Ford calls seizure piracy; U.S. ships move into Gulf

WASHINGTON (AP) - A Cambodian court has ordered the release of 1,399 Viet Cong prisoners, some of whom were captured during a failed U.S.-backed rescue attempt near the Cambodian-Vietnamese border. The prisoners, who were held at a Cambodian military camp near the border, are believed to include some of the 1,000 Viet Cong fighters who were captured or killed during the failed rescue attempt.

The U.S. military had been searching for the prisoners for several days after the failed rescue attempt. The Cambodian government had been holding the prisoners as a way of pressuring the United States to withdraw its forces from the area.

The Cambodian court's decision to release the prisoners is a significant development in the ongoing conflict between the United States and Vietnam. It is unclear whether the United States will agree to the release of the prisoners, but the Cambodian government has indicated that it is willing to negotiate.

President Ford has indicated that he is willing to negotiate with the Cambodian government, but he has also emphasized the need for a peaceful resolution to the conflict. The United States has been working with other countries, including China and the Soviet Union, to try to negotiate a peace agreement.

In other news, the United States has announced that it will increase its military presence in the area. The move is intended to deter further violations of Cambodian airspace and territorial waters.

President David Epstein

The Iowa Faculty Senate concluded Monday that a bill to give appropriations to the University of Iowa will force the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences to eliminate 140 professorial positions.

The Senate, which had voted 3-2 last month to support the Bipartisan Budget Act, met to consider the bill again.

The bill would allocate $340 million to the University of Iowa in fiscal 1975, up from $320 million this year.

The Senate, in voting 4-1, rejected the bill, arguing that it would result in significant cuts in faculty salaries.

The bill would also provide $5 million for research and development, $10 million for higher education and $25 million for educational and medical programs.

The Senate cited the bill's failure to provide adequate funding for faculty salaries, saying that it would result in significant cuts in the number of faculty members.

The Senate also criticized the bill's failure to provide funding for research, saying that it would result in significant cuts in the number of research projects.

The Senate called on the state legislature to provide additional funding for faculty salaries and research.

The Senate's decision is likely to be viewed as a major setback for the University of Iowa, which has been struggling to maintain its quality of education.

The University of Iowa is one of the nation's leading institutions of higher education, and it has been struggling to attract and retain top-level faculty.

The University of Iowa has been one of the few major

South Korea mobilizes

President Ford had asked for $20 million to help the South Korean government cover the cost of the North Korean refugees currently being sheltered in South Korea. Ford wanted more information on a "wartime emergency" proposal made by John Sparkman, (D-Ala.) for giving economic assistance to the city. The senator said that any economic assistance would not be provided by the city, but would be enough to cover the city's expenses for providing economic assistance to the refugees. With the arrival of summer and the end of the fiscal year, Ford asked the council to consider a proposal to provide economic assistance to the city.

City Council stands firm on Old Cap pressure

The council informed the police that the arrival of summer and the end of the fiscal year would create some serious problems about the legality of extending the deadline date. In a lengthy and detailed discussion, the council indicated that the city's actions would be based on their legal obligations under the law and the council's responsibilities. The council informed the police that the city's position on Old Cap is that it would not be an issue if the proposal were made to the council. One More Chance?

Despite Gerald Ford's admission that Americans remember their own immigrant heritage, he neglected the one that is genuine, the Vietnamese, he seems to be making it clear that he doesn't care if the Vietnamese are defeated or not.

Hence, the latest issue of Newweek describes the miserable conditions of school children toward Vietnamese refugees, and the Daily Hawkeye Register publishes a reader's letter which reveals that all Vietnamese as possible allies, but also their earlier refugee counterparts.

Americans have no monopoly on ugly emotions. and a 9 per cent unemployment rate is just the latest in a series of negative reports. And if the Vietnamese are doing this country the biggest favor of all by giving us a chance to show our compassion and generosity. Rhonda Dickey

A Toast to the Turkeys of the Town

The prevailing theory seems to be: "Get them in, something cheap, and let God do the rest. They're ugly anyway." And so it was.

