The approval of the contract, which was negotiated between the mining industry and the United States government, was announced by the leaders of the mining industry at a news conference today.

"We have been in negotiations with the mining industry for some time," said one of the leaders of the mining industry. "We are pleased to announce the approval of the contract for the sale of coal to the United States government."

The approval of the contract, which was negotiated between the mining industry and the United States government, was announced by the leaders of the mining industry at a news conference today.

"We have been in negotiations with the mining industry for some time," said one of the leaders of the mining industry. "We are pleased to announce the approval of the contract for the sale of coal to the United States government."

The approval of the contract, which was negotiated between the mining industry and the United States government, was announced by the leaders of the mining industry at a news conference today.

"We have been in negotiations with the mining industry for some time," said one of the leaders of the mining industry. "We are pleased to announce the approval of the contract for the sale of coal to the United States government."

The approval of the contract, which was negotiated between the mining industry and the United States government, was announced by the leaders of the mining industry at a news conference today.

"We have been in negotiations with the mining industry for some time," said one of the leaders of the mining industry. "We are pleased to announce the approval of the contract for the sale of coal to the United States government."

The approval of the contract, which was negotiated between the mining industry and the United States government, was announced by the leaders of the mining industry at a news conference today.

"We have been in negotiations with the mining industry for some time," said one of the leaders of the mining industry. "We are pleased to announce the approval of the contract for the sale of coal to the United States government."

The approval of the contract, which was negotiated between the mining industry and the United States government, was announced by the leaders of the mining industry at a news conference today.

"We have been in negotiations with the mining industry for some time," said one of the leaders of the mining industry. "We are pleased to announce the approval of the contract for the sale of coal to the United States government."

The approval of the contract, which was negotiated between the mining industry and the United States government, was announced by the leaders of the mining industry at a news conference today.
Remembering the ‘60s

The current issue of the journal Daedalus is devoted to the “crisis” in higher education, contains nearly a hundred articles on that subject by well-known professors, some of them former students of the University of Iowa.

Most articles begin the perspective directed at enrollment problems and the last two paragraphsrate the easy money. A few speak to problems of divisive student interest groups. Some challenge the validity of this perspective on student affairs.

The abrupt division between student and faculty interests is, therefore, an interesting and adequate question of student interest groups. The matter is indeed in such a state that people often have great difficulty being heard.

In the midst of this, the idea that something is wrong with the educational system is beginning to be a number of different forces. For example, the lower level of educational attainment among students is being successfully brought to the attention of the public.

The President Speaks

He devoted to the “crisis” in higher education, contains nearly a hundred articles on that subject by well-known professors, some of them former students of the University of Iowa.

Most articles begin the perspective directed at enrollment problems and the last two paragraphs rate the easy money. A few speak to problems of divisive student interest groups. Some challenge the validity of this perspective on student affairs.

The abrupt division between student and faculty interests is, therefore, an interesting and adequate question of student interest groups. The matter is indeed in such a state that people often have great difficulty being heard.

In the midst of this, the idea that something is wrong with the educational system is beginning to be a number of different forces. For example, the lower level of educational attainment among students is being successfully brought to the attention of the public.

The President Speaks

He devoted to the “crisis” in higher education, contains nearly a hundred articles on that subject by well-known professors, some of them former students of the University of Iowa.

Most articles begin the perspective directed at enrollment problems and the last two paragraphs rate the easy money. A few speak to problems of divisive student interest groups. Some challenge the validity of this perspective on student affairs.

The abrupt division between student and faculty interests is, therefore, an interesting and adequate question of student interest groups. The matter is indeed in such a state that people often have great difficulty being heard.

In the midst of this, the idea that something is wrong with the educational system is beginning to be a number of different forces. For example, the lower level of educational attainment among students is being successfully brought to the attention of the public.

The President Speaks

He devoted to the “crisis” in higher education, contains nearly a hundred articles on that subject by well-known professors, some of them former students of the University of Iowa.

Most articles begin the perspective directed at enrollment problems and the last two paragraphs rate the easy money. A few speak to problems of divisive student interest groups. Some challenge the validity of this perspective on student affairs.

The abrupt division between student and faculty interests is, therefore, an interesting and adequate question of student interest groups. The matter is indeed in such a state that people often have great difficulty being heard.

In the midst of this, the idea that something is wrong with the educational system is beginning to be a number of different forces. For example, the lower level of educational attainment among students is being successfully brought to the attention of the public.

The President Speaks

He devoted to the “crisis” in higher education, contains nearly a hundred articles on that subject by well-known professors, some of them former students of the University of Iowa.

Most articles begin the perspective directed at enrollment problems and the last two paragraphs rate the easy money. A few speak to problems of divisive student interest groups. Some challenge the validity of this perspective on student affairs.

The abrupt division between student and faculty interests is, therefore, an interesting and adequate question of student interest groups. The matter is indeed in such a state that people often have great difficulty being heard.

In the midst of this, the idea that something is wrong with the educational system is beginning to be a number of different forces. For example, the lower level of educational attainment among students is being successfully brought to the attention of the public.

The President Speaks

He devoted to the “crisis” in higher education, contains nearly a hundred articles on that subject by well-known professors, some of them former students of the University of Iowa.

Most articles begin the perspective directed at enrollment problems and the last two paragraphs rate the easy money. A few speak to problems of divisive student interest groups. Some challenge the validity of this perspective on student affairs.

The abrupt division between student and faculty interests is, therefore, an interesting and adequate question of student interest groups. The matter is indeed in such a state that people often have great difficulty being heard.

In the midst of this, the idea that something is wrong with the educational system is beginning to be a number of different forces. For example, the lower level of educational attainment among students is being successfully brought to the attention of the public.

The President Speaks

He devoted to the “crisis” in higher education, contains nearly a hundred articles on that subject by well-known professors, some of them former students of the University of Iowa.

Most articles begin the perspective directed at enrollment problems and the last two paragraphs rate the easy money. A few speak to problems of divisive student interest groups. Some challenge the validity of this perspective on student affairs.

The abrupt division between student and faculty interests is, therefore, an interesting and adequate question of student interest groups. The matter is indeed in such a state that people often have great difficulty being heard.

In the midst of this, the idea that something is wrong with the educational system is beginning to be a number of different forces. For example, the lower level of educational attainment among students is being successfully brought to the attention of the public.
I'Spl'l' ialll~' Scotland not her day, ure . The species ing bigger and down here . It rnire a piece of good news. Paula people who know experiments on w illl.m, Quinlal Firmin, JulyS 'til life. tha t bird~.JulfS "til that the operat~.n of Lundon is hoped. For example: a patient not in operating in history . From law and the foundations of files ."

DOONESBURY Ted ethically. can solve the privac y issue and still be useful to the British prepare for new bombings ••..

'Three --'tisa developed. plus the bugs'violate th~ that can be threatened by bugs'violate the necessary data, must be kept secret. And

Lastly, there has not been a bug demanded her security issues, and it has been argued by Edward J . in order to achieve this goal, medical records have also been kept in leave that will violate the privacy is kept at a computer

The separate utility can solve the bugs'violate the necessary data, must be kept secret. And the message implicit in last Sunday's progressive Sounds Thursday, Nov. 28, 1974, of Johnston's primary campaign. She said in reference to Johnston's primary campaign. She said in reference to the Sen- torial race which was being run in the hard-hitting, populist style of the late 1960s and early 1970s, when a candidate's success was often determined by the intensity and enthusiasm of their supporters. Johnston, who had been a member of the winning team in the fight for political power, was well aware of the importance of building a strong base of support. She understood that winning was not just about getting out the vote, but also about developing a grassroots movement that could sustain her campaign through the rough and tumble of a contentious election. She had worked hard to build this base, and she knew it was crucial to her success. She refused to let the challenges of the campaign get the best of her. Instead, she remained focused and determined, always ready to face whatever obstacles came her way.

For example: a patient not in operating in history . From law and the foundations of files ."
Midwifery as health alternative

BY JILL TYSON
Staff Writer

A woman is in the advanced stages of labor. Her contractions are coming, hard, one per minute. The baby is the size of a large apple, and the placenta is prominent. It is a fine day to be midwife, and the 11th Street Birth Center is the perfect place to facilitate the birth of the baby. The need for the hospital is replaced by personal care. This is a technique of molding the nature of care and of bringing the baby born in a non-hospital setting, which, in most cases, seems to be the mother's wish. The midwives administer the amniotic fluid. A new life.

Many of the women who seek midwifery are upset by the fact that the offices are without recourse in the event of a complication. They have no apprenticeship. They have no sterile gloves and pads. As well as such amenities as bandages, blood pressure cuff, and marking pens. A new life.

In the 1960s and 1970s, midwives were becoming increasingly aware that they had little control over the quality of health care available to the women that they served. Lindy Floyd, a self-taught midwife and owner of the Birth Center, says that many of her midwives are upset by the fact that the offices are without recourse in the event of a complication. They have no bandages, blood pressure cuff, and marking pens. A new life.

They have sufficiently shaken up the health care system in California to receive widespread training programs and specialty training programs. They have successfully shaken up the health care system in California to receive widespread training programs and specialty training programs. They have successfully shaken up the health care system in California to receive widespread training programs and specialty training programs.

Pumpkin pie

This is a guide about making pumpkin pie. It is a very easy recipe for pumpkin pie. It is a great way to use up pumpkin. It is a simple recipe that can be made in a few minutes. It is a simple recipe that can be made in a few minutes.
Parker leads white team, 90-63

By KRIK CLARK

Behind the adage, "You are only as good as your last game," the 1977-78 Iowa basketball team was looking to its victory at Ohio State to help propel it to a successful finish and a berth in the NIT. The Hawkeyes had lost 59-57 to Ohio State in their previous meeting, and now they faced the Buckeyes in Columbus on March 2, just two weeks before the NIT tournament.

Iowa Hawkeyes coach Bob Knight said his team was working its way back into form after a two-game losing streak. The Hawkeyes had lost to Minnesota and Purdue and were looking for a victory at Ohio State to boost their confidence and momentum.

Buckeye coach Jerry Herda said his team was focused on preparation and execution. He knew his team needed to play well to have a chance against the Hawkeyes, who were playing well and looking to make a statement.

The game was competitive, with both teams putting forth a lot of effort. The Hawkeyes were led by junior guard Larry Robinson, who scored 20 points, while the Buckeyes were led by senior center Bob Knight, who scored 18 points.

In the end, Iowa prevailed, winning 90-63. The victory was a huge boost for the Hawkeyes, who were hoping to make a run in the NIT tournament. Knight said the win was a sign of the team's improvement and a step towards reaching its goals.

The Hawkeyes finished the season with a record of 22-9, including 14-5 in conference play. They lost in the first round of the NIT tournament, but it was a memorable season for the team and its fans. The win at Ohio State was a highlight of the season, and it set the stage for the team's final run in the NIT.