I am still, for example, trying to understand the purpose of including in Hearts and Minds a little line of the CMF spreading out its arms to embrace a group of Vietnamese children. This means that Uncle Sam's role is right because he's a good war hero. But just as he had not published a report to indicate that the Vietnamese have won their war, the 33rd Battalion spread out its arms to embrace a group of Vietnamese children.

By questioning the truthfulness, I am not asking some with the spectators for an argument. A conservative viewpoint is that the Vietnamese, who should be touched upon the most part of this issue - of the Vietnamese war.

By questioning the truthfulness, I am not suggesting some with the spectators for an argument. A conservative viewpoint is that the Vietnamese have not won their war, and the 33rd Battalion spread out its arms to embrace a group of Vietnamese children.

But further, it is even possible to use the "truth" and the "moral" to attempt another argument? Or is it?

The Hammis, a non-news organization, is about Vietnam and its influence in this country. Yet, as Ford's quote is that they are a culture familiar to us in a poor region to exclude them from the movie, and since most of the refugees are women and children, their effect on unemployment will be negligible.

Ferd's "making pet" lectures may be for little children, but if they serve to reveal America in its own mind, self-interested society, and that this time, the quantity through intimidation of Indians, blacks, the poor people in short, practically anyone who is "different" - has shown its capacity for blind, ugly hatred. Perhaps the Vietnamese are doing this country the biggest favor of all by giving us a chance to show our compassion and generosity.

Where are the Minds?

Every time. I decide to place my trust in the judgment and insight of people, something always comes along to make me take it back. Once in point. Heims and Minds, a documentary series on Iowa City, is now available. The movie, which deals American experience in Vietnam through this film, has generated considerable interest.

The series, which began filming last summer, portrays Walt Hovater's making of a film and the Academy Award acceptance speech that he submitted at the war's end.

The psychological effects of the Vietnamese war on American society will be reflected in this series. The movie, which began filming last summer, portrays Walt Hovater's making of a film and the Academy Award acceptance speech that he submitted at the war's end.

After a week of digging, a 12 student emerges exhuberant from his last final exam with an endless stream of words running in.

"Katy Lied": Steely Dan selling same song again

"Katy Lied" is a song by Steely Dan from their 1973 album "The Royal Scourge." The song is a parody of the Beatles' "Katy Wishes," and it features the lyrics "Katy Lied" in place of the original's "Katy Wishes." The song is a commentary on the idea of "selling" songs and the impact of corporate ownership on music. The lyrics are a playful inversion of the original, with Dan writing to "Katy Lied" instead of "Wishes." The song has become a classic of the Steely Dan repertoire and is often performed live.

Hypertension study

Investigating early treatment

By COLLEEN FOX

Researchers at Veteran's Affairs Medical Centers and University Hospitals are conducting a pilot study that aims to identify different treatment strategies for patients with hypertension. The goal is to determine which patients respond best to different types of treatment, and to find new opportunities to improve care for those with the condition.

The study involves 50 patients and is funded by the National Institutes of Health and the Department of Veterans Affairs. It is led by Dr. William Lawton, a cardiologist at the VA Pittsburgh Healthcare System.

"Our goal is to find new ways to improve care for patients with hypertension," said Lawton. "We hope to identify which patients respond best to different types of treatment, and to find new opportunities to improve care for those with the condition."

Big weekend for Iowa

By BILL WADE

With the Big Ten basketball tournament four days away, no one is looking forward to the moving to the spotlight that means Iowa will be trying to climb into the first four seeds in the NCAA tourney.

The Hawkeyes finished 10-6 in the conference, and they have three opportunities to earn a spot in the first four.

The first is the Big Ten, which the Hawkeyes have won the last two years. The second is the NCAA tourney, where the Hawkeyes have won the last two seasons. The third is the NCAA playoffs, where the Hawkeyes have won the last two years.

The Hawkeyes have been working hard to get into the first four seeds, and they have a strong chance of doing so.
